The summe and content of the holy scripture, both of the olde and newe testamente.

First the holy wryttings of the Bible teach vs, that there is one god, almighty, that hath nerher beginning nor ending: whiche of his own goodnes did create all thynges: of whom al thynges procede, & wout whom there is nothinge: whiche is righteous & mercifull, and whiche worketh al thynges in all after his wyl:
of whom it maye not be demaunded, wherefore he doth this or that.

Then that this verye God did create Adam the first mā after his owne image & similitude, & did ordeine & appoint him lord of al & creatures in the erth. Whiche Adam by the cnyng of the deuill, disobeying the commaundment of his maker, dyd firste synne, and broughte synne into this world, such and so greate, that we woulche be spronge of hym after the fleshe, are subdued vnto synne, death, and dampnation, brought vnder the poke & tyranny of the deuill.

And further & Christ Iesus his sonne was promised of god & father, to be a saviour to this Adam, Abraham, Isaac, David & the other fathers: whiche should deliuer the from their sin-nes & tyranny of the deuill, that w a quicke & liuynge sayth would beleue this promise, & trust to this Iesus Christ, hopping to haue this deli-uerance of & by hym. And truly this promise, is very oft rehearsed in the booke of the old testament, yea, & the old testamēt, is this promise:
as it is called the new, whiche teacheth that this promise is fulfilled.

And that in the meane season whyle the fathers looked for saluacyon and deliuerance promised, because mannes nature is suche that he not only can nor, but also will not confesse himself to be a sinner, & specially such a sinner that hath nede of & sauing health promised, the law was geue, wher throughe me might knowe sin, & that they are sinners: wher they se & they doo none of & thynges & the lawe commaundeth, w so glad & willing a mind as god requiereth: but rather agāst their willes, wout affectiō, & as though they were constrained w the feare of & hell whiche & lawe threteneth, sayng: Cursed be he & mainteneth not al & words of this lawe to kepe
the. And & this lawe was geue, to thynkt & synne and & malice of mē here being thereby & better knowe, men should & more securely & wiste & com-ming of Christe, whiche should redeme them fro their sinnes: As it was figured vnto & Jewes by many ceremonies, holles, & sacrifices: whiche were ordeined of god, not to thynkt to take away synnes, but to shew & declare & they shoulde be put away by faith in the saluation promised thorow Christ: & whiche now are put away by & coming of that Christ, whiche is the very host of the father that taketh awaye all synne.

Last of all by & booke of & new testamēt, we are taught, & Christ whiche was promised & shewdowed in & olde testamēt, is sent of & father, at such tyme as he had decremined w him self, at such tyme (I say) as al wickednes florished.
And & he was sent not for any mans good wor-kes (for they all were sinners) but to the intent that he would truly shew the abundant riches of hys grace, whiche he had promised.

the holy scripture

In the newe Testament therefore it is most evidently declared, that Iesus Christ the true lambe and holste, is come to thintent to reconcile vs to the father, paying on the crosse the punishment due vnto our sinnes: and to deliuer vs from the bondage of the deuell (vnto whome we serued through sinne) and to make vs the sonnes of God, sith he hath geuen vs the true peace and tranquillite of conscience, that we no longer do feare the paynes of hel: which feare is put away by the fapth, confidence and assurance, that the father geueth vs drawing vs vnto his sonne. For that faith is the gift of God, wherby we beleue that Christ is come into this worlde to saue sinners: whiche is of so greate pyth that they which haue it, desire to performe all the duties of loue to all men, after the example of Christ. For fapth ones receyued God geueth his holy gozt, wherby he tokeneth and marketh all that beleue: whiche is the pledge and earnest that we shall surely possesse euerlasting life, and that geueth witness vnto oure sperte, and grafeth this fapth in vs, that we be the sonnes of God: pouring there with the loue into our hertes which Saul describeth and setteth out to * the Corinthians. By that fapth and confidence in Christ which by loue is mighty in operation, and that cometh it selfe thow the workes of loue, stering men thereto, by that (I say) we are iustified: that is by that faith, Christs father (which is become oure also thow we that Christe our brother) counteth vs for righteous and for his sonnes: imputing not our sinnes vnto vs, thow bys grace.

To conclude, he came to thintent that we beinge cleansed from our sinnes, and sanctified vnto God the father: that is, halowed vnto the vse of the father to exercise good workes rennyng & forsaking the workes of the fleshe, should freely serue hym in righteousness and holines all our life long: thow good workes which God hath ordeyned to thintent that we should walke in them, declaring our selves thereby to be surely called vnto this grace: whiche workes whosoeuer hath not, declareth that he hath not fapth in Christ.

Vnto whom we must come, and folow him with a chearful hert, that he may instruct and teach vs: for he is our master, meke and humble of hert: he is our example of whom we muste learne the rule of good liuing: further, he is our prest, hye bishop, and onli mediator: which now sitteth on the right hande of God the father, is our aduocate, and prayeth euer for vs: whiche wil vndouted obtrayn whatsoeuer we desyre, ether of him, or of his father in his name: if we beleue that he wil do it when we requier it: for so hath he promised. Let vs therefore not doute, (although we sometime sinne) with a confidence to come vnto him, and with a liuyng and vndouting fapth, that we shall obtrayn mercy. For therfore came he to thintent to saue sinners: neither requiereth he any thing more of vs, then to come vnto him without feare.

This is the same IESUS Christe whiche after he hath kyled the manne of synne with the breathe of his mouth, shall sit in his maiestie and iudge all men, geuing vnto euery one the workes of his body, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad: And that he shall saye vnto theym that shall be on his ryghte hande. Come ye blessed chyldren of my father, inheret ye the kyngdome prepared for you from the beginninge of the worlde: And vnto them that shall be on his left hande, Departre from me ye cursed, into euerlasting fyre: which is prepared for the deuell and his aungels. The shall the ende come and he shall deliuer vp the kyngdome to God the father.

To the intent that we should knowe this, by the goodnes of God workyng by his holy sperte, are the holy wytynges of the Wyble geuen vs: That we should knowe (I saye) and beleue that there is one God, and Iesus Christ whome he hath sent: and that in beleuyng we should haue euerlastyng lyfe thow his name.

Another foundation then this can no man laye. And sayntre Paul despieth that he be holden a cursed whiche preacheth any other faith and saluacion, the onely by Iesus Christ: yea, although it were an aungel of heauen. For of hym, and thow we him, and for hym, are all thynges: to whome, with the father and the holye gozt, be honour & glorie for euer more. Amen.

God be geue vnto you by Iesus Christe.

As the Bees diligently do gather together sweete flowers to make by naturall crafts the swete honny: so haue I done the principall sentences conteyned in the Wyble. The which are ordeined after the manner of a table, for the consolation of those which are not yet exercised & instructed in the holy scripture. In the which are many harde places, as well of the olde as of the newe Testament expounded, gathered together, concordred, and compared one with another: to thintent that the prudent Reader (by the sperte of God) may beare away pure and cleare vnderstanding. Wherby euery man (as he is bounde) may be made ready, strong and garnished to answer to all them that aske hym a reason of his fapth. This is also profitable for the particular and general exhortacions whiche we make to certain personages, or common people: & for to asswere truly to Heretikes, and to confounde the aduersaries of the worde of God. In the which also we may sende that whiche helpeth greatly the study of the Readers (the opening of certain Hebrew tropes, translations, similitudes, and maners of speakinges) whiche we call Phrases) conteyned in the Wyble. And for the more easely to finde the matters desired (because that disorder engendyeth confusion) I haue proceeded after the order of an Alphabet: to the intent that none be deuyed of so precious a treasure: the whiche shall vse to the honour and glorie of God, and to the edifyinge of his Church. Nowe be it (good Reader) if thou sende not the thynges in this table expressed, in the same letters of the Chapters wherein they are assigned: ouch saue to loke in the letter goinge next before or in the letter nexte folowynge.

hadde a preciouſe Jewell and a riche, yet if he wylt not the value therof, nor wherefoze it serued, he were neyther the better, nor richer of a straw. Couen so thoughe we reade the Scripture, and babble of it neuer so much, yet if we knowe not the vse of it, and wherefoze it was geuen, and what is therein to be soughte, it profiteth to vs nothyng at all. It is not enough thefoze to reade and talke of it onely, but we muste also desyre GOD daye and nyght instantly to open our eyes, & to make vs vnderstande and feele wherfoze the scripture was geuen, that we maye applye the medecyne of the scripture, euery man to hys owne soze, onlesse we emende to be idle disputers, and brawlers about vaine wordes euer gnawynge vpon the better barke withoute, and neuer attaynyng vnto the swete pryde within: and persecutynge onc an other, for defendynge of lewde imaginacions and phantasies of our owne inuencion.

Paule in the thyrd of the second Epistle to Timothe sayeth: that the scripture is good to teache (for that ought meyne to teache and not dreames of theyr owne makynge, as the Pope doth) and also to improve, for the scripture is the true shee that tryeth all doctrines, and by that we knowe the false from the true.
And in the xvi. to the Ephesians he calleth it the sword of the spirite, because it killeth hypocrites, and dete-reth and improueth theyr false inuencion. And in the xv. to the Romanes he sayth, al that are wyrtten, are wyrtten for our learnynge, that we thowwe patience and confozte of the scripture myghte haue hope. That is, the examples that are in the scripture, confozte vs in all oure tribulations, and make vs to put our truste in God, and patientlye to abyde hys leasoure. And in the. x. of the. i. to the Corin. he bringeth in examples of the scripture to feare vs, and to hyde the flethe, that we caste not the yocke of the lawe of God from oure neckes, and fall to lustynge and doyng of euill.

So now the scripture is a lyght, and sheweth vs the true way, both what to do, and what to hope. And a defence from all erroure, and a confozte in aduersite that we despayre not, & feareth vs in prosperite that we synne not. Warde therfoze in the scripture (as thou readeſt it) fyrste the lawe, what God commaundeth vs to do. And secundarilye the promyses, whyche God promyseth vs agayne, namelye in Christe Iesus our Loide. Then seke examples, fyrste of confozt how God purgeth al them that submit thei selues to wals-ke in hys wayes, in the purgatoz of tribulation, des-liueryng them yet at the laste ende, & neuer fearynge anye of them to perishe, that cleaue fast to hys prom-ses. And finally, note the examples which are wyrtten to feare the flethe that we synne not. That is, howe God suffereth the vngodlye and wicked synners that refyſte God, and refuse to folowe hym, to continue in theyr wickednes, euer waxynge worse and worse vntyl theyr synne be so soze increased, and so abhominable, that if they shoulde longer endure, they woulde corrupte the very electe. But for the electes sake, God sendeth the preachers. Neuertheles they harden theyr hertes agaynst the trueth, and God destroyeth them bitterlye, and begynneth the worlde a newe.

Thys confozte make thou euermore fynde in the playne teste and lytterall sence. Neyther is there anye soze so homelye, so rude: yea, or so vyle (as it seemeth outwarde) wherein is not excedynge greate confozte.
And when some (whyche seme to them selues greate clarke) saye, they wotte not what more profite is in manye textes of the scripture, if they be reade without an allegoize, then in a tale of Robyn Hode, saye thou:

A Prologue.

thou: that they were wytten for oure consolation, and comfort, that we despayre not, if such lyke happen vnto vs. We be not holier then Noe, though he were once dyonke. Neither better beloued the Jacob, though hys owne sonne defiled hys bedde. We be not holier then Lot, though hys daughters throughte ignorance deceyued hym, nor peradventure holier the those daughters. Neither are we holier then Dauid, though he brake wedlocke, and vpon the same committed abominable murder. All those men haue wyrtlesse of the Scripture that they pleased God, and were good men both before that those thynges chaunced them, and also after. Nevertheless suche thynges happened the for oure example: not that we shoulde counterfayte their euill, but if whyche we fygth with oure selues, enforce to walke in the lawe of God (as they dyd) wee yet fall lyke wyse, that wee despayre not, but come as gayne to the lawes of God, and take better holde.

We reade fence the tyme of Chyestes death, of virgyns that haue bene brought vnto the comune strowes and there defiled, and of martyrs that haue bene boild and hokes haue abused thei bodies. Al why? The iudgements of God are bottomles. Suche thynges chaunced partely for examples, partely God thow shynne healeth synne. Byde can neither be healed, nor yet appare, but thow owe suche horrible dedes. Peradventure they were of the Popes sect, and reioysed fleshy, thyngs that heauen came by dedes, & not by Chyill, and that the outwarde dede iustified them, and made thei hope, and not the inward spyrte receyued by fayeth, and the consensie of the hearte vnto the lawe of God.

As thou reade the thofore, thyneke that euery syllable pertayneth to thyne owne selfe, and sucke oure the pryde of the scripture, and arme thy selfe agaynst alle assaults. First note the stronge faith the power of God in creatyng alle of nought. Then make the greuous fall of Adam, and of vs all in hym, thow owe the lyght regardyng of the commaundement of God. In the fourth Chapter of Genesis. God turneth him vnto Abel, and then to hys offeryng, but not to Cayne and hys offeryng. Alther thou seest that though the dedes of the euill appere outwardely as gloriouse as the dedes of the good: yet in the syghte of God whyche lokeh on the herte, the dede is good by cause of the man, and not the man good by cause of hys dede. In the xvj God sendeth Noe to preach to the wycked, and geueth thym space to repent. they warre harde heried, God byngeth them to nought. And yet saueh Noe: eue by the same water by whyche he destroyed them. Marke also what folowed the Byde of the burydng of the tower of Babel.

Consider howe God sendeth forth Abraham out of hys owne countrey into a straunge land ful of wycked people, & gaue hym but a bare promise with hym that he woulde blesse hym, and defende hym. Abraham beleued: and that worde saued and deliuered hym in all perils, so that we se, how that mans lyfe is not mapnteyned by byade onely (as Chyill sayeth) but much rather by beleuyng the promises of God. Behold howe sobertye and howe circumspectyve both Abraham and also Isaac behaue them selues amonge the infideles. Abraham byeth that whyche myghte haue bene geuen hym for nought, to curte of occasions. Isaac when his welles whyche he had dygged, were taken from hym, geueth rounne, and respyketh not. Noe ouer they eyre and sowre, and fede their cattell, and make confederations, and take perpetuall trust, and do all outwarde thynges: Euen as they do whyche haue no sayeth, for God hath not made vs to be idle in thys worlde. Euerie man muste worke Godlye and trulye to the detyr mozte of the power that God hath geuen hym, and yet not trust therein, but in Goddes word of promise: and God wyl worke with vs, and byngre that wee do to good effecte. And then when oure gouer will extende no further, Gods promises wyl worke all alone.

Howe many thynges also refuted the promises of God to Jacob? And yet Jacob comureth God with hys owne promises, sayng: O God of my father Abraham: and God of my father Isaac: O Lorde whyche saydest vnto me, retorne into thine owne contrey, and vnto the place where thou was borne, and I wyl doo the good. I am not worthy of the least of those mercyes, nor of that trouthe whyche thou haste done to thy seruauit. I wente oute but with a staffe, and come home with two byoues, deliuer me out of the handes of my brother Esau, for I feare hym greatly. ec. And God deliuered hym, and wyl lyke wyse all that call vnto hys promises with a repentyng hert, were they neuer so grate synners. Marke also the weake infirmities of the man. He loueth one wyse more then an other, one sonne more than another. And se how God purgeth hym. Esau threatened hym: Laban begyleth hym, & he beloued wyse is longe barayne: hys daughter is rauished, hys wyse is defiled, and that of hys owne sonne. Rachel dyeth, Joseph is taken away: yea, and as he supposed, reme of wyld beasts, & yet howe gloriouse was hys ende. Note the wyckednesse of his chyldren, yea, and the synne of thei, and howe God thow owe their owne wyckednes saued thei.

These examples teache vs that a manne is not at once perfecte the firste daye he begynneth to lyue wel. They that be stronge therfore, muste suffer with the weak, and helpe to kepe them in vnitie and peace one with another vntill they be stronger.

Note, what the byeth said wher they were attached & arested in Egypt, we haue derely synned (sayd they) agaynst oure brother, in that we saue the angur the of hys soule, when he besought vs, and woulde not heare hym, and therfore is thys tribulation come vnto vs, by whyche example thou seest, how that confidence of euyl doynges fyndeth men out at the last, but name-lye in tribulation & aduersitie. There temptation and also desperation: yea, and the verie paynes of hel fynd vs out. Ther the soule feleth the feare wrath of god, and wryeth mountaynes to fall on her, and to hyde her if it were possible from the angre face of God. Marke also howe little an occasion. Dina goeth but forth alone to se the daughters of the countrey, & how greute mischief & trouble folowed: Jacob loured but one sonne more then an other, and howe greuous murder folowed in thei hertes. These are examples for our learnyng to teache vs to walke warlye, and circumspectyve in the face of the world, and weake people, that we geue no man occasion of euyl. Finallye, se what God promised Joseph in hys dreames, those promises, accompanied him alwayes, and went downe with him, euen into the deepe dungeon, and broughte hym by agayne, and neuer forsoke hym, till all that was promised was fulfilled: These are examples wyrtten for our learnyng (as Paule sayeth) to teache vs to truste in God in that stronge tyme of tribulation and purga: oye of oure fleshe. And that they whyche submitte them selues to folowe God shoulde note and marke such thynges, for their learnyng and comfort, it is the fruite of the scripture, and cause why it was wyrtten, and with suche a purpose to reade it, is the waye to euerlastyng lyfe, and to thost is to full blesynges that are promised vnto all nations in the serde of Abraham, whyche feede is Iesus Chyile our Lorde. To whom be honour and prayse for euer, and vnto god our father thow owe him.

The first booke of Moses called Genesis.

At the begynning of the world, the light, the firmament, the sunne, the moone, the sterres, and all beastes, foules and fyshes in the sea were made by the worde of God. And howe man also was create.

The first Chapter.

In the begynnyng God created heauen and earth. The earth was voyde and empty, and darknesse was vpon the depe, and the spirite of God moued vpon the water.

Then God sayde: let there be light: and there was lyght. And God sawe the lyght that it was good: and deuyned the light fro the darkenes, & called the light day, & the darknes the nyght: & so of the euening and moynnyng was made the first day.

And God sayde: let there be a firmamente betwene the waters, & let it deuide the waters a sonder. Then God made the firmament, & parted the waters which were vnder the firmament, from the waters that were aboue the firmament. And it was so. And God called the firmament heauen. And so of the euening and moynnyng was made the seconde day.

And God sayde: let the waters that are vnder heauen gather them selues vnto one place, that the drye land may appere. And it came so to passe. And God called the drye land the earth, and the gathering together of waters called he the sea. And God sawe that it was good.

And God sayde: let the earth bring forth herbe & grasse that sowe seed, and frute trees, that beare frute euerie one in his kinde, hauinge theyr seed in them, vpon the earth. And it came so to passe. And the earth brought forth herbe & grasse sowing seed euerie one in his kinde, and trees bearyng frute, and hauinge theyr seed in them selues, euerie one in his kinde. And God sawe that it was good, and then of the euening and moynnyng was made the thyrde day.

Then sayd God: let there be lyghtes in the firmament of heauen, to deuyned the day from the nyghte, & they maye be vnto sygnes, seasons, dayes and yeaeres. And let them be lyghtes in the firmament of heauen, to shine vpon the earth: And so it was. And God made two great lyghtes: a greater lyght to rule the daye, and a lesse light to rule the nyght: and he made sterres also. And God put them in the firmament of heauen to shine vpon the earth, and to rule the day and the nyght: and to deuyned the lyght fro darkenes. And God saw that it was good: & so of the euening & moynnyng was made the fourth daye.

And God sayde: let the water bring forth creatures that moue and haue lyfe, & foules for to flye ouer the earth vnder the firmament of heauen. And God created greates whalles and all maner of creatures that lyue & moue, whiche the waters broughte forth in their kyndes, & all maner of fethered foules in their kyndes. And God saw that it was good: & God blessed them sayinge: Growe and multiplie and fil the waters of the seas: and let the foules multiplie vpon the earth. And so of the euening and moynnyng was made the fyfth daye.

And God sayde: let the earth bring forth lyuynge creatures in their kyndes: cattell and wormes & beastes of the earth in their kyndes, & so it came to passe. And God made the beastes of the earth in their kyndes, and cattell in their kyndes, & all maner wormes of the earth in their kyndes: and God sawe that it was good.

And God sayde: let vs make man in our similitude & after our lykenesse: that he maye haue rule ouer the fyshes of the sea, and ouer the foules of the ayre, and ouer cattell, and ouer all the earth, and ouer all wormes that cripe on the earth. And God created man after his lykenesse, after the lykenesse of God created he hym: male and female created he them. And God blessed them,

Gen. i. 12. a. And God sayde : see, * I haue geuen you all herbes that sowe seed, whyche are on all the erth, and all maner trees that haue frute in the and sowe seed: to be meate for you and for all beastes of the erth, & vnto all foules of p ayre, and vnto all p ctepe on the erth where in is lyfe, that they maye haue all maner herbes and grasse for to eate, and euell so it was. And * God behelde al that he had made, and loo, they were exceeding good: and so of the euenynge and mornynge was made the syxte daye.

The notes.

Blessing a. Here is it sayde that God blessed his creatures, that is to saye, prophesied them good, not in making a crosse over them (as the pope and hys apes woulde inuente God in creatynge the creatures) but in saying. Growe & multiply. &c.

Lykenes b. Man is made after the likenes of God, in that he hath a soule immortall, indued with vnderstandynge and other diuine qualities. Yet semeth it rather in this place to be spoken of that similitude or lykenes wherin God dyd afterwarde appere vnto man, whiche was the shap appointed afoze to be the shap of Christ the secōde persone in Trinitie, when he woulde shewe him selfe to the worlde, and suffer in the same.

The. ii. Chapter.

The Chapter p went before is here repeated agayne: the halowing of th: Sabbath daye: the foure floudes of paradyse: The settinge in of man in paradyse: the tree of knowledge is forbidden hym: howe Adam named all creatures: the creation of Eua: p institucio of marriage.

Gen. ii. 1. b. SThus was heauen & erth fyllyshed with all their a apparell, and in the seuenth daye God ended hys worke whiche he had made, * and rested in the seuenth daye from al his workes whiche he had made. And God b blessed the seuenth daye, and sanctyfyed it, for in it he rested from all hys workes whiche he had created and made.

These are the generacions of heauē and erth when they were created, in the tyme when the Lord God created heauen and erth and all the shrubbes of p felde before they were in the erth. And all the herbes of the felde before they sprange, for p Lord God had yet sent no rayne vpon p erth, nether was there yet any man to tylle p erth. But there arose a myste out of the grounde, and watered all the face of the erth: The the Lord God * shope man, euell of the moulde of the erth, & brythed into hys face the bryth of lyfe. So * man was made a luyng soule.

The Lord God also planted a garden in Eden from the begynnynge, and there he sette man whome he had formed. And the Lord God made to sprig out of the erth, all maner trees bewtyfull to the syght and pleasant to eate, & the * tree of lyfe in p myddes of p garden and also the tree of knowledge of good and euell.

And there sprange a ryuer oute of Eden to water the garden, and thence deuyded it selfe, & grewe into foure principall waters. The name of the one is * Phison, he it is that compasseth all p lande of Heupla, where golde groweth. And the gold of that chere is precious, there is founde Bedellyon, and a stone called Onix. The name of the seconde ryuer is Eihon, whiche compasseth all the lande of Inde. And the name of the thyrde ryuer is Hydekell, whiche runneth on the east syde of the Assyrians. And the fourth ryuer is Euphrates.

And the Lord God toke Adam, and put him in the garden of Eden, to dresse it and to kepe it. And the Lord God commaunded Adam saying: Of al trees of the garden se thou eate: But of p tree of knowledge of good and bad se that thou eate not: for euē p same day thou eatest of it thou shalt dye p deth.

And the Lord God sayd: It is not good that man should be alone, I wyl make him an helper to beare hym company. And after that p Lord God had made of the erth all maner beastes of p felde, and all maner foules of the ayre, he brought them vnto Adā to se what he wolde call them. And as Adam called all maner luyng beastes, euē so are their names. And Adam gaue names vnto all maner cattell, and vnto the foules of the ayre, and vnto all maner beastes of the felde. But there was no helpe founde vnto Adam to beare hym companye.

Then the Lord God slēt a slomber on Adam, and he slepte. And the he toke out one of his rybbes, and in steede ther of he filled vp the place with fleſhe. And the Lord God made of the ribbe which he toke out of Adā a womā: a brought her vnto Adam. Then ſayd Adā: This is once bone of my bones, and fleſhe of my fleſhe. This ſhalbe called woman: becauſe ſhe was take of the man. * For this cauſe ſhall a man leue father and mother, and cleue vnto hys wyfe, & they ſhal be one fleſhe. And they were ether of them naked, bothe Adam & his wife, and were not aſhamed.

The ſerpent deceiveth the woman. The ſerpente, the woman, and the man are curſed, and driven out of Paradys. Chriſt our ſauour is promiſed.

But the ſerpente was ſottyller than al the beaſtes of ꝑ felde, which the Lord God had made: and ſayde vnto ꝑ womā: pea, hath God ſayd in dede, ye ſhal not eate of all maner trees in the garden. And the woman ſayde vnto ꝑ ſerpent, of the frute of the trees in ꝑ garden we maye eate, but of ꝑ frute of the tree that is in the myddes of the garden (ſaide God) ſee that ye eate not, and ſee that ye touche it not, leſt ye dye. Then ſayd the ſerpent vnto ꝑ womā: tuſhe, ye ſhall not dye: but God doth knowe ꝑ when ſo euer ye ſhulde eate of it, your eyes ſhulde be opened, & ye ſhulde be as God, and knowe both good & euell. And the woman ſawe ꝑ it was a good tree to eate of, & luſty vnto the eyes, & a pleaſante tree for to geue vnderſtandinge. And toke of the frute of it & ate, and gaue vnto hys huſbande alſo with her, & he ate. And the eyes of both them were opened, that they vnderſtode how that they were naked. Than they ſowed ſygge leues together and made them apurnes.

And they herde the voyce of ꝑ Lord God as he walked in the garden in the coole of the daye. And Adam hyd hym ſelfe and his wyfe alſo from the face of the Lord God, amonge the trees of the garden. And the Lord God called Adam, and ſayd vnto him: where arte thou? And he answered: Thy voyce I hearde in the garden, but I was aſtayed, becauſe I was naked, and therfore hyd my ſelfe. And he ſayde: Who tolde the ꝑ thou waſt naked? haſt thou eaten of the tree, of which I bad the ꝑ thou ſhuldeſt not eate? And Adam answered: The womā which thou gaueſt to beare me cōpany ſhe toke me of the tree, and I ate. And the Lord God ſayde vnto the woman: wherefore diddeſt thou ſo? And the womā answered: The ſerpente deceaued me and I ate.

And the Lord God ſayde vnto the ſerpent: becauſe thou haſt ſo done moſt curſed be thou of all catell and of all beaſtes of the felde: vpon thy belly ſhalt thou go: and erth ſhalt thou eate all dayes of thy lyfe. Moreouer, I wyl put hatred betwene the and the woman, & betwene thy ſeed and hys ſeed. And that ſeed ſhal tread the on thy heed, & thou ſhalt treade it on the heale.

And vnto the woman he ſayd: I wyl ſuerly encrease thy ſorowe, & make the oft to childe, & with paine ſhalt ꝑ be deliuered: And thy luſtes ſhal pertayne vnto thy huſband, and he ſhal rule the.

And vnto Adam he ſayde: for as moche as thou haſt obeyed the voyce of thy wyfe, & haſt eaten of ꝑ tree of which I commaunded the, ſayinge: Se thou eate not therof: curſed be the erthe for thy ſake. whence thou wast taken: for* erth thou art, and vnto erth shalt thou returne.

And Adam called his wyfe Heua, because she was the mother of all that lyueth. And the Lorde God made Adam and his wyfe garmentes of skynnes, and put them on them. And the Lorde God sayde: Loo, Adam is become as it were one of vs, in knowledge of good and euell. But now lest he stretche forth the hys hande and take also of the tree of lyfe, & eate & lyue euer. And the Lord God cast hym out of the garden of Eden, to tylle the erth whence he was taken. And he cast Adam out, and sette at the entering of the garden Eden, Cherubin with a naked swerde mouynge in and oute, to kepe the waye to the tree of lyfe.

The notes.

Dyl eyes

a. This opening of eyes, is the recepyng of power to perceyue good from euell, whiche man coulde neuer haue done, yf he had not transgressed goddes commaundement. For that was the cause of all the euilles that happened vnto man, so that yf he had neuer transgressed, there had neuer euil happened vnto him. And so consequently he had neuer knowne euil. For suche as neuer felte euil, are sayde not to know what euil meaneth. And he y knoweth not euil, knoweth not good, for that is not knowen but by the comparynge of it to the contrary whiche is euil. So Adam when he had transgressed, knew both good and euil, that is to say: he felte the infirmities of the fleshe whiche were geuen for the transgression, and by that he felte them to be euil, he perceyued the pleasures that he was in before to be good. Thus knewe he good and euell.

The face of God.

b. In this place, the face of the Lord is taken as it is in the. cxlii. psalm. that is to saye for hys presence. Not as he is alwayes present in al places: but as he is present to the giltie conscience of the trasgressour of his lawes, a mightie iudge and iuste reuenger.

The heade of the serpent.

c. The heade of the Serpente, signifieth y power and tyranny of y deuyl, whiche Christ, the seede of the woman ouercame. And so brake he (or trode doune) the serpentis head. The hele, is Christes manhode, whiche y deuyl attempted to ouerthrowe by al meanes possible in temptynge hym to the breach of goddes commaundementes.

The worde Looe.

d. In this place, looe, is taken for a moche, & so much as much as that we are wont to say in our commune talke whē we luste to moche one that standeth wel in his owne conceit. Looe (say we) this man wyl not learne at y prouderes of vs al.

Adam hymself his righteous brother Abell. Cain dyd paynfull is cursed. The generation of Enoch, Methusael, Tuball, Lamech, Seth and Enos.

Ad Adā laye with Heua hys wyfe, whiche conceaued & bare Cain, & sayd: I haue gotten a man of the Lorde. And he proceeded forth, and bare hys brother Abell: And Abell became a sheperde, and Cayn became a plowman.

And it fortunede in proceffe of tyme, that Cayn broughte of the frute of the erth, an offeringe vnto the Lorde. And Abell he broughte also of the fyrstlynge of his shepe, and of the fatte of the. And the Lorde looked vnto* y Abell and to his offering, but vnto Cain and vnto hys offeringe looked he not. And Cayn was wroth exceedyngly, & louted. And the Lorde sayde vnto Cayn: why atte thou angry, & why lourest thou? wotest thou not if thou dost wel thou shalt receaue it. But and yf thou dost euil, by and by thy synne lieth open in the doze. Not withstanding let it be subdued vnto the, and see thou rule it. And Cayn talked with Abell hys brother.

And as soone as they were in the feldeg, Cayn fell vpon* Abel his brother, and slewe him. And the Lorde sayd vnto Cayn: where is Abell thy brother? And he sayde: I can not tell, am I my brothers keeper? And he said: what hast thou done? The voice of thy brothers bloude y cried vnto me oute of the erth. And now cursed be thou as pertaining to the erth, whiche opened hir mouth to receaue thy brothers bloude of thyne hande. For when thou tyllest y grounde she shall henceforth not geue hys power vnto the. A vagabunde and a cennagate shalt thou be vpon the erth.

And Cayn sayde vnto the Lorde: my synne is greater, then that it maye be forgiven. Beholde, thou castest me oute this daye from the face of the earthe, & from thy syghte must I hyde my selfe, and I must be wandryng and a vagabunde vpon the erth: Moreover whoso euer synneth me, wyl kyll me. And the Lorde said vnto hym: Not so* but who soeuer sleeth Cayn shall be punished bit. solde. And the Lorde put a marke vpon Cayn, y no man that founde him, should kil him. And Cayn went out fro the face of the Lorde, and dwelte in the lande nod, on the east syde of Eden.

And Cayn laye with hys wyfe, whiche conceaued and bare Henoche. And he was buyldynge a cite, and called the name of it after the name of hys soune, Henoche. And he noth noch begat Irad. And Irad begat Mahuail. And Mahuail begat Mathusael. And Mathusael begatte Lamech. And Lamech took hym two wyues: the one is called Ada, & the other Zilla. And Ada bare Jaball, of whome came they that dwel in tentes, & possesse catel. And his brothers name was Jubal, of him came all that exercyse them selues on þe harpe & on the organs. And Zilla she also bare Tubalcayn a worker in metall & a father of all þe graue in brasse or yron. And Tubalcayns sister was called Racina.

Then sayd Lamech vnto his wyues Ada & Zilla: heare my voyce (ye wyues of Lamech) & hearken vnto my wordes, for I haue slaine a man, & wounded my selfe, & haue slayn a yong man, & got my selfe strypes: for Cayn shal be auenged sevenfold, but Lamech seven times sevenfold. Adam also laye with his wyfe yet againe, & she bare a sonne and called his name Seth. for God (sayde she) hath gyuen me another sonne for Abel, whom Cayn slewe. And Seth begat a sonne, and called his name Enos: And in that time began men to call on the name of the Lorde.

The Notes.

a. The lorde looked vnto Abel & his offerynges, that is, he was pleased wth them. But wth Cayn nor his offeryng was he nor pleased, wherefore it is sayde, that he looked not therunto. The same use of speaking is also in the ii. booke of þe kyniges. xvi. chap. c. and psal. xxi. b.

b. Crier, that is apertly vengeauncer, as ye haue. Gen. xxi. c. And this maner of speech is comyn in the scriptures, when suche thynges are mentioned as God hath promysed and threatened to auenge.

c. To call on the name of the lorde, is to requyre all thynges of hym and to trust in hym, geuyng hym the honor and worship that belongeth vnto hym, as in Genesis. xii. b.

a The sonnes of Serh are called þ sonnes of god, Sonny because their father had instructed & nourished of God the godly, & trayned them vp in the fere of god. Contrarye wise, the sonnes of Cayn are called the sonnes of mā, because they were trayned and brought vp in the wyckednes of the fleshe
b. This is not to be taken so that we shoulde God re- herby holde opinion, that god may do any this pench- raly, wherof he may afterwarde repent him (for god is stable in all hys wayes & repenteth not of ought that he doeth) but it is to be gathered of this, that the synnes of mankynd were then so greute, that yf it had ben possible for god to haue repented hys workes, he had than cause sufficient.

c. By all fleshe, is ment in this place al kyndes of men as well suche as descended lineally of Serh as of Cayn.

The. vii. Chapter.

The entraunce of Noe & them that were with hym in to the arcke. The synge of the floude wherwith all thynges dyd perishe.

Ad the Lord said vnto Noe: ¶ Go into the arke both thou & all thy household. For thee haue I sene a ryghteous be-foze me in this generacyō. ¶ Of al cleue beastes take vnto the seuen of euery kynd, the male & female, and of vncleue beastes a payre, the male & his female: lyke wyse of the byrdes of the ayre seue of euery kynd, male and female to saue seed vpon all the erth. For seuen dayes hence wyll I sende rayne vpo the erth. xl. dayes and xl. nyghtes, and wyll destroye all maner of thynges þat I haue made, fro of the face of the erth.

And Noe dyd accordyng to all that the Lorde commaunded him: and Noe was syxe hundred yere olde, when the floude of water came vpon the erthe: and Noe went and his sonnes, and his wyfe, and his sonnes wyues w him, into the arke fro the waters of the floud. And of cleane beastes, and of þe bestes þe were vncleue, and of byrdes and of al that crepeth vpo þe erth, came in by couples of euery kinde vnto Noe into the arke, a male and a female: euē as God commaunded Noe. And the seuēth day the waters of þe floud came vpo þe erth.

In the vi. hundred yere of Noes life, in the seconde moneth, iii the. xlii. daye of the moneth, þe same daye were all the fountaynes of the great depe broken bp, and the windowes of heauen were opened, and there fell a rayne vpon the erth. xl. dayes and xl. nyghtes.

And the selfe same daye wente Noe, Sem, Ham and Japheth, Noes sons, and Noes wyfe, and þe. iii. wyues of his sonnes w the into þe arke: both they & al maner of beastes in their kynde, and al maner of catel in their kynd, and al maner of wormes that crepe vpo þe erth in their kind, and al maner of byrdes in theyr kynde, and al maner of foules whatsoeuer had fethers. And they came vnto Noe into þe arke by couples, of al flethe that had bryeth of lyf in it. And they that came, came male & female of euery flethe accordyng as God comaūded hym: and the Lorde shut the doore vpon hym. And the floude came, fourtye dayes and fourtye nyghtes vpon the earth, and the water increased and bare vp the arke, and it was lyfte vp fro of the erth. And þe water preuayled and increased exceedingly vpo the erth: and þe arke wet vpo the toppe of þe waters. And the waters preuayled exceedingly aboue measure vpo the erth, so that all the hye hylls whiche are vnder all the partes of heauen were couered: euē. x. cubytes hye preuailed the waters, so that þe hylls were couered.

And all flethe that moued on þe earth, bothe birdes, catell and beastes perished, w all that crepte on the erthe and all men: so that all that had the bryeth of lyfe in the nostrels of it thoroze out all that was on drye lande, dyed. Thus was destroyed all that was vpon the erth, both mā, beastes, wormes and foules of the ayre, so þe they were destroyed fro þe erthe: saue Noe was reserued only and they þe were with him in þe arke. And the waters preuayled vpo þe erth, an hundred and. l. dayes.

The notes.

a. They are ryghteous before God, þe loue their neyghbours for Gods sake, vnspayedly haung the spirite of God, which maketh them þe sonnes of god, & therefore are they accepted of God as iust & righteous, as it is in Gen. xlii. c.

b. In this place, vncleane beastes come to be suche beastes as (for some vncleane properties which they had) were not vsed to be sacrificed. For as it appeareth by the. ix. chap. of this boke, ther was then no meate vnlawful to be eaten.

c. That is, all the waters that were on the earth, sprang bp, increased and multiplied, in suche wyse, that the greete depe, that is the sea ouerflowed and seemed to haue her springes opened.

d. That is, suche abundance of water came fro aboue, þe heauē seemed to haue be uone other thig but an whole sea of waters, & to haue his floudes gates euen then opened that it myghte issue to ouerflowe the earth.

The. viii. Chapter.

¶ After the sendyng forth of the rauen and the dove Noe went forth of the arke. He offereth sacrifice. The malice of mannes heart.

AD God remembred Noe & al the beastes, & all the cattell that were with hym in the arke. And God made a wynde to blow vpon the erth, and the waters ceased: and the fountaynes of the depe and the wyndowes of heauen were stoppe and the rayne of heauen was forbydde, and the waters returned from of the erth, & abated after the ende of an hundred and. l. dayes.

And the arke rested vpon the mountayns of Ararat, the. xlii. daye of the vii. moneth. And the waters wente away, & decreased vntyll the. x. moneth.

And the first day of the tenth moneth, the toppes of þe mountaynes appered.

And after the ende of .xl. dayes Noe opened the window of the arcke which he had made, & sent forth a rauen, which went out, euer going & coming again, vntyl the waters were dryed vp vpon the erth.

B Then sent he forth a doue fro him, to wete whether the waters were fallē from of the erth. And when the doue coulde fynde no resting place for hyr fete, she returned to hym agayne vnto the arke, for the waters were vpon the face of all the erth. And he put out his hand, & toke her, and pulled her to him into the arke.

And he abode yet. vii. dayes more, & sent out the doue again out of þe arcke, & the doue came to him agayne about euentyde, & beholde, there was in hyr mouth a lefe of an olyue tree which he had plucked: whereby Noe perceaued that the waters were abated vpon the erth. And he tarped yet. vii. other dayes, and sent forth the doue, whiche fro thence forth came no more agayne to hym.

C And it came to passe, þe fyrte hundred and one yere & the first day of the fyrst moneth, that þe waters were dryed vp vpon the erth. And Noe toke of the hartches of the arcke, & loked: and behold, the face of the erthe was drye. So by the .xxvii. daye of the seconde moneth the erth was drye.

And God spake vnto Noe, sayinge: Come out of the arcke, both thou and thy wife, & thy sonnes, & thy sonnes wyues with the. And al þe beastes that are with the, whatsoeuer fleshe it be, bothe foule & cattel, & al maner wormes that crepe on the erth, byynge out with the, & let them moue, & grow & multiply vp on the erth. And Noe came out, & hyr sonnes, & hyr wife, and his sonnes wyues with him. And all the beastes, and all the wormes, and al the foules, and al þe moned vpon þe erth, came also out of the arke, all of one kynde together.

And Noe made an aulter vnto the Lord, & toke of all maner of clene beastes, and all maner of clene foules, and offered sacrifice vpon the aulter. And þe Lord smelled a swete sauour, & said in his hert: I wyll henceforth no more curse þe erth for mannes sake, *for the ymaginaciō of mānes hert is euil, eue fro the very youth of him. Whereouer I wyll not destroy from hence forth al that lyueth as I haue done. Neþther shal sowynge tyme and haruest, colde & hete, somer and wynter, day and night cease, as longe as the erth endureth.

The Notes.

a. Thys is spokē after the maner of menue. For God neuer forgetteth thyng, that he may call it to remembraunce agayne.

b. The Lordes smelling of sauour is a bowaunce of the workes of the faythfull. As in Exod. xxx. Gen. i. ii. iii.

The ix. Chapter.

God blessed Noe and hyr sonnes. He forbyddeth to eate the bloude of beastes, and forbyddeth the shedding of mans bloude. The lawe of the swerde. He maketh a cōcunaunte that he wyl destroye the world nomore by water, and geueth the raignebowe as a token and cōfirmatyon of the same. Noe is dyronken, & Ham vncouerteth hym, and getteth his curse.

AND God *blessed Noe & hyr sonnes, & sayd vnto the: Increase & multiply, and tyl the erth. The feare also & drede of you be vpon all beastes of the erth, and vpon all foules of the ayre, & vpon al that crepeth on the erth, and vpon all fyshes of the sea, which are gauen vnto your handes. And all that moueth vpon the erth hauynge lyfe, shall be your meate: Eue as þe grene herbes, so geue I you all thyng. Only the fleshe wyth his lyfe whiche is his bloud, se that ye eate not.

*for verely the a bloud of you wher in your lyues are wyl I requyre: Euen of the hande of all beastes wyl I requyre it, & of the hande of man, & of the hande of euery mannes brother wyl I requyre the lyfe of man, *so þe whiche sheddeth mannes bloude shall haue hyr bloud shed by man agayne: for God *made man after his own lyknes. Se that ye encrease, & waxe, & be occupied vpon the erthe, and multiplye therein.

Furthermoze God spake vnto Noe & to his sonnes wyth him, sayinge: Se, I make *my bonde wiche you, and your seed after you, & with all lyuynge thing þe is to you: both foule & catel, & all maner bestes of the erth that is to you, of al that cometh out of the arke

And God sayde: Thys is the token of my bonde whiche I make betwene me and you, & betwene all lyuing thinge & is wth you for euer: I wyl set my bowe in the cloudes & it shal be a signe of the appoyntement made betwene me & the erth: so that when I byng in cloudes vpon the erth, the bowe shal appere in the cloudes. The sonnes of Noe that came out of the arke were: Sem, Ham, & Japheth. And Ham he is the father of Canaan. These are the.iii. sonnes of Noe, and of these was all the world ouerspred.

* And Noe beyng an husbände man, went forth & planted a vyneyarde, and dranke of the wyne, & was dronke, and lay vncouered in & myddest of his tent.

And Ham the father of Canaan sawe his fathers priuities, & tolde his two brethren & were without. And Sem & Japheth toke a matel, & put it on both their shoulders, & went backward, and couered their fathers secrets, but their faces were backward, so & they sawe not their fathers nakednes.

As soone as Noe was awaked from hys wyne, and wylt what hys yongest sonne had done vnto him, he sayd: Cursed be Canaan, & a seruāt of al seruātes be he to his brethren. And he sayde: Blessed be the Lord God of Sem, and Canaan be his seruāt. God & increase Japheth that he may dwell in & tentes of Sem. And Canaan be their seruāt.

These are the generacions of the sonnes of Noe: of Sem, Ham and Japheth, whyche begatte them children after the floude.

* The sonnes of Japheth were: Gomer, Magog, Madai, Iauan, Tubal, Mesech & Thyras. And the sonnes of Gomer were: Alcenaz, Riphath & Togarma. The sonnes of Ham were: Chus, Mitsraim, Phut & Canaan. The sonnes of Chus were Seba, Heupla, Sabta, Rayma and Sabtema. And & sonnes of Rayma were: Sheba, and Dedan.

* Chus also begat Nemrod, which began to be myghty in the erth. He was a myghty hunter in the syghte of the Lorde: wherof came the prouerbe: he is as Nemrod that myghty hunter in the syght of the Lorde. And the begynnyng of his kyngdome was * Babel, Erech, Achad & Chalne in the lande of Synear: Out of that land came Assur, and buylded Ninue, and the cyte Reshoboth, & Calah, and Resen betwene Ninue & Calah. That is a great cite. And Mitsraim begat Ludim, Enamim, Leabim, Naphtuhim, Pathrusim & Casluhim: from whence came the Philistynes, and the Caphttherynes.

Canaan also begat zidon his eldest sonne, & Heth, Jebusi, Emori, Gergosi, Hiti, Arki, Sini, Aruadi, zemari & Hamati. And afterwarde sprange & kyntreds of & Cananytes. And the costes of & Cananytes were fro Sydon tyl they come to Gerara & to Asa, and tyl they come to Sodoma, Gomozra, Adama, zeboim, euē vnto Lasa. These were the children of Ham in their hyndredes, tong-ges, landes and nacyns.

And Sem the father of al the children of Eber, & the eldest brother of Japheth begat childre also. And his sons were Elam, Assur, Arphachsad, Lud, &

D Arain. And the children of Arain were:
 1. Barn, 1. b. Uz, Hul, Gether & Mas. And Arpha-chiad begatte Sala, & Sala begat Eber. And Eber begat two sonnes. The names of the one was Peleg, for in his tyme the earth was deuyded. And the name of his brother was Jaketan.

Jaketan begat Almodad, Saleph, Hazarmapheth, Jarah, Hadozã, Uial, Dikela, Obal, Abimael, Seba, Ophir, Neula & Jobab. All these are þ sonnes of Jaketan. And the dwelling of them was frõ Mesa, vntyll thou come vnto Sephara a mountayne of the east lãd. These are the sonnes of Sem in theyr kynredes, languages, contrées & nacj- ons. These are the kynredes of þ sons of Noe, in their generacions & nacjõs. And of these came þ people that were in the worlde after the floude.

The. xi. Chapter.

The building of the tower of Babel. The confusion of tongues. The generacyon of Sem the sonne of Noe vntill Abrahah which goth wpyth Lot vnto Haran.

Ad al the worlde was of one tonge & one language. And as they came fro the east, they founde a playne in the lande of Synear, & there they dwelled. And they sayde one to another: come on, let vs make byrcke & burne it with fyre.
So byrcke was their stone and slyme was their morter. And they said: Come on, let vs builde vs a cyte & a tour, that the toppe maye reache vnto heuē. And let vs make vs a name, for perauēture we shall be scatered abroad ouer al the erth. And the Lorde came downe to see the cyte and the toure, whiche the children of Adam had buylded. And p Lorde sayde: See, the people is one, & haue one tonge amonge them all. And thys haue they begonne to do, and wyl not leaue of fro all that they haue pur-posed to do. Come on, let vs descende, & inyngeall theyr tonge euen there, p one vnderstande not what another sayeth.

Don. xxii. a * Thus the Lorde scattered them from thence vpon all the erth. And they leste of to buyld the cyte. wherfore þ name of it is called Babel, because that the Lorde there confounded the tonge of all the world. And because that þ Lord from thence skattered them abroad vpo all the erth.

* These are the generaciōs of Sem: (¶ Para.) Sem was an hundred yere olde, & begat Arphaxad. ii. yere after þ̄ floude.
And Sem lyued after he had begot Arphaxad. v. hundred yere and begatte sonnes and daughters.

And Arphaxiad lyued. xxxv. yere & C begat Sala, & lyued after he had begat Sala. liii. hundred yere & .lii. & begat sonnes and daughters. And Sala was. xxx. yere olde and begat Eber, & lyued after he had begot Eber. liii. hu-dred & thre yere, and begat sonnes and daughters. When Eber was .xxxviii. yere olde, he begat Peleg, & lyued after he had begot Peleg foure hundred & .xxx. yere. & begat sons & daughters.

And Beleg when he was .xxx. yere old begat Regu, & liued after he had begot Regu. ii. hundred & .ix. yere, and begat somes & daughters. And Regu when he had lyued .xxxii. yere begat Serug, and lyued after he had begot Serug,
ii. hundred and .vi. yere, & begat somes and daughters.

And when Serug was .xxx. yere olde he begat Nahor, & lyued after he had begot Nahor .ii. hundred yere, & begat sonnes & daughters. And Nahor when he was .xxix. yere olde, begat Terah, & lyued after he had begot Terah, an hū dred and .xix. yere, & begat sonnes and daughters.

And when Terah was .lxx. yere old, he begat Abram, Nahor and Haran.

And these are the generations of* Terah. Terah begat Abram, Nahor, and Haran. And Haran begat Lot. And Haran dyed before Terah his father in the land where he was borne, at Ur in Chaldea. And Abram and Nahor toke them wyues: Abrahams wyfe was called* Sarai. And Nahors wife* Milca the daughter of Haran which was father of Milca, & of Jesca. But* Sarai was bare, and had no chylde.

Then toke Terah Abzam his sonne and Lot hys sonne, Haraus sonne, and Sara

Sarai hys daughter in law, hys sone Abrahs wyfe. And they went with hym from Ur in Chaldea, to goo in to y<sup>e</sup> lād of Chanaan. And they came to Haran and dwelled there. And whan Terah was two hundred yere olde & fyue, he dyed in Haran.

The notes.

a. God is counted to come downe, when he doth any thyng on the earth amonge men, that is

b. Not that God sawe it not, nor couldest tye he might come downe frome heauen to loke vpon or vewe it after the maner of men. (for he seeth

The. xii. Chapter.

¶ Abraham is vewe of God, and goeth with Roth into a strange lande that apored to hym in Canaan. And God promyseth to geue the same lande to hym and to his seds. And afterwarde goeth Abraham into Egypt and causeth Sarai hys wyfe to saye that she is hys sister.
And he was ransomed of Pharaos, for whiche the Lorde plageth hym.

¶ Then the Lorde sayde vnto Abraham. Get the out of thy countre and fro thy kindred, and out of thy fathers house, in to a lande which I wyl shewe the. And I wyl make of thee a myghty people, & wyl a blesse the, and make thy name great, & thou mayst be a blessing. * And I wyl blesse the that blesse the, and curse the that curse the.

* And in the shall be blessed all the ge-neracions of the erth.

¶ And Abraham went as the Lorde had hym, and Lot went with hym. Abraham was. lxxv. yere olde, when he went out of Haran. And Abraham toke Sarai hys wyfe, and Lot his brothers sone, with all thei goodes whiche they had gotten, and b<sup>e</sup> soules whiche they had begotten in Haran. And they departed to goo into the lande of Chanaan. And when they were come into the lande of Chanaan, Abraham went forth in to the lande, tyll he came vnto a place called Sichem, & vnto the oke of More. * And the Cananites dwelled then in y<sup>e</sup> lande.

¶ Then the Lorde apored vnto Abra, and sayde: vnto thy seed wyl I geue thys lande. And he buylded an autler there vnto the Lorde whiche apored to hym. Then departed he thence, vnto a mountayne that lyeth on the East syde of Bethel, and pytched hys tente: Bethel beyng on the west syde, and Ay on the east: and he buylded there an autler vnto the Lorde, and called on y<sup>e</sup> name of the Lorde. And than Abraham departed and toke hys iourney southwarde.

¶ After this there came a derth in the lande. And Abraham wente downe in to Egypt, to sojourn there, for the derth was sore in the land. And when he was come nye for to entre in to Egypte, he sayde vnto Sarai hys wyfe. Beholde, I knowe that thou arte a fayre woman to loke vpon. It wyl come to passe therefore when the Egyptians see the,
that they wyl saye: she is hys wyfe.
And so shall they slei and saue thee.

¶ Say I praye the therefore that thou arte my syster, that I maye save the better by reason of thee, and that my soule maye lyue for thy sake.

¶ As soone as he came in to Egypt, the Egyptians sawe the woman, that she was very fayre. And Pharaos lo-des sawe hys also, & prayled hys vnto Pharaos: So that she was taken into Pharaos house, whiche entreated A-bra wel for hys sake, so y<sup>e</sup> he had shepe, oxen, & he asses, men seruauntes, maydes seruauntes, the asses and camels.

* But God plagued Pharaos, and his house with great plagues, bycause of Sarai Abrahams wyfe. Then Pharaos called Abram and sayde: Why hast thou thus dealte with me? Wherefore tol-dest thou me not y<sup>e</sup> she was thy wyfe?
Why saydest thou y<sup>e</sup> she was thy sister?
& causedest me to take hys to my wyfe?
But now loo, there is thy wyfe, take hys & be walkynge. Pharaos also gaue a charge vnto hys men ouer Abraham, to leade hym out, wyth hys wyfe and all that he had.

Lot is taken prisoner. The victorie of Abram of the Sodomytes. Lot is deliuered by Abram. Whiche doth offerth sytten vnto Abram. Abram payeth ryches vnto Melchiselech. Abram holdeth nothinge of the kyngs of Sodoms goodes.

And it chaunced wythin a whyle, that Aintraphel kyng of Synear, Arloch kyng of Ellasar, Kedozlaomar kyng of Elam and Thydeal kyng of the naryons, made warre with Bera kyng of Sodome, and with Birsa kyng of Gomorra, and with Sineab kyng of Adama, and with Semeabar kyng of Zeboim, and with the kyng of Bela, whiche Bela is called Zoar. All these came together vnto the vale of Siddim, whiche is now the salte see. Twelue yere were they subiecte to king Kedozlaomar, and in the. xliii. yere rebelled. Therfore in the. xliii. yere came Kedozlaomar and the kynges that were were with hym, & smote the <sup>b</sup> Raphayins in Astaroth Barnaim, & the Sulyms in Ham, & the Emyns in Sabe Bariathain, and the Hozym in their awne mounte Seir vnto the playne of Pharan, which bordzeth vpo the wyl-dernesse. And then turned they & came to the wel of Iugemente whiche is Cades, and smote all the contre of the Amalechytes, & also the Amozites that dwell in Hazeron Chamar.

B Chan wente out the kynge of So-dome, and the kynge of Gomorra, & the king of Adama, and the king of Zeboiim, & the kyng of Bela now called Zo-ar. And sette their men in aray to fight with the in the vale of Syddym, that is to saye, with Kedozlaomar the kyng of Elam and with Thydeall kynge of the Acions, & with Amraphel kynge of Synear. And with Arioch kynge of Ellasar: foure kynges agaynste fyue.
And that vale of Syddym was full of pyne pyttes.

And the kynges of Sodome and Gomorra fled, & fel there. And the resydue fled to the mountaynes. And they toke al the goodes of Sodome and Gomor-re, and all theyr bytayles, and wente theyr waye. And they toke Lot also Abraams brothers sonne, & hys good (for he dwelled at Sodome) and departed.

Chan came one that had escaped, and tolde Abram the Hebreu whiche dwelled in the oke groue of <sup>a</sup> Mamre the A-mozite, brother of Eschol & Aner: which were confederate with Abram. <sup>c</sup> Chan Abra heard that hys brother was taken, he harnessed hys seruantes bozne in his own house, thre hundred & eygh-tene, & folowed tyll they came at Dan.
And sette hym selfe and hys seruantes in aray, and fell vpon them by nyght, & smote them, & chased them away vnto Hoba: which lieth on the left hande of Damascus: & brought agayne al the goodes, and also hys brother Lot, and hys goodes, the women also and the people.

And as he returned agayne fro the slaughter of Kedozlaomar & of the kings that were with hym, chan came the kynge of Sodome to mete hym in the vale of Saut, whiche now is called kynges dale.

Chan & Melchisedech: kynge of Salem brought forth the bread & wyne.
And he beinge a priest of the most highest God, blessed hym, saying: <sup>a</sup> Blessed be Abram vnto the most hyghest God, possessor of heauen and erth. And blessed be God the moste highest, which hath deliuered thyne enemies in to thy hands.
And Abram gaue him tithes of al.

Chan sayde the kynge of Sodome vnto Abra: geue me the <sup>c</sup> soules, & take the goodes to thy selfe. And Abra answered the kynge of Sodome: I lyfte vp my hand vnto the Lorde God most hyghe possessor of heauen and earthe:
that I wil not take of al that is thyne, so much as a thred or a shoulcher, lest thou shouldest saye, I haue made Abram ryche. Saue onely that whiche the ponge me haue eaten, and the par-tes of the men whiche wente with me, Aner, Eschol and Mamre. Lette them take their partes.

The notes.

a. The cite that Lot desired for his refuge to be he came out of Sodome was called Bela, as in Gene. xix. e

b. In scripture Raphaims are counted for gyauntes, whiche lyued of theft and robbery.

c. The Jewes supposed Melchisedech to be the sonne of Noe: because he lyued after a thousand hundred yeres, and after the deathe of Abraham (by Goddes prouidence) was kynge of Salem.

d. Blessed be Abram, is as much to say as praysed be Abram. And praysed be the moste highest God. As it is in Gene. xlviii.

e. Soules are men & women. As in: Gene. xlv.

out of thyne owne body, shall be thyne heyze. And he broughte hym out of the dozes, and sayde: loke vp vnto heauen, & tel the starres, if thou be able to nombre them. And sayd vnto him: True so shal thy seed be. And Abrahā beleued the Lorde, and it was counted to hym for righteousness. And he sayde vnto hym: I am the Lorde that brought the out of Ur in Chaldea to geue thee this lande to possesse it.

And he sayde: Lorde God, whereby shal I knowe that I shal possesse it? And he sayd vnto hym: Take an heyfer of thre yere olde, & a she goate of thre yere olde, and a thre yere olde ram, a turtyl doue and a yonge pygion. And he toke all these, & deuided them in the middes, and layde euery pece, one agaynst another. But the foules deuoyded he not. And the byrdes fel on the carcases, but Abram droue them awaye. And when the sunne was down, there fel a slomber vpon Abram. And loo, feare and greate darkenesse came vpon hym.

And he sayde vnto Abram: knowe this of a suertye, that thy seed shal be a straunger in a lande that perteyneth not vnto the. And they shal make bond men of them, & entreate the euill. liii. hundred yeres. But the nacio whō they shal serue, wyl I iuge. And afterwarde shal they come out wyth greate substance. Neuerthelesse thou shalt go vnto thy fathers in peace, & shalt be buryed whē thou arte of a good age: & in the fourthe generation they shal come hyther agayne, for the wyckednesse of the Amorites is not yet ful.

When the sunne was downe, and it was waxed darcke: beholde, there was a smokyng furne, and a fyre brynde that went betwene the sayde peces.

And that same daye the Lorde made a couenaunte with Abram saynge: vnto thy seed wyl I geue this lande, fro the ryuer of Egypte, euen vnto the great ryuer Euphrates, the Kenytes, the Kenizites, the Cadmonites, the Hethites, the Pherezites, the Raphaims, the Amorites, the Cananites, the Gerisites and the Jebusites.

The word of the Lorde cometh whē he sheweth any thyng vnto vs by reuelaciō, as it is used in diuers places of scripture, & especialy in the pro phetes. And it is a maner of spech of Hebrewes. To belue, is to haue a sure truste and confidence to obayne the thyng that is promised, & not to haue any doubt in hym that promised. As Rom. iiii. a. Galath. iiii. ii. d. In this place to iuge is taken for the taking of vengeance. A generacion, or an age, is here taken for an hundred yeres. As in Gen. vi. b. This worde went betwene, is taken for buryng or consumyng.

Sarai geueth Abram leue to take Agar his mayde to wyfe. Agar despyled her maystres: for whiche she was euill entreated of Sarai, and therefore runneth awaye. The angell intyngē hys commaundeth hys to turne agayne and doeth p̄mple hys seed. And nameth hys synn chylde Ismael.

And Abram hearde the voyce of Sarai. Than Sarai Abrahams wyfe toke Hagar hys mayde the Egyptian (after Abram had dwelled .x. yere in the land of Canaan) and gaue her to hys hande Abram to be his wyfe.

Than sayde Abram to Sarai: beholde, thy mayde is in thy hande, do wth hys as it pleaseth thee. And bycause Sarai fared foule with her, she fledde from her. And the angel of the Lorde, founde her besyd a fountayne of water in the wyldernes: euen by a wel in the way to Sur. And he sayd: Hagar Sarais mayde, whence comest thou, and whether wylte thou goe? And she answered: I flee fro my maystres Sarai. And the angel of the Lorde sayd vnto her: returne to thy maystres agayne, and submitte thy selfe vnder her handes.

And the angel of the Lord sayd vnto her: I wyl so encrease thy seed, that it shall not be nombred for multitude. And the Lordes angell sayde further vnto her: se, thou arte with chylde, and shalt

The notes.

The fig- ne and thyngt. a. The scripture useth to call þe sygne of a thyng, by the name of the thyng it selfe. Duely to kepe the thyng signified the better in memoire. As here he calleth circumcision his bande, whyche is but a token therof. And as in Exod. xii. b. the paschal lambe is called the Lordes pascouer, and also as the breade in the Lordes supper is called his bodye. Math. xxvi. ec.

The. xliii. Chapter.

There apereþ this men vnto Abraham. Isaac is promysed to hym agayne, at whiche Sara laugheth. The destruction of the Sodomitites is declared vnto Abraham. Abraham prayeth for them.

Ad the Lorde apereþ vnto him in the okegroue of Mamre: as he sat in his tent doore in the heate of the day. And he lyfte vp hys eyes and looked: & lo, thre men stode not farre from him. And whē he sawe thē, he ran to mete thē fro the tent doore, and fell to the grounde, & sayde: Lorde, if I haue founde fauoure in thy syght: goo not by thy seruaunt. Let a litle water be sette, & wash your feete, & rest your selues vnder the tree:

And I will set a morsel of bread, to comforte your hartes withal. And thā goo pour wapes, for euen therfore are ye come to your seruaunt. And they answered: Do euen so as thou hast sayde. And Abraham wēt a pace in to his tent vnto Sara, and sayde: make redye attonce: thre peckes of fine meale, kneade it and make cakes. And Abraham ran vnto his beastes, and fet a calfe þe was tendre and good, & gaue it vnto a yong man, whiche made it redye attonce. And he toke butter, and mylke, and the calfe whyche he had prepared, and sette it before them, and stode hym selfe by them vnder the tree: and they ate,

And they sayde vnto him: Where is Sara thy wyfe? And he sayde: in þe tent. And he sayde: I wil come agayne vnto the as soone as þe frute can yue. And loo: Sara thy wyfe shall haue a sonne. That herde Sara, out of þe tente doore, whyche was behynde his backe. Abraham and Sara were both olde, and wel stryken in age, and it ceased to be with Sara after þe maner as it is with wyues. And Sara laughed in hys selfe, sayinge: How I am waxed olde, that I geue my selfe to lust, and my lord olde also? Than sayde the Lorde vnto Abraham: wherfore doth Sara laugh, sayinge: shall I of a suertye bere a chyld, now when I am olde? is the thyng to harde for the Lorde to do? In the tyme appoynted wyl I retorne vnto the, as sodne as the frute can haue life, and Sara shall haue a sonne. Than Sara denyed it, sayinge: I laughed not, for she was a frayde. But he sayde: yes thou laughdest. Than the men stode vp from thence, & loked towarde Sodome. And Abraham went to them, to bring them on the waye. And the lorde sayde: Can I hyde fro Abraham, that thing which I am aboute to do, seynge that Abraham shall be a great and a mighty people, and al the nations of the erth shall be blessed in him: for I knowe hym, & he wil commaunde his chyldre and his household after hym, that they kepe the waye of the Lorde, to do after righte & conscience, & the Lorde may bring vnto Abraham, that he hath promysed hym.

And the Lord sayde: The crye of Sodome and Gomorra is great, & the synne is exceeding greuous. I will go downe and see, whether they haue done al together accordinge to þe crye, which is come vnto me or not, & I may know. And the men departed thence and went to Sodome ward. But Abraham stode yett before the Lord, and drewe nere and sayd. Wylt thou destroy the righteous with the wicked? If there be .l. ryghteous within the cyte, wilt thou destroy it, and not spare the place for the sake of .l. ryghteous that are therein? That be farre from the, that thou shouldest do after this maner, to slep the ryghteous with the wycked, and þe ryghteous should be as the wycked: þe be farre from ¶ Lot receaued two Angelles into his house. The fylthy lustes of the Sodomites. Lot is deliuered and deliuereth to dwel in the cytie soar. Lottes wyfe is turned into a peller of salt. Sodome is destroyed. Lot is drunken and lyeth with hys daughters whiche conceaued chyl-dren by hym.

And there came. ii. angels to Sodome at euen. And Lot sat at the gate of hys cytie. And Lot sawe them, and rose vp to mete them, and he bowed him selfe to the ground with his face. And he said: Se Lordes, turne in (I pray you) in to poure seruauntes house, & tary all night: & washe your fete & ryse vp early and go on poure wayes. And they said: nay, but we wyll byde in the streates all nyghte. And he compelled them exceedinglye. And they turned in vnto him and entred in to his house, and he made them a feast & dyd bake swete cakes, and they ate. But before they wēt to rest, the men of the cytie of Sodome compassed the house rounde aboute bothe olde and yonge, all the people frō all quarters. And they called vnto Lot and sayd vnto him: where are the men which came in to thy house to a nyghte? brynge them out vnto vs that we may do oure lust with them.

And Lot went out at doores vnto the streete, & shut the doore after him, & said: nay for goddes sake brethren, do not so wickedlye. Beholde, I haue two daughters, which haue knowne no mā, them wyll I brynge out vnto you: do with the as it semeth you good: Onely vnto these men do nothyng, for therfore came they vnder the shadowe of my roie. And they sayde: come hyther. And they sayde: camest thou not in to sogeorne, & wylte thou be now a iudge? we wyll surely deale worse with the than wthē.

And as they pleased sore vpon Lot and began to breake vp the doore, the men put forth their handes, & pulled Lot in to the house to the, & shut to the doore. And the men that were at the doore of the house, they smote with blyndnesse both small and great: so that they coulde not fynde the doore. And the men sayde mozeouer vnto Lot: If thou haue yet here any sonne in lawe, or sonnes or daughters or what so euer thou haste in the cytie, brynge it out of this place: for we must destroy this place, because the cry of the is great before the Lorde. Wherfore he hath sent vs to destroy it.

And Lot wēt out and spake vnto his sonnes in lawe, whiche shoulde haue married his daughters, and sayd: stande vp, and get you out of this place, for the Lorde wyl destroye the cytie. But he seemed as though he had mocked, vnto his sonnes in law. And as the moornyng arose the angels caused Lot to speke him, sayinge: Stande vp, take thy wyfe and thy two daughters and that that is at hande, lest thou perishe in the bysynne of the cytie. When they had brought them out, they sayde: Saue thy lyfe, & loke not behynde the, nether tary thou in any place of the cōtre, but saue thy selfe in the mountaine, lest thou perysthe. Then said Lot vnto them: Oh nay my Lorde: beholde, in as moch as thy seruauit hath foude grace in thy syghte, nowe make thy mercede great, whiche thou shewest vnto me, in sauing my lyfe. Beholde, here is a ctye by, to flee vnto, & it is a litle one: let me saue my selfe therin: is it not a lytle one, that my soule may lyue? And he sayd to him: I haue receaued thy request as concernyng this thinge, that I wyll not ouerthrowe this ctye for the whiche thou hast spoken. Hasten the, & saue thy selfe there, for I can do nothyng till thou be come in thyther. And therfore the name of þe cpte is called zoar. And the sunne was vpo þe erth, when Lot was entred in to zoar.

¶ Then the Lorde rayned vpon * Sodom and Gomorra, byrystone & fyre from the Lorde out of heauē, and ouerthrowe those cities, and all the region, and al that dwelled in the ctyes, & that that grewe vpo þe erth. And Lots wife looked behinde her, and was turned in to a pyllar of salte. Abraham rose vp early and got hym to the place, where he stode before the Lorde, & looked towarde Sodom and Gomorra, and towarde all the lande of that contre. And as he looked: beholde, the smoke of the contre arose as it had bene the smoke of a furnace. But yet when God destroyed the cities of the region, he thought vpon Abraham: and sente Lot out* from the daunger of the ouerthrowynge, when he ouerthrowe þe cities where Lot dwelled.

¶ And Lot departed oute of zoar and dwelled in the mountaynes and his. ii. daughters with him for he feared to tarye in zoar: he dwelled therefore in a caue, bothe he and hys. ii. daughters also. ¶ Then sayde the elder vnto þe younger: our father is olde, and there are no moo men in the erth to come in vnto vs after the maner of all the world. Come therfore, let vs geue oure father wyne to dryncke, and let vs lye with him, that we maye saue seed of oure father. And they gaue their father wyne to dryncke that same night. * And þe elder daughter wente and laye with her father. And he perceaued it not, nether when she laye doune, nether when she rose vp.

¶ And on the morowe the elder sayde vnto the younger: beholde, yesternyghte laye I with my father. Let vs geue him wyne to dryncke this nyghte also, and go thou and lye with him, and let vs saue seed of oure father. And they gaue their father wyne to dryncke that night also. And þe younger arose, and laye with him. And he perceaued it not: nether when she laye doune, nether when she rose vp. Thus were both þe daughters of Lot whychylde by thei father. And the elder bare a sonne, and called hym Moab, which is the father of the Moabytes vnto this daye. And þe younger bare a sonne, and called hym Ben Ammi, whiche is the father of the chyldren of Ammon vnto this daye.

a. Here is the nyghte taken for the enenynge, which is the begynnynge of the nyght, as in the Psalme. vii. b. The sunne is taken for the synnar, as malyce is for the wycked, and ryghteousnes for ryghteousnes. As Paul to Titus i. chap. c.

¶ And Abraham departed thence toward the south cōtre and dwelled betwene Cades and Sur, and sogeorned in Gerar. And Abraham sayde of Sara his wyfe that she was hys* syster. ¶ Then Abimelech king of Gerar sente and fet Sara awaye.

¶ And God came to Abimelech by nyghte in a dreame and sayde to hym: Se, thou arte but a deed mā, for þe womans sake whiche thou hast taken awaye, for she is a mans wyfe. But Abimelech had not yet come nye her, and therfore sayde: Lorde, wylte thou slep ryghteous people? sayde not he vnto me, that she was his syster? yea & sayde not she herselfe þe he was hys brother? with a pure herte and innocēt handes haue I done this. And God sayde vnto hym in a dreame. I wote it well that

Then Abimelech rose vp by tyme in the mornynge, and called al his seruantes, and tolde all these thinges in their eares, and the men were sore afraid. And Abimelech called Abraham, and said vnto him: What haste thou done vnto vs, and what haue I offended the, that thou shouldest bynge on me and on my kyngdome so greete a synner: thou hast done dedes vnto me that oughte not to be done. And Abimelech sayd moreouer vnto Abraham: What sawest thou that moued the to do this thyng?

And Abraham answered, I thought that peradventure the feare of God was not in this place, & yf they shoulde sle me for my wyfes sake: yet in very dede the is my syster, the doughter of my father, but not of my mother: & became my wyfe. And after God caused me to wandre out of my fathers house, I said vnto her: This kindnesse shalt thou shewe vnto me, in al places where we come, that thou saye of me, howe that I am thy brother.

Then toke Abimelech shepe, & oxen, men seruantes & women seruantes & gaue them vnto Abraham, & deliuered him Sara his wyfe agayne. And Abimelech sayde: beholde, the lande lyeth before the, dwell where it pleaseth the best. And vnto Sara he sayde: Se I haue geuen thy brother a thousand peeces of syluer: beholde, this thyng shall be a couerynge to thine eyes, & vnto all that are with the and vnto all men an excuse.

And so Abraham prayde vnto God, and God healed Abimelech, and his wyfe & his maydens, so that they bare chylde. For yf Lord had closed to, all yf matrices of yf house of Abimelech, because of Sara Abrahams wyfe.

The notes.

a. Amonge the Hebrewes, the feare of God is principally taken for the honoure and faith that we owe vnto god, and that with suche a loue as the chylde hath to the father.

b. Couerynge and excuse is al one.

And God herde the voyce of h childe.

C And p angel of God called Hagar out of heauen & said vnto her: What ayleth the Hagar? feare not, for god hathe herde the voyce of the childe, where he lyeth. Arise and lyfte vp the lad, & take hym in thy hande, for I will make of hym a great people. * And God opened hyr eyes and she sawe a well of water. And she wente and fylled the bottell w water, and gaue the boye drynke. And God was with the lad, and he grewe and dwelt in the wyldernesse, & became an archer. ¶ Sara dyeth and is buried in the felde that Abraham bought of Ephron the Hethite.

Sara was an hūdrēd & xxvij. yere olde (for so longe lyued she) & thā died in a heade cite called Hebron in the lande of Canaan. Chan Abraham came* to moorne Sara, and to wepe for her. And Abraham stode vp from the coorse, and talked with the sonnes of Heth sayinge: I am a straunger and a forpyner amonge you, geue me a possession to burie in w you, that I may burie my dead out of my syght. And the children of Heth answered Abraham sayinge vnto hym: Heare vs lorde, thou arte a prynce of God amonge vs. In the cheifest of oure sepulchres burie thy deade: None of vs shall forbyd the his sepulchre, that thou shouldest not bury thy dead therein. Abraham stode vp, and bowed him selfe before the people of the lande the children of Heth. And he comonde with them sayinge: If it be your myndes that I shall bury my deade out of my syght, heare me, & speake for me to Ephron the sonne of zoar: and let him geue me the dubbyll caue whiche he hath in the ende of his felde, for as moche money as it is worthe, let hym geue it me in the presence of you, for a possession to burie in. For Ephron dwelled amonge the children of Heth.

Chan Ephron the Hethite answered Abraham, in the audyence of the children of Heth, and of all that went in at the gates of his cyte, sayinge: Not so my lord, but heare me: The felde geue I the, and the caue that therein is geue I the also: and euen in the presence of þe sonnes of my people geue I it the to bury thy deade in. Chan Abraham bowed him selfe before the people of þe land, and spake vnto Ephron, in the audyence of the people of the countre, sayinge: * I praye the heare me, I wyll geue syluer for the felde, take it of me, and so wil I bury my dead there. Ephron answered Abraham, sayinge vnto him: My lord, harken vnto me. The lande is worthe iiii. hundred cycles of syluer: but what is that betwyxte the and me: bury thy deade. And Abraham harkened vnto Ephron and weped him the syluer which he had said, in þe audyence of þe sonnes of Heth. Euen. iiii. hundred syluer cycles of currāt money amonge marchaūtes. Thus was the felde of Ephron (where in the dubbyll caue is) before Hamre: euen the felde and the caue that is therein and all the trees of the felde whiche growe in all the borders rōūde about, made sure vnto Abraham for a possessiō, in the sight of the children of Heth, and Lorde God of my master Abraham, sende me good spede this daye, & shewe mercy vnto my master Abraham. Lo, I stode here by p wel of water, & p doughters of the men of this ctye wyll come out to drawe water: Nowe the damsell, to whome I say, stoupe doune thy pytcher, and let me dryncke. And it came to passe yf he had left speakig, that Rebecca came out, the daughter of Bethuell, sonne to Milca the wyfe of Nahor Abrahams brother, and hys pytcher vpon hir shoulde: The damsell was very fayre to loke vpon, and yet a mayde and vnknownen of mā. And she wente doune to the well, and fylled hys pytcher, and came vp agayne. The seruant ranne vnto her, and said: let me suppe a lytle water of thy pytcher. And she sayde: dryncke my lorde.

And she hastened and lette doune her pytcher vpon hir arme, and gaue hym dryncke. And she poured out hys pitcher in to p trough hastily, and ranne agayne vnto the well, to fet water: & drew for all his camels. And the felowe wondred at her. thipped the Lord, & sayde: blessed be the Lord God of my master Abraham, whiche ceaseth not to deale mercifully and truly with my master, and hath brought me the waye to my masters brothers house. And the damsell ranne and tolde them of her mothers house these thinges. And Rebecca had a brother called Laban.

D And Laban ranne out vnto þe man, to the well: for as soone as he had sene the carnynges and the bracelettes vpon his sisters handes, & hearde þe wordes of Rebecca his sister, saying: thus said the mā vnto me, than he wente out vnto the man. And loo, he stode yet with the camels by the well syde. And Laban sayde: come in thou blessed of þe Lord. Wherfore standest thou without? I haue dressed the house, & made rowme for the camels. And than the man came into the house: and he vnbrydeled the camels: and brought lyyter and pro-uander for the camels, and water to wash his fete, and theyr fete that were with him, and there was meate set before him to eate. But he sayde: * I wil not eate, but yf I haue sayde myne earande. And he sayde: saye on. And he sayde: I am Abrahams seruaunt, and the Lorde hath blessed my master out of measure, that he is become great, & hath geuen him shepe, oxen, syluer and golde, men seruautes, maydeseruautes, camels and asses. And Sara my masters wyfe bare him a sonne, when she was olde: & vnto him hath he geue all that he hath. And my master made me sweare, saying: thou shalt not take a wyfe to my sonne among þe daughters of þe Cananytes in whose lāde I dwel. But þe shalt go vnto my fathers house & to my kynred, & there take a wife vnto my sone. And I sayde vnto my master: what yf þe wyfe wil not folowe me? And he sayde vnto me: The Lorde (before who I walke) wil sende his angel with the, & prosper thy iourney, & thou shalt take a wyfe for my sonne, of my kynred and of my fathers house. But and yf (when thou comest vnto my kynred) they wil not geue the one, thā shalt thou beare no partell of myne ooth.

And I came this daye vnto þe well, & sayde: O Lorde, the God of my master Abraham, yf it be so & thou makest my iourney whiche I go, prosperous: be holde, I stande by this well of water, & when a virgin cometh forth to drawe water, & I saye to her: geue me a lytle water of thy picher to drinke, and she saye againe to me: drinke thou, and I wyll also drawe water for thy camels: that same is the wyfe whome the LORD hath prepared for my masters sonne.

And before I had made an ende of speakynge in myne harte: beholde, Rebecca came forth, & hyr pytcher on hyr shoulde, & she wēt doune vnto þe well & drew. And I sayde vnto her: geue me drinke. And she made hast, & toke doune hyr picher fro of hyr shoulde, & sayd: drinke, and I wyll geue thy camels drynke also. And I dranke, & she gaue þe camels drinke also. And I asked her, saying: whose doughter art thou? And she answered: the doughter of Bathuel Rahors sonne, whom Milca bare vnto him. And I put the earyng vpon hyr face and the bracelettes vpon hyr handes. And I bowed my selfe, and * worshipped the Lorde, and blessed þe Lord God of my master Abraham, which had brought me the right waye, to take my masters brothers doughter vnto my sonne. Nowe therfore yf ye wyll deale mercifully and truly with my master, tell me: and yf not, tell me also: that I maye turne me to the ryghte hande or to the lefte.

Than answered Laban and Bathuel, saying: The thing is proceded euery out of þe Lorde, we can not therfore say vnto the, ether good or bad: beholde Rebecca before thy face, take her and goo, and let her be thy masters sonnes wyfe, euen as the Lorde hath said. And when Abrahams seruaunt hearde theyr wordes, he bowed hym selfe vnto the Lorde, flatte vpon the erth. And the seruaunte toke forthe iewelless of syluer and iewelless of golde and raimente, and gaue them to Rebecca: but vnto hyr brother, and to hyr mother, he gaue spces. And then they ate and drancke, bothe he and the men that were with him, & tarped al nyght, and rose vp in the mornynge.

So they let Rebecca their sister go with her nurse and Abrahams seruant, and the men that were with him. And they blessed Rebecca, and sayde vnto her: Thou arte our sister, growe in to thousande thousandes, * and thy seed possesse the gates of their enemyes. And Rebecca arose & hyz damself, and sat them by vpon the camels, and went their waye after the man. And the seruauant toke Rebecca, and wēt his way.

And Isaac was a cōpyng from þ well of the xpyunge and seynge, for he out to walke in his 4 meditacions before the euen tye. And he lyfte bp his the seruaunt tolde Isaac al that he had done. Then Isaac broughte her in to hys mother Saras tente, and toke Re-

And Isaac dwelled in Gerar. And þ me of the place asked him of his wyfe, and he said that she was his sister: for he feared to call her hys wyfe, lest the men of the place shoulde haue kylled hi for her sake, because she was bewtyful to þ eye. ¶ Jacob stealeth the blessing from Esau by hys mothers counsell Isaac is sad. Esau is comforted. The hatred of Esau towards Jacob.

When Esau was .xl. yere olde, he toke to wyfe \* Judith the daughter of Beryan Bethynte, and Basmath  $\text{p}$  daughter of Elon an Bethyte also, whiche were disobedient vnto Isaac and Rebecca. And it came to passe that Isaac waxed olde and his eyes were dymme, so that he could not se. Then called he Esau his eldest sonne and sayde vnto him: my sonne. And he sayd vnto him: here am I. And he sayd: beholde, I am olde, and knowe not the daye of my death: now therefore take thy weapes, thy quyper and thy bowe, and get the to  $\text{p}$  felde, and take me some venison, and make me meate, such as I loue, and bringe it me, and let me eate that my soule may  $\text{a}$  blesse the before  $\text{p}$  I dye. But Rebecca hearde when Isaac spake to Esau hys sonne. And as soone as Esau was gone to the felde to to catche benyson, and to bypnye it, the spake vnto Jacob her sonne, sayinge: Beholde, I haue herde thy father talking with Esau thy brother, & saying: bring me veniso & make me meate, & I may eate & blesse the before the Lorde per I dye. Nowe therfore my sonne heare my voyce, in that which I commaunde the: get the to the flocke, and bring me thence two good kyddes, & I wil make meate of them for thy father, such as he loueth. And thou shalt brige it to thy father, and he shall eate, that he maye blesse the before hys death.

Then sayde Jacob to Rebecca hys mother: beholde, Esau my brother is rough, and I am smooth. My father shal perauenture fele me, & I shal seme vnto hym as though I went about to beggyle hym, & so shal he bypnyng a curse vpon me, & not a blessing: & his mother sayd vnto hym: vpon me be thy curse my sonne, onely heare my voyce, & go & fetch me the. And Jacob went and fet them, & broughte them to hys mother. And hys mother made meate of the, accordyng as his father loued. And she wet & fet goodly rayment of her eldest sone Esau, which she had in þ house w her, & put the vpon Jacob her yongest son, & she put þ skynnes vpon his handes, & vpon the smothe of hys necke. And she put the meate & breade whiche she had made in the hande of her sonne Jacob.

And he went in to hys father, sayyng: my father. And he answered: here am I: who art thou my sonne? And Jacob sayde vnto hys father: I am Esau thy eldest sonne, I haue done accordyng as thou baddest me: by & spt, & eate of my benyson, that thy soule may blesse me. But Isaac sayde vnto his sonne: how cometh it þ thou hast soude it so quickly my sonne? He answered: The Lorde thy God brought it to my hande. Then said Isaac vnto Jacob: come nere & let me fele the my sonne, whether thou be my sonne Esau or not. Then went Jacob to Isaac his father, & he felte him, and sayd: the voyce is Jacobs voyce, but the handes are the handes of Esau. And he knewe hym not, bycause hys handes were rough as hys brother Esaus handes: and so he blessed hym.

And he axed him: art thou my sonne

Esau? And he sayde: that I am. Then sayde he: bringe me & let me eate of my sonnes benyson, & my soule maye blesse the. And he brought hym, & he ate. And he brought him wine also, & he dranke. And hys father Isaac sayd vnto hym: come nere, & kysse me my sonne. And he wet vnto him & kysed hi. And he smelled the sauoure of hys raymente, and *blessed hym, and sayde: See, the smell of my sonne is as the smell of a felde which the Lorde hath blessed. God geue the of the dewe of heauen, & of þ cattelle of the erth, and plentye of corne & wyne. People be thy seruautes, & nations bowe vnto the. Be Lorde ouer thy brethren, & thy mothers childre stoupe vnto the. *Cursed be he þ curseth the, and blessed be he, that blesseth the.

As sone as Isaac had made an ende of blessing, Jacob was scarce gone out from the presence of Isaac his father: then came Esau hys brother from his huntynge, & had made also meate, and brought it vnto hys father, and sayde vnto him: arise my father, & eate of thy sonnes benyson, & thy soule may blesse me. Then hys father Isaac sayde vnto hym: who art thou? he answered: I am thy eldest sone Esau. And Isaac was greatly astonied out of mesure, & sayde: where is he then þ hath hunted benyson and broughte it me, & I haue eate of al before thou camest, and haue blessed him, and he shalbe blessed still. When Esau herde the wordes of hys father, he cried out greatly and bitterly aboue mesure, and sayd vnto hys father: blesse me also my father. And he sayd: thy brother came with subtilte, & hath taken awaye thy blessing: Then sayd he: he maye wel be called Jacob, for he hath vndermynded me now. si. tps. mes, first he toke away my byrthright: & se, nowe hath he taken away my blessing also. And he sayde, hast thou kept neuer a blessing for me?

Isaac answered, and sayd vnto Esau: behold, I haue made him thy lord, & al his mothers childre haue I made his seruautes. Moreover with þ corne and wine haue I stablished him, what can I do vnto the now my sonne? And Esau sayde vnto hys father: hast thou but that one blessing my father: blesse me also my father: so lyfted vp Elau his voyce and wept. Then Isaac his father answered & sayde vnto hym: Behold, thy dwelling place thal haue of þe fatnes of the erth, & of the dewe of heauē frō aboue. And with thy swerde shalt thou lyue, & shalt be thy brothers Teruaūt. But the tyme wyl come, when thou shalt get the maystrie, & loue his poche from of thy necke. And Elau hated Jacob, because of þe blessinge that his father blessed him with all, and sayde in hys heart: The dayes of my fathers sorow are at hād, for I wyl see my brother Jacob. And these wordes of Elau hys eldest sonne were tolde to Rebecca. And she sente and called Jacob hys yongest sonne, & sayd vnto hym: behold, thy brother Elau threatheneth to kyl the: now therfore my sonne heare my voyce, make the ready, & flee to Laban my brother at Haran: and tary with him a whyle, vntyll thy brothers fearnes be swaged, and vntyll thy brothers wrath turne away from the, & he forget that whiche thou hast done to hym. Then wyl I sende & fet the awayne from thence. Why shuld I lose you bothe in one daye? And Rebecca spake vnto Isaac: I am wery of my lyfe, for feare of the daughters of Beth. If Jacob take a wyfe of the daughters of Beth, suche one as these are, or of þe daughters of the land, what lust shoulde I haue to lyue.

The xxviii. Chapter.

¶ Jacob is sente in to Mesopotamia to Laban for a wyfe. Elau marieth an Hinaelyte. Jacob dreameth a dreame. Christ is promysed. Jacob maketh a vowe.

but aryse and gette the to Mesopotamia to the houle of Bethuell thy mothers father: and there take the a wyfe of þe daughters of Laban thy mothers brother. And God almighty blesse the, increase the, & multiplie the that thou mayst be a nombre of people, and geue thet the blessinge of Abraham, both to the & to thy seed with the, þe thou mayst possesse the lande (wherein thou arte a straunger) whiche God gaue vnto Abraham. Thus Isaac sente forth Jacob, to go to Mesopotamia vnto Laban, some of Bethuel the Syrian, and brother to Rebecca, Jacobs and Elaus mother.

¶ When Elau sawe that Isaac had blessed Jacob, & sent him to Mesopotamia, to sette hym a wyfe thence, and that as he blessed him he gaue hym a charge, saying: se thou take not a wyfe of the daughters of Canaan: & Jacob had obeyed his father & mother, & was gone vnto Mesopotamia: & scing also þe daughters of Canaan pleased not Isaac his father: then wente he vnto Hinaell, & toke vnto the wyues which he had. Mahala þe daughter of Hinael Abrahams son, the sister of Saraiioth to be his wyfe. Jacob departed frō Berseba, & went towarde Haran, & came vnto a place, and taried there all night, because þe lūne was downe. And toke a stone of the place, & put it vnder his heade, & layd him downe in þe same place to slepe. And he dreamed: and behold, there stode a ladder bpō þe erth, & the top of it reached vp to heauē. And se, the angels of God went bp & downe vpon it, yea and the Lorde stode vpon it, and sayde:

I am the Lorde God of Abraham thy father, and the God of Isaac: The land which þe slepest bpō, wyl I geue the & thy seed. And thy seed shall be as the duste of the erthe: and thou shalt sprede abroad: west, east, north & south. And through the & thy seed shall al the kynredes of the erthe be blessed. And se, I am with þe, & wyl be thy keper in al places whether thou goest, & wyl bring the agayne in to this lande: nether wyl I leaue the vntyll I haue made good al that I haue promysed the.

¶ When Jacob was awaked out of his slepe

Deepe, he sayde: surelye the Lorde is in this place, & I was not aware. And he was affrayd, & sayde: howe fearfull is this place: is it none other, but euen the house of God & the gate of heuē. And Jacob stode by erly in the mornynge, & toke the stone that he had layde vnder his head, & pitched it by an ende, and poured oyle on the toppe of it. And he called the name of the place Bethell, for in dede the name of the cite was called Luz before tyme. And Jacob bowed a bowe, saying: If God wil be to me, & wyl kepe me in this iourney which I goe, and wyl geue me breade to eate, & clothes to putte on, so that I come a-gayn vnto my fathers house in safte, then shal the Lorde be my God, & this stone which I haue set by an ende, shal be Goddes house: And of all that thou shalte geue me, wyl I gyue the tenth

And they sayde: we knowe him. And he Lea was tender eyed, but Rachel was bewtyfull & wel sauoured. And Jacob loued her well, & sayde: I wyl serue the

Than Laban hadde all men of that

Laban answered: it is not þe maner of this place, to mary þe yongest before the eldest. Passe out thys weke & than shall this also be geuen the for the scrupce which thou shalt serue me yet seven yeres more. And Jacob dyd euē so, & passed out that weke, & thā he gaue him Rahel his doughter to wyfe also. And Laban gaue to Rahel hys doughter, Bilha his handmayde to be her seruaunte. So laye he by Rahel also, & loued Rahel more than Lea, & serued hym yet. vii. yeres more.

When the Lorde sawe, þe Lea was despised, he made her fruitful: but Rahel was baren. And Lea conceived & bare a sonne and called hys name Ruben, for she sayde: the Lorde hath looked vpon my tribulatio. And now my husbande wyl loue me. And she conceived agayne & bare a sonne, and sayde: the Lorde hath herde þe I am despised, and hath therfore geuen me thys sonne also, & she called hi * Simeon. And she conceived yet, & bare a sonne, & sayde: now this once wyl my husband kepe me companye, because I haue borne hym. iii. sonnes: & therfore she called hys name Leui. And she conceived yet agayne, & bare a sonne, saying: now wil I prayse the Lorde: therfore she called hys name Iuda, and leste bearynge.

When Rahel sawe þe she bare Jacob no children, she envied her sister, and sayde vnto Jacob: Geue me children, or els I am but deed. Than was Jacob wrothe with Rahel, sayinge: Am I in Gods steade whiche kepeth from the þe fruite of thy wombe? Then she sayde: here is my mayde Bilha: goo in vnto her, þe she may beare vpon my lap: & I may be encreased by her. And she gaue hym Bilha her hand mayde to wyfe. And Jacob went in vnto her: and Bilha conceived, and bare Jacob a sonne, Than sayde Rahel. God hathe geuen sentence on my syde, & hath also hearde my voyce, and hath geuen me a sonne. Therfore called she hym Dan. And Bilha Rahels mayde conceived agayne, and bare Jacob another sonne. And Rahel sayde: God is turned, and I haue made a chaunge with my sister, & haue gottē the vpper hande. And she called his name: Nephtali.

When Lea sawe that she had leste bearynge, she toke Silpha her mayde, & gaue her Jacob to wyfe. And Silpha Leas mayde bare Jacob a sonne. Than sayd Lea, good lucke: and called hys name Gad. And Silpha Leas mayd bare Jacob another sonne. Thā sayde Lea: happye am I, for þe doughters wyl cal me blessed. And called hys name Isser.

And Ruben wente out in the wheat haruest & founde a mandragoras in the feld, & brought them vnto his mother Lea. Thā sayd Rahel vnto Lea: geue me of thy sonnes mandragoras. And Lea answered: is it not ynough þe thou hast take away my husbande, but wouldest take away my sonnes mandragoras also? Thā sayde Rahel: wel, let him slepe wth the this night, for thy sonnes mandragoras. And whē Jacob came fro þe feldes at euen, Lea wente oute to mete him, & sayde: come in to me, for I haue boughte the with my sonnes mandragoras.

And he slept wth her that nyght. And God herde Lea, þe she conceived, & bare vnto Jacob the. v. sonne. Than sayde Lea. God hath geue me my reward, because I gaue my mayden to my husband, & she called him Issachar. And Lea conceived yet agayne, & bare Jacob the vi. sonne. Than sayde she: God hathe endewed me w a good dowry. Now wil my husbande dwell with me, because I haue borne hym. vi. sonnes: & called his name Zabulon. After that she bare a doughter and called her * Dina.

And God remembred Rahel, hearde her, & made her fruitful: So þe conceived & bare a sonne, & said: God hath taken away my rebuke. And she called his name * Joseph, sayinge: The Lorde geue me yet another sonne. As soone as Rahel had borne Joseph, Jacob sayde Laban was gone to there his shepe, & Rahell had stolē her fathers & ymages. And Jacob stole awaye the hert of Laban & Strigan, in & he tolde hym not & he fled. Upon the thirde daye after, was it tolde Laban & Jacob fled. Thē he toke his brethre w him, & folowed after him vii. dayes iournepe, & ouertoke him at the mounte Gilead. And God came to Laban the Strigan in a dreame by nyghte, and sayde vnto him: take hede to thy selfe, that thou speake not to Jacob ought saue good. And Laban ouertoke Jacob: & Jacob had pytched his tēte in & mounte. And Laban with his brethre pytched thei tēte also vpon & mounte Gilead. Chan sayd Laban to Jacob: why haste thou thys done to steale away my heart, and cary awaye my doughters as though they had ben taken captiue with the swerde. Wherfore wentest thou awaye secretlye vnto me, and dydest not tell me, & I might haue brought the on & way with myrth, syngynge, tymrels & harpes, & haste not suffred me to kysse my children & my doughters. Thou wast & a sole to do it, for I am able to do you euill. But & God of your father spake vnto me yester day, saying: take hede & thou speake not to Jacob oughte saue good. And now though thou wētest thy waye, bycause thou longest after thy fathers house, yet wherfore hast thou stolen my goddes?

Jacob answered & sayde to Laban: bycause I was afrayed, & thoughte & thou wouldest haue taken awaye thy doughters fro me. But with whom soeuer thou findest thy godds, let hym dye here before oure brethren. Seke that thine is by me, & take it to &: for Jacob wist not & Rahel had stolen thē. Chan went Laban in to Jacobs tente, & into Leas tente, & into. ii. maydens tentes: but founde them not. Then wēt he out of Leas tente, & entred into Rahels tente. And Rahel toke the ymages & put thē in the camels strawe, and sate downe vpon them. And Laban serched all the tēte: but founde them not. Chan said the to her father: my lorde be not angry & I can not ryse vp before thee, for the disease of women is come vpon me. So searched he, but founde them not.

Jacob was wroothe, & chode with Laban. Jacob also answered and said to him: what haue I trespassed or what haue I offended, & thou folowest after me. Thou hast searched all my stuffe, & what haste thou founde of all thy household stuffe. Putte it here before thy brethren & myn, and let them iudge betwixte vs bothe. This. xx. pere that I haue bene w the, thy shepe & thy goodtes haue not bene barē, & the rāmes of thy flocke haue I nat eaten. What soeuer was & to me of bestes I brought it not vnto the, but made it good my selfe: of my hande dydest & require it, wherther it was stolen by daye or nyghte. Moreouer by daye the herte consumed I me, and the colde by nyghte, and my shepe lepe departed from myne eyes.

Thus haue I bene. xx. yere in thy house, and serued the * xliii. yeres for thy. ii. daughters, and vi. yere for thy shepe, & thou hast chaged my rewarde x. tymes. And except the God of my father, the God of Abraham, and þ God whose Isaac a feareth had bene w me: surely þ haddest sent me awaye now al emptie. But God behelde my tribulation, and þ laboure of my handes; and rebuked the pesterdaye.

Laban answered and sayde vnto Jacob: the daughters are my daughters, & the children are my childre, & the shepe are my shepe, & all that thou seist is myne. And what can I do this daye vnto these my daughters, or vnto their children which they haue borne? Now therfore come on, let vs make a bode, I and thou together, & let it be a wytnesse betwene the and me. Then toke Jacob a stone, and set it vp an ende, & sayde vnto his brythre, gather stones. And they toke stones, & made an heape, and they ate there vpon the heape. And Laban called it Jegar Sahadutha, but Jacob called it Gilead.

Then sayde Laban: this heape be wytnesse betwene the & me this date (therfore is it called Gilead) and this cotehull which the Lord seeth (sayd he) be wytnesse betwene me and the when we are departed one fro another: that thou shalt not bere my daughters, neither shalt take other wyues vnto the. Here is no man with vs; beholde, God is wytnesse betwixte the and me. And Laban sayde more ouer to Jacob: beholde, this heape & this marke whiche I haue set here, betwixte me & the: this heape be wytnesse and also this marke that I wil not come ouer this heape to the, & þ shalt not coe ouer this heape & this marke to do any harme. The god of Abraham, þ God of Nahor, & the God of their fathers be iudge betwixte vs.

And Jacob sware by him that hys father Isaac feared. Then Jacob dyd sacrifice vpon the mounte, and called his brythren to eate bread. And they ate bread and taried all nyghte in the hyl. And early in þ mornynge Laban rose vp & kysed his children and hys daughters, & blessed the & departed, & went vnto his place agayne. But Jacob went forth on his iourney. And the angels of God came and met him. And when Jacob sawe them, he sayde: this is goddes hoost: and called þ name of that same place Mahanaim.

Jacob lyfte vp his eyes and sawe his brother Elau come, and w him. iiii. hundred men. And he deuised the children vnto Lea & vnto Rahel and vnto the. ii. maydens. Than came the maydens forth, and did their obeysaunce. Lea also and hyr children came and dyd theyr obeysaunce. And laste of all came Joseph and Rahel and dyd theyr obeysaunce.

And Elau said: let me yet leaue some of my folke wth the. And he sayde: what needeth it? let me fynde grace in the syghte of my lord. So Elau went his waye agayne that same day vnto Seir. The ransomyng of Dina Jacobs daughter by the men of Sichem. And of the great blowe & bondage done by the sonnes of Jacob.

Gen. xxx. 1 Dina the doughter of Lea * Gen. xxx. 1 whiche she bare vnto Jacob, went out to see y<sup>e</sup> doughters of the lade. And Sichem the sonne of Hemor the Heuite lord of y<sup>e</sup> countre, sawe her, and toke her, & a laye wth her, & forced her: & his harte lay on Dina the doughter of Jacob. And he loued that damsell and spake kyndlye vnto her, & spake vnto his father Hemor, sayinge: get me this mayden vnto my wyfe. And Jacob herde y<sup>e</sup> he had despyled Dina hys doughter, but hys sonnes were with the cattell in y<sup>e</sup> felde, and therfore he helde his peace, vntyll they were come. Then Hemor y<sup>e</sup> father of Sichem went oute vnto Jacob, to comen wth him. And y<sup>e</sup> sonnes of Jacob came out of the felde as soone as they herde it, for it greued the, & they were not a lytle wroothe, because he had wrought folpe in Israell, in y<sup>e</sup> he had liuen wth Jacobs doughter, whiche thinge Gen. xxx. 1 oughte not to be done. And Hemor commened with them, sayinge: y<sup>e</sup> soule of my sonne Sichem logeth for your doughter: geue het him to wife, & make mariages wth vs: geue your doughters vnto vs, and take out doughters vnto you, & dwel wth vs, & the lande shall be at your pleasure, dwell & do your busynes, & haue your possessions there in. And Sichem said vnto hys father & hys brethre: let me fynde grace in your eyes, and what soeuer ye apoynte me, that wyl I geue. Are frely of me bothe the dowry and gyftes, & I wil geue accordynge as ye saye vnto me, and geue me the Damsel to wyfe.

Then the sonnes of Jacob answered to Sichem & Hemor: his father deceyted fullpe, because he had despyled Dina their syster. And they sayde vnto them, we can not do this thinge y<sup>e</sup> we shoulde geue our syster to one that is vncircumcysed, for that were a shame vnto vs. Onely in this wil we consent vnto you: If ye wyl be as we be, that all the men children amonge you be circumcysed, than wil we geue our doughter to you and take yournes to vs, and wyl dwell with you, and be one people. But yf ye wil not harken vnto vs to be circumcysed, than wyl we take our doughter and goo our wayes. And their wordes pleased Hemor: and Sichem his sonne. And the yonge man deterde not for to do the thinge, because he had a lust to Jacobs doughter: he was also moste set by of al that were in his fathers house. Then Hemor and Sichem went vnto the gate of their cytie, and commened with the men of their cytie, sayinge: these men are peasable with vs, & wyl dwell in the lande, & do their occupacio there in. And in the lande is rowme ynough for the, let vs take their doughters to wyues & geue them oures: onely herin wil they consente vnto vs for to dwell with vs, and to be one people: yf all the men children that are among vs be circumcysed as they are. And vnto Hemor and Sichem hys sonne harkened al that went out at the gate of his cytie. And all the men children were circumcysed what soeuer

AND God said vnto Jacob, a-ryse & get the by to Bethel, & dwel there. And make there an aulter vnto God, that ap-pearerth vnto the, whē thou fleddest frō Esau thy brother. Chan sayde Jacob vnto his householde & to all that were with him: put away þ * a straunge god-des þ are amonge you, and make poure selues cleane, and chaunge poure gar-mentes, and let vs aryse and goo by to Bethell, that I maye make an aulter there, vnto God which * herde me in the daye of my tribulation, and was with me in the waye whiche I wente.

And they gaue vnto Jacob all the straunge goddes whiche were vnder their handes, and all theyʒ earpynges whiche were in their eares, & Jacob hyd them vnder an oke at Sichē. And they departed. And the feare of God fell by on the ctyties that were rounde aboute them, that they durst not folowe after þ sonnes of Jacob. So came Jacob to Lus in the lande of Canaan: otherwile called Bethell, with all the people that was with him. And he buylded there an aulter, and called the place * Bethel: because that God appereth vnto hym there, when he fled from his brother.

Chan died * Deboʒa Rebeccas noʒe, and was buryed benethe Bethell vnder an ooke. And the name of it was called, þ ooke of lamentaciō. And God appeared vnto * Jacob agayne after he came out of Mesopotamia, & blessed him, and sayde vnto him: thy name is Jacob. Not withstandynge thou shalt be no moze called * Jacob, but Israell shall be thy name. And so was his name called Israell.

And God sayde vnto him: * I am God almighty, growe and multiplie: for people & a multitude of people shall sprynge of the: * yea, and kynges shall come out of thy loynes. And the lande whiche I gaue Abraham and Isaac, wil I geue vnto the, and vnto thy seed after the, wil I geue it also. And God departed from him in the place where he talked with him. And Jacob set by a marke in the place where he talked with him: euen a pyllour of stone, and powred drinke offrige thereon, & powred also oyle therō, & called the name of the place where god spake w him, Bethel.

And they departed from Bethel, and when he was but a selde bʒede frō Ephʒath, Rachel began to trauell: And in traueylng, she was in payrell. And as she was in paynes of hyʒ labour, the mydwylfe sayde vnto her: feare not, for þ shalt haue this sonne also. Thē as hir soule was a departynge, þ she * must dye: she called hys name * Ben Oni. But his father called him * Bē Jamin. * And thus dyed Rachel, & was buryed in the waye to Ephʒath, whiche now is called Bethlehem. And Jacob set by a pyller vpon hir graue, whiche is called Rahels graue pyller vnto this daye. And Israell wente thence, and pytched by hys tente beyonde the * toure of Eder. And it chaunced, as Israell dwelte in the lande, that Ruben wente and Then Jacob went unto Isaac hys father to Mamre a principall cyte, othertwyle called Hebron: where Abraham and Isaac sojourned as strangers. And the dayes of Isaac were an hundred and lxxx. yeres: & thā fell he sycke and dyed, & was put vnto his people: beyng olde & ful of dayes. And his sonnes Esau and Jacob buried hym.

The .xxxviii. Chapter.

Joseph accuseth his brethren. Joseph dreameth and is hated of his brethren and is sold to the Amachytes. Jacob bewapleth Joseph.

And Jacob dwelte in p lande, A where in his father was a stranger, that is to saye, in the lande of Canaan. And these are the generacions of Jacob: when Joseph was. .xvii. yere olde, he kepte shepe with his brethren, & the lad was with the sonnes of Bilha and of Zilpha his fathers wyues. And he broughte vnto their father an euill saying that was of them. And Israel loued Joseph more than all his chyldren, because he begat hym in his olde age, & he made him a coote of many coloures.

When his brethren sawe that their father loued hym more thā al his brethren, they hated hym and coulde not speake one kynde worde vnto hym. Moreover Joseph dreamed a dreame and tolde it vnto his brethren: wherefore they hated him yet the more. And he sayde vnto them: heare, I pray you, this dreame whiche I haue dreamed: Beholde, we were makynge sheues in the felde: and lo, my sheffe arose, & stode vp ryghte, and poures stode rounde aboute, & made obeysaunce to my sheffe. Then sayde his brethren vnto hym: what, halte thou be oure kynger? halte thou raygne ouer vs? And they hated him yet the more, because of his dreame, and of his wordes.

And he dreamed yet another dreame, and tolde it his brethren, sayinge: beholde, I haue had one dreame more: me thoughte the sonne and the moone, and .xi. starrs made obeysaunce to me. And when he had tolde it vnto his father and his brethren, his father rebuked hym, and sayde vnto hym: what meaneth this dreame whiche thou hast dreamed? hal I and thy mother, & thy brethren come & sal on the grounde before the? And his brethren hated hym, but his father noted the sayinge.

His brethren wente to kepe their fathes shepe in Sichem, and Israel sayde vnto Joseph: do not thy brethren kepe in Sichem? come, that I maye sende the to the. And he answered: here am I. And he sayde vnto hym: goo and see whether it be well with thy brethren and the shepe; and brynge me worde a gayne. And sent him out of the vale of Hebron, for to go to Sichem. And a certayne man founde hym, wanderynge out of his waye in the felde, and axed him what he sought. And he answered: I seke my brethren, tell me I praye the where they kepe shepe. And the man sayde, they are departed hence, for I herde the say: let vs goo vnto Dothan. Thus went Joseph after his brethren, and founde them in Dothan.

And when they sawe him a farre of befoze he came at them, they toke counsell against him, for to sleie him, & sayde one to another: Beholde, this dreemer cometh: come now and let vs sleie him, and cast him in to some pyte, and let vs say that some wycked beaste hath deuoured hym, and let vs see what hys dreames wyll come to.

When Ruben herde that, he wente aboute to ryd hym out of their handes and sayde, let vs not kyll him. And Ruben sayde mozeouer vnto the, shede not his bloude, but cast him in to this pyt that is in the wylernes, and laye no handes vpon him: for he woulde haue rydde hym out of their handes, and deliuered him to his father agayne.

And as soone as Joseph was come vnto his brethren, they stripte him out of his gay coote, that was vpon hym, and they toke him, and cast him in to a pyt: But the pyt was emptye and had no water therein. And they sat them downe to eate breade. And as they liste by they eyes and looked aboute, there came a companie of Ismaelites from Silead, and their camels laden with spicery, baulme, and myrr, & were goinge downe in to Egypte.

Then sayde Juda to his brethren: what auayleth it that we sleie our brother, and kepe his bloude secret? come on, let vs sell him to the Ismaelites, and let not oure handes be defyled vpon him: for he is oure brother, and oure fleche. And his brethren were contente. Then as the Madianites marchaunt men passed by, they drewe Joseph oute of the pyt & solde him vnto the Ismaelites for xx. peces of syluer. And they brought him into Egypte.

And when Ruben came agayne vn-

to pyt & founde not Joseph there, he rent his clothes & went agayne vnto his brethren, saying: p lads is not pder; & whether shal I goo? And they toke Josephs coote & kylled a goote, & dyped the coote in p bloude. And they sent p gay coote & caused it to be broughte vnto their father, and said: This haue we founde: se, whether it be thy sonnes coote or no. And he knewe it, saying: it is my sonnes coote, a wycked beaste hath deuoured him, & Joseph is rente in peces. And Jacob rent his cloother, and put sacke clothe aboute his loynes, and sorowed for his sonne a longe season. Then came all his sonnes & all his daughters to comforte him. And he woulde not be comforted, but sayde: I wyll go doune in to the graue vnto my sonne, mournyng. And thus his father wepte for him. And the Madianytes solde him in Egypte vnto Putiphar a lord of Pharaos: & his chiefe marshal.

Chan sayde Juda to Thamar hys doughter in lawe: remaine a widowe at thy fathers house, tyll Sela my sonne be growne: for he feared, lest he shuld haue died also, as his brethre did. Thus wet Thamar and dwelte in hys fathers house.

And in processe of tyme, the doughter of Sela Judas wife, died. Cha Judas when he had leste moynynge, wente vnto hys shepe shepers to Thymnath, with his frende Hira of Odollam. And one tolde Thamar, sayig: beholde, thy father in lawe goeth vp to Thymnath, to * there his shepe. And she put hir widowes garmentes of from her, and couered her with a clooke, and dysgyfled her selfe: And sat her downe at the entrynge of Enaim whiche is by the hye wayes syde to Thymnath, for because she sawe that Sela was growne, and she was not geuen vnto him to wyfe.

When Juda sawe her, he thoughte it had bene an whooze, because she had couered hir face. And turned to her vnto the waye and sayd: come I pray the, let me lye with the, for he knewe not that it was his doughter in lawe. And she sayd: what wylte thou gyue me, for to lye with me? And she said: thy sygnet, thy bracelet, and thy staffe that is in thy hande. And he gaue it her, and laye by her, and she was with childe by him. And she gate her vp and wente and put her mantell from her, & put on hys wydowes rayment agayne. And Judas sent the kydd by hys neyghbour of Odollam, for to fetch out hys pledge agayne from the wyfes hande. But he founde her not. Chan asked he the men of the same place, sayinge: where is the whooze that sat at Enaim in the waye? And they sayde: there was no whooze here. And he came to Juda agayne, sayinge: I can not fynde her, and also the men of the place sayde: that there was no whooze there. And Juda sayde: let her take it to her, lest we be shamed: for I sette the kydd and thou couldest not fynde her.

And it came to passe that after .iij. monethes, one tolde Juda sayig: Thamar thy doughter in lawe hath played the whooze, and with playing þ whooze is become great with chylde. And Juda sayde: brynge her forth, and let her be brente. And when they broughte her forth, she sente to her father in lawe sayinge: by the man vnto whome these thinges pertayne, am I with chylde. And sayde also: loke whole are this seall, bracelet, & this staffe. And Juda knewe the, sayig: she is more righteous than I, because I gaue her not to Sela my sonne. But he laye w her nomore.

When tyme was come þ she shoulde be deliuered, beholde, there was .ii. twynnes in hys wombe. And as she traueled, the one put oute hys hande, and the mydwife toke and bounde a reed threde aboute it, sayinge: this wyl come out fyrste. But he plucked hys hande backe agayne, and his brother came oute. And she sayd: wherfore hast thou bent a rent vpon the? and called him Pharez. And afterwarde came out his brother þ had þ reade threde about his hande, whiche was called Zarah.

¶ The .xxxix. Chapter.

God prospereth Joseph. Pharaos wyfe tepereth him. He is accused & cast in pylson. God hath mercy vpon him.

Joseph was broughte vnto Egypte, and Putiphar * a lord of Pharaos: and his chefe marshall an Egyptian, boughte him of the Ismaelites, whiche brought him thither. And the Lord was with Joseph, and he was a luckye felowe and continued in the house of hys master the Egyptian. And his * master sawe that the Lord was with him, and that the Lord made all that he dyd prosper in hys hande: wherfore he founde grace in hys masters syght, and serued hym. And hys master made him ruelar of hys house, and put all that he had in hys hande. And as soone as he had made hym ruelar ouer hys house and ouer all that he

he had, & the Lord blessed this Egyptian house for Josephs sake, and the blessing of the Lord was upon all that he had: bothe in the house and also in the feldes. And therfore he lefte all that he had in Josephs hand, & looked vpon no thyng that was with him, saue only on the breade whiche he ate. And Joseph was a goodly person & a wel fauored. And it fortuneth after thys, & hys masters wife cast her eyes vpon Joseph, & sayde: come lye with me. But he denyed & sayd to her: Beholde, my mayster woteth not what he hathe in the house w me, but hathe committed all that he hath to my hāde. He him selfe is not greater in the house than I, and hath kept nothyng from me, but onely the, because thou art hys wyfe. How than can I do thys greates wyckenes, for to sinne agaynst God: and after this manner spake she to Joseph daye by daye: But he harkened not vnto her, to slepe nere her, or to be in her compaignye.

And it fortuneth aboute the same season, & Joseph entred in to the house, to do hys busynes: & there was none of the houtholde by, in the house. And she caughte him by the garment, sayinge: come slepe with me. And he lefte hys garment in her hande, & fled, and gotte him out. When she saw that he had left hys garment in her hande, & was fled out, she called vnto the men of the house, and tolde them, sayinge: He, he hathe brought in an Hebrew vnto vs to do vs shame: for he came in to me, for to haue slepte with me. But I cryed with a lowde voyce. And when he hearde, & I lyfte vp my voyce & cryed, he left his garment with me, & fled away, and got hym out.

And she layed vp his garment by her, vntyl her lord came home. And she told hym accordyng to these wordes, sayinge: Thys Hebrewes seruaunte whiche thou hast brought vnto vs, came in to me, to do me shame. But as soone as I lyfte vp my voyce and cryed, he left his garment with me, and fled out. When hys master hearde the wordes of hys wyfe which she tolde him, sayinge: after this maner dyd thy seruaunte to me, he waxed wroothe.

* prison: Euen in the place where the kinges prisoners lay boūde. And there continued he in prison, but the Lord was with Joseph, & shewed hym mercy, and gotte hym fauour in the sight of the keeper of the prison, whiche committed to Josephs hande, all the prisoners & were in the prison house. And what soeuer was doone there, that dyd he. And the keeper of the prison looked vnto nothyng that was vnder his hande, because the Lord was with hym, and because that what so euer he dyd, the Lord made it come luckely to passe.

The. xi. Chapter.

Joseph expoundeth the dreames of the two prisoners.

And it chaunced after thys, that the chiefe butlar of the kynge of Egypte and hys chiefe baker had offended their lord the kynge of Egypte. And Pharaos was angrie wyth them and putte them in warde in hys chiefe marshalls house: euen in the prison where Joseph was boūde. And the chiefe marshall gaue Joseph a charge with them, and he serued them. And they continued a season in warde.

And they dreamed ether of them in one nyght: both the butlar and the baker of the kynge of Egypte, which were boūde in the prison house, ether of the hys dreame, and eche mannes dreame of a sondrye interpretation. When Joseph came in vnto them in the morninge, and looked vpon them: beholde, they were sadde. And he asked the sayinge: wherfore loke ye so sadly to daye? They answered hym: we haue dreamed a dreame, and haue no man to declare it. And Joseph sayd vnto them. Interpretynge belongeth to God, but tell me yet. And the chiefe butlar told his dreame to Joseph, and sayd vnto him: In my dreame me thoughte there stode a byne before me, & in the byne were thre braunches, and it was as though it budded, and her blossoms shotte forth: & the grapes thereof waxed ripe. And I had Pharaos cuppe in my hande, and toke of the grapes, and wrong the in to Pharaos cuppe, & deliuered Pharaos cup in to hys hande. And Joseph said vnto him, thys is the interpretation of it. The thre braunches are.iii.dages: for within thre dages shall Pharao lyfte vp thyne heade, and restooze thee vnto thyne office agayne, & thou shalt deliuer Pharaos cuppe in to hys had, after the olde maner, euen as thou didst when thou waste hys butlar. But thynke on me with the, when thou arte in good case, & shewe mercye vnto me. And make mencion of me to Pharao, & helpe to bynge me out of thys house: for I was stolen out of the land of the Hebrues, and here also haue I done no thyng at all wherfore they shuld haue putte me in to thys dongeon. When the chiefe baker sawe, that he had well interpreted it, he sayd vnto Joseph, me thought also in my dreame, that I had thre wyker baskettes on my heed. And in the hyppermoste basket of all maner bakemeates for Pharao. And the byrdes ate them oute of the basket vpon my heade.

D Joseph answered and sayde: this is the interpretacio therof. The thre baskettes are thre dages, for this daye.iii. dages shall Pharao take thy head fro the, and shall hange the on a tree, and byrdes shall eate thy flesh from of the.

Mat. 14. a And it came to passe the thyrde daye whiche was Pharaos byrth day, that he made a feast vnto al his seruantes. And he lysted vp the head of the chiefe buttelar & of the chiefe baker amonge his seruantes. And restozed the chiefe buttelar vnto hys buttelarshyppe agayne, and he reached the cuppe into Pharaos hande, and hanged the chiefe baker: Euen as Joseph had interpreted vnto them. Notwithstandinge the chiefe buttelar remembred not Joseph, but forgot hym.

The. xli. Chapter.

Pharaos dreames are expounded by Joseph. He is made ruler ouer all Egypte. He hath two sonnes, Manasses and Ephraim. The verthe begynneth in Egypte.

Ad it fortunied at two yeres ende, Pharao dreamed, & thought he stod by a riuers syde, & that there came out of the riuer, seven goodly kyne & fatte fleshed, and fedde in a medowe, and hym thoughte that seven other kyne, came by after them oute of the ryuer euill fauoured & leane fleshed, and stode by the other vpon the bynke of the ryuer. And the euill fauozed and leane fleshed kyne: Ate vp the seven well fauoured and fat kyne: and he awoke therewith. And he slepte agayne, and dreamed the seconde tyme, that. vii. eares of corne grewe vpo one stalke racke & goodlye. And that. vii. thynne eares blasted with the wynde, sprange vp after them: and that. vii. thynne eares deuoured the seven rancke and full eares. And than Pharao awaked: & se, here is his dreame. When the moynynge came, his spirite was troubled. And he sent & called for al the sothsayers of Egypte, & all wyse men thereof, and tolde them hys dreame: But there was none of them that coulde interpretate it vnto Pharao. The spake the chiefe butlar vnto Pharao, sayinge: I doe remembre my faute this daye. Pharao was angrie with his seruantes, & put in warde in the chiefe marshalls house both me and the chiefe baker. And we dreamed both of vs in one night & eche mannes dreame of a sounde interpretacion.

And there was with vs a yonge man, an Hebrue bozne, seruante vnto the chiefe marshall. And we tolde hym, and he declared our dreames to vs, accordynge to either of oure dreames. And as he declared them vnto vs, euen so it came to passe. I was restozed to myne offyce agayne, & he was hanged.

Then Pharao sent and called Joseph. And they made hym haste out of prison. And he shaued hym selfe and chaunged his rayment, & wet in to Pharao. And Pharao sayd vnto Joseph: I haue dreamed a dreame & no man can interpretate it, but I haue heard saye of the, as soone as thou hearest a dreame, thou doest interpretate it. And Joseph answered Pharao, sayinge: God shall geue Pharao an answer of peace with oute me. Pharao sayde vnto Joseph: In my dreame me thought I stode by a ryuers syde, and there came oute of the ryuer. vii. fatte fleshed and well fauozed kyne, and fedde in the medowe. And then. vii. other kyne came by after them, poore and very euill fauozed and leane fleshed: so that I neuer saw their lyke in all the lande of Egypte in euell fauourednesse.

fauorednesse. And the .vii. leane & euill fauored kyne ate vp the first .vii. fatte kyne. And when they had eaten the vp, a man coulde not perceaue that they had eaten them: for they were styl as euill fauored as they were at the beginning. And I awoke. And I saue a gayne in my dreame. .vii. eares spring out of one stalke ful and good, and .vii. other eares withered, thynne & blasted with winde, spring vp after them. And the thynne eares deuowred .vii. good eares. And I haue tolde it vnto .v. soth sayers, but no man can tell me what it meaneth. The Joseph said vnto Pharaos: bothe Pharaos dreames are one. And God doth shewe Pharaos what he is about to do. The .vii. good kyne are .vii. peres: & the .vii. good eares are .vii. peres also, & it is but one dreame. Like wyle the .vii. thynne and euell fauored kyne that came out after the .vii. peres: & the .vii. emptie & blasted eares shalbe .vii. peres of honger. This is that which I sayd vnto Pharaos, that God doeth shewe Pharaos what he is aboute to do.

Behold, there shal come seuen peres of great plenteousnes throughout all the lande of Egypte. And there shal asyle after them .vii. peres of hunger. So .v. al the plenteousnes shal be forgotten in the lande of Egypte. And the hunger shal consume .v. lande: so that .v. plenteousnes shal not bee once sene in the lande by reason of that hunger .v. shal come after, for it shal be exceeding greate. And as concernynge that the dreame was doubled vnto Pharaos the secoude tyme, it betokeneth that the thyng is certaynly prepared of God, & that God wyl shortly bring it to passe.

Nowe therfore let Pharaos prouide for a man of vnderstandynge and wisdom, & sette hym ouer the lande of Egypte. And let Pharaos make offycers ouer the lande, & take vp the fyfte part of the lande of Egypte in the .vii. plenteous peres, & lette them gather all the foode of these good peres that come, & lay vp corne vnder the power of Pharaos, that there maye be foode in the ciities, and there let the kepe it that there maye be foode in store in the lande, agaynst the .vii. peres of huger whiche shall come in the lande of Egypte, and .v. the lande perith not thowow hunger.

And the sayinge pleased Pharaos & all his seruauntes. Than sayd Pharaos vnto his seruauntes: Where shall we fynde such a man as this is, .v. hath .v. sprete of God in him: wherfore Pharaos sayd vnto Joseph: for as much as God hathe shewed thee all thys, there is no man of vnderstandynge or of wisdomelike vnto thee. Thou therefore shalt be ouer my house, & accordynge to thy worde shall all my people obey: only in .v. kynges seate wyl I be aboue the. And he sayd vnto Joseph: beholde, I haue sette thee ouer all the lande of Egypte. And he toke of his rying from his synger, and put it vpon Josephs syngre, & arayed him in raymet of bisse, & put a golde chayne about his neck & sette him vpon the beste charet that he had saue one. And they cryed before hym a Abrech, and that Pharaos hadde made hym ruelat ouer all the lande of Egypte.

And Pharaos sayde vnto Joseph: I am Pharaos, without thy wyl, shall no man lyft vp ether his hand or fote in all the lande of Egypte. And he called Josephs name <sup>b</sup> zaphnath Baena. And he gaue hym to wyle Asnath the daughter of Putiphar prieste of On. Than went Joseph abrode in the lande of Egypte. And he was .xxx. yere olde: wher he stode before Pharaos kyng of Egypte. And thus Joseph departed from Pharaos, and wente thowow out all the lande of Egypte.

And in the .vii. plenteous peres they made sheues & gathered vp all the fode of the .vii. plenteous peres which were in the lande of Egypte & put it in to .v. cyties. And he putte the foode of the felde that getewe rownde aboute euery cytie: euen in the same. And Joseph layde vp corne in stooze, lyke vnto the lande of the see in multitude out of measure, vntyll he leste nombrynge: for it was withoute nombze. And vnto Joseph were bozne two sonnes (before the peres of hungre came) whiche Asnath the daughter Putiphar prieste of On, bare vnto hym. And he called the name of the fyrste sonne * Manasse, for God (sayde he) hathe made me forgette all my labour and all my fathers householde. The seconde called he Ephraim, for God (sayde he) hath caused me to growe in the lande of my trouble.

And when the .vii. yeres of plentifulnes that was in the lande of Egypte, were ended, than came the seven yeres of sterth, accordynge as Joseph had sayd. And sterth was in all lades: but in the lande of Egypt was there yet foode. When now al the land of Egypt began to hunger, than cryed the people to Pharaos for breade. And Pharaos sayde vnto all Egypte: God vnto Joseph, and what he sayeth to you that doo. And when the sterth was thoroowe out al the lande, Joseph opened al that was in the citties and solde it vnto the Egyptians. And hunger waxed sore in the lande of Egypte. And all the countrees came to Egypte to Joseph for to bye corne: because that the hunger was so sore in all landes.

Josephs brethren come into Egypte to bye corne. And he knoweth them and tryeth them. Simeon is put in prison, the other returne to their father to fetch Ben Jamin. His father is lothe to let hym goe, but at the last he grannted it.

When Jacob sawe that there was corne to bee solde in Egypte, he sayd vnto hys sonnes: Why are ye neglygent beholde, I haue hearde that there is corne to be solde in Egypte. Get you thither & bye vs corne from thence, & we maye lyue & not dye. So wente Josephs ten brethren doune to bye corne in Egypte, for Ben Jamin Josephs brother wolde not Jacob sede with his other brethren: for he sayde: some misfortune myght happen hym.

And the sonnes of Israell came to bye corne amonge other that came, for there was sterth also in the lade of Canaan. And Joseph was gouernour in the lande, and solde corne to all the people of the lande. And his brethren came, & fel flat on the grounde before hym. When Joseph sawe hys brethren, he knewe the;

But made straunge vnto them, and spake roughlye vnto them, sayinge: Whence come ye? And they sayd: out of the lande of Canaan, to bye vitayle. Joseph knewe hys brethren, but they knewe hym not.

And Joseph remembered his dreames whiche he dreamed of them, & said vnto them: ye are spies, and to se where the lande is weake is your comminge. And they sayde vnto hym: may my lord: But to bye vitayle thy seruantes are come. We are all one mannes sonnes, and meane truly, and thy seruantes are no spies. And he sayde vnto them: naye verely, but euen to se where the lande is weake is your comynge. And they sayde: we thy seruantes are .xii. brethren, the sonnes of one man in the lande of Canaan. The yongest is yet with our father, and one no man wotteth where he is. Joseph sayde vnto them, that is it that I sayde vnto you, ye are surely spies. Here by ye shall be proued. for by the lyfe of Pharaos, ye shal not goo hence, vntyll your yongest brother be come hyther. Sende therefore one of you and let hym sette youre brother, & ye shall be in prison in the meane season. And thereby shall your wordes be proued, whether there be anye trueth in you: or els by the life of Pharaos, ye are but spies. And he put them in ward the dapes.

And Joseph sayd vnto them the thyrde daye: This doo and lyue, for I feare God. If ye meane no hurte, let one of your brethren be bounde in prison, and goo ye and bynge the necessaries foode vnto youre householdes, and bynge youre yongest brother vnto me: that your wordes may be beleued, and that ye dye not: And they dyd so.

Then they sayd one to an other: we haue verely sinned agaynst our brother, in that we sawe the angur of our soules, when he besoughte vs, and wolde not heare hym: therefore is this trouble come vpon vs. Ruben answered them sayinge: sayde I not vnto you that ye shulde not synne agaynst the lad? but ye wolde not heare. And now verely se, hys bloude is requyred. They were not aware that Joseph vnderstoode them, for he spake vnto them by an

And he turned from them & wepte, and then turned to them agayne & comened with the, & toke out Symeon from amonge them & bounde him before their eyes, and commaunded to fyll their sackes with corne, and to putte euerye mannes money in hys sacke, & to geue them vitaille to spende by the waye. And so it was doone to them. And they laded their asses with the corne and departed thence. And as one of them opened hys sacke, to geue his alle prouander in the inne, he spi- ed hys money in hys sackes mouthe. And he sayd vnto his brethren: my mo- ney is restozed me agayne, & is euen in my sackes mouth. Chan their heartes fayled them, and were astonyed & sayd one to a nother: Howe commeth it that God dealeth thus with vs. And they came vnto Jacob their father vnto the lande of Canaan, and tolde him al that had happened them, saynge: The lorde of the land spake roughlye vnto vs, & toke vs for spyres to lerce the coun- tre. And we sayde vnto hym: we meane truelye & are no spyres. We be. xii. bre-

And the lorde of the countre sayde vnto vs: here by shal I knowe if ye meane true- ly: leaue one of your brethren here with me, and take foode necessarye for your householdes and gette you awaye, and brynge your yongest brother vnto me. And thereby shal I knowe that ye are no spies, but meane truely: So wyl I deliuer you your brother agayne, and ye shal occuppe in the lande.

And as they emptyed their sackes, beholde: euery mans boude of money was in his sacke. And whē both they & their father saw the bouidels of money, they were afrayde. And Jacob their fa- ther sayd vnto them: He haue ye rob-

Deliuer hym therfore in to my hande, and I wyl brynge hym to the agayne: And he sayde: My soune shal not goo

When Ben Jamin was brought, they returned with spies. Symeon is deliuered out of prison. Joseph go- eth ahyde and wepeth. They feast to together.

And the derth waxed sore in E land. And whē they had ea- te vp the corne whiche they brought out of E lande of E gypte, their father sayd vnto them: go agayn & bye vs a lytle foode. Therfore yf thou wylt sende our bro- ther w vs, we wyl go & bye the foode. But yf thou wylt not sede hym, we wyl not goo: for the man sayde vnto vs: Loke that ye see not my face, excepte poure brother be with you. And Isra- el sayd: wherfore delt you so cruelly w me, as to tell the man y ye had yet ano- ther brother. And they sayde: The man asked vs of oure kynred, saynge: Is your father yet alpye. Haue ye not an- other brother. And we tolde hym acoz- dyng to these wordes. Howe coulde we knowe y he wolde byd vs brynge oure brother downe w vs. Chan sayd Ju- da vnto Israel hys father: Sende the lad w me, & we wyl ryle & go y we may lyue & not dye: both we, thou & also our chyldren. I wyl be suertie for hym, and of my handes requite hym. If I bring hym not to the & sette him before thyne eyes, * than let me beate the blame for euer. For excepte we hadde made thys taryenge: By thys we had bene there twyse and come agayne.

Chan their father Israel sayde vn- to them: yf it must ned be so nowe: thā do thus, take of the best frutes of the lande in poure vessels, and brynge the man a presente, a curtesye bawme, and a curtesie of hony, spices, and myrr, dates, & almondes. And take as much monye more with you. And the monye that was broughte agayne in youre sakes, take it agayne with you, peradventure it was some ouersyghte.

Take also your brother with you, & ayle & go agayne to the mā. And God almyghty geue you mercy in the sight of the man, and sende you your other brother and also Ben Jamin, & I will be as a man robbed of hys children.

Thus toke they the presente and twyse so muche more monye with the, & Ben Jamin. And rose vp, went downe to Egypte, and presented them selfe to Joseph. When Joseph sawe Ben Jamin with them, he sayde to the ruelar of hys house: brynge these men home and slep and make redye: for they shall dine with me at noone. And the mā dyd as Joseph bad, and broughte them in to Josephs house.

Whē they were brought to Josephs house, they were afraide, and sayd: because of the monye that came in oure sakes mouthes at the firste tyme, are we brought to pycke a quarel with vs, and to laye some thinge to our charge, to brynge vs in bondage & oure asses also. Therfore came they to the man y was the ruelar ouer Josephs house, and commened with hym at the doore, and sayde.

Why, we came hyther at the firste tyme to bye foode, & as we came into an inne, & opened our sakes: beholde, euery mans monye was in hys sacke w ful weyghte. But we haue broughte it agayne with vs, & other monye haue we brought also in our handes, to bye foode, but we can not tel who put oure monye in oure sakes. And he sayde: be of good chere, feare not: your God, and the God of youre fathers hath put you that treasure in youre sakes, for I had your monye. And he broughte Sis meon out to them, & led them in to Josephs house, & gaue the water to wash their fete, & gaue their asses prouader. And they made redye their presente: agaynst Joseph came at noone, for they herde say that they shoulde dyne there. When Joseph came home, they brought y present in to the house to hym, which they had in their hands, & fell flat on the grounde before hym. And he welcomed the curteously, saying: is your father, y olde mā which ye tolde me of, in good health? & is he yet alyue? they answered: thy seruante our father is in good health, and is yet alyue. And they bowed them selues and fell to the grounde.

And he lyfte vp hys eyes & behelde hys brother Ben Jamin hys mothers sone, & sayd: is this your yongest brother of whome ye sayde vnto me? And sayd: God be merciful vnto the my son. And Joseph made haste (for hys hert dyd melle vpon hys brother) & sought where to wepe, & entred into his chamber, for to wepe there. And he washed hys face & came out & refrayned hym selfe, and sayde: set breade on the table.

And they prepared for him by hym selfe, and for the by them selues, & for the Egyptians whiche ate w hym by them selues, because the Egyptians may not eate bread with the Hebrewes, for that is an abhominacio vnto the Egyptians. And they sat before hym: the eldest according vnto hys age, and the yongest according vnto his youth. And the men maarked amonge them selues. And they broughte rewardes vnto them frome before hym: But Ben Jamins parte was fyue tymes so muche as anye of theirs. And they ate, and they dronke, and were dronke with hym.

The .xliii. Chapter.

Joseph accuseth hys brother of theft. Juda becomes much surertye for Ben Jamin.

And he commaunded the ruelar of his house, saying: fill y Jammens sakes with foode, & put euery mans monye in his bagge mouth, and put my syluer cuppe in the sakes mouth of the yongest, and hys corne monye also. And he dyd as Joseph had sayde. And in the morninge as soone as it was lyghte, y men were lette goo with their asses. And when they were oute of the cite, and not yett ferre away, Joseph sayd vnto the ruler of hys house: bp and folow after þ men, and ouertake them, and saye vnto them: wherfore haue ye rewarded euell for good? Is that not the cuppe of whiche my lord drinkeþ, and doth he not prophesse therein: ye haue euell done that ye haue done.

And he ouertoke them, and sayd the same wordes vnto them. And they answered hym: Wherfore sayeth my lord such wordes? God forþyd, that thy seruantes shoulde doo so. Beholde, the money which we founde in our sakes mouthes, we broughte agayne vnto the, oute of the lande of Canaan: howe then shulde we steale out of my lordes house, ether syluer or golde: with whoseouer of thy seruantes it be founde, let hym dye, and let vs also be my lordes bondemen. And he sayde: Nowe therfore accordynge vnto your wordes: he with whome it is founde, shalbe my seruante: but ye shal be harmelesse.

And attonce euery man toke downe hys sacke to the grounde, and euery man opened his sacke. And he serched, and began at the eldest and left at the yongest. And the cuppe was founde in Ben Jamins sacke. Then they rente their clothes: and laded euery man his asse and wente agayne vnto the cite. And Juda & hys brethren came to Josephs house, for he was yet there, & they fell before hym on the grounde. And Joseph sayde vnto them: what dede is this which ye haue done? Wylt ye not that such a man as I can prophesse?

Then sayde Juda: what shal we say vnto my lord? what shall we speake? or what excuse can we make? God hath founde out the wyckednesse of thy seruantes. Behold, both we and he with whome the cuppe is founde, are thy seruantes: And he answered: God forþyd that I shulde doe so, the man with whome the cuppe is founde, he shall be my seruante: but goe ye in peace vnto your father.

Then Juda wente vnto hym and sayde: Oh my lord, let thy seruante speake a worde in my lordes eare, and be not wroth with thy seruante: for thou arte euen as Pharao. My lord receyued his seruante, sayinge: haue ye a father or a brother? And we answered: my lord, we haue a father that is old, and a yonge lad which he begat in hys age: and the brother of the sayde lad is dead, and he is all that is left of that mother. And hys father loueth hym. Then sayd my lord vnto his seruantes: bring him vnto me, & I may set my eyes vpon hym. And we answered my lord, that the lad coulde not goo from hys father, for yf he shoulde leaue hys father, he were but a dead man. Then saydest thou vnto thy seruantes: except your yongest brother come with you, loke that ye se my face no more.

And when we came vnto thy seruante our father, we shewed hym what my lord had sayde. And when our father sayde vnto vs, goo agayne and bye vs a litle foode: we sayde, that we coulde not goo. Neuerthelesse, yf our yongest brother goo with vs, then wyl we goo, for we maye not se the mames face, excepte our yongest brother be with vs. Then sayde thy seruante our father vnto vs. Ye knowe that my wyfe bare me two sonnes. And the one wente out fro me, & it is sayd: of a suertie that he is tozned in peaces of wyld beasts, and I sawe hym not sence. If ye shall take this also away from me, and some misfortune happen vpon hym, & than shal ye bringe my graue head with you vnto the graue.

Nowe therfore, when I come to thy seruante my father, if þ lad be not with me: (seyng that his lyfe hangeth by the laddes lyfe,) then as soone as he seeth that the ladde is not come, he wyl dye. So shall we thy seruantes bringe the graue heade of thy seruante our father with sorowe vnto þ graue. For I thy seruant became suertie for the lad vnto my father, and sayde: yf I bring him not vnto the agayne, I wyl beare þ blame al my lyfe longe. Nowe therfore let me thy seruant byde here for the lad, and be my lordes bondman: and let the lad goo home with hys brethren. For howe can I go vnto my father, & þ lad not with me: lest I shulde see the wretchednes that shall come on my father.

Joseph make a hym selfe knowne vnto hys brethren sendeth for hys father.

AND Joseph could no lenger refrayne before all the that stode aboute hym, but commaunded that they shoulde goo all out frome hym, and that there shulde be no man w hym, whyle he vtred hym selfe vnto hys brethren. And he wepte aloude, so þ the Egyptians, & the house of Pharaos herde it. And he sayd vnto his brethren: I am Joseph, doth my father yet lyue? But hys brethren coude not answer hym, for they wereso abashed at his presēce. And Joseph sayde vnto hys brethren: Come nere to me, and they came nere. And he sayde: * I am Joseph your brother * whome ye solde in to Egypte. And now be not greued therewith, ne: ther let it seme a cruel thyng in your eyes, þ ye sold me hyther. For God dyd sende me before you to saue your lyfe. * For this is the second yere of þ derth in the lande, and fyue moo are behynde in whiche there shal nether be earpyng nor haruest.

Wherfore God sente me before you to make prouisiō, þ ye myght continue in the erth, and to saue your lyues by a great deliuerance. So now it was not ye that sent me hyther, but God: & he hath made me father vnto Pharaos, and lord ouer all hys house, and ruler in the lande of Egypte. Hast you & goe to my father and tel him, thus sayeth thy sonne Joseph: God hath made me lord ouer al Egypte. Come doune vnto me, and tary not. And thou shalt dwell in the lande of Goshan: and be by me: both thou and thy children, and thy childrens children: and thy shepe, & bestes & all that thou hast. There wyl I make prouisiō for the: for there remaine yet. v. yeres of derthe, lest thou and thy houtholde and all that thou haste perpche.

Beholde, your eyes do see, and the eyes also of my brother Ben Jamin, þ I speake to you by mouthe. Therefore tell my father of al my honoure whiche I haue in Egypte, and of all that ye haue sene, and make haste and bypunge my father hither. And he fel on his brother Ben Jamins necke & wept, & Ben Jamin wept on hys necke. Moreover he kyssed al his brethren and wepte by: on the. And after that, his brethren talked with hym. And when the tydynge was come vnto Pharaos house, that Josephs brethren were come, it pleased Pharaos well, and all hys seruantes.

And Pharaos spake vnto Joseph: say vnto thy brethren, this do ye: lade your bestes & get you hence. And whē ye be come vnto the lande of Canaan, take your father & your houtholde: and come vnto me, and I wil geue you the beste of the lande of Egypte, and ye shall eate the fatte of the lande. And commaunded also. Thys doe ye: Take charettes with you out of the lande of Egypt, for your childre & for your wyues: & bypunge your father, and come. Also, regarde not your stuffe, for the goodes of al the lande of Egypte shal be yours.

And the children of Israel dyd euen so, and Joseph gaue the charettes, at the commaundemente of Pharaos, and gaue them vitayle also to spende by þ waye. And he gaue vnto eche of them chaunge of rayment: but vnto Ben Jamin he gaue. iiii. hundred peces of silver, and. v. chaunge of rayment. And vnto his father he set after þ same maner. & asses laden with good out of Egypte, & the asses laden with corne, bread and meate: To serue hys father by þ waye. So sente he his brethren awaye, and they departed. And he sayde vnto the: se that ye sal not out by the waye.

And they departed from Egypte, & came in to the lande of Canaan vnto Jacob their father, and tolde him, saying: Joseph is yet a lyue and is gouernour ouer al þ lande of Egypt. And Jacobs herte wauered: for he beleued the not. And they tolde him all the wordes of Joseph, whiche he had sayde vnto them. But when he sawe the charettes whiche Joseph had sente to carpe hym, then his spirit was reuiued. And Israel sayde: I haue ynoughe, yf Joseph my sonne be yet alyue: I wyl goe and see hym yet that I dre.

The. xliij. Chapter.

¶ Jacob cometh before Pharaos, and vnto him is geuen the lande of Golan. He sweareth his soune for his buriall.

AND Joseph wente and tolde Pharao, and sayde: my father and my brethren, they shepe and their beas-tes & all that they haue, are come oute of the lande of Canaan, and are in the land of Golan. And Joseph toke a part of hys brethren: euen syue of them, and presented them vnto Pharaos. And Pharaos sayd vnto hys brethren: what is your occupacion? And they sayd vnto Pharaos: shepardes are thy seruauntes, both we and also our fathers. They sayde mozeouer vnto Pharaos: for to *sogeorne in the lande are we come, for thy seruautes haue no pasture for their shepe, so soze is the famyshment in the lande of Canaan. Now therfore let thy seruautes dwel in the land of Golan.

B And Pharaos sayd vnto Joseph: thy father and thy brethren are come vnto the. The land of Egypte is open before the: In þe beste place of the lande make bothe thy father & thy brethren dwell:
And euen in the lande of Golan let the dwell. Mozeouer yf thou knowe anye meene of acsuyte amonge them, make them ruelars ouer my cattell. And Joseph brought in Jacob his father, and sette hym before Pharaos. And Jacob blessed Pharaos. And Pharaos axed Jacob, how olde art thou? And Jacob sayd vnto Pharaos: þe dayes of my *pylgremage are an hundred and .xxx. yeres.
Few and euell haue the daies of my life bene, & haue not attayned vnto the yeres of the life of my fathers in the dai-es of theyr pylgremages. And Jacob blessed Pharaos and wente out frome him. And Joseph prepared dwellinges for his father and his brethren, & gaue them possessions in the land of Egypte, in the beste of the lande: euen in the lande of Raueses, as Pharaos commaunded. And Joseph made prouision for his father, hys brethren and all hys fathers housholde, as younge chyldren are fed wyth bread.

There was no bread in al the lande, for the derth was excedyng soze: so þe lande of Egypte, and the land of Canaan, were famysyd by the reason of the derth. And Joseph brought together all the money that was round in þe land of Egypte and of Canaan, for the corne which they bought: & he layde by þe money i Pharaos house. And the money fay-led in þe land of Egypt and of Canaan, all the Egyptians came vnto Joseph, and sayde: geue vs sustenance: wherfore suffrest thou vs to dye before the:
for our money is spent. Then sayde Joseph: bringe your cattell, and I will gyue you for your cattell, yf ye be without money. And they brought theyr castel vnto Joseph. And he gaue the breed for horses and shepe, and oxen, and asses: so he fed them with bread for all theyr cattell that yere.

And the that yere was ended, they came vnto him the nexte yere and sayde vnto him: we will not hyde it from my lord, howe that we haue nether money nor cattell for my lord: there is no moze lefte for my lord, but euen our bodies and our landes. Wherfore letteth thou vs dye before thyne eyes, and the lande to goo to nought: bye vs and our landes for bread: and let bothe vs and our landes be bounde to Pharaos. Geue vs seed, that we may lyue and not dye, and that the lande go not to waste.

And Joseph bought al the lande of Egypte for Pharaos. For the Egyptians solde euery man his land, because þe derth was soze vpon them: & so þe land became Pharaos. And he appoynted the people vnto the cyties, frome one syde of Egypte vnto the other: only the lande of the priestes boughte he not.
For there was on ordinaunce made by Pharaos for the *preestes, þe they should eate þe whiche was appointed vnto the:
whiche Pharaos had geuen them, wherfore they solde not theyr landes.

Then Joseph sayde vnto the folke: beholde, I haue boughte you this daye and your landes for Pharaos. Take there seed, & goo sowe the lande. And of the increase, ye shal geue the fyfte part vnto Pharao, and .iiij. partes shal be youre owne, for seed to sowe the felde: and for you, & the of your householdes, and for your children, to eate. And they answered: Thou hast saued our liues. Let vs fynde grace in the sighte of my lord, and let vs be Pharaos seruantes. And Joseph made it a lawe ouer the lande of Egypte vnto this day: that menne muste geue Pharao the fyfte parte, except the land of p̄ prestes only, whiche was not bound vnto Pharao.

And Israell dwelt in Egypte: euen in the countre of Gosan. And they had theyr possessions therein, and they grew and multiplyed exceedingly. Moyses & Aaron lyued in the lande of Egypt xvij. yeres, so that the hole age of Jacob was an hundred and .xliiij. yere.

¶ When the tyme drew nye, p̄ Israell must dye: he sent for his sonne Joseph & sayde vnto him: If I haue found grace in thy syght, putte thy hande vnder my *thye, and deale mercifull ye and true ly with me, that thou burye me not in Egypte: but let me lye by my fathers, and carie me out of Egypte, and burye me in theyr burial. And he answered: I wil do as p̄ hast sayd. And sayde: Swere here vnto me. And he sware vnto hym. And than Israell bowed hym vnto the beddes heade.

¶ After these dedes, tydynges were brought vnto Joseph, p̄ hys father was sycke. And he toke with him his .ii. sonnes, Manasses and Ephraim. Then was it sayde vnto Jacob: beholde, thy sonne Joseph cometh vnto thee. And Israell toke hys strengthe vnto hym, and satte vp on the bedde, and sayde vnto Joseph: God almyghtye appeared vnto me at * Lus in the lande of Canaan,

And after I cam from Mesopotamia, Rachel * dyed vpon my hand in the land of Canaan, by the way: when I had but a felde brede to go vnto Ephrat. And I buried her there i the waye to Ephrat which is now called Bethlehem.

And Israel behelde Joseph's sonnes, and sayde: what are these? And Joseph sayde vnto his father: they are my sonnes, which god hath geue me here. And he sayd: bring them to me, and lette me blesse them. And the eyes of Israel were dimme for age, so that he could not wel see. And he broughte them to hym, and he kissed them and embraced them. And Israell sayde vnto Joseph: I had not thoughte to haue sene thy face, and yet loo, God hath shewed it me and also thy seede. And Joseph toke them away from his lappe, and they fel on p̄ ground before hym.

The prologue

to the seconde booke of Moyses, called Exodus.

If the preface vnto Genesis, maist thou vnderstande howe to haue thy selfe in thy booke also, and in al other bookes of scripture.
Cleau vnto the text and playne stoye, and endeavour thy selfe to seache out the meane ynge of all that is describ'd therein, and the true sence of all manner of speahynges of the scripture, of proverbes, similitudes, & borrow'd speache, wherof I entreated in the ende of the obedience, and beware of subtille allegories.

And note euery thyng earnestly, as thynges pertaining vnto thyne owne hert and soule.

For as God vsed him selfe vnto them of the olde testamēt: euen so shall he vnto the worldes ende vse him selfe vnto vs, which haue receyued hys holie scripture, and the testymony of hys sonne Iesus. As God doeth all thynges here for them that beleue his promyses, and hearken vnto his commaundmentes, & with pacyence cleaue vnto hym, and walke wyth hym: euen so shall he do for vs, yf we receyue the wytnesse of Christ with a stronge sayth, and endure pacyently folowynge his stēppes. And on the other syde, as they that fell from the promise of God thorow vnbelyefe, and from his lawe and ordinaunces, thorow im-pacyencie of their owne lustes, were forsaken of God, and so perished: euen so shall we as many as do lyke wyse, and as many as mocke wyth the doctrine of Christ, and make a cloke of it to liue fleschly and to folowe our lustes.

Note thereto how God is founde trettis at the last, and how when all is past remedy & brought into desperacion: he then fulfillerh hys promyses, and that by an abiecte and a caste awaye, a despyed and a refused person, yea, and by a way impossyble to beleue.

The cause of all captiuitie of Goddes people is this. The world euer hateth them for their sayth and truste whiche they haue in God: but in bayne, tyll they fall from the sayth of the promyes, and lose of the lawe and ordinaunces of God, and put their trust in holy dedes of their ownefyndyng, and lyue altogether at their own luste and pleasure wythout regarde of God, or respekte of their neyghbour. Then God forsaketh vs, and sendeth vs into captiuitie, for ouer dissonouryng of hys name, & despyng of our neyghbour. But the world persecuteth vs for oure sayth in Christe onely (as the people now doeth) and not for our wyched lypynge. For in hys kyngdome thou maist quietly and with lycence, and vnder a protection: do whatsoeuer ab-dominacyon thyne hert lusteth: but God persecuteth vs, because we abuse his holy testamēt, and because when we knowe the truth we followe it not.

Note also the myghty hande of the Lord, howe he playeth wyth hys aduersaries, and prouoketh them, and styrrerh them vp a lytle and a lytle, and deliuereth not hys people in an houre that they father was deade, they sayd: Joseph might fortune to hate vs and re-warde vs againe all y euell whiche we dyd vnto him. They dyd therfore a co-maundmēt vnto Joseph, sayinge: thy father charged vs befoze his death, sayynge: This wyse say vnto Joseph, forgeue (I pray the) y trespass of thy brethren, & they synne: for they rewarded the euell. Now therfore we praye thee, forgeue the trespass of the seruautes of thy fathers God. And Joseph wepte, when they spake vnto hym.

And hys brethren came and fell be-foze hym, and sayde: beholde, we be thy seruautes. And Joseph sayd vnto the *feare not, for am not I vnder god: ye thoughte euell vnto me: but God turned it vnto good, to brynge to passe, as it is thys daye, euen to saue muche people alpye. Feare not therfore, for I wyl care for you and for your chyldren, and he spake kyndly vnto them.

Joseph dwelt in Egypt he and his fathers house also, and lyued an hundred & x. yere. And Joseph sawe *Ephraims chyldren, euen vnto the thyrde generacion. And vnto Machir the sone of Ma-nasses wer chyldren borne, and satte on Josephs knees.

And Joseph sayd vnto hys brethren:
I dye. And God wyl suerlie<sup>a</sup> byset you & brynge you out of this lande, vnto the land which he sware vnto Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. And Joseph toke an othe of the chyldre of Israel, and sayd: God wil not faile but byset you: se ther-foze y ye caty my *boones hence. And so Joseph dyed, when he was an hundred and x. yere olde. And they enbamed hym and putte hym in a cheste in Egypte.

a. God visiterh his people two wayes. One is when he plagerh them for their wickednes, causpynge them thereby to acknowledge the same, & to crye vnto hym for mercy. The other is, whē he deliuereth them from any kynde of myserie or oppresson, and so byseth he the Israelites when he brought them out of Egypt.

Marke the longe sufferynge and softe pacyence of Moses, and howe he loueth the people, and is euer betwene the wrath of God and the, and is redy to lyue and dye wryth theym, and to be put out of the booke that God had wrytten for the; sake (as Daule for his brethren. Roma. ix.) and howe he taketh hys owne wronges pacyently, and neuer auengerth him self. And make not Moses a fygure of Christ wryth Rochester: but an ensample vnto all wyces, and to al that are in authoritie, how to rule vnto Goddes pleasure, and vnto the; owne profyte. For there is not a perfecter lyfe in this worlde, bothe to the honoure of God, and profit of hys neyghbours, nor yet a greater crosse, then to rule christianly. And of Aaron also, se that thou make no fygure of Christ, vntill he come vnto hys sacrifice: but an example vnto all preachers of Gods worde, that they adde nothing vnto goddes worde, or take ought thereof.

Note also, howe God sendeth hys promise to the people, and Moses confirmeth it with miracles, and the people beleue. But when temptation cometh, they fall into vnbeliefe and fewe hyde standynge. When thou seest that al be not christen that wyll be so called, and that a crosse tryeth the true from the fayned, for yf the crosse were not, Christ should haue dysspyles pnuowe. Wherof also thou seest, what an excellent gyfte of God true fayth is, and impossible to be hadde wrythout the spirite of God. For it is aboute all naturall power that a man in tyme of temptation when God scourgeth hym, shoulde beleue the needfulle, how that God loueth hym, and careth for him, and hath prepared all good thynges for hym, & that, that scourginge is an earnest that God hath cleere and chosen him.

Note howe ofte Moses spured them by to beleue and truste in God, puttynge theym in remembrance alwaye in tyme of temptation, of the myracles & wordes that God hath wrought beforetyme in the; eyesight. Howedyligently also forbyddeth he all that myghte wrythdrawe the; bettes from God: to put ought to Goddes worde, to take ought from it, commaundyng to do that onely that is right in the sight of the Lorde, that they shoulde make no maner ymage, to knelle downe before it: yea, that they shoulde make none aultare of hewen ston, for feare of ymages, to slep the heathen Idolatryes vnto, & to destroy the; Idoles, and cutte downe the; groues where they worshipped, and that they shoulde not take the daughters of them vnto their sonnes, nor gyue the; daughters to the sonnes of the, and that whosoever moued any of theym to worshyppe false Goddes, howsoever myghte of kynde he were, they muste accuse hym, & bringe him to death, yea, and whersoever they heard of man, woman, or cyrie, that worshipped false Goddes, they should slea them, and destroy the cyrie for euer, and not buyde it agayne, and all by cause they shoulde worshyp nothyng but God, nor putte confidence in any thyng, saue in his worde.

Yea, and how warneth he to beware of witchcraftes, sorcerye, enchaunement, necromancie, & all craftes of the Deuyll, and of dreames, sorceryes, & of myracle doers to destroye the worde, and that they should suffer none suche to lyue, Thou wylte hapely saye, they tell a man the truth. What then? God wyll that we care not to knowe what shall come. He wyll haue vs to care onely to kepe his commaundmentes, and to conuynce all chaunces vnto him. He hath promysed to care for vs, and to kepe vs from all yll. All thynges are in his hande, he can remedye all thynges, and wyll for his trueth sake, if we praye hym. In hys promyses onely wyll he haue vs trust, and there rest and to seek no farther.

Howe also doeth he prouoke theym to loue, euer rehersyng the benefites of God done to the alrede, and the godly promyses that were to come. And howe goodlye lawes of loue geueth he, to helpe one an other, and that a man shoulde not hate his neyghbour in his hert, but loue hym as hymselfe, & cuticus. xii. And what a charge geueth he in euery place, ouer the poore and needye ouer the straunger, frendlesse and widowes? And when he despyeth to shewe mercye, he reherseth with all, the benefytes of God done to the; at their neede, that they might se a cause at the least way in God to shewe mercye of verie loue vnto their neyghbours at their neede.

Also there is no lawe to symple in appaunce thowout the fyue bookes of Moses, but that there is a great reason of the making thereof, yf a man searche diligently. As that a man is forbydd to seeth a kydd in hys mothers mylke, moueth vs vnto compassion, and to be iustfull. As doeth also that a man should not offer the syre or damme and the yong both in one day, & cuticus. xii. For it myghte seme a cruell thyng, in as muche as his mothers mylke is as it were hys bloude, wherfore God wyll not haue hym sodde therein: but wyll haue a man shewe curtesye, vpon the very beastes. As in an other place he commaundeth that we moue not the oxe that treadeth out the corne (whiche maner of the; thyng is vsed in the hote countreys) and that by cause we shoulde muche rather to be liberall & kynde vnto men that do vs seruite. Or happye God woulde haue none suche wanton meate vsed amonge hys people. For the kydd of it selfe is noutyng, and the gootes mylke is restauratyue, and bothe togyther myghte be to rancke, & therefore forbydden, or some other lyke cause there was.

Of the ceremonies, sacrifices, and tabernacle, wryth al his glorie and pompe, vnderstande that they were not permitted onely but also commaunded of God, to lead the people in the shadowe of Moses and nyght of the olde testament, vntill the lyght of Christe and daye of the newe testament were come. As children are ledde in the phantasies of yowth vntill the discretion of mans age be come vpon them. And all was done to kepe them from Idolatry.

The tabernacle was ordayned to the entent they myght haue a place appoynted theym to do their sacrifices openly in the sight of the people, and namelpe the priestes whiche waited thereon: that it myghte be seene that they dyd all thynges accordyng to Goddes worde, and not after the ydolatre of their owne Imagination. And the costelynesse of the Tabernacle, and the beautey also pertayning thereunto, that they shoulde senos thyng among the heathen, but that they shoulde se thynges more beaufull at home, by cause they shoulde not be moued to folowe them.

And in lyke maner, the dyuerse falschyons of sacrifices and ceremonies was to occupy the; D. iiii. m. p. d. s.

The prologe.

myndes, that they shoulde haue no lust to folowe the heathen: And the myltitud of them was, that they shoulde haue so much to do in keepyng them, that they shoulde haue no leasure to ymagyn o- ther of their owne: yea, and that Goddes worde myght be by in al that they dyd, that they might haue their fayth and trust in God, whiche he can not haue that foloweth epyther hys owne inuencions, or tradicions of mennes makynge withoute Goddes worde.

Finally, God hath. ii. Testaments: the olde and the newe. The olde testamente is those tempo- rall promyses whiche God made the children of Israel of a good Lande, and that he woulde defende them, and of wealth and prosperitie, & of temporall blessinges, of whiche thou readest ouer all the lawe of Moses, but namely. Leuiti- cus. xxvi. and Deuter. xxviii. And the auoyding of all threatenynge and curses of whiche thou readest by hys owne euerie where, but speciall in the two booke aboue rehearsed, and the auoy- dyng of all punishmente ordeyned for the trans- gressours of the lawe.

And the olde testamente was buylte altoget- ther vpon the keepinge of the lawe and ceremoni- es, and was the rewarde of keepyng them in this lyfe onlye, and reached no farther then thys life and this worlde. As thou readest Leuiticus. xxi. A man that doeth them shall lyue therein, whiche terte Paule rehearseth. Roma. x. and Galathy- ans. iii. That is, he that keepeth them, shall haue his lyfe glorious, accordyng to all the promy- ses and blessinges of the lawe, and shall auoyde both altemporal punishmentes of the lawe, and all the threatenynge and cursynge also. For neyther the lawe euen of the ten commaundme- tes, nor yet the ceremonies, iustified in the herte before God, or purified vnto the lyfe to come. In so muche that Moses at his death, euen fortye yeres after the lawe and ceremonies were geuen complayneth, saying. God hath not geuen you an hert to vnderstande, nor eyes to see, nor eares to heare vnto this day. As who shoulde haue sayd. God hath geuen you ceremonies, but ye knowe not the vse of them, and hath geuen you a lawe, but God hath not wrytten it in your hertes.

Wherefore serueth the lawe then, yf it gyue vs no power to do the lawe? Paule answereth the, that it was geuen to vnter synne onely, and to make it appeare. As a corollie is layed vnto an olde sore, not to heale it, but to styre it vp, and make the disease alpyue, that a man myghte seele in what scoperdye he is, and howe nyghe deaht and not awate, and to make a waye vnto þ hea- lyng plaster.

Euen so, sayeth Paule. Gala. iii. The lawe was gyuen by cause of transgression (that is to make the synne alpyue, that it myght be felte and seue) butyll the seede came vnto whome it was promysed, that is to saye, butyll the chyldren of sayth came, or butyll Christ that seede in whom God promysed Abraham, that al nacjons of the worlde shoulde be blessed, came.

That is, the lawe was geuen to vnter synne, deaht, damnacion, and curse, and to dyue vnto Christ, in whome forgouenes, lyfe, iustifyinge, & blessinges were promysed, that we myghte se to great loue of God to vs warde in Christ that we henceforth overcome wyth hyndred, myghte loue agayne, and of loue kepe the commaunde- mentes.

Now he that goeth aboute to quyet hys conscience, and to iustifye him selfe wyth the lawe: doeth but heale his woundes wyth frentynge co- roseis. And he þ goeth aboute to purchase grace wyth ceremonies: doeth but suche the ale poole to quenche his thyrst, in as muche as the ceremon- yes were not geuen to iustifie the herte, but to signifie the iustifyinge, and forgouenes that is in Christes bloude.

Of the ceremonies that they iustifye not, thou readest Hebrues. x. It is impossible that synne shoulde be done awaye wyth the bloude of open, and gotes. And of the lawe thou readest Ga- la. iii. If there had bene a lawe geuen that could haue quickned or geue lyfe: then hadt ygbtuou- nes or iustifyinge come by the lawe in dede. Now the lawe not onely quickneth not the hert, but al- so woundeth it wyth conscience of sinne, and mi- nistereth deaht and damnacion vnto hys. ii. Co- rinthians. iii. so that we must heade dye and be dampned, excepte we fynde other remedye. So farre it is of þ we is iustified or holpen by þ lawe.

The newe testamente is those euerlastyng pro- mysces whiche are made vs in Christe the worde thoroowe oute all the scripture. And that Testa- ment is buylte on sayth, and not on workes.

For it is not sayd of that Testamente. He that worketh shall lyue: but he that beleueth shall lyue. As thou readest. Iohn. iii. God so loued the worlde, that he gaue hys onely begotten sonne, that none that beleue in hym shoulde perishe, but haue lyfe euerlastyng.

And when thys Testamente is preached and beleued, the spirite entereth the hert, and quick- neth it, and geueth it lyfe, and iustifieth hys.

The spirite also maketh the lawe a lyuely thing in the herte, so that a man byngeth forth the good workes of hys owne accorde wythout compulsion of the lawe, without feare of threatenynge, or cursynge: yea, and wythout all maner respect or loue vnto any temporall pleasure, but of þ be- ryng potuer of the spirite, receiued thoroowe faith, as thou readest. Iohn. i. He gaue them power to be the sons of god, in þ they beleued on his name.

And of that potuer they worke, so that he whiche hath the spirite of Christe, is now no more a chyld: he neyther learneth nor worketh anye longer for payne of the rodde, or for feare of bugges or pleasure of apples, but doeth all thinges of hys owne courage. As Christ sayth. Iohn vii. He that beleueth on me shall haue ryuers of lpyunge waters flowyng out of his bealy. That is all good workes, and al gyftes of grace spring oute of hym, naturallye, and by thei owne ac- corde. Thou nedest not to wrest good workes oute of hym, as a man woulde wyng veruice oute of crabbes. Nay they flow naturallye out of him, as springes out of rockes.

The newe Testamente was euer euen frome the begynnyng of the worlde. For there were al- wayes promyses of Christe to come, by sayth in whiche promyses, the electe were then iustified inwardly before God, as outwardly before the worlde, by keepyng of the lawe and ceremonies.

And in conclusion, as thou seest blessinges or cursynge folowe the breakyng or keepyng of the lawe of Moses: euen so naturallye do the blessinges or cursynge folow the breakyng or keepyng of the lawe of nature, out of whiche springe all our temporall lawes. So that when the people kepe the temporell lawes of thei Lande, temporell prosperitie, and all maner of such temporell blessinges as thou readest of in Moses, do accor-payne them and fall vpon theym. And contrarie-wise, when they synne unpunished, and when the rulers haue no respecte vnto equitie or hone-ste, then God sendeth his curse amonge them, as hunger, dearth, moiren, bannynge, pestilence, warre, oppressyon, wryth straunge and wonder-full diseases, and new kyndes of myffortune and cuell lucke.

If any man aske me, serynge that say the iustifieth me, why I worke? I answer. Loue copellerh me. For as long as my soule feleth what loue God hath shewed me in Christe: I can not but loue God agayne, and hys will and comma-ndementes, and of loue worke them, nor can they seme harde vnto me. I thynke not my selfe better for my working, nor seke heaue nor an higher place in heuen bycause of it. For a christian worketh to make his weake brother perfect, and not to seeke an hygher place in heauen. I compare not my selfe vnto hym that worketh not.
So, he þ workeþ not to day, shal haue grace to turne and to worke to morowe, and in þ meane tyme, I praye for him and praye for him, yf I had brought the will of God these thousand yeres, and an other had brought the will of the deuill as longe, and this day turne and be as wel wyllynge to suffer wryth Christe as I: he hath the thys day ouertaken me, and is as farre come as I, and shal haue as muche rewarde as I, and I ensure hym not but reioyce most of al, as of lost treasure founde.

For yf I be of God, I haue these thousande yeres suffered to wryme hym for to come and praise the name of God wryth me. These thousande yeres, I haue prayed, sorowed, longed, syghed, and fought for that whiche I haue this day found, & therefore reioyce with al my might,
and praye God for his grace and mercy.

The seconde boke of Moses cal- led Exodus.

The fyrst Chapter.

The children of Jacob are numbred. The new Pharao oppresseth them. The acte of the godly myddwyes.

These are the names of þ * chyldre of Israell, whiche
came to Egypte w Jacob, euery man
with his household:
Ruben, Simeon,
Leui, Iuda, Issa-char, Zabulon, Benjamin, Dan, Neph-thali, Gad & Aser. All these soules that came out of the loynes of Jacob, were,
lxx. but Joseph was in Egypt alredie.
When Joseph was deade and all hys brythre and all þ generatiõ: the * chyldre of Israell grewe, encreased, multiplied and waxed excedyng myghtie: so that the lande was ful of them.

Then there rose vp a newe kynge in Egypte, which knewe not Joseph. And he sayde vnto his folke: beholde, þ people of the children of Israell are mo and myghtier than we. Come on, let vs play wisely with them: lest they multiply, and then (yf there chaunce anye warre) they ioyne them selues vnto our enemyes, & fyght agaynst vs, and so get them oute of the lande.

And he sette taskemasters ouer them, to kepe the vnder with burthens. And they bilte vnto Pharao treasure cities: Pithon & Rameses. But the more they bexed them, the more they multiplied & grewe: so that they abhorred the chylde of Israell. And the Egipcians helde the children of Israell in bondage without mercy, and made theyr lyues bitter vnto them with cruell labour in clay and brycke, and all maner workes in the fel-des, & in al maner of seruice, which they caused them to worke cruelly.

And the kynge of Egypte sayd vnto the myddwyes of þ Ebzues women, of whiche the ones name was Sephora & the other Phua: when ye do þ offyce of a myddwyse to the women of the Ebzues and se in þ byrthe tyme that it is a boy, kylle it. But yf it be a mayde, let it lyue.
Notwithstanding the myddwyes feared God and dyd not as the kynge of Egypte commaunded them: but saued the men chylde.

Then the kynge of Egypte called for the myddwyes, and sayde vnto them:
why haue ye delt on this maner, & haue saued the men chylde? And the myd-wyes answered Pharao, that the E-bzues women were not as the women of Egypte: but were sturdye women, and were deliuered yf the myddwyes came at them. And God therfore delte wel w the myddwyes. And þ people multiply-ed, and waxed very myghtye. And because the myddwyes feared God, * he made them houses.

Then Pharao charged all hys people, saying: All the me chylde that are borne, cast in to the ryuer and saue the mayd chylde alyue.

The Notes.

hem how increased and multiplyed them, and made bound-holders of them, coupling them both husbandes & children. As in. Gen. vii. a.

The seconde Chapter.

Moses is borne & caste into the flaggies. He is taken up of Pharaos daughter. He killeth the Egyptian.
He speth and marpeth a wyfe. The Israelites crye vnto the Lord.

And there went a man of * the house of Leui. And toke a doughter of Leui. And the wyfe conceaued, and bare a sonne. And when she sawe that it was a propre chylde, she hyd hym three monethes longe. And when she coulde no longer hide him, she toke a basket of bul-rushes and daubed it with sylme and pytche, and layd þ childe therein, & put it in the flaggies by the riuers brinke. And his syster stode a fette of, to wete what woulde come of it. * And the doughter of Pharaos came downe to the ryuer to washe her selfe, & hir maydens walked a longe by the ryuers syde. And when she sawe the basket among the flaggies, she sent one of hir maydes, and caused it to be fet. And when she had opened it, she sawe the childe: and beholde, þ babe wept. And she had compassion on it, and sayd: it is one of the Ebzues chyldzen.
Then sayde hys syster vnto Pharaos doughter: shall I go and call vnto the a nurse of the Ebzues weimen, to nurse the þ chylde: Pharaos doughter answered her: Go. And the maide ran and called the chldes mother. Then Pharaos doughter sayde vnto her. Take this childe away and nurse it for me, and I wyl reward the for thy labour. And the woman toke the chylde, and nursed it vp.

And when the chylde was growne, she broughte it vnto Pharaos dought-ter, and it was made hir sonne, and she called it <sup>a</sup> Moses, because (sayde she) I toke him oute of the water. And it happened in those dayes whan Moses was warde great, that he wente out vnto hys brethren and looked on their burdens, & spied an Egyptian smytynge one of his brethren an Ebzue. And he looked rōde aboute, and when he sawe þ there was no man by, he <sup>b</sup> slewe the Egyptian, and hyd him in the sande. And he went out a nother daye: and beholde, two Ebzues stroue together. And he sayde vnto hym that dyd the wronge: wherefore smytest thou thyne kye ghboure? And he answered: * who hath made the a ruler or a iudge ouer vs: intendest thou to kil me, as thou kyledst the Egyptian? Then Moses feared, and sayde: of a suertie þ thing is knowen. And Pharaos herd of it, and wente aboute to slei Moses: but he fled from Pharaos and dwelte in the lande of Madian, and he sat down by a welles syde.

The priest of Madia had. vii. dought-ters, which came and dzeue water and fylled the troughes, for to water theyr fathers shepe. And the shepardes came and droue them away: but Moses stode by and helped them, and watered theyr shepe. And when they came to Raguel their father, he sayde: how happeneth it that ye are come so soone to dayer? And they answered: there was an Egyptian that deliuered vs from the shepardes, and so dzeue vs water, and watered þ shepe. And he sayd vnto his doughters: where is he: why haue ye left the man?
So call him that he may eate breade.

And Moses was content to dwell with the man. * And he gaue Moses zephora his doughter, whiche bare a sonne, and he called him Gerson: * for he sayde: I haue bene a straiger in a straunge land.
And she bare yet another sonne, whom he called Eliezer, saying: the God of my father is myne helper, and hath ryd me out of the handes of Pharaos.

And it chaunced in procelle of tyme, that the kynge of Egypte dyed, and the chylzen of Israell syghed by the reason of labour, and cryed. * And their complaynt came by vnto God fro their laboure. And God remembred hys pro-myse wyth * Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. And God <sup>d</sup> looked vpon þ children of Israell, and knewe them.

The Notes.

a. Moses is an Ebzue name, & it signifieth drawen out of the water.

b. This sleiing of the Egyptian betokeneth that Moses should be a reuenger of þ iniuries done to the people of God, as the rebukynge of the Ebzue on the other day, was a sygne that he shuld be a iudge and a lawe geuer among them.

c. This Raguell is not Jerthio, but is the father of Jerthio, and the grandfather of zephora, and was also the priest of Madian. For it was a like order with them as it was with the Jewes, that the sonne possessed the office of his father.

The. iij. Chapter.

Moses heareth voice. God appeareth vnto hym in a bush, & sendeth hym to the chyldren of Israel, and to pharaon that tyrant.

Moses keppe the shepe of Jethro his father in law & priest of Madian, and he droue the flocke to the backsyd of the desert, and came to the mountayne of God, Horeb. And the angel of the Lord appeared vnto hym in a flame of fyre out of a bush. And he perceaued that the bush burned with fyre, and consumed not. Then Moses sayd: I wyll go hence, and see this great syght, howe it cometh that the bush burneth not. And when the Lorde sawe, that he came for to see, he called vnto him out of the bush, and sayde: Moses, Moses. And he answered: here am I. And he sayd: come not hyther, but putte thy shooes of thy fete: for the place wheron thou standest is holy ground. And he sayd: I am the God of thy father, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. And Moses hyd his face, for he was afrayed to loke vpon God.

Then the Lorde sayd: I haue surely sene the trouble of my people which are in Egypt, and haue herde theyr crye whiche they haue of their taskemasters. For I know their sorow, and am come downe to deliuer them out of the handes of the Egyptians, and to bring them out of that lande, vnto a good land and a large: and vnto a lande that floweth with mylke and honny: euen vnto the place of the Canaanites, Hethites, Amorites, Pherezites, Heuites, and of the Jebusites. Nowe therefore beholde, the complaynt of the chyldren of Israel is come vnto me, & I haue also sene the oppressyon wherewith the Egyptians oppressethem. But come, I wyll sende the vnto pharaon, & thou mayst bringe my people the chyldren of Israel oute of Egypt. And Moses sayde vnto God: what am I to go vnto pharaon, and to bringe the chyldren of Israel oute of Egypt? And he sayd: I wyll be with thee. And this shalbe a token vnto thee, that I haue sene thee: after that thou hast brought the people oute of Egypt, ye shal serue God vpon this mountayne.

Then sayde Moses vnto God: when I come vnto the chyldren of Israel, & saye vnto them, the God of your fathers hath sent me vnto you, & they saye vnto me, what is hys name: what aunswere shall I geue them? Then sayd God vnto Moses: I wilbe what I wyllbe: & he saide: this shalt thou say vnto the chyldren of Israel: I wilbe dyd sende me vnto you. And God spake further vnto Moses: thus shalt thou saye vnto the chyldren of Israel: the Lorde God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, hath sent me vnto you: this is my name for euer, and this is my memorayl thow rowe out all generacions. So therfore and gather the elders of Israel together, and say vnto them: the Lorde God of youre fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, & the God of Jacob appeared vnto me, and sayde: I haue bene and sene both you and that which is done to you in Egypt. And I haue sayd it, that I wyll bringe you out of the tribulacion of Egypt vnto the land of the Canaanites, Hethites, Amorites, Pherezites, Heuites and Jebusites: euen a land that floweth wyth mylke and honny.

If it come to passe, that they heare thy voyce the go, both thou and the elders of Israel vnto the kynge of Egypt, & saye vnto hym: The Lorde God of the Hebrewes hathe mette wyth vs: let vs go therfore. iij. dayes iourney into the wyldernes, that we may sacrifice vnto the Lorde our God. Notwithstanding I am sure that the kynge of Egypt wyll not let you go, excepte it be wth a mighty hand: yea & I wyll therfore stretch out myne hande and smyte Egypt with all my wonders whiche I will do there in. And after that he wyll let you go. And I wyll get thes people fauoure in the syghte of the Egyptians: so that when ye go, ye shal not go empty: but every wyfe shall bozow of hir neyghboresse and of hir that lodgeoyneth in hyr house, iewels of syluer and of gold and rayment. And ye shal put them on your sonnes and doughters, and shall robbe the Egyptians.

And Moses ran awaye from it. And the Lorde sayed vnto Moses: put forth thine hand and take it by the tayle. And he put forth his hande & caught it, and it became a rodde againe in his hande. And Moses wente & returned to Jethro his father in lawe agayne, and said vnto hym: let me go (I praye the) and turne agayne vnto my brethren, which are in Egypte, that I maye se whether they be yet aloue. And Jethro sayde to Moses: goe in peace. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses in Madian: retorne agayne into Egypte, * for they are dead wherhe wente aboute to kyll the. And Moses toke hys wyfe and hys sonnes, and put theym on an asse, and wente agayne to Egypte, and toke the rodde of God in his hande.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: whē thou art come in to Egypte agayne, see that thou do al the wonders before Pharaο which I haue put in thy hand: * but I wyl harden his hert, so that he shal not let the people go. And tel Pharaο, thus sayeth the Lorde: Israell is myne eldest sonne, and therefore I saye vnto thee: lette my sonne goe, that he maye serue me. If thou wylte not let him

Moses and Aaron goth vnto Pharaos. The people of Israel are oppressed more and more, and they cry out vpon Moses and Aaron therfore.

Then Moses and Aaron went and tolde Pharaos, thus saith the Lord God of Israell. Let my people go, that they maye kepe holy daye vnto me in the wyldernesse. And Pharaos answered: * what felowe is the Lorde, that I shulde heare his voyce for to let Israell go? I knowe not the Lorde, neyther wyl I let Israel go. And they said: the God of the hebrues hath met with vs: let vs go (we praye thee) thre dayes iourney into the desert, that we may sacrifice vnto the Lorde oure GOD: lest he smyte vs either with pestilence or with sword. Then saide the kinge of Egypte vnto them: wherfore do ye Moses and Aaron let the people from their worke: get you vnto your labour. And Pharaos said furthermore: beholde there is much people in the lande, and ye make them playe & let their worke stande.

And Pharaos commaunded the same daye vnto the taskemasters ouer the people, and vnto the offycers, sayinge: se that ye geue the people no more strawe to make bricke wyth all, as ye dyd in tyme passed: lette theym go and gather theym strawe theym selues, and the nombze of bricke which they were wont to make in tyme passed, laye vnto their charges also, and mynyshe nothyng therof. Then wente the taskemasters of the people and the officers out and told the people, saying: Thus sayth Pharaos: I wyl gyue you no more strawe, but goe your selues & gather your strawe where ye can fynde it, yet shall none of your labour be minished. Then the people scatered abrode thorow out all the lande of Egypte for to gather them stubbil to be in steade of strawe.

And the taskemasters hastened them forward, saying: fulfyll your worke daye by daye, euen as when strawe was geuen you. And the offycers of the chyldren of Israell whiche Pharaos taskmasters had set ouer them, were beaten. And it was sayde vnto them: wherfore haue ye not fulfilled your taske in making bricke, bothe yester day and to daye, as well as in tymes past.

Then wente the offycers of the chyldren of Israell, and complayned vnto Pharaos, sayinge: wherfore dealest thou thus with thy seruantes? There is no straw geuen vnto thy seruantes, and yet they saye vnto vs: make bricke. And lo, thy seruantes are beaten, and thy people is foule intreated. And he answered: ydill are ye, ydill, and therfore ye saye: let vs go and do sacrifice vnto the Lorde. So therfore and worke, for there shall no strawe be geuen you, and yet see that ye delpue the whole tale of bricke.

Get the vnto Pharaos in the mornynge, for he wyll come vnto the water, and stande thou vpon the ryuers bynke agaynste he come, and the rodde whiche turned to a serpente take in thyne hande. And the Lorde dyd euen so: and there came noysome fyes into the house of Pharaos, and into his seruauntes houses and in to all the lande of Egypt: so that the lande was marred with fyes. Then Pharaos sent for Moses & Aaron, and said: Go and do sacrifice vnto your God in the lāde. And Moses answered: it is not mete so to do. For we must offer vnto the Lorde oure God, & whiche is an abominaciō vnto the Egyptians: beholde, shall we sacrifice that whiche is an abominaciō vnto the Egyptians before their eyes, & shall they not stone vs? we wyll therfore goo. iiii. dayes iournay into the deserte and sacrifice vnto the Lorde oure * God as he hath commaunded vs.

And Pharaos said: I wil let you go, that ye maye sacrifice vnto the Lorde your God in y<sup>e</sup> wilderness: onely go not farre awaye, & se that ye praye for me. And Moses said: beholde, I wyll goo out from the and praye vnto the Lorde, and the fyes shall departe from Pharaos, and from his seruauntes, and from his people to morow. But let Pharaos from hence forth the desceau no more, & he wil not let the people goo to sacrifice vnto the Lorde.

And Moses wente out from Pharaos, & prayed vnto y<sup>e</sup> Lorde. And y<sup>e</sup> Lorde dyd as Moses had sayd, & toke awaye the fyes from Pharaos, and fro his seruauntes, and fro hys people so y<sup>e</sup> there remayned not one. But for all y<sup>e</sup>, Pharaos hardened his herte euen then also and woulde not let the people goo.

The morn of bestes. The plague of botches and sores. The horrible hapte, thunder and lighteninge.

And the Lorde said vnto Moses, goo vnto Pharaos & tell him, thus sayeth the Lorde God of the Ebrues: let my people goo, that they maye serue me. If thou wylte not let them goo but wylte holde them styll: beholde, the hande of the Lorde shall be vpon thy catel, which thou hast in y<sup>e</sup> felde, vpon horses, asses, camels, oxen and shepe, with a myghty great mortayne. But the Lorde shall make a deuision betwene the bestes of the Israelites, and the bestes of y<sup>e</sup> Egyptians: so y<sup>e</sup> there shall nothing die of all that pertaineth to the childre of Israel. And the Lorde appoynted a tyme saying: to morow the Lorde shall do this thyng in the lande.

And the Lorde did the thyng on the morow, and <sup>a</sup> all the catell of Egypte dyed: but of the catel of the children of Israel dyed not one. And Pharaos sent to wete: but there was not one of y<sup>e</sup> catel of the Israelytes deade. Notwithstandynge y<sup>e</sup> hert of Pharaos hardened, and he would not let the people goo.

And the Lorde said vnto Moses and Aaron: take your hands full of ashes oute of the fornace, & let Moses spraye it vp into the ayre in the sight of Pharaos, and it shall turne to duste in all the lande of Egypte, and shall make swellynge soores with blaynes bothe on man and beasts in all the lande of Egypte. And they toke ashes oute of the fornace, and stode before Pharaos, and Moses sprayeled it made their seruauntes and their bea-Egypte. And Moses stretched out his rod vnto heauē, & the Lorde thondered & hayled, so that þ fyre ran a long vpo the grounde. * And the Lorde so hayled in the lande of Egypte, that there was hayle and fyre mingled with the hayle, so greuous, that there was none suche in all the lande of Egypte, sence people inhabyted it. And þ hayle smote in the lande of Egypte, al that was in hayle smote all the herbes of the felde, and broke al the trees of the felde: one-ly in the lande of Gosan, where þ chyldre of Israel were, was there no haile.

And Pharaο sente and called for Mo-* Praye ye vnto the Lorde, that þ tho-der of God and hayle maye cease, and I wyl let you goo, and ye shall tary no sone as I am out of the cite, I wyl sprede abroad my handes vnto the ther shall there be any more hayle: that thou maiest knowe howe that þ erth is thy seruauntes yet feare not the Lorde God. The flaxe & the barley were smytten, for the barley was shot vp, and the flaxe was boulded: but the wheate and the rye were not smitten, for they were late sown.

And Moses went out of the cite fro Pharaο and sprede abroad his handes vnto the Lorde, and the thunder and hayle ceased, nether rayned it any more vpon the erth, whē Pharaο sawe that the rayne and the hayle and thunder

The .x. Chapter.

The harte of Pharaο is hardened of God & grethoppers. The thicke darkness.

S The Lorde said vnto Moses: goo vnto Pharaο: neuerthelesse I haue hardened his hart, & þ hartes of his seruantes, that I myghte shewe these my signes amongst them, and that thou tell in the audience of pageantes which I haue played in Egypte, and the intracles whiche I haue done amonge the: that ye maye knowe howe that I am the Lorde. Thā Moses and Aaron wente in vnto Pharaο, and sayde vnto him: Thus sayeth the Lorde God of the Hebzeues: how longe shal it be o: thou wilt submit thy selfe vnto me? * Let my people goo, & they maye serue me. If thou wilt not let my people goo: beholde, to morowe wyl I brynge greschoppers into thy lande, & they shal couer the face of the erth, that it can not be sene, and they shal eate the resydewe whiche remaineth vnto pou & is escaped the hayle: and they shal eate all youre grene trees vpo the felde, and they shal fyl thy houses, and all thy seruantes houses, and the houses of all the Egipcians after such a maner: as nether thy fathers, nor thy fathers fathers haue sene, sence & tyme they were vpo the erth vnto this day.

 And he turned him selfe aboute, and wente out from Pharaο.

B And Pharaοs seruantes said vnto him: Howe longe shal we be thus euel intreated? Let the men goo, that they maye serue the Lorde their God:
 wylte thou not yet knowe that Egipte is destroyed? And than Moses and Aaron were brought again vnto Pha-raο, and he sayde vnto them: Goo and serue the Lorde youre God, but who are they that shal go? And Moses answered: we wyl go with yonge & olde: pe and with oure sonnes and with our doughters, and with oure shepe & oxen must we go. For we must holde a feast vnto the Lorde.

C And he sayde vnto them: let it be so.
 The Lorde be with you, shoulde I let you goo, and your children also? Take heede, for ye haue some myschiefe in hande. Nay, not so: but goo ye that are men and serue the Lorde: for that was youre desyre. And they thruste them out of Pharaοs presence.

The. s. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses:
lage. Stretch out thynne hande ouer & lande of Egipte for greschoppers, that they come vpon the lande of Egipte and eate al the herbes of the lande, and al that the hayle lefte vntouched. And Moses stretched forth his rod ouer & lande of Egipte: and the Lorde brought an east wynde vpon the lande, all that daye, and all & nyghte. * And in the moynynge, & east wynde broughte the greschoppers, and the greschoppers wet vp ouer all the lande of Egipte: and lyghted in all quarters of Egipte be-rye greuouse: so that before them were there no suche greschoppers, nether after them shal be. And they co-uered all the face of the earth, so that the lande was darke therwith. And they ate al the herbes of the lande, and all the frutes of the trees, whyche the hayle had lefte: so that there was no grene thing lefte in the trees and her-bes of the felde thoroowe all the lande of Egipte.

Then Pharaο called for Moses and Aaron in haste, and sayde: I haue synned agaynst the Lorde youre God and agaynst you. Forgeue me yet my synne onely this once, * and praye vnto the Lorde your God, & he maye take awaye from me this death onely. And he went out fro Pharaο, and prayed vnto the Lorde: & & Lorde turned the wynde into a myghtye stronge west wynde, and it toke awaye & greschoppers and cast the into & read sea: so & there was not one greschopper in all the costes of Egipte.
 But the Lorde * hardened Pharaοs harte, so that he would not let the children of Israel go.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses:
 Stretch out thy hande vnto heauen, & let there be darcknesse vpon the lade of Egipte: euen that they maye feale the darcknesse. And Moses stretched forth his hande vnto heauen, and there was a thicke darcknesse vpon all & lande of Egipt. iii. dayes longe, so that no man sawe another, nether rose vp from the place where he was by the space of. iii. dayes: but all & children of Israel had lyghte where they dwelled.

Then Pharaο called for Moses, & sayde: goo and serue the Lorde, onely let let your childre go w you. And Moses answered: thou muste geue vs also

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: Pharaο shall not regarde you, & many wonders maye be wrought in the lade of Egypte. And Moses and Aaron did all these wonders before Pharaο. But the Lorde hardened Pharaοs hette, so that he woulde not let the chyldren of Israel go out of his lande.

a. That is here called a shepe, is in Hebrew a word indifferet, to be take either for shep or gose. b. The lambe is called the passeouer, that þe very name it selfe shoulde kepe in memory: what was signified thereby, which was afe and maner of speakeinge the scripture vseth often, calyng the sygne by the name of the thyng that it signifieth. As in Genes. xli. b.

c. Euer is not here taken for a tyme without ende, but for a longe season whose ende is not determined, as in Gene. xiii. d. and xpo. xlii. g.

d. To passe over, is a maner of speache of þe scripture, and signifieth no more, but þe as he woulde plager the wyched (as he did here the Egiptians) so he woulde shewe mercy vnto the faithfull, as he byd to the Israelytes as in xpo. xxiii. d.

e. Those that were borne in the lande, are onely those that were borne amonge them: not descendynge of the stocke or lynage of Israel. And the straungers were those that dwelt amonge the Israelytes and were not borne amonge them, as about in this same chapter at the letter d.

And therfore I sacrificy vnto the Lord all the males that open the matrice: but al the first borne of my children I muste redeme. And this shalbe as a token in thyne hāde, & as a thing hāged by betwene thyne eyes: because the Lord broughte vs oute of Egipte with a myghtye hande.

When Pharaos had let the people go, God carped them not thorowe the lande of þ Philistynes, though it were a nye waye. For God sayde: the people might happely repēt whē they se war, and so turne agayne to Egipte: therfore God led them aboute thorowe the wyldernesse þ bordzeth on the red sea. The children of Israel wente harnessed out of the lande of Egipte. And Moses toke þ bones of Joseph w him: for he made þ children of Israel sweare, sayinge: God wil surely viset you, take my bones therfore away hence w you. And they toke their iourney frō Sucoth: and pytched their tentes in Ethā in the edge of the wyldernesse. And the Lord wēt before them by day in a pylet of a cloude, to leade them the waye: & by nyghte in a pyler of fyre, to geue them light: that they might goo bothe by daye and nyght. And the pyler of the cloude neuer departed by daye nor the pyler of fyre by nyghte oute of the peoples syghte.

a. Luke Genes. ii. b. By this worde haply some myght chaunce throughe a fleshye mynde, thyncke that God was uncertayne what the Hebrewes would haue done yf they had mette with warpe warres at the firste departyng oute of Egipte. But let al maner of persons, that take in hande to reade the scriptures, knowe þ this & al lyke sentences are spoken after the maner of men, as it is in Genes. vi. And by this is declared the greates weakenes, euen of those people for whome God had wrought so many wonders and also that he woulde not worcke any wonders as then among the phelistians, but onely vpon þ Egiptians, who by the Israelites gopyng thorow the wyldernesse toke occasion to folowe vpon them, & so were (to the glorie of God) ouerthrowen in þ red sea.

The. xiiii. Chapter.

Pharaos heart is hardened and foloweth the Israelites with al his hoste and capitaynes and is drowned. The Israelites grudge. They go thorowe the red sea.

Then the Lord spake vnto Moses, sayinge: byd the chyldzen of Israel, that they turne & pytche their tentes before the entring of Hitheroth betwene Migdole and the sea toward Baalzephon: euen before þ shall ye pytche vpon the sea. For Pharaos wyl saye of the chyldzen of Israel: they are tangled in the lāde, the wyldernesse hath shut them in. And I wyl harden his harte, that he shal folow after thē, that I may get me honoure vpon Pharaos, and vpon al his hoste, that the Egiptians maye knowe that I am the Lord. And they dyd euen so.

And when it was tolde the kynge of Egipte, that the people fled, than Pharaos harte and al his seruauntes turned vnto the people, & sayde: why haue we this done that we haue let Israel go out of oure seruyce? & he made readye his charettys & toke his people with him, & toke. vi. hūdzred chosen charettys and al the charettes of Egipte, & capitaynes vpon all his people. For the Lord hardened þ harte of Pharaos king of Egipte, þ he folowed after þ chyldzen of Israel, which for al þ went oute thorow an hye hāde, & þ Egiptians folowed after them: & ouertoke them where they pitched by the sea, w al þ hostes & charettes

Jos. xlii. b * And Pharao dzewenye, and whe the children of Israel lyfte vp their eyes, and sawe howe the Egyptians folowed after the, they were sore afrayde: and cryed out vnto the Lorde.

D Chan sayde they vnto Moses: were there no graues for vs in Egypte, but thou must byynge vs awaye for to dye in the wyldernes: wherfore hast thou serued vs thus, for to carpe vs oute of Egypte? Dyd not we tell the this in Egypte, sayinge: let vs be in reste, and serue the Egyptians? for it had bene better for vs to haue serued the Egyptians, tha for to dye in the wyldernes.

ii. Pa. r. c And Moses said vnto p people: * feare ye not, but stāde styll, and beholde, how the Lord shall saue you this day: * for as ye se the Egyptians this daye, shall ye se them nomore for euer tyll p wordes ende. The LORDE shall fyghte for you, and a ye shall holde youre peace.

D. ut. 28. g The Lord sayd vnto Moses: wherfore b cryest thou vnto me? speake vnto the children of Israel, that they goo forwarde. * But lyfte thou vp thy rod, and stretche out thy hande ouer the sea and deuyde it a sondre, that the childe of Israel maye goo on drye grounde thorowe the myddest therof. And the Egyptians shall knowe p I am p Lorde whan I haue gotten me honoure vpon Pharao, vpo his charettes, and vpon his horse men.

Day. 14. b * And the angel of God which wente before the hoste of Israel, remoued and wente behynde them. And the clouden pyler that was before them remoued & stode behynde them, and went betwene the hoste of the Egyptians & p hoste of Israel. It was a darke clowde, & gaue lyghte by nyght: so that all the nyght long p one coulde not come at p other.

Jos. ii. d. * When nowe Moses stretched forth hys hande ouer the sea: the Lorde caryed awaye the sea, with a stronge east

And the Egyptians folowed and went in after them to the myddest of the sea, with all Pharaos horses, and his charettes and his horse men. * And in the moynnge watch, p Lorde looked vnto p hoste of the Egyptians out of the fiery and clowdy pyller: and troubled theyr hoste, and smote of their charet wheles & cast them doune to p grounde. Chan said the Egyptians: * Let vs flee from Israel, for the Lord fyghteth for them agaynst vs. Chan said the Lorde vnto Moses: stretche oute thynne hande ouer the sea, that the waters maye come a gayne vpon the Egyptians, vpo theyr charettes and horse men.

Chan stretched forth the Moses his hande ouer the sea, and it came againe to his course erly in the moynnge, and the Egyptians fled against it. * Thus the Lorde ouerthrewe the Egyptians in the myddest of p sea: and p water returned and couered the charettes & the horsemen: so p of all the hoste of Pharao p came into p sea after them, there remayned not one. But the children of Israel wente vpon drye lande in the myddest of the sea, and the water was a walle vnto the: both on the right had of them and also on the leste.

Cal. 13 * Thus the Lorde deliuered Israel the selfe same daye out of the hande of the Egyptians: and Israel sawe p Egyptians deade vpon the sea syde. And when Israel sawe that mightie hande whiche the Lorde had shewed vpon the Egyptians: they feared the Lorde: and beleued bothe the Lorde, and also hys seruaunte Moses.

a. Ye shall holde youre peace, that is, you shall be in rest and quietnes.
b. To crye vnto the lorde, is to pray vnto him w ful herte and seruent desyre, as Moses here dyd, and yet spake neuer a worde. And so doeth this worde crynge and makynge of noyse signifie, thorowout al the psalmes, as in psalm. v. a. &c.

Moses and the people with the women spynge. At the prayer of Moses, the bitter waters were sweete.

GOD

God muste be harde. They come to Elim.

Ahen Moses and y<sup>e</sup> childre of Israel sange this songe vnto the Lord, & sayd: * Let vs synge vnto the Lorde: for he is become glorious: y<sup>e</sup> horse & hym y<sup>e</sup> rode vpon him hath he ouerthrowen in y<sup>e</sup> sea. * The Lord is my strength & my songe, and is become my saluacion.

He is my God, & I wyl glorifie him: he is my fathers God, & I wil lyst him by an hys. The Lorde is a man of war. * Jehouah is his name: Pharaos charettes and hys hoste hath he cast into the see. His iolye captaynes are drowned in the redde sea, the depe waters haue couered them: they soncke to the botome as a stone. Thyne hand Lorde is glorious in power, thyne hand Lorde hath all to dashed the enemye. And with thy greates gloze thou haste destroyed thyne aduersaries, thou sentest forth thy wrothe, and it consumed them euen as stobell. With the brethe of thyne anger the water gathered together and the fodes stode stil as a rock, and the depe water congeled together in the myddest of the sea.

The enemye sayde: I wyl folowe & ouertake the, & wyl deuyde the spoyle: I wyl satisfie my luste vpon them: I wyl drawe my swerde, and myne hande shall destroye them.

Thou bluest with thy brethe, and y<sup>e</sup> sea couered them, & they sancke as leed in y<sup>e</sup> myghtye waters. Who is lyke vnto the o Lord, amonge goddes: who is lyke thee? So gloruous in holynesse, fearfull, laudable & that shewest wonders: Thou stretchedest out thy righte hand, and the erthe swallowed the. And thou cariedest with thy mercye thys people whiche thou deliueredest, and broughtest the with thy strength vnto thy holy habitacio. The naciōs herde, & were affrayed, panges came vpon the Philistines. Than the Dukes of the Edomites were amased, and trembling came vpon the mightiest of the Moabites, and all the inhabiteurs of Canaan wared saynt hearted. Let feare and drede fall vpon them thow the greatnesse of thyne arme, and let the be as styll as a stone: whyle thy people passe thow the, o Lord, whyle the people passe thow the which thou hast gotten. Synge them in, and plant them in the mountaynes of thyne inheritaunce, the place Lorde which y<sup>e</sup> haste made for to dwell in, the sanctuarie Lorde, whiche thy handes haue prepared. The Lorde raygne euer and allwape. For Pharaos wente in on horsebacke with hys charettes and horsemen in to the sea, & the Lorde broughte the waters of the sea vpo them. And y<sup>e</sup> children of Israel wente on drye lande thow the myddest of the sea. And Miriam a prophetesse the syster of Aaron toke a tymbrell in her hande, & all the women came out after her with tymbrels in a daunse. And Miriam sange before them: * Singe ye vnto the Lorde: for he is become glorious in dede, the horse & his ryder hath he ouerthrowen in the sea. * Moses broughte Israel fro y<sup>e</sup> red sea, and they went out in to the wilderness of Sur. And they went thre dayes longe in the wyldernesse, and coulde finde no water. At the last they came to Mara: But they coulde not dryncke of y<sup>e</sup> waters for bitternes, for they wer bitter, therefore the name of the place was called Mara. Than the people murmured agaynst Moses, sayinge: What shall we dryncke? * And Moses cried vnto the Lorde, & he shewed hym a tree: and he caste it in to the waters, & they wared swete.

There he made them an ordinaunce & a law, & there he tempted them, & sayd: * Yf ye wyl herken vnto the voyce of y<sup>e</sup> Lorde youre God, and wyl doo that which is right in his sight & wil geue an eare vnto his comaundementes, and kepe all his ordinaunces: than wyl I putte none of these dysleases vpon thee whiche I broughte vpon the Egyptians, for I am the Lorde thy surgion.

 Israell came to y<sup>e</sup> wyldernesse of Sin, which lyeth betwene Elym & Sinai: y<sup>e</sup>

 And y<sup>e</sup> whole myltitude of y<sup>e</sup> childre of

 we sat by the fleshpottes, ate bread our belyes full, for ye haue broughte vs vnto all the children of Israell: at euen ye shal knowe that it is y<sup>e</sup> Lord, which broughte you oute of the lande of Egypte, and in the moynynge, ye shal see the glozpe of the Lord: Bycause he hath heard your grudgynges agaynst the Lord: for what are we that ye shuld murmur agaynst vs? And moze ouer nyng bread ynough, because the Lord hath hearde your murmur whiche ye murmur agaynst hym: for what are we. Your murmurynge is not agaynst

And Moyses spake vnto Aaron: say he hath hearde your grudgynges. And as Aaron spake vnto the whole multi& rounde & thyn, as y<sup>e</sup> hoze frost on the sawe it, they sayd one to another: what is thys? for they wylte not what it bread which y<sup>e</sup> Lord hath geue you to

And the children of Israell dyd eue and dyd meete it with a Gomer. * And vnto him that had gathered muche remayned nothyng ouer, & vnto hym y<sup>e</sup> but euery man had gathered sufficient they harkened not vnto Moyses: But some of the lesse of it vntyl y<sup>e</sup> moynynge, and it warte full of wormes & stancke,

And they gathered it euery moynig:

 bake that which ye wyl bake, and seth that ye wyl seth, & y<sup>e</sup> which remayneth nyng as Moyses bad, & it stancke not, nether was there any wormes therein.

 And Moyses sayde: that eate this daye: for to day it is y<sup>e</sup> Lordes Saboth: To daye ye shal fynde none in y<sup>e</sup> feld. Sixe dayes ye shal gather it, for the seuenth is y<sup>e</sup> Saboth: there shalbe none therein.
 Not

Not withstandynge, there went out of the people in the seventh daye for to gather: but they founde none. Then the Lord sayde vnto Moyses: howe longe shal it be yet ye wyl kepe my commaundementes & lawes. * He, bycause the Lord hathe geuen you a Saboth, therefore he geueth you the sixte day breade for two dayes. Byde therefore euery man at home, & let no mā go out of his place the seuenth daye. And the people rested the seuenth daye. And the house of Israel called it Man. * And it was lyke vnto Coriander seede, & whyte, & the tast of it was lyke vnto wakers made with honye.

And Moyses said: this is that which the Lord commaundeth: tyl a Gomor of it, that it maye be kepte for youre children after you: that they maye see the breade, wherewith he fed you in wilderness, whē he had brought you out of the lande of Egypt. And Moyses spake vnto Aaron: take a cruise & put a Somerful of Man therein, and laye it vp before the Lord to be kept for youre children after you, as the Lord commaunded Moyses. And Aaron laye it vp before the testimonie there to be kept. * And the childre of Israel ate Man. xl. yere vntill they came vnto a lande inhabitable. And so they ate Man, euē tyl they came vnto the borders of the lande of Canaan. And a Gomor is the tenth parte of an Ephā.

The. xlii. Chapter.

¶ The Israelites come in to Raphidim. They grudge. Water is geuen them out of the Rocke. Moyses holdeth vp hys handes, and they overcome the Amalechites.

Ad al the company of the children of Israel went on their iourneys fro the wyldernes of Syn, at the commaundement of the Lord, and pyched in Raphidim: * where was no water for the people to dryncke. And the people chode with Moyses, and sayde: geue vs water to dryncke. And Moyses sayde vnto them: why chode you with me, and wherefore doo ye tempte the Lord. There the people thyrsted for water, and murmured agaynst Moyses, and sayd: * wherefore hast thou brought vs out of Egypte, to kyll vs and our children and our cattel with thyrst.

And Moyses cryed vnto the Lord, saying: what shall I do vnto this people. They be almoste redie to stone me. And the Lord sayde vnto Moyses: go before the people, and take with thee of the elders of Israel: & thy rodde wherewith thou smotest the riuer, take in thyne hande, and go. * Beholde, I wyl stande there before the, vnto a rocke in Horeb. And thou shalt smyte the rocke, and there shal come water out thereof, & the people maye dryncke.

And Moyses dyd euē so before the elders of Israel. * And he called the name of the place: Massa and Meriba: bycause of the chydynge of the children of Israel, and because they tempted the Lord, sayinge: Is the Lord amonge vs or no.

Then came Amalech, & fought with Israel in Raphidim. And Moyses said vnto Iosua: chose out men, and fighte wth Amalech. To morrowe I wyl stande on the topp of the hyll, and the rodde of God in my hande. And Iosua dyd as Moyses badde hym, and fought wth the Amalechites. And Moyses, Aaron and Hur, wente vp to the topp of the hyll. And when Moyses helde vp hys hande, Israel had the better. And when he lette hys hande downe, Amalech had the better.

When Moyses handes were weery, they toke a stone and put it vnder him, and he satte downe there on. And Aaron and Hur stayed vp by his handes, the one on the one syde, & the other on the other syde. And hys handes were steele vntill the Sonne was downe. * And Iosua discomfyted Amalech and hys people with the edge of his swerde.

And the Lord sayde vnto Moyses, wyte thys for a remembraunce in a booke, & tell it vnto Iosua: * for I wyl put out the remembraunce of Amalech from vnder heauen. And Moyses made an alter & called the name of it: * Jehouah Nissi, for he sayde: the hande is on the seate of the Lord, that the Lord wyl haue warre with Amalech throzow out all generacions.

Chi

The chyldren of Israel com to the mounte Sinai: The people of God are holy and a royal priesthode. He that toucheth the hyl dyeth. God appeareth vnto Moses vpon the mounte in thonder and lghtynge.

Note thow howe whether it be beaste or man, it shall not lyue, when the horne bloweth: Thou lette them come vp in to the mountayne.

And Moses wente doune from the mount vnto the people, and sanctified them, & they washed their clothes: And he sayde vnto the people: Be redye agaynst þe thyrde day, & se that ye come not at youre wyues. And the thyrde daye in the mornynge there was thonder & lghtynge, and a thicke clowde vpon the mount, & the voyce of þe horne wared excedynge lowde, & al the people that was in the hoste was afrayed. And Moses brought the people oute of the tentes to mete with God, & they stode vnder the hyl.

And mount Sinai was all together on a smoke: bycause the Lorde descended down vpon it in fyre. And þe smoke thereof ascended vp, as it had bene the smoke of a hylle, and all the mounte was excedynge fearfull. And þe voyce of the horne blew & wared lowder & lowder. Moses spake, & God answered hym & that with a voyce. And þe Lorde came doune vpon mounte Sinai, euen in the toppe of the hyl, and called Moses vp in the toppe of the hyl. And Moses went vp.

And þe Lord sayde vnto Moses: go doune, & charge the people that they prease not vp vnto the Lorde for to see hym, & so many of them perishe. And let þe priestes also whiche come to the Lordes presence sanctifie the selues: lest þe Lorde smite them. Then Moses sayd vnto the Lord: the people can not come vp in to the mounte Sinai, for thou chargedest vs, sayinge: set markes aboute þe hyl, and sanctifie it. And the Lord sayd vnto him a waye, & get the down: & come vp both þe & Aaron wth the. But let not þe priestes and the people presume for to come vp vnto the Lorde: lest he smyte them. And Moses wente doune vnto the people, and tolde them.

THese are the lawes whiche thou shalt set before them. * If a man bye a seruaunte that is an hebrue,

hebrue, seve yerres he shall serue, & the seuenth he shall goo out free payinge nothyng. If he came alone, he shall go oute alone: If he came married, hys wyfe shall go oute with him. And if his mayster haue geuen hym a wyfe, and she haue borne hym sonnes or dought-ters: then þ wyfe and her children shall be her maisters, and he shall goo out alone. * But and yf the seruaunte saye: I loue my maister, and my wyfe, & my children, I wyll not go out free. Then lette hys maister bynge hym to the Goddess and set hym to the dooze of the doreposte, and boze hys eare thorowe with a naule, and lette hym be thy seruaunte for euer.

If a man sell hys doughter to be a seruaunt: she shall not go out as þ men seruauntes doe. If she please not her maister, so that he hath geue her to no man to wyfe, then shall he let her goo fre: to sel her vnto a straunge nacio shall he haue no power, bycause he despised her. If he haue promised her vnto hys sonne to wyfe, he shall deale with her, as men do with their doughters. If he take hym another wyfe, yet her foode, raymet, & duetie of mariage shall he not myngthe. If he doe not these thye vnto her, then shall she go out fre, & paye no money. * He that smiteth a mā þ he die, shall be slayne for it. * If a man lye not awayte, but God delyuer him in to his hande, than I wyll poynte the a place whether he shall flee. If a mā come presumptuously vpon hys neighboure & slee him with gyle: thou shalt take him fro myn alter þ he die. And he þ smiteth his father or his mother, shall die for it.

He that stealeth a man, & selleth him (yf it be proued vpon hym) shall be slayne for it. * And he that curseth hys father or mother, shall be putte to deathe for it. If men stryue together, and one smite another with a stone, or with his fylte, so that he dye not, but lyeth in bedde: Yf he ryse agayne and walke

that smote hym goo quyte: saue onelye he shall beare hys charges whyle he lay in bedde, and paye for his healing.

If a man smyte his seruaunt or his mayde with a staffe, that they dye vnto der his hande, it shall be auenged. But yf they continue a day or two, it shall not be auenged, for they are hys money.

When men stryue, & smite a woman w childe, so þ her fruite depart fro her & yet no misfortune foloweth: then shall he be merced, accordyng as the womāns husbände wyl laye to his charge, hande, fote for fote, burnynge for bur-for strype.

If a man smyte his seruaunt or his mayde in the eye, & put it oute, he shall lette them goo fre for the eyes sake.
Also yf he smyte out hys seruaunt, or hys maydes toth, he shall let the go out a man or a woman: that they die, then þ * ore shall be stoned, and hys flethe shall

Then the ore shall be stoned & hys maister shall dye also. If he be set to a sume shall they deuyde. But & yf it be knowe that the ore hathe bled to pulsthe in tymes paste, then bycause hys maister hath not kept him, he shall paye ore for ore, and the dead shall be his owne.

Goddess. a. Judges & princes are oftentimes in the scripture called goddesses, because they are ministers of God, to do the office, that is, to defende the innocent and punish the offenders according to the rule of Goddesses worde. As in the next chapter at v. and. Rom. xiii. a.

Sicle. b. A Sicle after the Hebrew is an ounce; but after the Greeks & Latines it is but a fourth part of an ounce. And it contequeth. xx. geeras, as in Exo. xxx. b. which is. f. d. sterling or there about.

 but they came not nye, neither came the people vp to him. * And Moses came Ero. xix. a. and tolde the people all the wordes of the Lorde and all the lawes. And al the people answered with one voyce and sayde: all the wordes whiche the Lorde hath sayde, will we do. Then Moses B wrote all the wordes of the Lorde and rose vp earlye * & made an alter vnder the hyl, and. xii. pylers accordynge to Exod. xx. b. the nymbre of the. xii. trybes of Isra-to offre a peace offrynges of oxen vnto the Lorde. And Moses toke halfe of the bloude and put it in basens, and the other halfe he sprinkeld on the alter.

And he toke the boke of the appoyntment and red it in the audiece of p people. And they sayde. All that the Lorde hath sayde, we will do and heare. And Moses toke the * bloude and sprinkeld it on the people, and sayde: beholde, * this is the bloude of the appoyntment whiche the Lorde hath made with you vpon all these wordes.

* Then wente Moses & Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, and the. lxx. elders of Israel vp, and b sawe the God of Israworke of Saphir and as it were p facion of heauen when it is cleare, and vpon the nobles of the chyldren of Israel he set not hys hande. And when they had sene GOD they ate and dronke.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: * come vp to me in to the hyl and be there, and I wil geue p tables of stone and a lawe and commaundementes, whiche I haue wyrtten to teache them.
 Then Moses rose vp and his mynster ye here, vntil we come again vnto you:

 And beholde here is Aaron and Hur w

The notes.

a. The offrynges that were offered to reconcytle God towards men, to be at peace with them and forgeue them theyr trespasse, were called peace offrynges. Or as some men saye, for peace ob-rayned after victorie in battayle. As afore. xx. d.
 and after. xxxii. b.
 b. They sawe God, that is, they knew certainly God.
 that

that he was there present, and they sawe him as in a vision, not in his godly maiestye, but as it were by a certayne reuelacion.

Glorye.

c. Of this glorye is spoken of afore in the xvi. chapter. c.

After the worke of a stonegrauer, euē as sygnettes are grauen, shalt þ graue the. ii. stones with the names of þ chyl- dren of Israel, and shalt make them to be set in ouches of golde. And þ shalt put the two stones vpon the two shoul- ders of the Ephod, and they shall be stones of remembraunce vnto the chyl-

* tabernacle of witnessse, or when they goo vnto the altare to minister in holynesse, that they beare no synne and so dye. And it shalbe a lawe for euer vnto Aaron and his seed after him.

The notes.

a. This brestlap or brest flap, is such a flap as is brestlap in the brest of a cope.

b. Urim & Thumin, are Hebrew wordes. Urim, signifieth lycht, and Thumin perfectnes. And I thinke that the one were stones that did glister, and had lycht in them, & the other cleare stones as Christ al. And the lycht betokeneth the lycht of Goddes worde, and the perfectnes, cleane luyng accordyng to the same, and was therefore called, the ensample of the children of Israel, because it put them in remembrance to seke Goddes worde and to do there after.

c. This holynes of the Lord, was a name of God, made with. iiii. letters, whiche the Hebrewes durst not name for honour whiche they had to God. In this wherof, they sayd Adonay, whiche we haue interpreted Exodi. vi. a. by this name Jehouah.

d. The tuncle, for the offering made for synne, as Roma. vii. a.

The xxix. Chapter.

This is the thing that thou shalt doo vnto the when þe halowest them to be my prestes. And put þe mytre vpon his heed, and put the holye crowne vpon the mytre. Then take the anoynting oyle and poure it vpon his heed and anoynte him. And byngg his sonnes and put albes vpon them, and gyrdde them with gyrdels: as wel Aaron as his sonnes. And put the bonettes on them that the prestes offyce maye be theirs for a perpetuall lawe.

And fylle the handes of Aaron and of his sonnes, and byngge the oxe before the tabernacle of witnessse. * And let Aaron and his sonnes put theyr handes a waue offeringe vnto the Lorde. Then take it from of their handes and burne

The calling of Bezaleel and Ahaliab the workmen. The Saboth is commaunded. The tables of stone are given Moses,

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: behold *I haue called by name, Bezaleel the sonne of Abye, sonne to Hur of the trybe of Iuda. *And I haue replid hym with the spirite of God, with wisdom, vnderstanding & knowledge: euen in al maner of worke, to fynde out cottell, scates to worke in golde, siluer & brasse: and with the craft to graue stonnes, to sette and to carue in timber and to worke in all maner workemanshpy. And beholde, I haue geuen hym to be hys companion Ahaliab the sonne of Ahisamach of the tribe of Dan, and in the heartes of al that are wyse hatted I haue put wysdome to make all that I haue commaunded the: *the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the arcke of witnesse, & the mercysseate that is there vpon all the oznametes of the tabernacle, & the table with his ordinaunce, and the pure candelstycke with all his apparell, and the aulter of incens, and the aulter of burnt offrynges with all hys vessels, & the lauer with hys fote, & the vestimentes to ministrate in, and the holpe garmentes for Aaron the prieste, & the garmentes, of hys sonnes to ministrate in, and the anoynting oyle, and the swete cens for the sanctuarie: accordynge to al as I haue commaunded the shall they doe.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: speake vnto the children of Israel and saye: * in any wyse le that ye kepe my Saboth, for it shalbe a signe betwene me and you in your generacions for to knowe, that I the Lorde do sanctifie you. *Kepe my Saboth therfore, that it be an holpe thyng vnto you. He that desyleth it shalbe slayne therfore. for whosoever worketh therein, the same soule shalbe roted out from amonge hys people. Syxe dayes shall men worke, but the leuenth daye is the Saboth of the holpe reste of the Lorde: So that whosoever doeth anye worke in the Saboth daye, shal dye for it: wherefore let the chyldren of Israel kepe the Saboth, that they obserue it thoroowe out their generacions, that it bee an appoyntmente for euer. for it shall be a sygne betwene me and the chyldren of Israel for euer. * for in syre dayes the Lorde made heauen and erth, and the seuenth day he rested and was refreshed.

And when he had made an ende of comenyng with Moyses vpon þ mount Sinai * he gaue hym two tables of witnesse: which were of stone and writen with the <sup>b</sup> synger of God.

¶ The notes.

a. The Saboth bysyde that it serued to come & heare the worde of God and to seke his wyl, and to offe and reconcile them selues vnto God: It was a signe vnto them also, and dyd put them in remembraunce that it was God that sanctified them with his holpe spirite and not they them selues with their holy worches.

¶ The Israelites wurshyp the golden calfe. Moyses prayeth for them puttynge God in remembraunce of hys promyse. He breaketh the tables for anger. He chydeth Aaron. The ydolaters are slayne. Moyses prayeth God to forgeue them, or to putte hym out of the booke of lyfe.

AD when the people sawe that it was longe or Moyses came doune out of the mountayne, they gathered them selues togyther and came vnto Aaron and sayd vnto him. * Up and make vs a God to go before vs: for of this Moyses the felowe that broughte vs out of the lande of Egypte, we wot not what is become.

And Aaron sayd vnto them: plucke * of the golden rynges whiche are in þ eares of youre wyues, youre sonnes and of youre daughters: And brynge them vnto me. And all the people plucked of the golden earynges that were in their eares, and brought them vnto Aaron. And he * receaued them of their handes and facyoned it with a grauer and made it a calfe of molten metall. And they sayde: * Thys is thy God O Israel, whiche broughte the out of the lande of Egypte.

And when Aaron saw that, he made an auter before it, and made a proclamation, sayinge: to morowe shal be holpe dave vnto the Lorde. And they rose vp in the mornynge and offred burnt offrynges, and broughte offrynges of attouement also. * And then they satte them doune to eate and dryncke, and rose vp agayne to playe.

Then the Lorde sayd vnto Moyses:

* goo gette thee downe, for the people whiche thou broughtest out of the land of Egypte haue marred all, they are turned at once out of the waye whyche I comaunded them: * I haue made the a calfe of moltē metal, & haue wurshipped it, & haue offred therto & haue said: This is thy God thou Israel, whiche hathe broughte the out of the lande of Egypte. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: beholde, * I see thys people that it is a stife necked people, & nowe therfore suffre me þ my wrath maye waxe hote vpon them, and that I maye consume them: And then wyl I make of the a myghtye people.

Then Moyses besoughte the Lorde his God and sayd: O Lorde, why shuld thy wrath waxe hote vpon thy people; whiche thou haste broughte out of the lande of Egypt with great power and with a mightie hāde: * wherfore shulde the Egyptians speake and saye: for a mischief dyd he brynge them out: euen for to slee them in the mountaynes, and to consume them frome the face of the earthe. Turne frome thy fearse wrathe, and haue compassion ouer the wyckednes of thy people. Remēbre Abraham, Isaac & Israel thy seruautes, to whome thou swozest by thyne owne selfe & saydest vnto them: * I wyl multiplye your seed as the starres of heauen, and all thys lande whiche I haue sayde, I wyl geue vnto youre seed: And they shall inheret it for euer. And the Lorde refrayned hym selfe from that euell, whiche he sayde he wolde doe vnto hys people.

* And Moyses turned hys backe and went doune fro the hyl, & the .ii. tables of witnesse in hys hande: whiche were wrytten on bothe the leaues, & were the worke of God, & the wrytynge was the wrytinge of God graue vpon þ tables. And when Iosua hearde þ noyse of the people as they shouted, he sayde vnto Moyses: there is a noyse of warre in þ holste. And he sayd: It is not the crye of them that haue the maistraye, nor of the that haue the worse: But I do heare þ noyse of synngynge.

And as soone as they came nye vnto the host and sawe the calfe and þ daun- syng.

And he toke the calfe whiche they had made and burned it with fyre, and stamp<sup>t</sup> it vnto powder and strawed it in the water, & made the children of Israell drynke. And than Moyses sayde vnto Aaron: what dyd thys people vnto the that thou haste broughte so greate a synne vpon them.

And Aaron sayde: let not the wrath of my Lorde ware feare, thou knowest the people that they are euen sette on mischiete: They sayde vnto me: make vs a God to goo before vs, for we wot not what is become of Moyses þ̄ felow þ̄ brought vs out of the lade of Egypt. And I sayde vnto them: let them that haue golde, take and bringe it me: and I cast it into the fyre, and therof came oute thys calfe.

When Moyses sawe that the people were naked (for Aaron had made them naked vnto their shame whē they made insurrection) he wente and stode in the gate of the hoste and sayde: If any mā pertayne vnto the Lorde, let him come to me. And all the sonnes of Leui gathered them selues together and came vnto hym. And he sayde vnto them, thus sayeth the Lorde of Israell: put euery man his swerde by his syde, & go in & out fro gate to gate thoro we out the hoste: And see euery man his brother, euery man hys frende, and euery man his neyghboure. And the chyldre of Leui dyd as Moyses had sayd. And there were slayne of the people the same day, aboute thre thousande men. Then Moyses sayde: fyll youre handes vnto the Lorde thys daye, euery man vpon his sonne, & vpon hys brother: to bynge vpon you a blessinge this day.

And on the morowe, Moyses sayde vnto the people: ye haue sinned a great synne. But nowe I wyll goo by vnto the Lorde, to wyt whether I can make an attonement for youre sinne.

And Moyses went agayne vnto the Lorde, and sayde: Oh, this people haue sinned a great sinne, & haue made them a god of golde: Yet forgyue the their synne I praye thee: If not a wyppen me out of thy boke which thou hast writ,

But go and bynge the people vnto the land which I sayde vnto the: beholde, myne angel shall goo before the. Neuerthelater in þ̄ day whē I viset, I wyll byset their synne vpon them. And the Lorde plagued the people, bycause they made the calfe whiche Aaron made.

¶ The. xxxiii. Chapter.

¶ The Lorde sendeth an angel before his people. The Lorde dengeth to god by with the people. The people lament their synne. Moyses talketh with the Lorde and desyret to see hys face: and is commaunded to stande vpon the rocke.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: departe & goe hence: both thou & þ̄ people whiche thou hast brought out of the land of Egypt, vnto þ̄ lande whiche I sware vnto Abraham, Isaac and Iacob, sayng: vnto thy seed I wyll geue it. And I wyll sende an angell before the, & wyll cast oute the Cananites, the Amorites, the Hethites, the Phereesties, the Heuites, and the Jebusytes: that thou mayste go in to a lande that floweth wth mylke & honye. But I wyll not go among you my selfe, for ye are a stiffnecked people: lest I consume you by the waye. And whē the people heard thys euell tydinges, they sorowed: and no man dyd put on hys best raymente.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, say vnto the children of Israell: ye are a stiffnecked people: I must come once sodaynly vpon you, and make an ende of you. But now put your goodly rayment from you, that I maye wete what to do vnto you. And the children of Israell layde their goodlye rayment from them euen vnder the mounte Horeb.

And Moyses toke the tabernacle and pyched it without the host a fer of fro the hoste, and called it the tabernacle of wytnesse. And al that wolde are any question of the Lorde, went oute vnto the tabernacle of wytnesse, which was without

And haste sayde mozeouer: I know the by name & thou haste also founde grace in my syghte: Howe therefore, yf I haue founde fauoure in thy syghte, then shewe me thy way and let me know the: that I maye fynde grace in thy syghte. And loke on thys also, howe that thys naciō is thy people.

And he sayde: my presence shall goo with the, and I wyl geue the rest. And he sayde: If thy presence goo not with me, carpe vs not hence, for howe shall it be knowne nowe that bothe I and thy people haue founde fauoure in thy syghte, but in that thou goest wyth vs: That bothe I and thy people haue a premyence before all the people that are vpon the face of the erth. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: I wyl do thys also that thou hast sayd, for thou hast founde grace in my syghte, and I knowe thee by name.

D And he sayde: I beseeche the, shewe me thy glorie: and he sayd: I wyl make al my good goo before thee, and I wyl be called in this name Jehouah before the, *and I wyl shewe mercy to whom I shewe mercy, and wyl haue compassion on whom I haue compassion. And he sayde furthermoze: thou mayst not see my face: for there shall no man see me and lyue.

And the Lorde sayde: beholde, there is a place by me, and thou shalt stande vpon a rocke, and whyle my glorie goeth forth I wyl putte the in a clyfte of the rocke, and wyl put myne hande vpon the whyle I passe by. And the brodyng of the gyrdell that was vpon it, was of the same stufte and after the same worke of golde, iacincte, scarlet, purple & twyned bysse, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And they wrought Onix stonies closed in ouches of golde and graued as sygnettes are grauen wyth the names of þe chyldren of Israell, and put them on washed their handes & their feete there at: both when they went into the tabernacle of witnesse, or when they went to the alter, as the Lorde commaunded Moses. And he reared vp the courte rounde aboute the habytacyon and the alter, and set vp þ hanging of the court gate: and so Moses finished the worke.

Exod. xl. * And the clowde couered the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the glorie of the LORD fylled the habytacyon: so that Moses could not enter into the tabernacle of witnesse, because the clowde abode therein, and the glorie of þ Lorde fylled the habytacyon.

When þ clowde was taken vp fro of the habytacion, the chyldren of Israell toke theyr iorneyes as ofte as they had iourneyed. And yf the clowde departed not, they iorneyed not tyll it departed: for the clowde of the Lorde was vpon the habytacio by day, and fyre by night: in the syght of all the house of Israell in all their iorneyes.

¶ The ende of the seconde boke of Moses.

A Prologe in to the thyrde booke of Moses called Leuiticus. W. T.

The ceremonies which are described in þ boke folowing, were chiefly ordpned of God, (as I sayd in þ ende of the prologe vpon Exodi)
to occupie the myndes of þ people þ Israell-ites, and to kepe the scripture of God after the ymagynacyon of their bynd scale and good intent: that their consequences myghte be stablished and they sure that they pleased GOD therein, whyche were impossible yf a manned byd of his owne heade that which was not commaunded of GOD not depended of anye appoyntment made betwene hym and God.

Suche ceremonies were vnto them as an A.
B. C. to learne to spell and reade, and as a nurce to feede them with milke and pappe, & to speake vnto theym after their owne capacite and to lyspe the wordes vnto theym accordynge as the bades and chyldren of that age myghte sounde theym agayne. For all that were before Christe were in the infauce and chyldhode of the worlde and sawe that Sunne whyche we see openly, but thorow a clowde and had but feble & weake imagynacions of Christe, as chyldren haue of incubes dedes, a fewe prophetes excepte which yet described hym vnto other in sacrifices and ceremonies, likenesses, riddles, prouerbes, & darke and straunge speakynge vntyll the full age were come that God woulde shewe hym openly vnto the whoie worlde and deliuer theym from theyr shadowes and cloudyght and the heathen oute of theyr dead sleape of darke bynde ygnorance etc. And as the shadowe baytheth away at the commynge of the lyght, euen so do the ceremonies and sacrifices at the commynge of Christ, and are henceforth no more necessarie then a token left in remembraunce of a bargayne is necessarye whē the bargayne is fulfilled. And though they seme playne chyldish, yet they be not altogether fruitles: as þ popetes say. maner of trifles which mothers permit vnto their yong chyldren be not all in vaine. For albeit þ such phantasies be permitted to satisfie þ chylders lutes, yet in þ they are the mothers gift, & be don in place & tyme at hys commaundment, they kepe þ chyldre in awe and make the know the mother and also make them more apte agaynst a more strounger age, to obey in thynges of a greater earnest.

And moreover though sacrifices and ceremonies can be no ground or fydacyon to buyd vpon:
that is, though we can prouenought with them:

The Prologe.

yet when we haue once found out Christ and his misteries, then we maye borrowe figures, that is to say, allegories, similitudes or ensamples to open Christ and the secrettes of God hyd in Christ euen vnto the quicke, and to declare theym more lyuely and sensibly wryth them then wryth al the wordes of the worlde.

For similitudes haue more vertue and power wryth them then bare wordes, and leade a manns wryttes further into the prythe and mary and spirituall vnderstandyng of the thyng, then all the wordes that canne be imagyned. And thoughe also that all the ceremonies and sacrifices haue as it were a starrelight of Christe, yet some there be that haue as it were the light of the brode day a lytle before the sunne rysyng, and expresse him, and the circumstaunces and vertue of his deathe so playnly as yf we shoulde playe his passion on a scaffold or in a stage playe openly before the eyes of the people. As the scape goate, the brazen serpent, the oxe burnt without the host, the passe ouer lambe, &c. In to muche that I am fully persuaded, and can not but beleue that God hath shewed Moses the secrettes of Christe and the verye manner of his deathe before hande, and commaunded hym to ordeyne them for the confirmation of our fathers which are nowe in the cleare daye lyght. And I beleue also, that the prophetes whiche folowed Moses to confyrme his propheties and to mapntayne hym doctrine vnto Christes commyng were moued by suche thynges to searche further of Christes secrettes. And thoughe God woulde not haue the secrettes of Christe generally knowne, saue vnto a fewe famylier frendes whiche in that infancie he made of mannes wytte to helpe the other babes: yet as they had a generall promyse that one of the seede of Abraham shoulde come and blesse them, eue so they had a generall faith, that God would by the same man saue the, though they wist not by what means as the verye apostles whē it was aft told them yet they could neuer comprehend it, till it was fulfilled in dede.

And beyonde al this their sacrifices and ceremonies as farforth as the promyses annyed vnto the extend, so farforth they saued theym and iustified them, and stode them in the same steade as oure sacramentes do vs: not by the power of the sacrifice or dede it selfe, but by the vertue in the sayth in the promyse whiche the sacrifice or ceremonies preached and wherof it was a token or sygne. For the ceremonies and sacrifices were left with them, and commaunded theym to kepe promise in remembraunce and to wake vp their sayth. As it is not ynough to seide many on exordes, and to tell them what they shall do: but they must haue a remembraunce with them, and it be but a ring of a rushe about one of their fingers. And as it is not ynough to make a bargain with wordes onely, but we must put thereto an othe and geue earnest to confyrme the faith of the person with whom it is made. And in like manner if a man promyse, whatsoeuer tithful it be, it is not beleued except he holde vp his rynger also, suche is the tokenesse of the worlde. And therefore Christ him selfe besed oft tymes diuerse ceremonies in carynge the sycke to sturre vp their faith with al. As for an ensample it was not the blood of the lambe that saued theym in Egypte, when the Angel smote the Egipcians: but the mercy of God & his truth wherof the blood was a token & remembraunce to sturre vp their saythes whal.

For though God make a promyse, yet it sauerh none finally but them that longe for it, & praye God with a strong sayth to fulfill it for his mercye & truelye and knowledge their vnnowne thynges. And euen so our sacramentes (yf they be trulye ministered) preach Christe vnto vs & leade our saythes vnto Christ, by which faith our sins are done awaye and not by the dede or worke of the sacrament. For as it was impossible that the blood of calves shuld put away synne: euen so is it impossible that the water of the fount shuld wash our hertes. Neuertheles the sacramentes cleanse vs and absolue vs of oure synnes as the priestes do, in preachinge of repentance and saythe, for which cause eyther other of them were ordeined, but yf they preach not, whether it be the priest or the sacrament, so profyte they not.

And yf a man allege Christe Johan in the iii. chapter, saying: Except a man be borne agayne of water and the holy gost he can not se the kingdome of God, & say therefore that the holy gost is present in the water & therefore the verye dede or worke doth put away synne: then I wil sende him vnto Isaule whiche sayeth hym Salathiel say whether they receyued the holy gost by the dede of the lawe or by preachinge of sayth, and there concludeth that the holy gost accompanieth the preachinge of sayth, & with the word of sayth, encreaseth the hert & purgeth it, which thou mayst also vnderstande by I. Isaule, saying: yee are borne a new out of the water thorow the word. So now yf baptisme preacheth the washing in Christes blood, so doth the holy gost accompany it, and that dede of preachinge thorow sayth doth put awaye my synnes. For the holye goste is no dome God nyr no god that goeth a mummyng. If a man say of the sacrament of Christes body & blood, that it is a sacrifice, as well for the dead as for the quicke, and therefore the verye dede it selfe iustifieth and putteth away synne. I answer that a sacrifice is the slepyng of the body of a beast or a man: wherfore if it be a sacrifice, the is Christes body thet clappe & his blood thet shed: but that is not so. And therefore it is properly no sacrifice but a sacramente & a memoriale of the euerylastyng sacrifice once for all whiche he offered vpon the crosse vnto the. xv. hundred yeres ago, & preacheth only vnto the that are alue. And as for the that be dead, it is as profitable vnto the as is a candle in a lantern without lyght vnto them that walke by the waye in a darke nyght, and as the gospel songe in luten is vnto them that vnderstand none at al, and as a sermō preached to hym that is dead and heareth it not. If preacheth vnto them that are alue onely, for they be dead, yf they dye in the saythe whiche that sacramente preacheth, they be saue and are past all reparatione. For whē they were alue they hertes loued the name of God, and therefore they synned not, & were say that thet mambres synned & euer moued to synne, & therefore thorow sayth it was forgiven the. And now thet synful mambres be dead, so that they can now synne no more, wherfore it is vnto them that be dead netter sacrament nor sacrifice: But vnder the pretence of thet soule healt, it is a seruaunte vnto oure spiritualties holy couetousnesse and an extortioner and a bylder of Abbaies, Colleges, Chaunces and cathedral churches with false gotten good, a pychpurse, a pollar, and a bottomlesse bagge.

Some man would happilye saye, that the prayer of the masse helpe myche: not the saynyng only, but also þ dead. Of þ hote fyre of their fatuent prayer whiche consumeth faster then al the worlde is able to bringe sacrifice. I haue sayde sufficiently in other places. Howe be it, it is not possible to bring me in beleue that the prayer whiche helpeth her owne matter vnto no vertue, shuld purchase me the forgiveness of my sinnes.

If I sawe that their prayers had obtrayned the grace to lyue soche a lyfe as goddes word did not rebuke, then could I come be borne in hand that whatsoeuer they ased of god their prayers shuld not be in vayne. But now, what good can he with me in his praier that enuierth me Christe þ fode and the life of my soule? What good can he with me whose heart cleaueth a fundie for payne when I am taught to repent of my euill?

Furthermore because that fewe knowe þ vse of the olde testament, and the moste parte thynke it nothyng necessarye, but to make allegories, whiche they sayne euery mā after his own braine at a wyl aduerture without any certayne rule: therfore though I haue spoken of them in another place) yet lest the booke come not to al men-nes handes that shall reade this I wyl speake of them here also a worde or twayne.

We had nede to take hede euery where that we be not begiled with false allegories, whether they be drawen out of the newe testament, or the olde, eyther out of any other storie or of the creatures of þ worlde, but naimely in this booke. Here a man had nede to put on all hys spectacles and to arme him selfe agaynst inuisible spures.

Fyrste allegories proue nothyng (and by alle-gories vnderstande examples or similitudes borowed of straunge matters and of another thing than þ thou entrearest of.) As though circumcision be a figure of baptisme, yet þ canst not proue baptisme by circumcysion. For this argumēt were very feble, the Israelites were circumcised therefore we must be baptised. And in like maner though the offering of Isaac were a fygure or example of the resurrection, yet is this argumēt nought, Abraham wold haue offered Isaac, but god deliuered him from death, therefore we shal ryse agayne, and so forth in all other.

But the verye vse of allegories is to declare and open a repte that it maye be the better per-ceyued and vnderstand. As when I haue a cleare texte of Christ and of the Apostles, that I muste be baptised, then I may borrowe an example of circumcysion to expresse the nature power and fruite or effecte of baptisme. For as circumcysion was vnto them a comen bagge signifyinge that they were al soldiares of God to warre hys war, and separatynge them from all other nacions, by sobeyent vnto God: euen so baptisme is oure comen bagge and sure earnest and perpetuall me-moriall that we pertaine vnto Christe and are separated from all that are not Christes. And as circumcysion was a token certifyinge them þ they were receyued vnto the fauoure of God & their synnes forgyed them: euen so baptisme certifieth vs that we are washed in the bloude of Christe and receyued to fauoure for his sake, and as cir-cumcysion signified vnto them the cuttinge awaye of their otone lustes and cleaunge of theyr freewill as they call it, to folowe the wyl of god, euen so baptisme signifieth vnto vs repentaunce & the mortifyinge of our vncleane membres and body of synne, to walke in a new lyfe & so forth.

And likewise though that the sauyng of Mose and of them that were with him in þ shippe, tho-rowe water, is a fygure, that is to say an example and lykenesse of Baptisme, as Peter maketh it i. pet. iii. Yet I can not proue baptisme there with, saue describe it only, for as the ship saued them in the water thorow the saythe, in that they beleued God, and as the other that wold not beleue were perished: euen so baptisme saueþ vs thorow the worde of sayth whiche it preacheth when al the world of the vncleaneþng perissheth.

And Isaule. i. Cor. x. maketh the sea and the cloude a fygure of baptisme, by which & a thousande mo I myght declare it but not proue it.
Isaule also in the sayed place maketh the rocke out of whiche Moses broughre water vnto the children of Israel, a figure or example of Christ, not to proue Christe (for that were impossible) but to describe Christe only: euen as Moses lyfted vp a serpent in the wyldernes, so muste the sonne of man be lyfted vp, that none that beleue in hym perissh but haue euerylastyng lyfe, by which si-milytude the vertue of Christes deathe is better described the thou couldest declare it w a thousande wordes, for as those murmurers agaynst god, as sone as they repented were healed of their deadly woundes thowm loking on the brasen serpent only, without medicine or any other helpe, yea, and withoute any other reason, but þ God hath sayd it shuld be so, and not to murmur as gayne, but to leaue their murmuring: euen so al that repent and beleue in Christe are saued from euerylastyng death of pure grace without and before theyr good workes, & not to sin a gain, but to feght against syn, & hēceforth to synne no more.

Euen so woth the ceremonies of thys boke thou canste proue nothyng saue describe & declare only the puttinge awaye of our synnes tho-w the death of Christ. For Christ is Isaac and Aarons sonnes & al þ offer the sacrifice to purge synne. And Christ is al maner offering þ is offered: he is the ore, the shepe, the goate, þ kid, & the lambe: he is þ ore that is burnt without þ holte, and the scapegoate, þ caried all the synne of the people away into þ wyldernes, for as they purged the people fro their worldy vncleane tho-rowe bloud of the sacrifices, euen so doth Christ purge vs fro the vncleane of euerylastyng death with his owne bloud, & as their worldy synnes could none otherwyse be purged then by bloude of sacrifice, euen so can our synnes be no otherwyse forgyen then thow the bloud of Christ.
All þ dedes in the worlde, saue þ bloud of Christ, can purchase no forgiveness of synnes: for oare dedes do but helpe our neighbour & mortifie the fleshe & helpe that we synne no more, but and yf we haue synned, it muste be freely forgyen tho-row the bloud of Christ or remaine euere.

And in lyke maner of the lepers thou canste proue nothyng: thou canst neuer conitue out chfessid thence, how be it þ hast an hanfome example there to open the byndyng & loosyng of our priestes w þ say of gods worde, for as they made no man lepre, euen so oures haue no power to co-maunde any man to be in synne, or to go to purgatory or hel. And therefore (in as muche as bin-dyng & loosyng is one power.) As those priestes healed no manne, euen so oures can not of theyr inuyfible and domme power dyue anye mannes synnes awaye, or deliuer hym from hell or

The Prologe.

sayned purgatorie, howe be it, yf they preached gods worde purely whiche is the authoritie that Christ gaue them, then they shoulde bynde & louse, kyll and make alyue agayne, make vncleane & cleane agayne, and sende to hell and fet thence agayne, so myghte is gods word, for if they preached the lawe of God, they shoulde bynde the consciences of synners with the bondes of the paynes of hell, and bynge them vnto repentance. And then if they preached the mercye that is in Christ, they shoulde louse them and quier their raging consciences and certifie theym of the fauoure of GOD and that their synnes be forgiven.

Finally, beware of allegories, for there is not a more handsome or apt a thyng to begyle with all then an allegory, nor a more subtle and peccylente thyng in the world to perswade a false matter then an allegory. And contrariwise, there is not a better, veynienter, or myghtyer thyng to make a man vnderstand wthal then an allegory. For allegories make a man quicke witted, & pryncipally in hym, & make it to abyde, where bare wordes go but in at the one eare, and oute at the other. As this wrytliche lyke sayinges: put salt to all your sacrifices, in steade of this sentence, do al your dedes with discrecion, graeteth and byreth (yf it be vnderstande) more then playne wordes. And when I say in steade of these wordes bothe nor your selfe of your good dedes, care not the bloud nor the fat of your sacrifice, there is as great difference betwene the as there is bystaunce betwene heauen and earth. For the lyfe and beaute of all good dedes is of God, and we are but the caren leane, we are onely the instrument wherby God worketh onelp, but the power is his. As God created Saul a liue, powred his wisdom in him, gaue him myghte, and promysed him that his grace shoulde neuer faile him. &c. and al without deservynges, except that murthering the sayntes, & making them curse & raple on Christ be meritorious. Nowe as it is deare to eate the bloud or fatte of anye sacrifice, is it not (thynke ye) damnable to robbe GOD of his honoure and to gloryfye my selfe with his hon-

nour.

The ende of the prologue.

The thynde
booke of Moles, called Leuiticus.

The first Chapter.

The order of burnt-offrynges, whether it be of small or great cattell or fowles.

And the Lorde called Moles, and spake vnto hym oute of the tabernacle of wytnesse saying: Speke vnto
the chyldren of Israel, & saye vnto
the: whosoever of you
shal bynng a gift
vnto the Lord, shal bynng it of the catel:
euen of the oxen and of the shepe.

If he bynng a burnt-offryng of the ore he shal bynng a male without blemish, and shal bynng hym to the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, that he maye be accepted before the Lorde. * And lette him put his hande vpon the heed of the burntsacrifice, and fauoure shal be geuen hym to make an attonemente for him, and let hym kyll the ore before the Lord. And let the priestes Arons sons bynge the bloude and let them sprynkell it rounde aboute vpon the alter is before the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And let the burnt-offrynges be strypped and hewed in peces. And then lette the sonnes of Aaron the priest put fyre vpon the alter, & put wodde vpon the fyre, & let them lay the peces wth the heed and the fatte, vpon the wodde that is on the fire in the alter. But the inward-des and the legges they shal washe in water, and the priest shal burne altogether vpon the alter, yf it be a burnt-sacrifice of the shepe whether it be of the lambes or of the goates: he shal offer a male without blemish. And let him kil it on the northsyde of the alter, before the Lord. And let the priestes Arons sons sprynkle the bloude of it rounde about vpon the alter. And let it be cut in peces: euen with his heed & his fat, and let the priest put the vpon the wod that lyeth vpon the fyre in the alter. But let hym washe the inwardes & the legges wth water, and than bynng altogether and burne it vpon the alter: that is a burnt-offryng & a sacrifice of swete sauoure vnto the Lord. If he wil offer a burnt-offryng of the fowles he shal offer either of the turtill doves or of the yonge pigeons.
And the priest shal bynng it vnto the alter, & wyg the necke a sūdre of it, & burne it on the

the alter, and let the bloude turne oute vpon the sides of the alter, and plucke away his croppe & his lethers, & caste them beſide ſe alter on ſe eaſt parte vpo the heape of aſhes, and breke his wynges, but plucke them not aſunder. And then let ſe pzeest burne it vpon the alter, euen vpon the wod that lyeth vpo the fyze, a burnt ſacrifice & an offering of a ſwete ſauoure vnto the Lorde.

neyes. And Arons sonnes shall burne them vpon the alter with the burnt sacrifice which is vpon the wodde on the fire. That is a sacrifice of a swete sauour vnto the Lorde.

If a man bringe a peaceoffring vnto the Lorde from of the flocke, whether it be male or female, it shall be withoute blemyshe. If he offer a lambe, he shall bringe it before the Lorde, and put his hande vpon hys offrynges heade, and kyll it in the doore of the tabernacle of witnesse, & Arons sonnes shall spynkle þe bloud therof round about þe alter.

C And of the peaceoffring they shall bringe a sacrifice vnto the Lorde: the fat thereof and the rompe altogether, whiche they shall take of, harde by the backe bone: & the fatte that couereth the inwardes, & all the fat that is vpon the inwardes, & the two kydneyes with the fat that lyeth vpon them and vpon the loynes, and the kalle that is vpon the lyuer he shall take awaye with the kydneyes. And the Priest shall burne them vpon the alter to fede the Lordes offeringe wthall.

D If the offering be a goote, he shall bring it before the Lorde, and put his hande vpon the heade of it, & kyll it before the tabernacle of witnesse, and the sonnes of Aaron shall spynkle the bloude thereof vpon the alter rounde aboute. And he shall bringe thereof hys offeringe vnto the Lordes sacrifice: the fatte that couereth the inwardes and all the fatte that is vpon the inwardes and the two kydneyes and the fat that lyeth vpon them and vpon the loynes, and the kalle that is vpon the lyuer he shall take awaye with the kydneyes. And the Priest shall burne them vpon the alter to fede the Lordes sacrifice with all, and to make a swete sauoure. * And thus shall al the fatte be the Lordes, and it shall be a lawe for euer amonge your generacions after you in your dwellinge places: that ye eate nether fat * nor bloude.

a. By takinge awaye the fatte, the inwardes, the two kidneies, & the kalle: is signified vnto vs, that if we will be a swete sacrifice vnto the Lord, we must cut of all concupiscence and naughty desires of the flesh and the euill vse of all oure members, and must subdue and mortifye our affections, and offer them to God, by the mortification of þe crosse, as saith the prophet. psalme. xlv. a

And the Priest that is anoynted shall take of the oxe bloude, and bringe it in to the tabernacle of witnesse, and shall dyppe his synger in the bloude and spynkle thereof vii. tymes before the Lord: euen before the hangynge of the holy place. And he shall put some of the bloude vpon the hornes of the alter of swete cens before the Lorde which is in the tabernacle of witnesse, and shall poure al the bloude of the oxe vpon the botome of the alter of burnt offerings whiche is by the doore of þe tabernacle of witnesse. And he shall take awaye all the fatte of the oxe that is the synneoffring: the fatte that couereth the inwardes and all the fatte that is aboute them, and the ii. kydneyes with the fat that lyeth vpon them & vpon the loynes, and the kalle vpon the lyuer let the take awaye also with the kydneyes: as it was taken fro the oxe of the peace offeringe, and let the Priest burne them vpon the alter of burnt offerings. * But the skynne of the oxe and all hys flesh with his heade, his legges, his inwardes with his donge, shall he carrye altogether oute of the hoste vnto a cleane place: euen wher the ashes are powred out, & burne him on wood with fyre: * euen vpon the heape of ashes. * If þe hole comenalte of the childre of Israel sinne thorow ignorance, and the thyng be hyd from their eyes: so yf they haue committed any of these thynges whiche the Lorde hath forbidden to be done in his commandementes and haue offended, and the synne whiche they haue synned be

A female frome the flocke whether it be a lambe or a she goote, for a synneoffringe. And the p̄est shall make an attonement for hym for hys synne. * But yf he be not able to bringe a shepe, then let hym bringe for his trespass whiche he hath sinned two turtyll doves, or two young pygeons vnto the LORD, one for a synneoffringe and another for a burnt offeringe. And he shall bringe them vnto the p̄est whiche shall offer the synne offeringe fyrste, and wryng the necke a sunder of it, but plucke it not cleue of. And let hym sprinkle of the bloude of the synneoffringe vpon the syde of the alter, and let the reste of the bloude blede vpon the botome of the alter, and then it is a synneoffringe. And let hym offer the seconde for a burnt offeringe as the maner is: and so shall the p̄est make an attonement for hym for the synne whiche he hath sinned, and it shall be forgiven hym. And yet if he be not able to bringe two turtyll doves or two yonge pygeons, then lette hym bringe his offeringe for hys synne:

And let the p̄est make an attonement for hym for hys synne (whatsoever of these he hath sinned) and it shall be forgiven. And the remnant shall be the p̄estes, as it is in the meatoffringe.

And the Lord cometh with Moses saying: When a soule trespasseth a synneth thoroowe ignorance in any of the holy thynges of the Lord, he shall bring for his trespass vnto the Lorde a rāme without blemyshe out of the flocke baliued at two cycles * after the sicke of the sanctuarie, for a trespassoffring. he hath done in the holy thyng, & put the fyrste parte more to, and geue it vnto the p̄est. And the p̄est shall make an attonement for hym with the rāme of the trespassoffringe, & it shall be forgiven hym.

When a soule sinneth and comyteth any of these thynges which are forbydden to be done by the commaundementes of the Lorde: though he wylt it not, he hath yet offended and is i synne, & shall bringe a ram without blemyshe out of the flocke that is esteemed to be worth a synneoffringe, vnto the p̄est. And the p̄est shall make an attonement for hym for the ignorance whiche he dyd, and was not ware, & it shall be forgiven hym. This is a trespassoffring, for he trespassed agaynst the Lorde.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, burnt offering. * The burnt offering shall be vpon the harty of the alter all night

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: this is the offering of Aaron, & of his sonnes whiche he shall offer vnanointed: the tenth parte of an Ephah of flour, whiche is a daily meat offering perpetually: halfe in the moynynge & halfe be made with oyle. And when it is fry-

 And that p̄est of his sonnes that is ait shall be the Lordes dute for euery, & it shall be burnt altogether. For all the meat offerings of the p̄estes shall be burnt altogether, and shall not be eate.

 And the Lorde talked with Moyses sayoffering. In the place where the burnt offering is kylled, shall the synne offering be kylled also before the Lorde, for it is most holy. * The p̄est that offereth it shall eate it in the holy place: euery in the court of the tabernacle of witnesse. No

The. vii. Chapter.

Trespas offerings, synne offerings and peace offerings. The fatte and the bloude may not be eaten.

This is the lawe of the trespas offering whiche is moste holy. In the place where the burnt offering is kylled, the trespas offering shall be kylled also: and hys bloude shall be spynckled round aboute vpon the alter. And all the fat therof shall be offered: the rompe and the fatte that couered the inwardes, and the kid-neyes with the fatte that lyeth on them

and vpon the loppes & the kail on the lyeuer shalbe take away with the kidneis: & the p̄cest shall burne them vpon the alter, to be an offering vnto the Lord: this is a trespasse offering.

All the males among p̄cestes shall eate thereof in the holy place, for it is most holy. As the synneoffring is, so is the trespasseoffring, one law serueth for bothe: and it shall be the p̄cestes that reconcyleth therewith. And the p̄cest that offered a maimes burnt offering, shall haue the skynne of the burnt offering whiche he hath offered. And all the meate offerings that are baken in the oven, and all that is dressed vpon the gredgen and in the fryinge pan, shalbe the p̄cestes that offereth them. And all the meatofferings, that are myngled with oyle or dyer, shall pertain vnto all the sonnes of Aaron, and one shall haue as muche as another.

pl. A. xv. a

This is the lawe of the peaceofferings whiche shalbe offered vnto the Lord. * If he offer to geue thanckes, he shall bring vnto his thanckoffring: swete cakes myngled with oyle, and swete wafers anoynted wyth oyle, and cakes myngled with oyle of fyne flour fyled, and he shall bringe his offering vpon cakes made of leuened breade vnto p̄ thanckoffring of hys peace offerings, and of them all he shall offer one to be an heue offering vnto the Lord, and it shalbe the p̄cestes that sprynkleth the bloude of the peaceofferings. And the fleshe of the thanckoffring of hys peaceofferings shalbe eaten the same daye that it is offered, & ther shall none of it be layde vp vntill the morrowe.

Leuit. xix. b

If it be a b bowe or a fre wyl offering that he bringeth, the same day that he offereth it, it shalbe eaten, & that whiche remaineth may be eaten on the morrow: but as muche of the offered fleshe as remaineth vnto p̄ thyrde day shalbe burnt wyth fyre. For yf any of the fleshe of the peaceofferings bee eaten in the thyrde daye then shall he that offered it obtayne no fauoure, nether shall it be rekened vnto him: but shalbe an abhominacion, & the soule that eateth of it shall beare the synne thereof. The fleshe that toucheth anye vncleane thyng shall not bee eaten, but burnt with fyre: and all that be cleane in theyr flesh, may eate flesh. If any soule eate of the fleshe of the peaceofferings that pertain vnto the Lord, and his vncleane yet vpon him, the same soule shall perishe from among hys people. Moreover yf a soule touch any vncleane thinge, whether it be p̄ vncleane of man or of any vncleane beast or any abhominacion that is vncleane: and then eate of the fleshe of the peaceofferings whiche pertain vnto the Lord, that soule shall perishe from his people.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye: * Ye shall eate no maner fat of oxen, shepe or gootes: neuerthe later the fatte of the beaste that dyeth alone & the fat of that which is tozned wylde beastes, maye bee occupied in all maner vses: but ye shall in no wise eate of it. For whosoever eateth the fat of p̄ beast of which men bringe an offering vnto the Lord, that soule that eateth it shall perishe from his people. Moreover ye shall eate no maner of bloude, wheresoever ye dwell, whether it be of soule or beaste. Whatsoever soule it be that eateth any maner of bloud p̄ same soule shall perishe from his people.

And the Lord talked with Moses, saying: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel and say: he that offereth his peaceoffring vnto p̄ Lord, shall bring his gift vnto p̄ lord of hys peaceofferings: hys owne handes shall bringe the offering of the Lord: euen the fatte vpon p̄ brest he shall bring wyth the brest to waue it a waueoffring before p̄ Lord. And the p̄cest shall burne p̄ fatte vpon the alter, and the brest shalbe Aarons and hys sonnes. And the ryght shoulde they shall geue vnto p̄ p̄cest, to be an heue offering, of theyr peaceofferings. And p̄ same that offereth the bloud of p̄ peaceoffringes and p̄ fat, amonge p̄ sonnes of Aaron shall haue p̄ ryght shoulde vnto hys parte, for the waue brest and p̄ heue shoulde I haue taken of p̄ chyldren of Israel, euen of theyr peaceofferings, and haue geuen it vnto Aaron the p̄cest and vnto hys sonnes: to be a duetye for euer of the chyldren of Israel.

the anoynting of his sonnes in the sacrifices of the Lord, in the day when they were offered to the prestes vnto the Lord, which the Lord commaunded to be geuen them in the day when he anoynted them, of the chyldren of Israel, and to be a duty for euer among theyr generacions. This is the lawe of burntofferings, of meatofferings, of synneofferings, of trespassofferings, of fellofferings, of peaceofferings, which the Lord commaunded Moses in the mount of Sinai, in the day when he commaunded the chyldren of Israel to offer their offerings vnto the Lord, in the wyldernesse of Sinai.

Trespace offering. a. Trespace offering, was the offering that was offered for a trespass. Trespace after the order of the scripture signifieth somtyme all the lyfe past which we haue lyued in unpydelyty, beyng ignorant of the veritie, not onely in doyng open synnes, but also when we haue walked in our owne rightuousnes as in. p. l. xlviii. d. & ii. par. xlviii. c. b. The anoynting and consecration of Aaron and his sonnes.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying: * take Aaron & his sonnes with him, and the vestures and the anoynting oyle, and an oxe for a synne offering and two rammes and a basket of swete breede: and gather al the cometye together vnto the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And Moses dyd as the Lord commaunded hym, and the people gathered the selues together vnto the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And Moses sayde vnto the people: this is the thyng whiche the Lord commaunded to do.

And Moses broughte Aaron & hys sonnes and washed them with water, & put vpon hym the albe and gyrded hym with a gyrdle, and put vpon hym the tunicle, and put the Ephod thereon, and gyrded him with þ broderd gyrdle of þ Ephod, & bound it vnto hym therewith. And he put the brestlappe thereon, and put in the brestlappe * Urim and Thumim. And he put the myter vpon his heed, and put vpon the myter euen vpon the forefront of it þ golde plate of the holy crowne, as the Lord comaunded Moses.

* And Moses toke the anoynting oyle and anoynted the habitacion & al þ was therein, and sanctified the, & sprikled thereof vpon the alter seven tymes, and anoynted the alter and all his vessels, and the lauer with his fote, to sanctify them. And he poured of the anoynting oyle vpon Aarons heade, and anoynted hym to sanctify hym. And he broughte Aarons sonnes & put albes vpon the, & gyrded them with gyrdels, and put bonettes vpon theyr heades: as the Lord commaunded Moses.

And the synneoffring was brought, And Aaron & his sonnes put their handes vpon the heed of the oxe of the sinne offering. And when it was slayne, Moses toke of the bloude, and put it vpon the hornes of the alter rounde aboute with his synger, & purified it, & poured the bloud vnto the botome of the alter & sanctified it and reconcyled it. And he toke all the fatte that was vpon the inwardes, & the kyll that was on the lyuer and the two kydneyes with theyr fatte, & burned it vpon the alter. But þ oxe, the hyde, hys flesch and his dong, he burnt with fyre without the holte: as the Lord commaunded Moses.

And he brought the ram of the burnt offering & Aaron & his sonnes put theyr handes vpon the heade of the ramme, and it was killed. And Moses sprikled the bloud vpon the alter rounde about, & cut the ram in peces & burnt the heed, the peces & the fat, & washed the inwardes & the legges in water, & burnt the ram euery whit vpon the alter. That was a burnt sacrifice of a swete sauour, & all offering vnto the Lord, as the Lord commaunded Moses.

* And he brought the other ram that was the felloffring, & Aaron & his sonnes put theyr handes vpon the heade of the ram: and whē it was slayne, Moses toke of the bloude of it, and put it vpon the tpype of Aarons ryght eare, and vpon the thombe of his right hand and vpon the great too of hys ryghte fote. The. ix. Chapter.

The fy: & offrynges of Aaron, for hym selfe and for the people. Aaron blest the people. The gloze of the Lorde is shewed. The fy: commynge frem aboute consumeth the sacrifice

And the. viii. day Moses called Aaron & his sonnes, & the elders of Israel, & sayde vnto Aaron: take a calfe for a synne offering, and a ram for a burnt offering: both without blemyshe, & bringe them before the Lord. And vnto þ chyl dren of Israel he spake sayinge: take ye an he goote for a synneoffryng, & a calfe, and a lambe, both two of a yere olde, & without blemyshe for a burnt sacrifice, & an oxe, and a ram for peaceoffrynges, to offer before þ Lord, and a meatoffryng mingled with oyle, for to daye þ Lorde wil appere vnto you. And they brought that whiche Moses commaunded vnto the tabernacle of wytnesse, and all þ people came and stode before the Lord. And Moses sayde: thys is the thyng which the Lorde commaunded that ye should do: and then þ gloze of the Lord shall appere vnto you. And Moses sayd vnto Aaron: go vnto the alter, and offer thy sinneoffryng, & make an attonement for the and for the people: and offer the offering of the people, and reconyle them also, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

* And Aaron went vnto the alter, & slewe the calfe þ was his sinneoffryng. And the sonnes of Aaron brought the blood vnto hym, & he dypte his finger in the blood and put it vpon the hornes of the alter, and poured the bloude vnto the botome of the alter. And the fat and the two kydneyes wyth the kal of the lyuer of the synneoffryng, he burnt vpon the alter, as the Lorde commaunded Moses: but the flesh and the hyde, he burnt wyth fyre without the holte. Afterwarde he slewe the burnt offering, and Aarons sonnes brought the blood vnto hym, and he sprinkled it round aboute vpon the alter. And they brought the burnt offering vnto him in peces and the head also, and he burnt it vpon the alter, and dyd washe the inwardes and the legges, and burnt them also vpon the burnt offering in the alter.

* And then he brought the peoples offering and toke the goote that was the peoples sinneoffryng, and slewe it and offered offered it for a synne offryng: as he did the first. And then brought the burnt offryng, and offered it as the maner was: and brought the meat offryng & fylled his hande therof, and burnt it vpon the alter, besyde the burnt sacrifice in the mozynge.

Then he slewe the ore and the ram that were the peoples peace offrynges, and Aarons sonnes brought the bloud vnto him, and he spynkled it vpon the alter rounde aboute, and toke the fat of the ore and the ram: the compe and the fat that couereth the inwarde and the kydneyes and the kall of the lyuer: and put them vpon the brestes & burnt it vpon the alter: but the brestes and the dryght shoulders Aaron waued before y<sup>e</sup> Lorde, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses: And Aaron lyfte vp his hande ouer the people and blessed them, and came doune from offryng of synne offrynges, burnt offrynges and peace offrynges. Then Moyses & Aaron went in to y<sup>e</sup> tabernacle of wytnesse & came out againe and blessed the people, and the glory of y<sup>e</sup> lord appered vnto al y<sup>e</sup> people. * And there came a fire out fro before y<sup>e</sup> Lord, and consumed vpon the alter the burnt offryng and the fat. And al the people sawe it, and howted, and fel on theyr faces.

Ad Nadab & Abihu the sonnes of Aaron toke ether of them his censor, and put fyre therin, and put cens vpon, & broughte straunge fyre before y<sup>e</sup> Lord: which he commaunded them not, and there went a fire out from the Lord, and consumed the, and they dyed before the Lorde. Then Moyses sayde vnto Aaron: this is that the Lorde spake saying: I wyl be sanctified in them y<sup>e</sup> come nye me, & before al the people I wyl be glorified. And Aaron helde his peace. And Moyses called Misael and Elisapha y<sup>e</sup> sonnes of Oziel the vnckle of Aaron, and sayde vnto them: goo to and carie your brethren from the holy place oute of the hoste. And they went to them, & carryed them in their albes out of the host, as Moyses bad.

And Moyses said vnto Aaron & vnto Eleazar & Ithamar his eldest sonnes: * vncouer not your heade neyther rent your clothes, lest ye dye & wrath come vpon al the people, let your brethren the hole house of Israel bewepe y<sup>e</sup> burninge whiche the Lorde hathe burnt. But go ye not out from the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, lest ye die: for the anoyntyng oyle of the Lorde is vpon you. And they dyd as Moyses bade.

And the LORDE spake vnto Aaron saying: * dyncke no wyne no strōg dyncke, nether thou nor thy sonnes in the: when ye go in to the tabernacle of wytnesse, lest ye dye. And let it be a lawe for euer vnto your children after you: that ye may put difference betwene holy and unholy, and betwene vncleane & cleane, and that ye maye teache y<sup>e</sup> chyldre of Israel al the ordinaunces which the Lorde hathe commaunded them by the handes of Moyses.

And Moyses sayde vnto Aaron, and vnto Eleazar and Ithamar his sonnes that were lefte: take the meat offryng that remayneth of the sacrifices of the Lorde, and eate it without leue besyde the alter, for it is moste holpe: eate it therfore in the holy place, because it is thy dutye and thy sonnes dutye of the sacrifice of the Lorde: for so I am commaunded. And the waue brest and heue shoulder eate in a cleane place: both thou and thy sonnes & thy doughsters with the. For it is thy dutye and thy sonnes dutye with the, of the peace offrynges of the children of Israel. For the heue shoulder and the waue brest whiche they bynge with the sacrifices of the fat, to waue it before the Lorde, shalbe thyne and thy sonnes with the: & be a lawe for euer, as the Lorde hath commaunded.

And Moyses soughte for the goote that was the synne offryng, and se it was burnt. And he was angrie with Eleazar & Ithamar the sonnes of Aaron, whiche were lefte a lyue sayinge: wherfore haue ye not eaten the synne offryng in the holy place, seynge it is moost holy: and for as muche as it is geuen you to beare the synne of the people, & make agreement for the before the

And the conye for he cheweth ȝ cud but deuydeth not the hooft in to two clawes, therfore he is vncleane to you. ## The. xiii. Chapter.

The p̄astes are appointed to iudge who are le-pros.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses and vnto Aaron saying: whē there appeareth a <sup>a</sup> r̄is̄yng in any mans fleshe epyther a scabbe or a glistryng white: as though the plage of leprosy were in the skynne of his fleshe, then let him be b̄rought vnto Aaron the p̄east or vnto one of his sonnes the p̄astes, and let the p̄east loke on the soze that is in <sup>h</sup> skynne of his fleshe. If <sup>h</sup> heere in the soze be turned vnto whyte, and the soze also to seme to be lower then the skynne of his fleshe, then it is surely a leprosy, and let the p̄east loke on him, and iudge him vncleane.

If there be but a whyte p̄ecke in the skynne of his fleshe, and seme not to be lower then the other skynne nor <sup>h</sup> heere therof is turned vnto whyte: thē let the p̄east shut him vp seuen dayes. And let the p̄east loke vpon him the. vii. daye: yf the soze seme to him to abyde stil and to go no further in the skynne, then let the p̄east shut hym vp yet. vii. dayes moo. And let the p̄east loke on hym a-gayne the. vii. daye. Then yf the soze be waxed blackyshe, and is not growen abrode in the skynne, let the p̄east make him cleane, for it is but a scyfe. And let hym washe his clothes, and then he is cleane. But and yf the scabbe growe in the skynne after that he is sene of the p̄east agayne. If the p̄east se that the scabbe be growen abrode in the skynne, let him make him vncleane: for it is surely a leprosy.

B If the plage of leprosy be in a man, let him be b̄rought vnto the p̄east, and let the p̄east se him. If the r̄is̄yng ap-peare whyte in the skynne, and haue also made the heere whyte, and there be rawe fleshe in the soze also: then it is an olde leprosy in the skynne of his fleshe.
 And <sup>h</sup> p̄east shal iudge him vncleane, & shal not shut him vp for he is vncleane.

If a leprosy breake out in <sup>h</sup> skynne and couer all the skynne from the heade to the foote ouer al wher soeuer <sup>h</sup> p̄east loketh, thē let the p̄east loke vpon him.
 If the leprosy haue <sup>b</sup> couered all hys fleshe, let hym iudge the dyscase cleane:
 for in as muche as he is altogether whyte he is therfore cleane. But and yf there be rawe fleshe on hym when he is sene, then he shal be vncleane. Therfore whē the p̄east seeth the raw fleshe, let him iudge him vncleane. For in as muche as his fleshe is rawe, he is vncleane and it is surely a true leprosy.

 But and yf the rawe fleshe departe a-gayne and chaunge vnto whyte, then let hym come to the p̄east, and let the p̄east se hym: If the soze be chaunged vnto whyte, let the p̄east iudge the dyscase cleane, and then he is cleane.

When there is a byle in the skynne of any mans flesh and is healed and after in the place of <sup>h</sup> byle there appeare a whyte r̄is̄yng ether a shynynge white somewhat redyshe, let him be sene of the p̄east. If when the p̄east seyth him it appeare lower than the other skynne & <sup>h</sup> heere therof be chaūged vnto white, let the p̄east iudge him vncleane: for it is a very leprosy, that is broken oute in the place of the byle. But & yf when <sup>h</sup> p̄east loketh on it there be no whyte heeres therein nether the scabbe lower then the other skynne and be somewhat blackyshe, then the p̄east shal shut hym aparte. vii. dayes. If it sprede abrode in the meane ceason, then let the p̄east iudge him vncleane: for it is a leprosy.
 But and yf the glistryng whyte abide styl in one place and go no further, then it is but the pynte of the byle, and the p̄east shal iudge him cleane.

When the skynne of any mans flesh is burnt with fyre that it be rawe and there appere in the burnynge a glisttryng whyte that is somewhat redyshe or al together whyte, let the p̄east loke vpon it. If the heere in that byghte-nesse be chaūged to whyte, and it als so appeare lower thē the other skynne, then it is a leprosy that is broken oute of the place of the burnynge. And the p̄east shal iudge him vncleane, for it is a leprosy. But and yf when <sup>h</sup> p̄east loketh on it he se that there is no white heere in the byghtnesse, and <sup>h</sup> it is no lower then the other skynne, and that it is also blackyshe, then let the p̄east shut hym vp seuen dayes. And yf (when the p̄east loketh on hym the seuenth daye) it be growen abrode in <sup>h</sup> skynne, let hym iudge him vncleane: for it is a leprosy.

But

But and yf that bryghthesse abyde styl in one place & go not further in þ skynne & be blackyshe, then it is but a rylsng in þ place of þ burnynge, & the preast shal make him cleane: for it is but the print of the burnynge onely.

E When ether man or woman hath a breakynge out vpon þ heed or þ beerde, let the preast se it. And yf it appere lower than the other skynne, and there be therein golden heeres and thynne, let the preast iudge him vncleane, for it is a breakynge out of leprosy vpon þ head or bearde. If (whē the preast loketh on the breakynge oute) he se that it is no lower then the other skynne and þ there are blacke heeres therein, let hym shut hym vp. vii. dayes. And let the preast loke on the disease the. vii. daye: and yf the breakynge out be gone no further nether be any golden heeres therein nether the scabbe be lower then the other skynne, then let hym be shauen, but let hym not haue þ scabbe: & let the preast shut hym vp. vii. dayes moo. And let the preast loke on the breakynge out þ. vii. daye agayne: If the breakynge out be gone no further in the skynne nor more lower then the other skynne, then let the preast iudge hym cleane, and let hym washe hys clothes, and thē he is cleane.

f If the breakynge out grow in þ skynne after that he is once iudged cleane, let the preast see hym. If it be growne a brode in dede in the skynne, let þ preast seke no further for any golden heeres, for he is vncleane. But & yf he se that the scabbe stāde styl, & þ there is blacke heere growne vp therein, thē the scabbe is healed and he is cleane: and þ preast shal iudge hym cleane. If there be founde in the skynne of the fleshe of man or woman a glysterynge whyte, let the preast se it. If there appeare in the fleshe a glysterynge whyte some what blackyshe, then it is but frekels growen vp in the skynne: and he is cleane.

If a mans heere fall of his head, thē he is headbaulde and cleane. If hys heere fal befoze in his foreheade, thē he is foreheade balde and cleane. If there be in the baulde heade or baulde foreheade a redyshe white scabbe, thē there is leprosy spronge vp in hys baulde heade or baulde foreheade. And let the preast se it: and yf the rylsng of the soze be redyshe white in his baulde heade or foreheade after the maner of a leprosy in þ skynne of the fleshe, thē he is a leper & vncleane: & the preast shal iudge him vncleane, for þ plage of his heade. And þ leper in whome the plage is, shal haue his clothes rēt and his head bare and his mouth mosseld, and shalbe called vncleane. And as lōg as the disease lasteth vpon him, he shalbe vncleane: for he is vncleane, & shal therfore dwel alone, and euen without the host shal his habitation be.

When the plage of leprosy is in a clothe: whether it be lynnē or wollen, yea and whether it be in the warpe or wolfe of the lynnē or of the wollen: ether in a skynne or any thing made of skynne, yf the dyscase be pale or somewhat redyshe in the cloth or skynne: whether it be in the warpe or wolfe or any thinge that is made of skynne, then it is a very leprosy, & must be shewed vnto þ preast. And when the preast seyth the plage, let him shut it vp. vii. dayes, and let hym loke on the plage the. vii. daye. And then let hym slee the lambe in the place where the synne offrynge, and the burnt offring are slayne: euen in þe holy place. For as the synne offring is, eue so is the trespass offring the preastes: for it is moost holy.

Then let the preast take of þe bloude of þe trespass offring, and put it vpon the tpype of the ryghte eare of hym that is censed, and vpon the thombe of his right hande, & vpon the great too of his right foote. But of this maner shall Aaron goo in to the holpe place: with a bullocke for a synne offryng, & a ram for a burnt offryng. And he shall put his holpe lynnen albe vpon hym, and shall haue a lynnen breeche vpon hys fleshe, and shall gyrdle hym with a lynnen gyrdell, and

And Aaron shall offer the bullocke for his synne offryng & make an attonement for hym and for his house. And when he hath made an ende of reconcyllynge the holy place & the tabernacle of wytnesse and the aulter, let him bypunge the lyue goote, and lette Aaron put both his handes vpon the heed of the lyue goote, & confesse ouer hym al the mysdedes of the chyldren of Israel, and their trespasses, & all their synnes: and let hym put them vpon the heed of the goote, and sende hym away (by the handes of one that is couenient) in the wyldernesse. And this shalbe an euerylastyng ordynauce vnto you to make an attonement for the chyldren of Israel for all their synnes once a yere: & it was done euen as the Lord commaunded Moses, Wherfore let the chyldren of Israel bypunge their offrynges & they offer in the wyde felde, vnto the Lord: euen vnto the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse and vnto the priest, and offer them for the peaceoffrynges vnto the Lord. And what so euer man it be of the house of Israel or of the strangers that sojourne amonge you that eateth any maner of bloude, I will set my face agaynste that soule that eateth bloude, & will destroye him from amonge his people, for the lyfe of the fleshe is in the bloude, and I haue geuen it vnto you vpon the aulter, to make an attonement for your soules, for bloude shall make an attonement for the soule. Therefore I sayd vnto the children of Israel: ye shall eate the bloude of no maner fleshe, for the lyfe of all fleshe is in his bloude, and whoso euer therefore eateth it shall perishe. And whatsoeuer soule it be that eateth that which dyed alone, or that which was forne with wilde beasts: whether it be one of your selues or stranger, he shall walke his clothes and bathe hym selfe in water, and shall be vncleane vnto the euen, and then is he cleane. ## The notes.

a. Under this name Moloch, is forbidden all manner of ydolatre, specially the offering of children therunto, for that was obhominable before the Lorde. Moloch was an ydole of the children of Ammon, whose image was halowe, hauinge in it. vii. closettes. One was to offer therein fine flour, an other for turtle doves, the thyrde, for a shepe, the fourth for a ram, the fifth for a calfe, & sixt for an oxe. And for him that woulde offer his sonne, was opened the vii. closet. And the face of this ydole was lyke the face of a calfe, his hand made playne redy to receiue of the that shoulde by.

The. xxi. Chapter.

The priest is forbidden to be at the death of anye of his people, a fewe of his kynne excepte. Whistes may not be shauen neither on the head nor yet of the beard. The priestes wyfe must be a mayde. The priestes daughter may not be an harlot.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: speake vnto the priestes & sonnes of Aaron and saye vnto them. *A priest shall defyle hym selfe at the death of none of his people, but vpon his kin & is nye vnto him: as his mother, father, son, daughter & brother: & on his sister as longe as she is a mayde & dwelleth nye him & was neuer geuen to man: on her her maye defile hym selfe. But he shall not make hym selfe vncleane vpon a ruelar of hys people to polute hym selfe with all.

¶ They shall make them no baldnesse vpon their heades or haue of the lockes of their beardes, nor make anye markes in their flesh. They shall be holpe vnto their God, and not polute the name of their God, for the sacrifices of the Lord & the bread of their God they doo offer: Therefore they muste bee holpe.

¶ They shall take no wyfe that is an whoore or poluted, or put from her husbande: for a prieste is holpe vnto hys God. Sanctifie him therfore, for he offereth by þe breade of God: he shall therfore, be holpe vnto the. For I the Lord which sanctifie you am holpe.

I am the Lord. * He shall take a mayde vnto hys wyfe: but no wydowe nor deuorced nor poluted whoore. But he shall take a mayde of hys owne people to wyfe, that he defyle not his seed vpon his people: for I am the Lord which sanctifie hym.

¶ And the Lord spake vnto Moses sayinge: speake vnto Aaron and saye: No man of thy seed in their generacions þe hath anye deformite vpon hym, shall preace to offer the breade of hys God: * for none that hath anye blemyshe shall come nere: whether he be blynde, lame, snott nosed, or that hath any misshapen membre, or broken footed, or broken handed, or croke backed, or perleyed, or goggeleyed, or maunge, or skaulde, or hath hys stones broken.

No man that is deformed of þe seed of Aaron the prieste, shall come nye to offer the sacrifices of the Lord. If he haue a deformite, he shall not preace to offer the breade of hys God. Notwithstanding he shall eate of þe breade of hys God: euen as wel of the moste holpe, as of the holpe: but shall not goo in vnto þe bayle nor come nye the alter, because he is deformed that he polute not my sanctuarie, for I am the Lord that sanctifie them. And Moses tolde it vnto Aaron and to hys sonnes, and vnto all the children of Israel.

a. The priestes be warned þe they shall not come at the commune waylynges & lamentacions of þe dead, lest they should thereby be þe more vnapt to do their sacrifices, wherunto they were properly appoynted, lest they should by their weeping geue an occasion to dystroie the beleue of the resurrection of the dead.

A prieste shall not come at burialles with misdoynge & trespass in eatynge

 Lorde whiche halowe them.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, saying: speake vnto Aarō & his sōnes, & vn*whatsoeuer he be of the house of Is-

Yf a man wyl offer a peaceofferynge vnto the Lorde and separate a bowe or a frewyl offerynge of the oxen or the flocke, it must be without deforme, & it maye be accepted. These maye be no broken, wounded or haue a wen, or be maunge or scabbed, see that ye offer no suche vnto the Lorde, nor put an offeryng of anye suche vpon the aulter vnto the Lorde.

An ore or a shepe that hath any mebre out of propozcion, mayst thou offer for a frewyl offerynge: but in a bowe it shall not be accepted. Thou shalt not offer vnto the Lorde that whyche is hande shal ye offer an offeryng to your God of anye suche. For they marre al in that they haue deformities in them, & therefore can not be accepted for you.

 And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses saying: when an ore, a shepe or a goote is brought forth, it shalbe seuen dayes vnder the dame. And from the .viii. daye forth, it shalbe accepted vnto a gyfte in the sacrifice of the Lorde: And whether it be ore or shepe, ye shal not kyll it and her yonge bothe in one daye. When ye wyl offer a thankeofferynge vnto

The Sabbath of the vii. yerres and of the yere of iube-lie, other wyse called the fiftie yere.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses in mount Sinai sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel & saye vnto the. When ye be come into the lande, which I geue you, let the lande reste a Sabbath vnto the Lord. * Sixe yerres thou shalt sowe thy felde, and syxe yere thou shalt cut thy vines and gather in thy frutes.
But the * seuenth yere shall bee a Sab-both of rest vnto the lande. The Lordes Sabbathe it shalbe, and thou shalt nether sowe thy felde, nor cut thy vines.

The corne that groweth by it selfe thou shalt not reape, nether gether the grapes & growe without thy dressynge but it shalbe a Sabbath of rest vnto the lande. Neuerthelesse the Sabbath of the lande shalbe meate for you: euen for the and thy seruaunt and for thy maide & for thy hyred seruaunt & for the straunger & dwelleth with the: & for thy catell and for the beastes that are in thy land, shall all the encrease thereof be meate.

Then nombze seuen<sup>a</sup> wekes of yerres, that is, seuen tymes seuen yere: and the space of the seuen wekes of yerres wyll bee vnto the. xlix. yere. And then thou shalt make an horne blowe: euen in the tenth daye of the seuenth moneth, whiche is the daye of attonement. And then shalt ye make the horne blowe, & uē thorowe oute all youre lande. And ye shall halowe the fiftieth yere, and proclaime lybertye, thorowe oute the land vnto all the inhabitants therof. It shal-be a yere of<sup>b</sup> iubelie vnto you and ye shall retourne: euery manne vnto hys possession and euery man vnto hys kin-red againe. A yere of iubelie shall that fiftieth yere be vnto you. Ye shall not tewenether reape the corne that groweth by it selfe, nor gether the grapes & growe without thy labour. For it is a yere of iubelie and shalbe holie vnto you: how be it, yet ye shall eate of the en-crease of the felde. And in thys yere of iubelie ye shall retourne, euery man vnto his possession againe.

When thou sellest oughte vnto thy neighbour or byest of thy neighbours hande, ye shal not oppresse one another:
but accorpyng to the number of yerres after the iubelie yere thou shalt bye of thy neighbour, & accorpyng vnto the nombze of frute yerres, he shall sell vnto the. Accorpyng vnto the multytude of yerres, thou shalt encrease the pryce thereof and accorpyng to the lewnesse of yerres, thou shalt mynysh the pryce:
for the nombze of frute he shal sell vnto thee. And se that no man oppresse hys neighbour, but feare thy God. For I am the Lord your God. Wherefore do after myne ordynaunces and kepe my lawes and do them, that ye maye dwell in the lande in safetie. And the lande shall geue her frute, and ye shall

If thy bzother that dwelleth by the waxe poore and sell hym selfe vnto the, thou shalt not let him labour as a bond seruaunte doeth: but as an hyred seruaunte & as a sojourner he shal be with the, and shal serue the vnto the yere of Iubelye, and then shal he departe frome the: both he and hys chyldren with him, and shal retourne vnto hys owne kynne red agayne, and vnto the possessions of hys fathers: for they are my seruantes which I brought out of the lande of Egypte, and shal not be solde as bondmen. Se therfore that thou raigne not ouer hym cruelly, but feare thy God. If thou wilt haue bondseruautes and maydens, thou shalt bye them of the heythens that are rounde aboute you, and of the chyldren of the straungers that are sojourners amonge you, and of theyr generations that are with you, which they begat in your lande. If any man chaunge it then both it, and that it was chaunged wyl al, shalbe holy and may not be redeemed.

These are the commaundementes which the Lord gaue Moses in charge to geue vnto the chyldzen of Israell in mount Sinai.

The ende of the thyrde boke of Moses.

✠ A Prologe in- to the fourthe boke of Mo- ses called Quinery.

In the seconde & thyrde boke they receyued the lawe. And in this. iiii. they begynne to worke and to practise. Of whiche practysinge yf many good ensamples of vbelief and what fre wil doeth, when he taketh in hande to kepe the law of his owne power without helpe of faith in the promyses of god: howe the leuerly herma-ners carkeless by the way in the wyldernes, and bringeth them not into the Lande of rest. Why coulde they not enter in? By cause of theyr vbelief. Deut. x. For had they beleued, so had they bene vnder grace, and theyr olde synnes had bene forgiven them, & power shoulde haue bene geuen them to haue fulfilled the law thencefoorth & they shoulde haue bene kepte from all temptacions that had bene so strong for them. For it is wrytten. John. i. He gaue them power to be the Sonnes of God, thoroowe beleuynge in hys name.

Howe to be the Sonne of God is to loue God and his commaundementes and to walke in hys way after the example of his Sone Christ. But these people toke vpon them to worke without faith as thou seest in the. xiii. of this boke, where they would fight & also dyd without the woode of promyse: euen when they were warned that they shoulde not. And in. xvi. againe they would please god with theyr holy saythlesse workes (for wher Gods word is not ther can be no faith) but the fyre of God consumed theyr holpe workes, as it dyd Sadau and Abihu. Leui. x. And from these vbelievers turne theyr eyes vnto the synners which before the commynge of Christ in by a flesh haddelapd the fundacion of fcewpyll after the same example. Whereon they built holpe workes after theyr owne imaginatyng without sayth of the woode, so feracently that for the great zeale of them they slewe the kinge of all holpe workes, and the Lord of fcewpyll whiche onely thoroow his grace maketh the wyl free and lowseth hys from bondage of synne, and geueth hys loue and lufes vnto the lawes of god, and power to fulfyll them. And so thoroowe theyr holpe workes done by the power of fcewpyll, they excluded them selues our of the holy rest of forgiveness of synnes by sayth in the blud of Christ.

And then loke on oure hypocrites whiche in lyke maner folowing the doctrine of Aristotle & other heathen paganes, haue agaynst al the scripture sette up free wyl againe, vnto whose power they ascribe the keepinge of the commaundementes of God. For they haue fer up wylfull power of an other maner then anye is commaunded of God. And the chastite of matrimony brately defyed, they haue set up an other wylfull chastite not requyred of God, which they sweare, howe & professe to geue god, whether he wyl gyue it them or no, and compel al theyr disciples therunto, sayynge that it is in the power of euerie mans free wyl to obserue it, contrarie to Christ and hys Apostle Ipaule.

And the obedience of god and manne excluded, they haue vnto an other wylfull obedience condeigned of al the scripture whiche they will yet gyue God whether he wyl or wil not.

And what is become of theyr wylfull power? hath it not robbed the whole world, & brought al vnder them? Can there be cyther kynge or Emperoure or of whatsoeuer degre it be, except he wil holde of them & be fwoine vnto them to be theyr seruante, to goo and come at theyr luste, and to defend theyr quarels be they false or true? Their wylfull power hath already eaten vp the whole world & is yet syl greyter then ever it was, in so much that ten worldes moore not inoughe to satisfie the hunger thereof.

Moreouer besydes daply corrupting of other mens wyues & open whoredome, vnto what abominacions to sylth to be spoken of, hath their voluntary chastite brought them.

And as for theyr wylfull obedience, what is it, but the disobedience and the diffiaunce of al the lawes of god and manne: in so much that if any prince begyn to execute any law of manne

upon the, they curse him unto the bottom of hel, and proclaime him no ryght kyng and that his lordes ought no leger to obey him, and incredide bys commyn people as they were heathen, turkes or Sarazins. And yf any man preache them Gods lawe, hym they make an heretike & burne hym to ashes. And in steade of Goddes law and mans, they haue set vp one of theirowne imagination which they obserue with dispensacions.

And yet in these workes they haue so greute confidence that they not onely truste to be saued thereby, and to be hygher in heauen then they shal be saued thowwe Christe: but also prompse to al other forgyuenesse of their synnes thowwe the merites of the same. Wherein they rest & teache other to rest also, excludynge the whole worlde from the rest of forgyuenesse of synnes thowwe sayth in Christes bloude.

And now sayng that sayth onely letterly a mā in vnto rest, and vnblesse excludeth him, what is the cause of thys vnblesse? verely no synne that the worlde seeth, but a pope holynes and a rightnes of their owne imaginacions as Paule sayeth. Roma. x. They be ignorant of the rightnes wherewith God iustifieth, and haue set vp a ryghtuousnesse of their owne making thowwe which they be dyfobedeynte vnto & rightousnes of God. And Christ rebuketh not & shaptycs for grosse synnes whiche the worlde saw, but for those holy dedes whiche so bleaced peies of the worlde that they were taken as Goddes: euen for longe prayers, for fastyng, for rithyng so diligently that they leste not so muche as they herbes but theyd for their cleanes in washyng before meate and for washyng of cuppes, bythes, and all maner vessels, for buydyng the prophetes Sepulchres, and for keepyng the holy day, and for turnyng the heathen vnto the sayth, & for geuyng of almes.

For vnto suche holy dedes they ascribed rightuousnesse and therefore when the ryghtuousnes of God was preached vnto them they coude not but persecute it, the deuyl was so stronge in them whiche thynge Christ well describeth Luk. xi. sayyng that after the deuyl is caste oute he cometh agayne and findeth his house swept and made gape, and then taketh seuen worse than him selfe and dweller therein, and so is the ende of that man worse then the begynnyng. That is, when they be a lytle cleued frome grosse synnes whiche the worlde seeth and then made gape in theirowne sayth with the ryghteousnes of traditions, then cometh seuen, that is to saye the whole power of the deuyl, for seuen with & be- bres signifieth a multitude without nombre and the extremite of a thynge and is a spech borrowed (I suppose) oute of Leuiticus where is so ofte mencion made of seuen. Where I shoulde say: I will punishe the that all the world shall take an example of the, there the Actes would say: I wil circumsise the or baptise the seuen tymes. And so here by seuen is meant al the deuyls of hel, and all synne & power of the deuyl. For vnto what further blindness could al the deuyls in hel bring them, the to make them beleue that they were iustified thowwe their owne good workes. For whē they once beleued that they were purged fro their synnes, and made ryghtuous thowwe theyd owne holy workes, what rowme was there lefte for the rightuousnesse that is in Christes bloude: shewyng? And therefore when they be fallen into thys blyndnesse they can not but hate and persecute the lyghte.

And the more cleare and euidentlye their dedes be rebuked the furiouslye and maliciouslye blind are they vntill they breake out into open blasphemie and synnyng agaynst & vnto god, which is the malicious persecutyng of & cleare troupe so manifestlye proued & they can not onely hitte agaynst it. As the isharaites persecuted Christe because he rebuked theirowne dedes. And when he proued bys doctryne with the scriptures and miracles, yet thoughte they coude not impute hym no reason agaynst hym they thoughte that the scripture must haue some other meanyng bycause his interpretation vndermined their fadacyon and plucked vp by the rootes the fetters which they had plantid, & they ascribed also his miracles to & deuyl. And in like maner though our hypocrites can not denye but thys is the scripture, yet because there canne be none other sence gathered thereof, but that ouerthoweth their byldynges, therefore they euer thinke that it hath some other meanyng then as the wordes sounde and that no man vnderstandeth it or dy vnderstande it sence the tyme of the Apostles. Or yf they thynke that some that wrote vpon it sace the Apostles vnderstode it: they yet thynke that we in lyke maner as we vnderstand not the tyste it. selfe, so we vnderstand not the meanyng of the wordes of that doctoure. For when thou sayest & iustifyng of holy workes, and deniest the iustifyng of sayth, howe canst thou vnderstande & Paule, Peter, Iohn, and & Actes of the Apostles, or any scripture at all, sayng the iustifyng of sayth is almost al that they ende to proue.

Finallye, concernyng bowes wherof thou readest Chapter. xxx. there may be many questions, wherunto I answer thusly that we ought to put salte to al our offerynges: that is, we ought to minister knowlege in all our workes, & do nothyng wherof we coude not geue a reason out of Gods wordes.

We be nowe in the daye lyghte, and all the secretes of God, and all his counsaile and wyll is opened vnto vs, and he that was promysed shal come and blesse vs, is come alreadye & hath shed bys bloude for vs, and hath blessed vs with all maner blessinges and hath obtayned al grace for vs, and in him we haue al. Wherfore God henceforth will receyue no more sacrifice of beastes or vs, as thou readest. Hebr. x. If thou burne vnto God the blod or fatte of beastes, to obtayne forgyuenesse of synnes thereby, or & god shuld the better heare thy request, then & god wold bring vnto the blod of Christ, & coust vnto his deade in vayne.

For in hym God hath promysed not forgyuenesse of synnes ouely, but also whatsoeuer we aske to kepe vs from syn and temptacyon with all. And what yf thou burne frankincense vnto him, what yf thou burne a candell, what yf thou burne thy chastite or virginite vnto hym for & same purpose, doest thou not lyke rebuke vnto Christes bloude?

Wherfore, yf thou offer golde, syluer or anye other good for the same intent, is there any difference? And euen so, yf thou go in pylgrimage, or fastest, or goest twolwarde, or synkelest thy self in holy water or els whatsoeuer dede it is, or obseruest whatsoeuer ceremonye it be, for lyke meaning, the it is lyke abhominaciō. We must therefore byng the salt of the knowlege of gods wordes with all oure sacryfices, or else we shall make no swete sauour vnto God therof.

I. v.

Thou

The Prologe.

Thou wylt aske me, what I bowe nothing at all yes, Goddes commaundment whiche thou hast bowed in thy baptisme. For what cause? verely for the loue of Christ whiche hath bought thee wyt his blood, and made thee sonne and heire of God wth him, that thou shouldest wayte on hys wpll and commaundmentes, and purysse thy membris accordyng to the same doctrine, that hath purysed thyne herte, for if the knowledg of Goddes worde haue not purysed thyne herte, so that thou consentest vnto the lawe of God that it is righteouse, and good, & forowse, that thy membris moue þ vnto the contrary, so hast thou no part wth Christ.

For yf thou repent not of thy synne, so it is impossible that thou shouldest beleue that Christ hadde deliuered thee from the daunger thereof. If thou beleue not that Christ hath deliuered thee, so is it impossible that thou shouldest loue God-des commaundmentes.

If thou loue not the commaundmentes, so is Christes spirit not in the, whiche is the earnest of forgyuenes of synne and of Saluation.

For scripture teacheth, first repentance, the fayth in Christ, that for his sake synne is forgyuen to them þ repent: then good workes, whiche are nothyng saue the commaundment of God onely. And the commaundmentes are nothyng els saue the healyng of our neyghbours at their nede and the raimyng of our membris that they myght be pure also as the hert is pure thoro-we hate of vyce and lone of vertue, as Gods worde teacheth vs, whiche workes must procede out of fayth: that is, I must do the for the loue whiche I haue to God for that geate mercede whiche he hath betwed me in Christ, or else I do them not in the syght of God. And that I saynt not in the payne of the cleaunge of the synne that is in my fleshe, myne helpe is the promysse of the assysurance of the power of God, and the comforte of þ rewarde to come, whiche rewarde I ascribe vnto the goodnes, mercy, & truth of the promysse that hath chesme, called me, taught me, and geuen me the earnest thereof, and not vnto the merites of my doynges or sufferynges. For all that I do and suffer is but the way to the rewarde and not the deservyng thereof. As yf the kynges grace should promysse me to defend me at home in myn owne royalme, yet the waye thither is thoro-we the feare, wherein I myght happily suffer no lytle trouble. And yet for all that, yf I myght spee in rest when I comethither, I woulde thynke and so woulde other say, that my paynes were wel rewarded whiche rewarde and benefyte I woulde not prouidly ascribe vnto þ merites of my paynes, takyng by þ way: but vnto þ goodnes, merciful-nes, & constant reuerth of the kynges grace whose gyfte it is, and to whom the prayse, and thanke thereof belongeth of dutye and ryght. So nowe a rewarde is a gyfte geuen frely of the goodnes of the geuer, and not of the deservynges of the receyuer. Thus it appeareth, that if I bowe whatsoeuer it be, for anye other purpose then to tame my membris and to be an ensample of vertue and edifyng vnto myne neyghboure, my sacrifice is vnsauour and cleane without salt, & my lampe without oyle, and I one of the folyshe virgyns, and shal be shut out frsh the feast of þ bydegrome when I thynke my selfe most sure to enter in.

If I bowe voluntary powerte, thys must be my purpose, that I wpll be content with a comperent lyuynge whiche cometh vnto me eyther by successyon of myne elders or whiche I get traly with my laboure in ministringe and doyng scrupce vnto the commune wealthe in one offyce or in an other, or in one occupacyon or other, by-cause that riches and honoure shal not corrupte my mynde and drawe myne hert from God, and to geue an ensample of vertue and edifyng vnto other and that my neyghbour may haue a lyuynge by me as wel as I. If I make a cloke of dissimulation of my bowe, lapyng a nette of fay-ned begger to carthe superfluous abundance of richesse and hye degrees and authoritye, and thoro- we the estimation of false holynesse to fede and mayntayne my shouthfull ydlenesse with the sweate, labour, landes, and rentes of other men (after the ensample of our spiritalty) robbing the of thei farthes faithes & god of hys honoure turnyng vnto myne hypocryse that confydence whiche shoulde be geuen vnto the promysse of God only, am I not a wply sofe, and a rauenyn wolfe in a lambs skynne and a paynted sepulchre, fayre without and fylthye wythin: In like maner though I seke no worldly promociõ thereby, yet yf I do it to be iustified therwyt and to get an hyer place in heauen, thynkyng that I do of myne owne naturall strengthe and of the naturall power of my fctwpll and that euery man hath myghteuen so to do and that they do it not is their faulte and neglygence and so wply the proude pharisee in comparyson of my selfe, despise the synful publicans: what other thyng do I, then eate the blood and fat of my sacrifice deuourynge that my selfe whiche shoulde be offer-red vnto God alone and his Christ. And shortly what soeuer a manne doeth of his naturall gyf-tes, or of his naturall wytte, wylsedom, vnderstandynge, reason, wpll, and good entente before he be otherwys and cleane contrary taughte of Gods spirite, & haue receyued other wit vnderstandynge, reason, wpll, is fleshe, worldly, and wrought in abominable blindenes, wth whiche a man can but seke hym selfe, bys owne profyte gloze, and honoure, euen in very spirituall matters. As yf I were alone in a wopidernes where no man were to seke profyte or prayse of, yet yf I woulde seke heauen of God there, I coulde of myne owne naturall gyftes seke it none other wayes then for the merites and deservynges of my good workes and to enter therein by an other way than by the doore Christ, whiche were verely these, for Christ is the doore ouer all and wharsoeuer any man wyl haue of God, he must haue it geuen him frely for Christes sake.

Nowe, to haue heauen for myne owne desservyng, is myne owne prayse, and not Christes.
For I can not haue it by fauour & grace of Christ and by myne owne merites also: For fre geuyng and deservyng can not stande togyther.

If I wyl bowe of thy goods vnto God thou must put salt vnto this sacrifice: þ is thou must minister knowledg in this dede as Peter teascheth. ii. ipe. i. Thou must put oyle of gods word in thy lampe, & do it according to knowledg, yf thou wayte for the chymyng of the bydegrome to enter in w him into his rest. Thou wylt hange it about the Image to moue men to deuotion.
Deuociõ is a seruile loue vnto Gods commaundmentes & a desyre to be w God and wth his euellsing promysse. Nowe shal þ sight of such riches as are shewed at S. Thomas synne, or at Walsyngam

kingam moue a man to loue the commaundementes of god better, & to desyre to be loved fro his deche and to be with God, or shall it not rather make his pore hert syghe because he hath no suche at home, and to wyth part of it in an other place?

The priest shall haue it in gods steade. Shall the priest haue it? If the priest be boughte wyth Chyestes bloud, then he is Chyestes seruauit and not his owne, and ought therefore to feede Chyestes flocke with Chyestes doctrine, and to myny- ster Chyestes sacramentes vnto theym purely for very loue, and not for fylthy lucreys sake, or to be orde ouer them as Peter teacheth. i. Peter. v. and Paule, Act. x. Besydes this Chyeste is ours and is a gyfte geuen vs, and we be heyres of Chyeste & of al that is Chyestes. Wherefore the priestes doc- trine is ours, and we heyres of it, it is the fode of pure soules. Therefore if he minister it not truly and feely vnto vs wythout sellunge, he is a thefe and a soule murderet, and euil so is he if he take vpon hym to fede vs and haue not wherewith. And for a lyke conclusyon because we also with al that we haue be Chyestes, therefore is the priestes heyre with vs also, of al that we haue receyued of God, wherefore in as muche as the priest way- reth on the worde of God, and is oure seruauit therin, therefore of right we are his detters & owe to him a sufficient lypung of our goods, and euen thereto a wyse of our daughter owe we vnto him yf he require hit. And nowe when we haue ap- portuned him a sufficient lypung, whether in ty- thes, rentes, or in yecely wages, he ought to be co- rent and to require no more, nor yet to receyue a- ny more, but to be an example of sobernes and of despying worldly thynges vnto the ensample of his parishioners.

Wylst thou vowe to offer vnto the pore peo- ple that is pleasaunte in the syghte of God, for they be left here to do oure almes vpon in Chy- estes steade, and they be the ryght heyres of al oure abundaunce and ouerplus. Whereouer we muste haue a scole to teache Gods worde in (though it neded not to be so costly) and therefore it is lawe- full to vowe vnto the building or mayntainance therof, and vnto helping of al good workes. And we ought to vowe to pay custome, tolle, rent, and all maner of dutyes and whatsoeuer we owe: for that is Gods commaundement.

If thou wylte vowe pylgrymage, thou muste put salt thereto in lyke maner yf it shall be accep- ted, yf thou vowe to go and vyse the poore or to heare Goddes worde or whatsoeuer edifieth thy soule vnto loue & good workes after knowledge or whatsoeuer God commaundeth, it is well done and a sacrifice that sauoureth well, yf wyl hap- pely say, that ye wyl go to this or that place be- cause God hath chosen one place more then an o- ther, and wyl heare poure petycyon more in one place then in an other. As for your prayer it must be accordyng to Gods worde.

Ye maye not desyre God to take vengeance on hym whom Gods worde teacheth you to py- tie and to praye for. And as for that other glofe that God wyl heare you more in one place then in an other, I suppose it, Sal infatuatum, salt vnsaucrey, for yf it were wysedome howe coulde we excuse the death of St. Iuen. Actes. vii. which dyed for the arteple that is God dweller not in temples made with handes. We that beleue in God are the temple of God saith Paule, if a man loue god & kepe his word, he is the temple of god and hath god present dwellyng in him, as wit- neth Christ. John. xiiii. saying: If a man loue me he wyl kepe my word, & then my father wyl loue him & we wil come vnto him and dwel with him. And in the. xv. Chapter of John he sayth: yf ye abyde in me and my wordes also abyde in you, then are what ye wyl and ye shall haue it.

If thou beleue in Christ and hast the promyses which God hath made the in thyne hert, then go on pylgrymage vnto thyne owne hert and there praye, and god wyl heare the for his mercy and trutheys sake, and for his sonne Chyestes sake, and not for a fewe stonys sake. What careth god for the temple? The very beastes in that they haue lyfe in them be much better then an heape of ston- nes couched together.

To speake of chastite, it is a gifte not geuen vnto all persons testyfyth both Christ & also his Apostle Paule, wherefore all personnes maye not vowe it. Whereouer there be causes wherefore ma- ny personnes may better lyue chaste at one tyme, then at an other. Many may lyue chaste at twen- tye and thyrtye for certayne cold diseases folow- yng the, which at .xl. wher they health is come can not do so. Many be occupied with wild pha- tasies in theyr yowth, that they care not for ma- rriage, whiche same when they be waken sadde shall be greaulye desperouse, it is a daungerouse thing to make tyme where none is, & to forsweare the benefyte of God and to bynde thy selfe vnder payne of damnacyon of thy soule that yf woldest not vse the remedye that God hath created yf nedde required.

An other thyng is this, beware that thou get thee not a false fayned chastite made wyth the vngodlye perswasions of Sayncte Hierom or of Dydre in his fylthy boke of the remedye a- gaynst loue, leaue when thou seest suche imagy- nacyons thou haste vtterly despyed, despyed, and abhorred all woman kynde, thou come into such case thou shalt the feare wrath of God, that thou canst nether lyue chaste nor fynd in thy hert to ma- ry, and so be compelled to fal into the abhominati- on of the pope agaynst nature and kynde.

Whereouer god is a wyse father and knoweth all the infirmities of his chyldren, and also mer- cyfull, and therefore hath created a remedye with- out synne, and geuen thereto his fauour and bles- syng. Let vs not be wyse then God wyth oure imaginacyons, nor tempt him, for as godly cha- stite is not euery mans gifte: euen so he that hath it to day hath not powte to contynue in it at his owne pleasure, neyther hath God promysed to gyue it him a yll, & to cure his infirmities with- out his naturall remedye, no more then he hath promysed to stak his hunger without meate, or thirst without drynke.

Wherefore other let all thynges byde free and as God hath created them, and nother vowe that whiche God required not, nor forswear that whiche God permytted the wyth his fauour & blessing also: or els yf thou wylte neades vowe, then vowe Godlye and vnder a condycyon, that thou wylte contynue chaste so longe as God ge- ueth the that gyfte, and as long as neyther thyne owne necessitie, neyther charitie toward thy neigh- bour, nor the authoritie of them vnder whose po- wte thou art dyuen vnto the contrarie.

The purpose of thy vowe muste be salted al- so with the wysdome of God. Thou mayest not vowe to be iustified thereby or to make satisfac- tion for thy synnes or to winne heuen nor an hier place: for then didest thou wrong vnto the bloud of Christ & thy vowe were playne Idolatry & ab- hominable in the sight of god. Thy vowe must be onely

The Prologe.

vnclly vnto the furtherance of the commaundmentes of God, whiche are as I haue sayd uorhyng but the rampage of thy members and the seruice of thy neyghbour: that is, if thou thyne thy backe to weake for the burthen of wedlocke and that thou canst not tuler thy wyfe, chyldren, seruantes, and make prouysion for them godlye and without ouermuch busying and vnquetering thy selfe, & drowning thy self in worldly busines vchastianly or that thou canst serue thy neygh-bour in some offyce better beyng chaste then maried. And then thy vowe is good and lawfull.
And euen so must thou vowe abstinence of meates and drynkes so farre forth as it is profitable vnto thy neyghbours and vnto the raming of thy soule: But thou mayest vowe neither of theym vnto the fleing of thy body. As Paule commaundeth Timothee to drynke wyne and no more water by cause of his diseases. Thou wylt say that Timothee had not happye forsworne wyne. I thyne the same and that the Apostles forswore not wedlocke (though many of them lyued chaste) nother yet any meate or drynke, though they abstained from them, and that it were good for vs to folowe their ensample. Vowe be it though I vowe and sweare and thinke on none exception, yet is þ breaking of Gods commaundmentes except at chalyces þ hang of God. As if I sweare to be in a certayne place, at a certayne houre to make a loue day without excepcion, yet yf þ hys in the meane tyme commaund me another way, I must go by Gods commaundment, and yet breake not my othe. And in lyke case yf my father and mother besyche and requyre my presence, or yf my wyfe, chyldeu or housholde be vspryed that my assistance be required, or if my neyghbours house be a fyre at the same houre, and a thousand such chaunces in which all I breake myne othe and am not forsworne and so forth. Reade Goddes wynde diligently and with a good heart & it shall teache the all thynges.

The fourth boke of Moyses called Numery.

The .i. Chapter.

All that is apte for battell are nombred. The tribe of Reuay is appoynted to minister to þ tabernacle.

And the LORD

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses saying: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel: whether it be man or woman, whē they haue synned anye maner of synne whiche a man doeth where with a man trespaseth agaynste the Lorde, so that the soule hath done a mysse: * then they shal knowledg the eyr synnes whiche they haue done, and restore agayne the hurte that they haue done in the hole, and put the fyfte parte of it moze there to, and geue it vnto him whome he hath trespassed agaynste. But and yf he that maketh the amendes haue no man to do it to, then the amendes that is made shalbe the lordes and þe priestes, besyde the ramme of the attonement offerynge wherwith he maketh an attonement for him him selfe. Then let her husbande byng her vnto the priest and byng an offeryng for her: the tenth parte of an Ephā of barlye meele, but shal powze none oyle therunto, nor put frākenens therō: for it is an offeryng of gelousye, and an offeryng that maketh remembraunce of

of synne.

C And let the priest brynge her and set her before the Lord, and let him take holy water in an erthen vessel, and of þe dust that is in the floore of the habytacion, and put it into the water. And the priest shal set the wyfe before the Lord and vncouer her heade, and put þe memorial of the offerynge in her handes whiche is the gelousye offerynge, & the priest shal haue bytter and curlynge water in his hande, and he shal coniure her and shal saye vnto her. If no man haue lven with the nether haire gone aspyde, and despyled thy selfe behynde thy husbunde, then haue thou no harne of this bytter curlynge water.

But and yf thou hast gone aspyde behynde thyne husbunde and arte despyled and some other mā hath lven with the bespyde thyne husbunde (and let þe priest coniure her with the coniuration of the curse, and say vnto her, the Lord make the a curse and a coniuration amonge thy people: so that the Lord make thy thye rotte, and thy bely swell and this bytter curlynge water goo into the bowels of the, that thy bely swell and thy thye rotte, and the wyfe shal saye Amen.

D And the priest shal wyte this curse in a byll and washe it out in the bytter water. And whē the curlynge water is in her that it is bytter, then let þe priest take the gelousye offerynge out of the wyfes hande, & waue it before þe Lord, and brynge it vnto the alter: and he shal take an handefull of the memory: all offerynge and burne it vpon the alter, and then make her dryncke the water and when he hath made her dryncke the water. If she be despyled and haue trespassed agaynste her husbunde, then shal the curlynge water goo into her and be so bytter, that her bely shal swell and her thye shal rotte, and she shal be a curse amonge her people. And yf she be not despyled but is cleane, then she shal haue no harne, but that she maye conceaue.

This is the lawe of gelousye, when a wyfe goeth aside behinde hyr husbāde and is despyled, or when the spirite of gelousye commeth vpon a man, so that he is gelouse ouer his wyfe then he shal brynge her before the Lord, & the priest shal minister al this lawe vnto her, and the man shal be gyltlesse, and the wyfe shal beate her synne.

The Notes.

a. This trespass is wherby we hurt our neyghboure in wooldye goodes (as they cal them) and therefore must the hurte be redressed and the synne payre more thereto. If the partye remayned nor, to whome the restitution was due, nor any of his lawfull heires: the must it be the priestes wages, whiche at that tyme had not other liuelode.

Trespace

b. The whole lawe of gelousye seemeth to be a feare and a certayne nuctoure of wyues, þe they should be obedynt to their husbādes, chaste, mannerly, and saythful, and suche as geue none occasion to be suspecte and thereto serued this lawe while it kept them vnder, and gaue them no licence to runne at large, wherby they might haue come in some suspecte, and so haue come to this greateshame before the congregacion.

Jealousye

c. Amen is an Hebrue word, and signifieth euen so be it, or be it fast and sure, approuynge and allowynge the sentence goynge before: and when it is doubled it augmenteth the confirmatio, as in manye psalmes, and Iohn. v. and vi.

The notes.

a. Here it appeareth what a vowe is after the olde testament, whiche was a figure of the vowe that a churche man ought to do, geuinge and dedicatinge hym selfe vnto God, as it is spoken Rom. xii. a.

b. To haue abstinence of god vpon his heade is a token of refusinge the care of bodylye thinges by that he setteth not by the heere of his heade, or by þ trimminge of his bushe or bearde, which thinge the world so greatly esteemeth.

c. To make his face shyne, is to geue a token of his louynge & piety.

And accordynge vnto the visiō whiche the LORDS had shewed Moses euen so he made the candelsycke.

And the LORD spake vnto Moses saying: take the Leuites from amonge the children of Israel, and cleanse thē. And this do vnto thē when thou cleansest them, sprynkle water of purispenge vpon them and make a rasure to runne alonge vpon all the fleshe of them, and let them washe theyr clothes, and then they shall be cleane. The Ester of Pasche off: ynge of the cleane and vncleane. A cloude couerynge the tabernacle leadeth the hoste.

Exo xii. a.
Leu. xxi. a.
nu. xxi. c.
Deu. xvi. a.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses in the wilderness of Sinai, in the first moneth of the seconde yere after they were come out of the lande of Egypt sayinge: let the chylde of Israel offer Pasche in his season: euen the .xiii. daye of this moneth at euen they shall kepe it in his season, accordynge to all the ordynaunces and maners therof. And Moses bad the children of Israel that they shoulde offer Pasche, and they offered Pasche the .xiii. daye of the first moneth at eue in the wilderness of Sinai: and did accordige to all that the Lord commaunded Moses.

And it chaunced that certayne men whiche were defyled with a deade corse that they myght not offer Pasche the same daye, came before Moses and Aaron the same tyme, and sayde: we are defyled vpon a deade corse, wherfore are we kepte backe that we maye not offer an offeringe vnto the Lord in the due season, amonge the children of Israel. And Moses sayde vnto them: that I maye heare what the Lord wyl commaunde you. And the Lord spake vnto Moses sayinge: speake vnto the chylde of Israel and saye: If anye man amonge you or youre chylde after you be vncleane by the reason of a corse or is in the waye ferre of, then let him offer Pasche vnto the Lord: the .xiii. daye of the seconde moneth at euen, and eate it with swete breade and foure herbes, and let them leaue none of it vnto the moynynge nor breake any bone of it. And accordynge to all the ordynaunce of the Pasche let them offer it.

Exo. xii. a.

Exo. xii. g.
Job. xii. d.

But yf a man be cleane and not let in a iourney, and yet was negligent to offer a Pasche the same soule shall perishe fro his people, because he brought not an offeringe vnto the Lord in his due season: and he shall beare his synne. And when a straunger dwelleth among you and wyl offer Pasche vnto the Lord accordynge to the ordynaunce of Pasche and maner therof shall he offer it. And ye shall haue one law both for the straunger and for him that was borne at home in the lande.

And the same daye that the habitation was reered vp, a cloude couered it an hye vpon the tabernacle of witness: and at euen there was vpon the habitation, as it were the similitude of fire vntill the moynynge. And so it was alwaye, that the cloude couered it by daye, and the similitude of fyre by nyghte. And when the cloude was taken vp from of the tabernacle, the chylde of Israel iourneyed: and where the cloude abode there the children of Israel pitched theyr tentes. At the mouth of the Lord the children of Israel iourneyed, and at the mouth of the Lord they pitched. And as longe as the cloude abode vpon the habitation, they laye still, and when the cloude tarped still vpon the habitation longe tyme, the children of Israel wayted vpon the Lord and iourneyed not.

If it chaunced that the cloude abode any space of tyme vpon the habitation, then they kepte their tentes at the mouth of the Lord: and they iourneyed also at the commaundement of the Lord. And yf it happened that the cloude was vpon the habitation from euen vnto moynynge and was taken vp in the moynynge then they iourneyed. Whether it was by daye or by nyght that the cloude was taken vp, they iourneyed. But when the cloude taried two dayes or a moneth or a longe reason vpon the habitation, as longe as it taried thereon, the children of Israel kepte theyr tentes and iourneyed not. And as soone as the cloude was taken vp, they iourneyed. At the mouth of the Lord they reasted, and at the commaundement of the Lord they iourneyed. And thus they kepte the watche of the Lord, at the commaundement of the Lord by the hande of Moses.

Mouth to mouth

To spyt her face.

a. To speake mouth to mouth, is to shew certenly by manifest signes and tokens, so that thereby we be vndoubtedly assured of the wyl of God. As for the bodily mouth, here is no mention thereof. b. If her father had spit in her face, that is yf he had punished her, and caused her to see her offence. The Lorde is a father, and punisheth his choscu not to damne them, but to correct the and feare them, and to dreyne the to earnest repentance. After. vii. dayes was she receaued agayne in to the hoste: so after repentance had must we be receaued in to the congregacion.

Certain are sente to searche the lande of Canaan: whych bypge with the a clouster of grapes for a signe of fertilitye and fructifullnes.

Deut. i. d.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses saying: * send men out to serch the land of Canaan, whiche I geue vnto the children of Israel: of euery tribe of their fathers a man, a let them al be such as are ruelars among them. And Moses at the comaundemēt of the Lord set forth out of the wyldernes of Pharan: suche men as were all heades amonge the childre of Israel whose names are these.

In the tribe of Ruben, Sammua the sonne of zacur: In the tribe of Simeon, Saphat the sonne of Hori. In the trybe of Iuda Caleph the sonne of Iephune. In the trybe of Isachar, Igeal the sonne of Joseph. In the trybe of Ephraim, Hosea the sonne of Nun. In the trybe of Ben Iamin, Balthe the sonne of Raphu. In the trybe of Zabulon, Gadiel the sonne of Sodi. In the tribe of Ioseph: that was of Manasse, Gadai the sonne Suli. In the tribe of Dan, Amiell the sonne of Gemali. In the trybe of Aler, Sethur the sonne of Micheel. In the trybe of Nephtali, Nahebi the sonne of Naphtali. In the tribe of Gad, Guel the sonne of Machi. These are the names of the men which Moses sente to spye oute the lande, And Moses called the name of a Hoses the sonne of Nun, Iolua.

And Moses sent them forth to spye out the land of Canaan, a sayd vnto the: gette you southwarde a goe vp in to the hye contrey, a see the lande what maner thynge it is and the people the dwelleth therein: whether they be stronge or weake, ether fewe or manye, a what the land is that they dwell in, whether it be good or bad, and what maner of cities they dwel in, whether they dwel in tentes or walled townes, a what maner of lande it is: whether it be fat or leane, and whether there be trees therein or not. And bee of a good courage, and bypge of the frutes of the lande. And it was about the tyme that grapes are ripe type.

And they went vp a serched out the lande from the wyldernes of zin vnto Rehob, as men goo to Hemath, and they ascended vnto the south, and came vnto Hebron, where Ahinā was a Desai a Chalmani the sonnes of Enache. Hebron was bylte. vii. yere before * 20 an in Egypte. And they came vnto the ryuer Escol a * they cutte doune there a braunce with one clouster of grapes a bare it vpon a staffe betwene twayne, and also of the pomegranetes and of the fygges of the place. The ryuer was called the Nehel Escoll, bycause of the clouster of grapes whiche the children of Israel cutte doune there.

And they turned backe agayne from searchynge the land, at. xl. dayes ende. And they wente and came to Moses a Aaron and vnto all the multitude of the chylde of Israell, vnto the wyldernes of Pharan: euen vnto Cades, and broughte them woorde and also vnto unto all the congregation, and shewed them the fruite of the lande. And they tolde hym sayinge: we came vnto the lande whether thou sendest vs, and reliefe it is a lande that floweth with milke and honye & here is of the fruite of it. Neuerthelesse the people be strogy that dwell in the lande, and the cities are walled and exceedingly greake, and moreover, we sawe the chyldren of Enacke there. The Amaleckes dwell in the south contry, and the Hethites, Jebusites, and the Amozites dwell in the mountaynes, & the Canaanites dwell by the sea & a longe by the colle of Iordan.

And Caleb stilled the murmure of the people agaynst Moyses sayinge: Let vs goo by this conqueite it, for we be able to overcome it. But the men that wente by with hym sayd: * We be not able to goo by agaynst the people, for they are stronger then we: And they brought by an euell report of the lande whiche they had serched, vnto the chyldren of Israel sayinge: The land which we haue gone thorow to serche oute, is a lande that eateth by the inhabitants thereof, and the people that we saw in it are men of great stature. And there we sawe also gessantes, the chyldren of Enacke whiche are of the geauntes. And we sened in oure syghte as it were gresshoppers, and so we dyd in their syght.

a. Bofea, or Bofee, signifieth sayinge or saydour. Joshua or Jehoshua, signifieth the saluation of the Lorde.

b. Ethel Escal signifieth by interpretation, the ruler of the grapes, or as some say the valley of the cloude.

c. It is sayde that a lande floweth with milke & honye, when it aboundeth with good pastures, herbes, cartel, vines, trees, and pleasant wordes. And therefore was it so sayd of the lande that was promised to the Hebrewes. For under the Sunne was there not a lande of more plenty then this was. d. That land eateth by the inhabitants, the people wherof suffreth none to dwell amonge them, but such as are also borne amonge them. For forens are commonly called inhabitants.

¶ The. xv. Chapter.

¶ The dyynckofferynges of them that enter into ¶ i. i. b. The punishment of hym that synneth of arrogancie or pryde. The man is doomed that gathered speches on the Saboth. Gardes muste be made vpon the quarters of their garmentes.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the children of Israel, & saye vnto them: * when ye be come in to the lande of youre habitacion, whiche I geue vnto you, & wyl offer an offerynge vpon the fyre vnto ¶ Lorde, whether it be a burnt offerynge or a special bowe or feewlofferynge or if it be in your principal feastes to make a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde, of the open or of the flocke.

* Then, let him that offereth his offerynge vnto the Lorde, bynge also a meateofferynge of a tenth deale of floure myngled with the fourth part of an hin of oyle, and fourth part of an hin of wyne for a dyynckofferynge, and offer with ¶ burnt offerynge or any other offerynge when it is a lambe. And vnto a ram, thou shalt offer a meateofferynge of. ii. tenth deales of floure, mingled with the thyrde parte of an hin of oyle, & to a dyynckofferynge, thou shalt offer the thyrde part of an hin of wyne, to be a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde.

Whē thou offerest an ore to a burnt offerynge, or in anye speciall bowe or peaceofferynge vnto the Lorde, thou shalt bynge vnto an ore, a meateofferynge of. iii. tenth deales of floure mingled with halfe an hin of oyle. And thou shalt byng for a dyynckofferynge halfe an hin of wyne, that is an offerynge of a swete sauour vnto the Lord.

Thys is the maner that shall be done vnto an ore, one ram, a lambe, or a kid. And accordynge to the numbze of such offeringes, thou shalt encrease ¶ meates offeringes & the dyynckofferynge.

All that are of your selues shal doe these thynges after this maner, when he offereth an offerynge of swete sauour vnto the Lorde. And yf there be a straunger with you or be amonge you in your generacions, and wyl offer an offerynge of a swete sauoure vnto the Lord: euen as ye do, so shal he do. one ordinaunce shall serue bothe for you of the congregacion, and also for the straunger. And it shalbe an ordinaunce for euer amonge youre chyldzen after you, that the straunger and ye shal be lyke before the Lorde. One lawe and one maner shal serue, both for you and for the straunger ¶ dwelleth with you.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the children of Israel, & say vnto them: * when ye be come in to ¶ land whether I wyl bring you, then whē ye wyl eate of the breade of the lande, ye shall geue an heueofferynge vnto the Lorde. Ye shall geue a kake of the first of your dowe vnto an heueofferynge: * as ye doe the heueofferynge of the barne, euen so ye shall heue it. Of the fyrste of youre dowe ye must geue vnto the Lorde an heueofferynge thorow out your generacions.

al the multitude of the chylzen of Israel, & vnto the straunger þ dwellte among you: for the ignorauncie pertayneth vnto all the people. * Yf anye one double sinne thozow ignorauncie he shal bypunge a she goote of a yere olde for a sinneofferynge. And the prieste shall make an attonement for the soule that synned ignorauntlye with the synneofferynge before the Lorde and reconcytle hym: and it shalbe forgeuen hym. And bothe thou that art bozne one of þ chylzen of Israel, & the straüger that dwelleth amonge you shal haue bothe one law, yf he sinne thozow ignoraunce.

* And the soule that doeth oughte presumptuously, whether he be an Israelite or a straüger, þ same hath dyspleased the Lorde. And that soule shalbe destroyed from amonge his people, because he hath dyspleased the worde of the Lord, and hath broken his commaundementes: that soule therfore shal perishe, & his synne shalbe vpon him.

And whyle the chylzen of Israel were in the wylbernesse, they founde a man b gatherynge styrkes vpon the Saboth daye. * And they that founde hym gatherynge styrkes, brought him vnto Moses and Aaron, and vnto all the congregaciō: * and they put him in warde, for it was not declared what shoulde be done vnto him. And þ Lord sayde vnto Moses: the man shall dye: let all the multitude stone hym with stones withoute the hoſte. And all the multitude broughte hym without the hoſte & stoned him w stones, & he dyed as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: speake vnto the chylzen of Israel and bid the, þ they make the gardes vpon the quarters of their garments thozowe oute their generacions, and let them make the gardes of cybandes of Jacincte. And the garde shalbe vnto you to loke vpon it, that ye remembre all the commaundementes of Lorde, and do them: that ye seke not a waye after youre owne heartes, and after youre owne eyes, for to goo a whoozyng after them: but that ye remembre & doe all my commaundementes and bee holpe vnto youre God: for I am the Lorde youre God, whiche broughte you oute of the lande of Egypte, for to be youre God. I am the Lorde youre God.

The notes.

a. This commaundement was afore token of the gathering of the gentyls and the Hebrewes in to one church of Christ. As Iohn. x. c. Wherein there is no difference betwene the Hebrew or Jewe, and the Grecian, the riche and poore, the citizen and straunger or forrener.

b. Necessary drewe not this man to gather styrkes on the Saboth day, and therfore he was worthy death. For he dyd causelesse breake the commaundement, whiche was that on the Saboth day they shoulde do no maner worke, because they shoulde not be letted frome the hearinge of the lawe then, and the puttyng of the same in practyse, by tradinge their lynes after it.

c. Woulde God these gardes were depeplye fixed in all christen mens heartes, that thereby they might remembre al þ commaundementes of God, and leaue seeking of new wayes after their own fantasies.

The .xvi. Chapter.

The rebellon & resistance of Cozah Dathā. This cam. The earth opened and swallowed them vp.

And Cozah the sonne of Jezehar, the sonne of Cahath, the sonne of Leui, and Dathan, and Abiram the sonne of Eltab, and On the sone of Peleth, þ sonne of Rubekode bp before Moses, with other of the chylzen of Israel. ii. hundred and fiftie, heedes of þ congregacion, and counceilers, & men of fame, and they gathered them selues together agaynst Moses and Aaron, and sayde vnto the: Ye haue done pnowgh.

When Moses hearde it, he fel vpon his face and spake vnto Cozah and vnto all his company, saying: to morowe the Lorde wyl shewe who is his, and who is holpe, and wyl take them vnto hym, and whome so euer he hathe chosen, he wyl cause to come to him. This doo: take fyze pannes, thou Cozah and al thy companie, and doe fyze therein and put cens thereto before the Lorde to morow. And the whom soemer the Lorde doeth chose, the same is holpe. Ye make pnowgh to doe, ye chylzen of Leui.

And Moses said vnto Cozah: heare ye chylzen of Leui: Semeth it but a smale thyng vnto you, that the God of Israel hathe separated you frome the the multitude of Israell: to bypnye you to him, to do the seruice of the dwelling place of the Lorde, and to stande before the people to mynstre vnto theym. He hath taken the to him and all thy brethren the sonnes of Leui with the, and ye seke the office of the priest also. For whiche cause both thou and all thy companye are gathered together agaynste the Lorde: for what is Aaron, & ye shuld murmur agaynst him.

And Moses sent to call Dathan and Abiram the sonnes of Eliab, and they answered: we wyll not come. Semeth it a smal thinge vnto the that thou hast brought vs out of a land that floweth with mylke and honye, to kyll vs in the wyldernesse. But that thou shouldest raygne ouer vs also: More ouer thou hast brought vs vnto no lande that floweth wyth mylke and honye, nether hast geuen vs possession of felde or of bynes. Ether wylte thou pull out the eyes of these men: we wyll not come vp.

And Moses waxed very angry, and sayed vnto the Lorde: Turne not vnto their offerpuges. I haue not taken so muche as an asse from theym, nether haue I byed any of them. Then Moses said vnto Chorah: Se thou and all thy company before the Lorde: both thou, they, and Aaron to morowe. And take euery man hys censur and put cens in them, and come before the Lorde, euery man with his censur: two hundred and fyftie censers, and Aaron with his censur. And they toke euery man his censur, and put fyre in them, and layd cens thereon, and stode in the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and Moses and Aaron also. And Chorah gathered all the congregacyon agaynste theym vnto the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse.

And the glozy of the Lorde appered vnto all the congregacyon. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron, saying: separate your selues from this congregacyon, that I maye consume them at once. And they fell vpon theyr faces, and sayed: * O most myghtye GOD of the spirites of all fleshe, one manne hath sinned, and wylte thou be wrothe with all the multitude: And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, saying:

speake vnto the congregacyon, and say: Get you awaye from aboute the dwelling place of Chorah, Dathan, and Abiram. And Moses rose vp, and wente vnto Dathan and Abiram, and the elders of Israell folowed hym. And he spake vnto the congregacyon, saying: depart from the tentes of these wicked men, & touch nothing of theirs: lest ye perishe in all their synnes. And they gat theym from the dwelling of Chorah, Dathan, and Abiram, on euery syde. And Dathan and Abiram came oute and stode in the doore of theyr tentes wyth their wyues, theyr sonnes, and theyr children.

And Moses sayde: Hereby ye shall knowe that the Lorde hath sent me to do all these workes, and & I haue not done theym of myne owne mynde. If these men die the comen death of al men: or yf they be visited after the visitacion of all men, then the LORDE hath not sent me. But and if the LORDE make a newe thyng, and the earth open hit mouth, and swalowe them and all that pertayne vnto theym, so that they go downe a quicke into hell: then ye shall vnderstande, & these men haue rayled vpon the Lorde.

And as sone as he had made an ende of speakynge all these wordes, * the grounde cloued a sonder that was vnder them: & the erth opened her mouth, and swalowed them and their houses, and all the men that were with Chorah, and all theyr goodes. And they and all that pertayned vnto them, went downe alyue vnto hel, and the erth closed vpon them, and they perished fro amonge the congregacyon. And all Israell that were aboute them fledde at the crye of them. For they sayd: The erth myghte happely swalowe vs also. And there came out a fyre from the Lord and consumed the two hundred and fyftie men that offred cens.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, saying: Speake vnto Eleazar & some of Aaron the priest, and let him take vp the censers oute of the burnynge and skatter the fyre here and there, for the censers of these synners are halowed in theyr deathes: and lette theym be beaten into thyn plates, and fastened upon the altare. for they offered theym befoze the Lorde, and therfore they are holy, and they shall be a sygne vnto the chyldren of Israell.

f And Eleazar the priest toke the brasen censers which they that were burnt had offered, and beate theym and fastened them vpon the altar, to be a remembrance vnto the chyldren of Israell, that no straunger whiche is not of the seed of Aaron, come nere to offer cens befoze the Lorde, that he be not made lyke vnto Corah and his compaignes: as the Lorde sayd vnto hym by the hande of Moses.

And on the morowe al the multitude of the chyldren of Israell murmured agaynst Moses and Aaron, sayinge: Ye haue kyled the people of the LORD. And when this multitude was gathered agaynst Moses and Aaron, they looked towarde the tabernacle of witness. And beholde, the cloude had couered it and the glorie of the Lorde appeared. And Moses and Aaron went befoze the tabernacle of witness. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: Set you from this congregacyon, that I maye consume them quickely. And they fell vpon theyr faces.

And Moses sayde vnto Aaron: take a censer and put fyre therein oute of the altar, and powre on cens, & go quickly vnto the congregacyon, and make an attonement for theym. For there is wrath gone out from the LORD, and there is a plague begon. And Aaron toke as Moses commaunded hym, and ran vnto the congregacyon: and beholde, the plague was begon amonge the people, and he put on cens, and made an attonement for the people. And he stode betweene the dead, and them that were alvyue, and the plague ceased. And the nombre of them that dyed in the plague, were fourtene thousande and .vii. hundred: besyde them that dyed aboute the busynesse of Corah. And Aaron went agayne vnto Moses vnto the doore of the tabernacle of witness, and the plague ceased.

The .xvii. Chapter.

Aarons rodde buddeth and beareth blossomes.

AND the LORD spake vnto Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israell: and take of theym, for euery pryncypall house a rodde, of theyr prynces ouer the houses of theyr fathers: euen twelue rodde, and write euery mannes name vpon his rodde. And write Aarons name vpon the staffe of Levi: for euery headmanne ouer the houses of their fathers shall haue a rodde. And put theym in the tabernacle of witness, where I wyll mete you. And his rodde whom I chose, shall blossom: So I wyll make cease frome me the grudgynges of the chyldren of Israel, which they grudge agaynst you.

And Moses spake vnto the chyldren of Israell, & all the prynces gaue hym for euery prince ouer their fathers houses, a rod: euen twelue rodde, and the rod of Aaron was amonge the rodde: And Moses put the rodde befoze the LORD, in the tabernacle of witness. And on the morowe, Moses went into the tabernacle: and beholde, the rodde of Aaron of the house of Levi, was budded, & bare bloomes and almondes. And Moses brought out al the stauies from befoze the LORD, vnto all the chyldren of Israell: and they looked vpon theym, and toke euery man his staffe.

And the LORD sayd vnto Moses: bring Aarons rod agayne befoze witness to be kept for a token vnto the chyldren of rebellyon, that theyr murmurings may cease fro me, that they die not. And Moses dyd as the LORD commaunded hym. And the chyldren of Israel spake vnto Moses, saying: beholde, we are destroyed and all come to noughte: for whosoever commeth vnto the dwellinge of the LORD, dyeth. Shall we utterly consume awaye?

The .xix. Chapter.

Of the redde kowe. The lawe of him that dyeth in the tabernacle: and of him alſo that toucheth anye vncleane thyng.

And the Lord ſpake vnto Moſes and Aarō, ſaying: this is ſ ordinaunce of ſ law: which ſ Lord commaundeth, ſaying: ſpeake vnto the childre of Israel, and let them take the a redde kowe without ſpot, wherein is no blemiſh, and whiche neuer bare yoke vpon her. And ye ſhall geue her vnto Eleazar the prieſt, and he ſhall bring her without the hoſte, and cauſe her to be ſayne before him.

And Eleazar the prieſt ſhall take of her blood vpon his ſyngert, and ſprynkle it ſtreighte towarde the tabernacle of witneſſe. vii. tymes. And he ſhall cauſe the kowe to be burnt in his ſight: both ſ kynne, fleſhe and bloude, with the douge alſo. And let ſ prieſt take Cedar wodde, and ſ ſcope and purple clothe, and caſte it vpon the kowe as ſhe burneth. And let the prieſt waſhe his clothes and bathe his fleſh in water, and then come into the hoſt, and the prieſt ſhall be vncleane vnto the euen.

And he that burneth her, ſhall waſhe his clothes in water, and bathe his fleſhe alſo in water, and be vncleane vntyll eue. And one that is cleane, ſhall goe and take vp the aſhes of the kowe, and put them without ſ hoſte in a cleane place, where they ſhall be kepte to make ſ ſprinkling water for the multitude of the children of Israel: for it is a ſynofferyng. And let him that gathered the aſhes of the kowe, waſhe his clothes, and remayne vncleane vntyll euen. And this ſhall be vnto the chyldren of Israel, and vnto the ſtrainger that dwelleth among the, a ſtatute for euer.

And he that toucheth any deade parſon, ſhalbe vncleane ſeuene dayes. And he ſhall purghe hymſelfe with aſhes the thyrde daye, and then he ſhal be cleane the ſeuenth daye. And if he purghe not hymſelfe the thirde day, then the ſeuenth daye, he ſhal not be cleane. Whofoeuer toucheth anye perſone that dyeth and ſprynkleth not himſelfe, deſpleth ſ dwelling of the Lord: and therfore that ſoule ſhalbe ſ coted out of Israel, becauſe he hath not ſprynkled the ſprynklynge water vpon him, he ſhall be vncleane, and his vncleenneſſe ſhall remayne vpon hym.

This is the lawe of the man that dyeth in a tent: al that come into the tent, and all ſ is in the tent, ſhalbe vncleane vii. dayes. And al the veſſels that be open which haue no lyd nor couerynge vpon theym, are vncleane. And whofoeuer toucheth one that is ſayne with a ſwerde in the ſeldes, or a dead perſon, or a bone of a dead manne, or a graue, ſhall shal be vncleane seven dayes.

And they shall take for an vncleane person of the burnt ashes of the synor, feryng, and put runnyng water thereto into a vessell. And a cleane person shall take a flope, and dyppe it in the water, and sprynkle it vpon the tent, and vpon all the vessels, and on the soules þ were there, and vpon hym þ touched a bone, or a slayne person, or a dead bodye, or a graue. And the cleane person shall sprynkle vpon the vncleane the thyrde dape and the seuenth dape. And the seuenth dape he shall purifie hym selfe, & washe his clothes, and bathe him selfe in water, and shal be cleane at euen.

If any be cleane & sprynkle not hym selfe, the same soule shal be destroyed fro amonge the congregacyon: for he hath defiled þ holy place of the Lord, and is not sprynkled with sprynklynge water, therfore is he vncleane. And this shal be a perpetuall lawe vnto theym. And he that sprynkleth þ sprynklynge water, shal washe his clothes.

And he that toucheth the sprynklynge water, shal be vncleane vntill euen. And what so euer the vncleane person toucheth, shal be vncleane. And the soule that toucheth it, shal be vncleane vntill the euen.

The xx. Chapter.

Die Jam opeb. The people murmure. They haue water euen out of the rocke. Edom demeth the Israellites passage thozow his realme. The death of Aaron in whose roume Eleazar succeedeth.

And the whole multitude of the children of Israell, came into the deserte of Sin, in the firste moneth, and the people dwelte at Cades. And there dyed Miriam, and was buried there. Moreover there was no water for the multitude, wherfore they gathered the felues together agaynst Moses and agaynst Aaron. And the people chode with Moses, and spake, saying: woulde God that we had perished, when oure brethren perished before the LORD. Why haue ye brought the congregacyon of the LORD vnto this wyl-dernesse, that bothe we and oure catell shoulde dye here? wherfore brought ye vs out of Egypt, to bring vs into this vngtracyous place, which is no place of seede nor of fygges, nor bynes, nor of poyngranates, nether is there anye water to drynke.

And Moses and Aaron went from þ congregacion vnto the doze of the tabernacle of wytnes, and fel vpon theyr faces. And the glorie of the Lorde appered vnto them. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: take the staffe, and gether þ and thy brother Aaron þ congregacio together, & say vnto the rocke before thei eies, that he geue forth his water. And thou shalt bring the water out of þ rocke & shalt geue the compayne drynke, and their beastes also.

* And Moses toke the staffe from before the Lorde, as he commaunded him. And Moses and Aaron gathered þ congregacyon together before the rocke, & he sayde vnto them: heare ye rebellios, muste we sette you water oute of this rocke. * And Moses lyft vp his hande with his staffe and smote the rocke two tymes, and the water came oute abundantly, and the multitude dranke and their beastes also.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses & Aaron: * because ye beleued me not, to sanctifye me in the eyes of the chyldren of Israell, therfore ye shall not bringe this congregacyon into the lād which I haue geuen them. * This is the water of stryfe, because the chyldren of Israell stroue with the Lorde, and he was sanctified vpon them.

* And Moses sente messengers from Cades vnto the kynge of Edom. Thus sayeth thy brother Israell: Thou knowest all the trauell that hath happened vs, how our fathers went downe into Egypte, and howe we haue dwelte in Egypt a long tyme, and how the Egyptians vexed both vs and our fathers. Then we cryed vnto the Lorde and he herde our voyces, and sent an angell & hath set vs oute of Egypte. And behold, we are in Cades a cylie hande by the borders of thy countrey, let vs go a good felowshipp thozow thy countrey. * we wyl not go thozow the feldes nor thozow þ vineyardes, nether will we dryke

And from this wyldernes they went to Matana, and from Matana to Mahalael, and from Mahalael to Bamoth, and from Bamoth to the valey that is in the feld of Moab in þe top of Phalgah whiche boweth towardes Ierlmō. ### The. xxij. Chapter.

¶ Kyng Balac sendeth for Balam, to thintent that he shoulde curse Israell: put Balam can do nothyng agaynst the wyl of the Lorde. Balamas ake speaketh to hym in the waye.

¶ And Balac the sonne of Ziphor saw all þe Israell had done to þe Amozites, & the Moabites were soze afracted of the people, because they were many, & abhorred þe chyldre of Israell: And Moab said vnto the elders of Madia, now shal this company lycke vp all that are rounde about vs, as an oxe licketh vp the grasse of the felde. And Balac the sonne of Ziphor was kyng of the Moabites at that tyme.

And he sent messengers vnto Balam þe son of Beor, þe interpreter whiche dwelte vpon the riuer of the land of the chyldren of hys folke, to call hym, saying: behold, there is a people come out of Egypte, whych couereth the face of the erth, and lyeth euen harde by me. Come now a felowshippe and curse me thys people. For they are to myghtie for me, so peradventure I myght be able to smyte them and to dryue the out of the lande. For I wote that who thou blestest, shal be blessed, and whome thou curstest, shal be cursed.

And the elders of Moab went wth the elders of Madian, and the reward of the sothe sayinge in their handes. And they came vnto Balam, and tolde him the wordes of Balac. And he sayde vnto the: tary here all nyght, and I wil hyng you word, euen as the Lord shall saye vnto me. And the lordes of Moab abode with Balam.

C And God came vnto Balam, & said: what men are these which are with thee? And Balam sayd vnto God: Balac the sonne of zephor, kynge of Moab, hath sent vnto me, sayinge: beholde, there is a people come out of Egypt, and couereth the face of the earth: come now therefore, and curse me the, & so peraduenture I may be able to ouercome the in batell, and to dyue theym oute. And God sayde vnto Balam: thou shalt not go with them, neyther curse the people, for they are blessed.

And Balam rose vp in the morning, and sayd vnto the lordes of Balac: get you vnto your lande, for the Lord will not suffre me to go with you. And the lordes of Moab rose vp, and went vnto Balac and sayd: Balā wolde not come with vs. And Balac set agayne a greater compaignie of lordes, and moze honorable then they. And they came to Balam and tolde hym: Thus saith Balac the sonne of zephor: oh, let nothyng let the, to come vnto me, for I wil greatly promote the vnto great honour, and wyl do what so euer thou sayest vnto me, come therefore I praye the, curse me thys people.

D And Balam answered, and sayd vnto the seruauntes of Balac: * If Balac wolde geue me his house full of syluer and golde, I can go no further then the worde of the Lord my God, to do lesse or moze. Neuerthelesse tarye ye here all nyght: that I maye wete, what the Lord wyl saye vnto me once moze. And God came vnto Balam by nyght, and sayde vnto hym: If the men come to fet thee, ryse vp, and go with theim: but what I saye vnto thee, that onelye thou shalt do.

And Balam rose vp early and sadeld his asse, & went to the lordes of Moab. But God was angry because he went. And the angel of the Lord stode in the waye agaynst hym. And he ryd vpon his asse and two seruauntes with hym. And when the asse sawe the aungell of the Lord stande in the waye and hys swerde drawen in his hande, he turned a side out of the way, and went out into the felde. And Balam smote the asse, to turne her into the waye.

And the angell of the Lord went and stode in a pathe betwene the vyneyardes, where was a wall on the one syde and an other on the other. Whe the asse sawe the angell of the Lord, he wrenched vnto the wall, and thrust Balam's fote vnto the wall, and he smote her agayne. And the angel of the Lord went forther & stode in a narrow place, where was no way to turne, eyther to the ryght hande or to the lyfte. And when the asse sawe the aungell of the Lord, he fell downe vnder Balam: and Balam was wroth, and smote the asse wyth a staffe. And the Lord opened the mouth of the asse, and he sayde vnto Balā: what haue I done vnto the, that thou smitest me thus thre tymes? And Balam sayde vnto the asse: because thou hast mocked me. I would that I had a swerde in myne hande, that I myght now kill the. And the asse sayd vnto Balam: am not I thyne asse whiche thou hast ridde vpon sence thou wast bozne vnto thys daye? Was I euer wonte to do so vnto the? And he sayd nay.

And the Lord opened the eyes of Balam that he sawe the aungell of the Lord standynge in the way, with hys swerde drawen in his hand. And he bowed him selfe & fel flat on his face. And the angell of the Lord sayde vnto him: wherfore smyttest thou thyne asse thus iii. tymes? beholde I came out to resist the, for thy waye is contrarie vnto me, and the asse sawe me, and auoyded me thre tymes: or else (hadde he not turned fro me) I had surely slayne thee and saued her alpye. And Balam sayde vnto the aungell of the Lord: I haue synned: for I wyl not that thou stodest in the way agaynst me. Nowe therefore yf it displease thyne eyes, I wyl turne agayne. And the angell sayd vnto Balam, go with the men: but in any wyse, what I say vnto the, that saye. And Balam wente wyth the lordes of Balac.

And when Balac herde that Balam was come, he went out agaynst him vnto a cytye of Moab, that stode in the border border of Arad, which was the vtmostte parte of hys countre. And Balac sayde vnto Balam: dyd I not sende for the, to cal the wherfore camest thou not vnto me. thinkest thou that I am not able to promote the vnto honoure. And Balam sayde vnto Balac: Loo, I am come vnto the. * But I can saye nothyng at all saue what God putteth in my mouthe that muste I speake. And Balam went wyth Balac, and they came vnto the *large cytie. And Balac offered oxen and shepe, and sent for Balam, and for the lordes that were wyth him.

Balam blesteth the people, where he was requyred to curse them and prophesied that they shalbe a great people.

AND on the moynynge Balac toke Balam & broughte hym vp into the hie place of Baal, and thence he sawe vnto the vtmostte parte of the people. And Balam sayde vnto Balac: bylde me here seuen alters, and proupe here seuen bullockes and seuen rammes. And Balac dyd as Balam sayde. And Balac and Balam offered on euery alter, a bullock and a ramme. And Balam sayde vnto Balac: stande by the sacrifice, whyle I goo to wete whether the LORD wyl come and mete me; and whatsoeuer he sheweth me, I wyl tell the: and he went forth wyth. And God came vnto Bala, and Balam sayd vnto hym: I haue prepared. vii. alters, and haue offred vpon euery alter, a bullock and a ram And the Lorde put a sayinge in Balams mouthe, and sayde: go agayne to Balac and saye on this wyse. And he wente agayne vnto hym, and loo, he stode by hys sacrifice, bothe he and all the lordes of Moab. And he began his parable and sayde: * Balac the kyng of Moab hath fet me frome Mesopotamita oute of the mountaynes of the east, sayinge: come, and curse me Jacob, come and despye me Israell. how shall I curse whome God curseth not, and how shal I desle whom the Lorde despyeth not. frome the toppe of the rockes I se hym, and frome the hylls I beholde hym: loo, the people, * shall dwell by hym selfe, and shall not bee * rekened amonge other nacyns.

And Balac sayd vnto Balam, what hast thou done vnto me. I set the to curse myne enemyes: and beholde, thou blestest them. And he answered and sayde: must I not kepe that and speake it, which the Lord hathe put in my mouthe. And Balac sayde vnto him: Come I pray the with me vnto another place whence thou shalt se them, & shalt se but the vtmostte parte of them, and shalt not se them all: & curse me them there. And he brought hym in to a playne felde where menne myght se farre, euen to the top of Phalgah, and bylt. vii. alters, and offered a bullock and a ramme on euery alter. And he sayd vnto Balac: stande here by thy sacrifice, whyle I go yonder. And the Lord met Balam, and * put wordes in hys mouthe, and sayde: go agayne vnto Balac, and thus saye. And when he came to him: beholde, he stode by his sacrifice, and the lordes of Moab wyth him. And Balac sayd vnto hym: what saith the Lorde.

And he toke by his parable, and said: ryle by Balac and heare, and heken vnto me & sonne of syphor. The * Lorde is not a man, that he can lye, nether the sonne of a mā that he can repent: should he save, and not do: or should he speake and not make it good: beholde, I haue begon to blesse, and haue blessed, and canne not goo backe thereto. He behelde no wyckednesse in Jacob, nor sawe Idolatrye in Israell: The Lorde, his God is wyth hym, and the * triumph of a kynge amonge them. * God that broughte them out of Egypte, is as the strengthe of an vnycorne vnto the, for there is no forcerer, in Jacob, nor sothelayer in Israell. when the tyme cometh, it wylbe sayde of Jacob and of Israell, what God hathe wroughte. Beholde, the people shall ryle by as a lyoness, and heue by hym selfe as a ly on, and shall not lye downe agayne, vntyll he haue eaten of the praye, and dronke of the bloude of them that are sayne.

The people committeth fornication with the daughters of Moab. Whiche hymeth Samri and Cozbi. God commaundeth to kill the Madianites.

And Israell dwelt i Sittim, and the people began to committe whoredome with the daughters of Moab, whiche called the people vnto the sacrifice of theyr goddes. And the people ate and worshipped theyr goddes, and Israell coupled himself vnto Baal Peor. Then the Lorde was angry with Israell, and sayd vnto Moses: take al the heades of þe people, & hange them vp vnto þe Lord agaynst the sunne, that the wrath of the Lorde maye tourne awaye from Israell. And Moses sayde vnto the judges of Israell: go and sle those menne that toynd the selues vnto Baal Peor.

And beholde, one of the chyldren of Israel came and brought vnto his brethren, a Madianitische wyfe euen in the syghte of Moses, and in the syght of all the multitude of the chyldren of Israel, as they were wepyng in the doore of the tabernacle of witness. And whē Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar the sonne of Aaron the prestes saw it, he rose vp out of the companye and toke a wepon in hys hande, and wente after the man of Israell into the horehouse, and thruste them thorow: bothe the manne of Israel and also the woman, euen thorow the helpe of her. And the plage ceased from the chyldre of Israel: And there died in the plage. xxiiij. thousand.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: Phinehes the sone of Eleazar the sonne of Aaron the prest, hath turned myne anger awaye from the chyldre of Israel, because he was gelous for my sake amonge them, that I had not consumed the chyldren of Israel in my gelousye. wherefore saye: beholde, I geue vnto him my coneuant of peace and he shal haue it, & his seed after him, euen the coneuant of the prestes office for euer: because he was gelous for his Gods sake, & made an attonement for the chyldren of Israel. The name of the Israelite whiche was synnten with the Madianitish wyfe, was Samari the sonne of Salu, a lorde of an aunciente house among the Simeonites. And the name of the Madianitish wyfe, was Cozbi the daughter of Zura heade ouer the people of an auncient house in Madian.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: vexe þe Madianites, and smite them, for they haue troubled you wyth theyr wyles, with the whiche they haue begyled you, thorow Peor and thorow theyr sister Cozbi the daughter of a lord in Madian, whiche was slayne in the daye of the plage for Peors sake.

And they brought the captiues and that whiche they had taken, and al the spople vnto Moyses and Eleazar the priest, and vnto the companie of the childre of Israel, euē vnto the hoste, in the felde of Moab by Jordan, nye to Jericho.

And Moyses and Eleazar the priest, and all the lordes of the congregacion went out of the hoste against them. And the Lord spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: take the summe of the praye that was taken, both of the women & of catel, thou & Eleazar the priest, and the auncient heades of the congregacion. And deuyde it into two partes, betwene them that toke the warre vpon them, & went out to battell, and all the congregacion. And take a porcion vnto the Lord of the men of warre, which went oute to battell: one of fyue hundred, of the women and of the oren, and of þe asses, and of the shepe: and ye shal take it of their halfe and geue it vnto Eleazar the priest, an heue offeringe vnto the Lord. And of the halfe of the chyldren of Israel, take one of fyfte, of the women, of the oren, of the asses, and of the shepe, and of all maner of bestes: and geue them vnto the leuytes whiche wayte vpon the habytacion of the Lord.

And Moyses and Eleazar þe priest dyd as the Lord commaunded Moyses. And the botye, and the praye which the men of warre had caught, was. vi. hundred thousande and. lxxv. thousande shepe: and. lxxii. thousande oren, lxi. thousande asses: and. xxxii. thousande women that had lye by no man.

And the halfe whiche was þe parte of them that went out to warre, was. iii. hundred thousande: and. xxxvii. thousande and fyue hundred shepe: And the Lordes parte of the shepe was. vi.

hundred and. lxxv. And the oren were xxxvi. thousande, of whiche the Lordes parte was. lxxii. And the asses were xxx. thousande and fyue hundred, of whiche the Lordes parte was. lxi. And the women were. xvi. thousande, of which the Lordes parte was. xxxii. soules.

And Moyses gaue the summe whiche was the Lordes heue offeringe, vnto Eleazar the priest: as the Lord commaunded Moyses. And the officers of thousandes of the hoste, the captaynes ouer the thousandes, and the captaynes ouer the hundredes came forth, and saide vnto Moyses: Thy seruantes haue taken the summe of the men of warre, which were vnder our hãde, and there lacked, not one man of them. We haue therfore broughte a present vnto the Lord what euery man founde of Jewels of golde, cheynes, bracelettes, rynges, earynges & spangels; to make an attonemente for oure soules before the Lord.

And Moyses and Eleazar toke the golde of them: Jewels of all maner facions. ## The. xxxii. Chapter.

¶ To Raue and Gad and to halfe the trybe of Manasse, is promysed þe possesion beyonde Jordan eastward: yf they bynge their bythens into the lande of promys.

The

The childre of Ruben, and the childre of Gad, had an exceeding great multitude of catel. And when they sawe the lande of Jazer, and the lade of Gilead that it was an apte place for catel, they came and spake vnto Moses & Eleazar the priest & vnto the lordes of the congregation, saying: The lande of Astaroth & Dibon & Jazer, and Aenrah & Hesbon and Elealeh, and Sabam & Bebo and Beon, which contre the Lord smote before the congregation of Israel: is a lade for catell, and we thy seruantes haue catel: wherfore (sayde they) yf we haue founde grace in thy syght, let this lade be geuen vnto thy seruantes to possesse, and byynge vs not ouer Jordan.

B And Moses sayde vnto the children of Gad and of Ruben:shal your brethren go to warre, and ye tarpe here? Wherfore discorage ye the heartes of the children of Israel, for to go ouer into the lande, whiche the Lord hath geuen them?

* This did your fathers, when I sent them from Cadeg barne to se the lade. And they went by euen vnto the ryuer of Escol, and sawe the lande, and dyscorage the heartes of the childre of Israel, & they should not go into the lade, whiche the Lord had geuen them.

C And the Lord was wroth the same tyme, and sware, sayinge: * None of the men that came oute of Egypte from twentye yere olde and aboue, shal se the lande whiche I sware vnto Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, because they haue not continuallye folowed me: saue Caleb the sonne of Iephune the Kenesye, and Josua the sonne of Nun: for they haue folowed me continuallye. And the Lord was angrie with Israel, & made them wandze in the wildernesse. xl. yere, vntyl al the generacions that had done euell in the syght of the Lord, were consumed.

And beholde, ye are rysen by in poure fathers stede, to the encrease of synful men, and to augmente the farse wrath of the Lord, to Israel warde. For yf ye tourne awaye from after him, he wyll yet agayne leaue the people in the wildernesse, so shal ye destroy al this folke. And they wente nere hym and sayde:

we wyll bylde shepfoldes here for our shepe, and for our catel, and cityes for oure childzen: But we oure selues wyll go readye armed before the childzen of Israel, vntyll we haue broughte them vnto theyr place. And oure chylde shal dwel in the fenced cyties, because of the inhabiteurs of the lande. And we wyll not retourne vnto oure houses, vntyll the chylde of Israel haue inherited: euer y man his enheritaunce. For we wyll not enherit with them oh ponder syde Jordan forwarde, because oure enheritaunce is fallen to vs on this syde Jordan eastwarde.

And Moses sayde vnto them: * If ye wyll do this thyng, that ye wyll go all harnessed before the Lord to warre, & wyll go all of you in harnesse ouer Jordan before the Lord, vntill he haue cast out his enemyes before him: and vntyll the lande be subdued before the Lord, then ye shall retourne and be withoute synne againste the Lord, and againste Israel, and this lande shalbe your possession before the Lord. But and yf ye wyll not do so, beholde, ye synne againste the Lord: and be sure poure synne wil fynde you out. Bylde your cyties for poure childzen & fouldes for your shepe, and se ye do that ye haue spoken. And the childre of Gad and of Ruben spake vnto Moses, sayinge: thy seruantes wil do as my lord commaundeth. Oure childzen, oure wyues, substance and all oure catel shall remayne here in the cittes of Gilead. But * we thy seruantes wyll go all harnessed for the warre, vnto battel before the Lord, as my lord hath sayde.

And Moses commaunded Eleazar the priest, and Josua the sonne of Nun, and the auncient heades of the trybes of the children of Israel: and sayde vnto them: If the childre of Gad and Ruben wyll go with you ouer Jordan, all prepared to fyght before the Lord: the the lade is subdued vnto you, geue the the lande of Gilead to possesse, but and yf they wyll not go ouer with you in harnesse, then they shall haue theyr possessions amonge you in the lande of Canaan. And the chylde of Gad and Ruben answered, sayinge: that which the Lord hath said vnto thy seruantes, we

The. xxxv. Chapter.

¶ Into the Leuites must be geuen Cities and subburbes. The Cities of refuge or sanctuaries. The lawe of manquelling. For one mannes witness shal no man be condemned.

¶ And the Lord spake vnto Moses in the feldeg of Moab by Jordā, ouer agāst Jericho, saying: commaunde & chyldren of Israel, that they geue vnto the Leuites of & enheritaunce of their possession: * cities to dwell in. And ye shal geue also vnto the cities of & Leuites, subburbes rounde aboute them. The cities shalbe for them to dwell in, & & subburbes for their catel, possession & al manner beastes of theirs. And & subburbes of the cities whiche ye shal geue vnto the Leuites, shal reach from & wal of & citie outwarde, a thousande cubytes rounde aboute. And ye shal measure w: out the citie, and make the vtmost border of & eastsyde: two thousande cubytes. And the vtmost border of the southsyde: two thousande cubytes. And the vtmost border of & westsyde: two thousande cubytes: and the vtmost border of the northsyde: two thousande cubites also: and the citie shalbe in the middes. And these shal be the subburbes of they: ctyes.

And amonge the cities whiche ye shal geue vnto & leuites, * there shal be sixe cities of straunches whiche ye shal geue to that intent & he whiche killeth, maye flye thither. And to them ye shal adde xlii. cities mo: so that al & cities whiche ye shal geue the Leuites, shalbe. xlviii. with they: subburbes. And of the cities whiche ye shal geue oute of the possessions of the chyldre of Israel, ye shal geue many oute of their possession that haue much, & fewe out of they: possessions that haue lytle: so that euery trybe shal geue of hys ctyes vnto the Leuites, accordynge vnto the enheritaunce whiche he enheriteth.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: * when ye be come ouer Jordan in to & lande of Canaan, ye shal bylde cities whiche shalbe priuiledged townes for you: that he whiche sleeth a man vnwares, maye flye thither. And the cities shalbe to sle fro the executer of bloude, that he whiche kyllen dye not, vntil he stande before & congregaciō in iudgemēt. And of these vi. fre cities whiche ye shal geue, iii. ye shal geue on this syde Jordan, and iii. in the lande of Canaan. And these syre fre ctyes shalbe for the chyldren of Israel and for the straunger, and for him that dwelleth amonge you: that all they whiche kyl any persons vnwares, maye maye flye thyther.

* If any man smyte another with a wepon of iron that he dye, then he is a murtherer, and shal dye for it. If he smyte him with a throwynge stone that he dye therewith, then he shal dye: For he is a murtherer and shalbe slayne therfore. If he smyte him with a hāde wepon of wod that he dye therewith, the he shal dye: for he is a murtherer & shalbe slayne therfore.

The iustice of bloude shal see the murtherer, as sone as he fyndeth hym: If he thurst at him * of hate, or hurle at him with laynge of wayte that he dye, or smyte him w his hāde of enuye, that he dye, he that smote him, shal die, for he is a murtherer. The iustyce of bloude shal see him as soone as he fyndeth him.

But and yf he pushed him by chaūce, and not of hate, or cast at him with any maner of thyng, and not of laynge of wait: or cast any maner of stone at him, that he dye therewith, and saw him not: And he cast it vpon him and he dye, but was not his enemye, nether sought him any harme: Then the congregaciō shal iudge betwene the sleer, and the executer of bloude in suche cases. And the congregacion shal delpyer the sleer out of the hande of the iudge of bloude, and shal restore hym agayne vnto the fraūchysed cite, whether he was fled. And he shal hyde there vnto the deathe of the hye prieste, whiche was anointed with holy oyle.

But and yf he came without the borders of his priuiledged cite, whether he was fled, yf the auenger of bloude finde him withoute the borders of hys fre towne, he shal see the murtherer and be gyltlesse, because he shoulde haue hyde in his fre towne, vntyl the death of the hye prieste, and after the death of p hye prieste, he shal retourne agayne vnto the lande of his possession. And this shalbe an ordinaunce and a lawe vnto you, amonge youre children after you in all youre habitacions.

Whosoener slepeth, shalbe slayne at the mouth of * witnesses. For one witnesse shal not answere against one person to put him to death. Moreouer ye shall take none amendes for the lyfe of p murtherer which is worthy to die: But he shal be put to deathe. Also ye shall take none attonement for him that is fled to a fre cytie, that he shoulde come agayne, and dwel in the lāde, before the deathe of the hye prieste. And se that ye polute not the lande which ye are in for bloude despyl: th the lande. And the lāde can none other wyse be clesed of the bloude p is shed therein, but by p bloude of him that shed it. Despyle not therfore the lande whiche ye inhabite, and in the myddes of whiche I also dwel amonge the children of Israel.

The. xxxvi. Chapter.

In order for the marriage of the daughters of zelaphead. One of the tribes maye not marie with a norther, but every one must take him a wyfe of his owne trybe.

And the auncient heades of the children of Gilead the sonne of Machir, the sonne of Manasse, of the kynred of the children of Joseph, came forth and spake before Moses and the prynces whiche were auncient heades amonge the children of Israel, and sayde: * The Lorde commaunded my lord, to geue the lande to enheret by lotte to the children of Israel. And then my lord commaunded in the name of the Lorde to geue the enheritaunce of * zelaphead our brother vnto his doughters. Now when any of the sonnes of the trybes of Israel take them to wyues, then shall their enheritaunce be taken from p enheritaunce of oure fathers, and shal be put vnto the enheritaunce of the trybe in whiche they are and shal be taken from the lot of oure enheritaunce. And when the yere of iubelye commeth vnto the children of Israel, then shal their enheritaunce be put vnto the enheritaunce of the tribe wherein they are, and so shall their enheritaunce be taken awaye from the enheritaunce of p trybe of oure fathers.

And Moses commaunded the chyldren of Israel, at the mouth of p Lord, sayinge: the tribe of the children of Joseph haue sayde well. This therfore doeth the Lorde comaunde the doughters of zelaphead, sayinge: * let them be wyues to whome they the selfe thincke best, but in the kynred of the trybe of their father shall they marie, that þe enheritaunce of the children of Israel coule not from trybe to trybe. But that the children of Israel maye abyde, euerie man in the enheritaunce of þe tribe of his fathers. And euerie doughter that posselseth anye enheritaunce amonge the trybes of the children of Israel, shalbe wyfe vnto one of the kynted of the trybe of her father: that the chyldren of Israel maye enioye euerie man the enheritaunce of his father: and that the enheritaunce go not from one trybe to another: but that the trybes of the children of Israel, maye abyde euerie man in his owne enheritaunce.

D And as the Lorde commaunded Moyses: euen so did the daughters of Zelaphead: Mahela, Chirza, Hagla, Milcha and Noa, and were married vnto theyr fathers brothers sonnes, of the kynted of the chyldre of Manasses the sonne of Joseph: and so they had theyr enheritaunce in the trybe of the kynted of theyr father.

These are the commaundementes and lawes whiche the Lorde commaunded thowre Moyses, vnto the chyldren of Israel in the felde of Moab vpon Jordan nye vnto Jericho.

The ende of the.iiii. boke of Moyses.

A Prologe in to the fyfte boke of Moyses called Deuteronomye.

This is a boke worthy to be red both daye and nyght and neuer to be out of hādes. For it is the most excellent of all þe boke of Moyses. It is easy also and lyght & a verie pure Gospel: that is to wete, a preachinge of fayth and loue: deducyng the loue to God out of faith, and the loue of a mā neyghboure out of the loue of god. Here in also thou maist lerne right meditation or contemplacion, whiche is nothyng els save the callinge to mynde & a repeatyng in þe harte of the gloriouse and wonderfull deades of God and of his terribile handelyng of his enemyes and mercyfull entreatyng of them þe come when he calleth them whiche thing this boke dothe & almost nothyng els.

In the.iiii. first chapters, he reherceth the benefites of God done vnto them, to prouoke them to loue, and his myghtie dedes done aboue al natural power and beyonde all natural capacite of fatbe, that they myghte beleue god and truste in him and in his strengthe. And thyrlyche he reherceth the fierce plagis of God vpon his enemyes, and on them whiche thowre impacience & vnbefelkefell from him: partely to tame and abate the appetites of the fleshe whiche alwaye fyghe against the spirite, and partely to bypde þe wilde ragynge lustes of them in whom was no spirite: þe thought they had no power to do good of loue, yet at the least wape they shoulde abstayne from outwarde euil for feare of warthe and cruel vengeance whiche shoulde fall vpon them and mortely fynde them oute, yf they caste vp goddes noyter & runne at ryorre beyonde his lawes and ordinaunces. Wherouer he chargeth them to put nought to, nor take oughte awaye from goddes wordes, but to be diligent onely to kepe them in remembrance and in the harte and to teache their chyldren, for feare of forgettyng. And to beware of ther of makinge imagery or of bowpyng the selues vnto images, saying: Ye sawe no image whē God spake vnto you, but hearde a voyce onely, and that voyce kepe and herunto cleaue, for it is youre lyfe and it shal saue you. And finally yf (as the scryptie of all fleshe is) they shall haue fallen from God and he haue brought them in to trouble, aduersite, and combraunce and all necessite: yet, yf they repent and turne, he promyseth them that God shall remembre his merce and receiue them to grace agayne.

In the fyfte he repeteth the. x. commaundementes and that they myghte se a cause to do them of loue, he byddeth them remembre that they were bounden in Egypte and howe God deliuered them with a myghty hande and a stretched oute arme, to serue him and to kepe his commaundementes: as Dauid sayeth that we are boughte w Christes bloude, and therefore are his seruauntes & not our owne, & ought to seke his wil & honour onely & to loue & serue one another for his sake.

In the syxte he setteth out the fountayne of all commaundementes: that is, that they beleue howe that there is but one God that doeth all, & therefore ought onely to be beloued with all the harte, al the soule, and al the myghte. For loue onely is the fulfyllinge of the commaundementes, as Dauid also sayeth vnto the Romaynes, & Galathians ykewyse. He warneth them also þe they forget not the commaundementes, but teache them their chyldren and to shewe their chyldren also howe God deliuered them oute of the bondage of the Egyptians to serue him & his commaundementes, that the chyldren myghte se a cause to worke of loue, ykewyse.

The seuenth is all together of fayth: he remoueth all occasions that might withdraue them from the faith, and pulleth them also from al confidence in them selues, and sturceth them vp to truste in God boldlye, and onely.

Of the eyght chapter, thou seiest howe þe cause of all temptation is, that a man myghte se his owne harte. For when I am broughte in to that extremitie that I must either suffere or forsake god, then I shall feale howe muche I beleue and trust in him, and how much I loue him. In like maner, yf my brother do me euil for my good, the yf I loue him when there is no cause in hym, I se that my loue was of god, and euen so yf I the hate him, I feale and perceiue that my loue was but worldly. And finally he sturceth them to the faith and loue of god, and dyspueeth them from all confidence of their owne selues.

In the nyght also, he mouerth them vnto sayth and to put their trust in god, and draweth them from confidence of them selues by rehersynges al þe wickednes whiche they had wrought from the first day he knewe them vnto that same day. And in the ende he rehereth howe he conured god in Horeb and ouercame hym with prayer, where thou mayst learne þe right maner to pray.

In the tenth, he rekeneth vp the pith of all lawes & the keepinge of the lawe in the heert: which is to feare God, loue and serue hym, with al their heart, soule and might and kepe his commaundementes of loue. And he sheweth a reason why they shoulde that do: euen because god is lord of heuen and erth and hath also done al for them of his owne goodnes without their deseruinge. And then out of the loue vnto God, he bringeth the loue vnto a mans neighbour, saying: God is lord aboue all lordes and hath al his seruantes indifferentlye, as wel the poore and feble and the straunger, as the riche & mightye, & therefore wyl that we loue the poore and the strainger. And he addeth a cause, for ye were straungers & god deliuered you and hath brought you vnto a land where ye be at home. Loue the straunger therefore for his sake.

In the. xi. he exorteth them to loue and feare god, and rehereth the terrible deades of god vpon his enemies, and on the that rebelled agaynst hym. And he testifieth vnto them bothe what wyl folowe if they loue and feare god, and what also if they dispise hym and breake hys commaundement.

In the. xii. he commaundeth to put out of the way al that might be an occasiō to hurt þe sayth, & forbiddeth to do ought after their owne mindes, or to alter the worde of God.

In the. xiii. he forbiddeth to hearken vnto oughte saue vnto goddes worde: no thoughe he which counsaileth contrarie shoulde come with miracles, as Jaule doth vnto the Galathians.

In the. xiiii. the eaters are forbidden, partly for the violence of them, & partly to cause hate betwene the herthen & them, that they haue no cōuersion together, in that one abhorreth what þe other eateth. Vnto this. xv. chapter al pertaine vnto sayth and loue chespe. And in this. xv. he beginneth to entreate more specially of thinges pertaining vnto þe chespe welch & equite & exorteth vnto the loue of a mans neighbour. And in the. xvi. amonge other he forgetteth not þe same. And in þe. xvii. he entreateth of right & equite chespe, inso muche þe when he loketh vnto sayth & vnto the punishment of ydolaters, he yettendeth in a lawe of loue and equite: forbidding to condempne any mā vnder lesse then two witnes at the lest and commaundeth to bring the trespassers vnto the open gate of the cite where al men goe in & out, that al men might heare the cause and see þe he had but righte. But the pope hath founde a better waye, euen to appose him without anye accusar & that secretly, that no man knowe whether he haue right or no, either heare his articles or answer: for feare lest the people shoulde see whether it were so or no.

In the. xviii. he forbiddeth al falsch and deuylis craftes that hurt true sayth. More ouer because the people could not heare the voyce of the lawe spoken to them in fyre, he promisseth them another prophete to bringe them better ridinges whiche was spoken of Christ our sauour.

In the. xix. and so forth vnto the ende of the xxvii. is almost altogether of loue vnto our neighbours & of lawes of equite and honestie with holwe and then a respite vnto sayth.

The. xxviii. is a terrible chapter & to be rebled at: A christens heart might wel bleed for sorowe at the readinge of it for feare of the wrath that is lyke to come vpon vs accordinge vnto al the curses whiche thou there readeest. For accordinge vnto these curses hath God delte with al nacions, after they were fallen in to the abominacions of blyndnesse.

The. xxix. is like terrible, with a godly lest in the ende that we shoulde leaue serching of goddes secretres and geue diligence to walke accordinge to þe he hath opened vnto vs. For þe keepinge of the commaundementes of God teacheth wisdom as thou mayst see in þe same chapter, where Moses sayeth, kepe the commaundmentes, that ye maye vnderstande what ye ought to do. But to serch goddes secretres blynderth a man as it is well proued by the swarmes of oure sophisters, whose wyse booke are now when we loke in the scripture, founde but ful of folyshnesse.

The. i. Chapter.

A bipte rehercall of thynges done before, frome the pytyng at mounte Horeb vntil they came vnto Cades barne.

These be the wordes whiche Moses spake vnto all Israell, on the othert syde Jordan in the wyldernes: and in the felde by the red sea, betwene Pharan and Tophell, Laban, Hazeroth, and Disahab. xi. dayes iourney from Horeb vnto Cades barne, by the waye that leadeth vnto mounte Seir. And it fortuneth the fyrst daye of the. xi. moneth, in the fortieth yere, that Moses spake vnto the chylzen of Israell accordinge vnto all that the Lord had geuen hym in commaundemente vnto them, after þe he had smitten Sehon the kyng of the Amozites whiche dwelte in Hesbon, and Og kyng of Basan whiche dwelte at Asaroth, in Edrai.

And there I sayde vnto you: Ye are come vnto the hilles of the Amorites, whiche the Lorde our God dothe geue vnto vs. Beholde, the Lorde thy God hath set the lande before the: goo by and conquere it, as the Lorde God of thy fathers sayeth vnto thee: fear not, nether be discoraged, And then ye came vnto me euery one and sayde: Let vs sende men before vs, to searche vs out the land, & to bringe vs worde agayn, both what way we shall go by, & vnto what cities we shall come. And the sayinge pleased me wel: and I toke out, xii. men of you, of euery tribe one. Notwithstandinge, ye wolde not consent to goe by, but were disobedyent vnto the mouth of the Lorde your God, and murmured in your tentes, and sayde: bycause the Lorde hateth vs, therfore he hath brought vs oute of the lande of Egypte, to deliuer vs in to the handes of the Amorites, and to dystrope vs. Howe shall we goe by? Our brethren haue discoraged our heartes, saynge: the people is greater and taller then we, and the cities are great and walled euen by to heauen, & mozeouer we haue sene the sonnes of the Enakimes there.

fathers, saue Caleb the sonne of Je-phune, he shall see it, *and to hym wyll I geue þ lād which he hath walked in,
& to his childrē, because he hath continuallye folowed þ Lorde. Lykewise *þ Lorde was angrye w me for your sakz, sayinge: thou also shalt not goe in thither. But Josua þ sōne of Nun which stādeth before the, he shall go in thither.
Beholde hym therfore, for he shall de-your enemies. *And when I tolde you ye woulde not heare: but disobeyed the

Then the Amorites which dwelt in you in Seir, euen vnto Horma. And ye came agayne, & wept before the Lorde:

voyce nor geue you audience. And so ye abyde in *Cades a longe ceason, according vnto þ tyme that ye remained in other places.

The notes.

- a. The people beinge vnfaithful, woulde not go vnto the lande promised, but murmured against the Lorde þ promised it, because they beleued not þ he was faithful & wold fulfil his promis.
b. Their conscience gaue them, that they had de-serued to be hated of the Lorde, & therfore through vnbelcke, they thought þ what soeuer wente agaynst them, came of the hatred of God. Yea, this vnbelcke caused them to thincke, that their deliuerance out of the seruitude of Egypt came of hatred. But yf euer God may be sayd to hate a man, it is when he regardeth him not but suffereth him to to仁ue at large without any gouernance of hys grace.

c. Here is the very ymage of vthat liue in thys most perillous tyme. For euen we likewise, where Goddes word is, there beleue w: not: and where it is not, there be we bolde.

The. ii. Chapter.

¶ A reherfall of that whyche was done from the tyme that they departed from Cades barne, vnto the battell agaynst the kynges Sehon and Og.

When we tourned & toke oure iourney in to the wilderness, euen by the waye to the read sea as the Lorde commaunded me. And we compassed the mountayns of Seir a longe tyme. Then the Lorde spake vnto me, sayinge: ye haue compassed these mountayns lōg ynough, tourne you northwarde. And warne þ people, sayinge: Ye shal go thorow the costes of your brethre the childrē of Essau whiche dwel in Seir, & they shalbe afrayed of you: But take good hede vnto youre selues, þ ye prouoke them not, for I wyll not geue you of their lande, no not so muche as a fote breade: *bycause I haue geuen mounte Seir vnto Esau to possesse: ye shal bie meate of them for money to cate, & ye shal bye water of them for money to dryncke.
For the Lord thy God hath blessed the in all the workes of thyne hande, and knew the as thou wentest thorow this great wylternesse. Moreouer þ Lorde thy God hath bene with the this. xl. yeres, so that thou hast lacked nothinge.

And when we were departed frome our brethzen, þ children of Esau which dwelt in Seir, by the felde way fro Eslath & Ezion Gaber we tourned and went the way to the wilderness of Moab. Then þ Lorde sayde vnto me, se *þ thou were not þ Moabites, nether prouoke the to battel, for I wyll not geue the of their lande to possesse: because I haue geuen Ar vnto þ children of Loth to possesse. The Emims dwelt there in in tymes passe, a people great, many and tall, as the Enakims: whiche also were taken for geauntes as the Enakims: And the Moabites called them Emims. In lyke maner the Moabites dwelt in Seir before tyme, whiche the childrē of Esau cast out, & destroyed the before the, & dwelt there in their stede:
as Israel did in þ land of his possessio, whiche the Lorde gaue them. Nowe the by (sayd I) a get you ouer the ryuer zared: and we went ouer the ryuer zared the space in which we came from Cades barne vntyl we were come ouer the ryuer zared, was. xxxviii. yeres, vntyll all the generacion of the men of warre were wasted out of the host, as þ Lorde swate vnto them. * for in dede the hande of þ Lord was agaynst the,

to dystrope the out of the hoile, tyl they were consumed.

D And as lone as al the men of warre were consumed and deade fro amonge the people, then the Lorde spake vnto me, sayinge: thou shalt go thorow Ar, þ cost of Moab this day: & shalt come vnto the chyldre of Ammon: se that thou be se the not, nor yet prouoke the.
for I wyl not geue the of the lande of þ chyldren of Ammon to possesse, because I haue geuen it vnto the chyldren of Loth to possesse. That also was taken for a lande of geauntes, and geauntes dwelt there in olde tyme, & the Ammonnites called the zamzumims, a people that was great, many & talle, as the Enakims. But the Lorde dystroyed the before þ Ammonites, & they cast the out and they dwelt there in their steade: as he dyd for the chyldren of Esau which dwelt in Seir: Euen as he dystroyed the Hozims before them: and they cast them out and dwel in their steade vnto this day. And the Auims which dwelt in Hazarim euen vnto Aza, the Caph-thozims whiche came out of Caphthor dystroyed the & dwelt in their rowmes.

C Ryse vp, take your iourney and go ouer the ryuer Arnon. Beholde, * I haue geuen in to thy hand Schon the Amorite kyng of Hesbon, & hys lande.
Goe to and conquere, and prouoke hym to battell. Thys daye I wyl beginne to sende the feare and dreade of thee, vpon al nacions that are vnder al po-tes of heauen: so that when they heare speake of þ they shall tremble & quake for feare of thee.

F Then I sent messengers oute of the wyldernesse of the east vnto Schon kyng of Hesbon, in wordes of peace, sayinge: * Let me go thorowe thy land.
I wyl goo alwaies alonge by the hve way: & wyl nether tourne vnto þ right hande nor to the lefte. Sell me meate for money for to eate, & geue me drinke for money for to dryncke. I wyl goo thorow by fote onely * (as the chyldren of Esau dyd vnto me whiche dwell in Seir & the Moabites whiche dwell in Ar) vntyll I be come ouer Jordan, into the lande whiche the Lorde oure God geueth vs.

But Schon the kyng of Hesbon wolde not lette vs passe by hym, for the Lorde thy God had hardened his sprite and made his heart tough, by cause he woulde delpyer hym in thy handes as it is come to passe thys daye.

And the Lorde sayd vnto me: beholde, I haue begonne to set Schon and his lande before the: goe to & conquere, & thou mayste possesse his lande. * Then Bothe Schon and all hys people came out agayst vs vnto battell at Jahaza.
And the Lorde set hym before vs, & we smote hym & his sones & al his people.

And we toke all his cities the same ceason and dystroyed al the cities with men, women and chyldren, & let nothing remaiyn, saue þ cattel onely we caught vnto our selues, and the spoyle of the cities whiche we toke from Arret vpon the bynke of the ryuer of Arnon, and the cite in þ ryuer vnto Gilead: there was not one cite to stronge for vs.
The Lorde oure God delpyered al vnto vs: onely vnto the lande of the children of Ammon ye came not, nor vnto al the coste of the ryuer Jaboche, nor vnto the cities in the mountaynes, nor vnto what soener the Lorde oure God forbade vs.

The notes.

- a. Emim, is a kind of giauntes, so called, because they were terrible and cruell. For Emim signifieth terribleness.
- b. Hozims, a kynde of gyauntes, and signifieth noble, because that of pride they called them selues nobles or gentles.
- c. zamzumims, a kynde of gyauntes, and signifieth mischeuouse. They were tyrantes, cruell theyres and pollars.

sayde vnto me: feare hym not, for I haue deliuered hi & al his people, & his lande in to thy hand, & thou shalt deale with him, as thou dealest wth Sehon kynge of p<sup>r</sup> Amozites, whiche dwelt at Heshbon. And so p<sup>r</sup> Lorde our God deliuered in to oure handes, Og also the kynge of Basā, & all his folcke. And we smot him, vntyl nought was left him.

And we toke all his cities the same reason (for there was not a citie whiche we toke not from them) euen .iii. score cities, al the regio of Argob, the kingdome of Og in Basan. All these cities were made strōge wth hys walles, gates & barres, besyde vnmalled townes & a great meanye. And we utterly dystroyed the, as we played with Sehon kynge of Heshbon, bringynge to nought al the cities with men, women and children. But all the catell and the spoyle of the cities, we caught for oure selues.

And thus we toke the same reason, p<sup>r</sup> land out of the hande of two kynges of the Amozites, on the other syde Jordā, frome the ryuer of Arnon vnto mounte Hermon (whiche Hermon the Sidons call Sirion, but the Amozites call it Senir) all p<sup>r</sup> cities in the playne, & all Gilead & al Basan vnto Selecha & Edrai, cities of the kyngdome of Og in Basā. For onely Og kynge of Basan remayned of the remnaunt of p<sup>r</sup> giauntes: beholde, hys prynced is yet at Rabah amonge p<sup>r</sup> children of Ammō. ix. cubites lōge & .iiii. cubites brode, of p<sup>r</sup> cubites of a mā. And whē we had cōquered this lande the same tyme, I gaue frō Arct whiche is vpon the riuer of Arnon, and halfe mounte Gilead & p<sup>r</sup> cities therof vnto the Rubenites, & Gadites. And p<sup>r</sup> rest of Gilead & all Basan p<sup>r</sup> kingdome of Og, I gaue vnto the halfe trybe of Manasse: all the region of Argob with al Basan was called the lande of p<sup>r</sup> geauntes. Jair the sōne of Manasse toke al the region of Argob, vnto p<sup>r</sup> costes of Geshuri & Maachati & called the after his owne name: Basan & Hauoth Jair vnto this day. And I gaue halfe Gilead vnto Machir. And vnto Ruben and Gad, I gaue frō Gilead vnto the riuer of Arnon & halfe the valeye & the cost, eue vnto the ryuer Jaboche, whiche is the border of the children of Ammon, and the feldes and Jordan with the coste, from Ceneroth eue vnto the sea in the felde, whiche is the salte sea vnder the *sprynge of phasgah eastwarde.

And I comaunded you the same time, (yea Ruben & Gad) sayinge: the Lorde your God hath geuen you this land to inioye it: se that ye go harnessed before your brethren p<sup>r</sup> children of Israell, al p<sup>r</sup> are men of warre amonge you. Your wyues onely, your children and your catell (for I wote that ye haue muche catell) shall abyde in your cities, whiche I haue geuen you, vntil the Lorde haue geuen rest vnto your brethren as well as vnto you, & vntyl they also haue cōquered the lande, whiche the Lorde your God hath geuen them beyonde Jordan: and then retourne agayne, euery man vnto his possession whiche I haue geuen you.

* And I warned Josua p<sup>r</sup> same tyme, sayinge: thyne eyes haue sene all that the Lorde your God hath done vnto these two kynges, euen so the Lorde wyl do vnto all kyngdomes whither thou goest. Feare the not, for the Lorde your God, he it is that fygthet for you.

And I besought the Lorde the same tyme, sayinge: O Lorde God, thou hast begonne to shewe thy seruaunte thy greatnesse and thy myghtie hande, for there is no God in heauen nor in erth, p<sup>r</sup> can doe after thy workes, and after thy power: let me goe ouer and se the good lande that is beyonde Jordan, that goodlye hys contrey, & Libanon. * But the Lorde was angrie wth me for your sakes, & wolde not heare me, but sayed vnto me: be contente, and speake hence forth no more vnto me of this matter. * Gette the vp in to the toppe of phasgah, & lyfte vp thyne eyes west, northe, southe, and east, and beholde it with thyne eyes, for thou shalt not go ouer this Jordan. Moreover charge Josua: and courage him, & bolden him, for he shall go ouer before this people, & he shall deuyde the lande whiche thou shalt se vnto them. * And so we abode in the valeye besyde Bethpheoz.

Ad now hearken Israel vnto the ordinaunces & lawes whych I teache you, for to do them, that ye may lyue & go in & conquere the lande, whiche the Lorde God of youre fathers geueth you. * Ye shal a put nothinge vnto the worde whiche I commaunde you, nei- ther do ought therfrom, that ye may kepe the commaundemētes of ꝑ Lorde youre God which I commaunde you. Your eyes haue sene what the Lorde dyd vnto Baall Peor: * for all the men that folowed Baall Peor, the Lorde your God hath destroyed from among you. But ye that claue vnto the Lorde your God, are al yue euery one of you this daye. Beholde, I haue taughte you ordinaunces & lawes, suche as the Lorde my God commaunded me, that ye shuld do euen so in the lāde whether ye goe to possesse it.

Kepe the therefore and do them, * for that is youre wisdom and vnderstandyng in the sight of the nations: which when they haue herbe al these ordinaunces, shall saye: What a wyse and vnderstandyng people is this greates nacion. for what nacion is so greates, that hathe Goddes so nye vnto hym as the Lorde our God is nye vnto vs, in all thinges, when we call vnto him? Yea, and what nacion is so greates, that hathe ordynaunces and lawes so ryghteouse, as all this lawe whiche I set before you this daye.

Take hede to thy selfe therefore, and kepe thy soule diligently, that thou forget not the thynges whiche thine eyes haue sene, & that they departe not out of thine hearte, al the dayes of thy lyfe: but * teache them thy sonnes and thy sonnes sonnes. The daye ꝑ I stode before the Lorde your God in Horeb, when he sayde vnto me, gather me the people together, that I may make the heare my wordes, that they may lerne to feare me as longe as they lyue vpon the earth: * and that they may teache their children: ye came and * stode also vnder the hyll, and the hyll burnt with fyre: euen vnto the myddes of heauen, and there was darkenesse, cloydes and miste. And the Lorde spake vnto you out of the fyre, and ye herbe the voyce of the wordes, but sawe no ymage, save herbe a voyce onely.

And he declared vnto you his counaunt, whiche he commaunded you to do, euen .x. verses & wrote them in two tables of stone. And the Lorde commaunded me ꝑ same reason, to teache you ordinaunces & lawes, for to do them in ꝑ lande whether ye goe to possesse it.

Take hede vnto your selues, diligently as pertainyng vnto your soules, for ye sawe no maner of ymage the daye when the Lorde spake vnto you in Horeb out of the fyre: lest ye * marre your selues, & make you graue ymag, after what to euer lykenesse it be: whether after the lykenesse of man or woman, or any maner beast that is on the earth, or of any maner fethered foule that flyeth in the ayre, or of any maner woorme that creapeth on the earth, or of any maner fythe that is in the water beneth the erath. * Yea, & lest thou lifte vp thine eyes vnto heauē, & when thou seist the sunne and the moone, and the starres and whatsover is contayned in heauen, shouldest be deceaued, & shouldest bove thy selue vnto them and serue the thinges * whiche ꝑ Lorde thy God hath distributed vnto al nations that are vnder al quarters of heauen.

for the Lorde toke you & broughte you out of the yron * fornaue of Egypt, to be vnto him a people of inheritance, as it is come to passe this daye. Forthermore, the Lorde was * angrie w me for youre sakes, and swate that I shoulde not goe ouer Jordan, and that I shoulde not go vnto that good lande, whiche the Lorde thy God geueth thee to inheritance. * for I muste dye in this lande, & shall not go ouer Jordan. But ye shall goo ouer and conquere that good lande.

Take hede vnto your selues therefore, ꝑ ye forget not the appoyntement of the Lorde your God which he made with you: & that ye make you no graue ymage, of whatsover it be that ꝑ Lorde thy God hathe forbydden thee. * for the Lorde thy God is a consuming fyre and a gelouse God.

your selues and make graue ymages after the lykenesse of what souer it be, and shall woorken wyckednesse in the sight of the Lorde thy God, to prouoke him. * I call heauen and erth to record vnto you this day, that ye shall shortly perper the frome of the lande, whether ye goe ouer Iordan, to possesse it: ye shall not prolonge your daves therein, but shall shortly be destroyed. And the Lorde shall skater you amonge the nations, & ye shall be left few in nōbre amonge the people, whether the Lorde shall bring you: & there ye shall serue Gods whiche are the woorkes of mannes hande, wood & stone, whiche neither see nor heare, nor eate, nor smel. * Neuerthelatter ye shall seeke the Lorde your God euen there, and shall fynde hym if thou seeke hym with all thyne heart, and with all thy soule. In thy trybulacion, and when all these thynges are come vpon the, euen in the latter daves, thou shalt tourne vnto the Lorde thy God, and shalt hearken vnto hys voyce. For the Lorde thy God is a pittifull God: he wyl not forsake the, neither distrope the, * nor forget the apoyntment made w thy fathers, which he swate vnto them.

For aske I praye the of the daves that are past, which were before the, sece that day that God created man vpon the erth, and from the one syde of heauen vnto the other, whether anye thyng hath bene lyke vnto thys greates thyng, or whether anye suche thyng hath bene herde as it is, that a nation hath herde that voyce of God speakinge out of fyre, as thou hast herde, and yet lyued. * Either whether God assayed to go & take him a people fro amonge nations, thowowe temptacions, and signes, & wondres, & thowowe warre, and with a myghtye hande, and a stretched out arme, and with myghty terrible syghtes, accordyng vnto all that the Lorde your God dyd vnto you in Egypte before your eyes.

Unto the it was shewed, that thou mightest knowe how the Lorde he is God, and that there is none but he. * Out of heauen he made the heare his voyce, to nourter the, & vpon earth he shewed the his great fyre, & thou heardest hys wordes out of the fyre. And because he loued thy fathers, therefore he chose their seed after them, & broughte the out w hys presence, & with hys myghty power out of Egypte: to thrust out nations greater & myghtier then thou, before the, to bring the in, & to geue the their lande to inheritaunce: as it is come to passe thys dave.

Understande therefore this dave, & tourne it to thyne heart, that the Lorde; he is God in heauen aboue, and vpon the earth beneth, there is no moo: kepe therefore his ordinaunces, & his commaundementes, whiche I comaunde the thys dave, that it maye go wel with the, & w thy chyldren after the, & that thou mayest prolonge thy daves vpon the earth, which the Lorde thy God geueth the thy lyfe longe.

* The Moyses seuered. iii. cities on the other syde Iordan toward the sunne risinge, that he shoulde flee thither, which had kyled hys neyghboure vntwares, & hated him not in tymes past, & therefore shuld flee vnto one of the same cities, and liue: Bezer in the wildernesse: euen in the playne contre amonge the Rubenites: & Ramoth in Gilead amonge the Gadites, and Golan in Basan amonge the Manassites.

Thys is the lawe which Moyses set before the chyldren of Israel, and these are the witness, ordinaunces & statutes whiche Moyses tolde the chyldren of Israel after they came out of Egypte, on the other syde Iordan, in the valey belyde Beth Sheor, in the lande of Sehon kynge of the Amorites, which dwelt at Hesbon: whom Moyses & the chyldren of Israel smote after they were come out of Egypte, & conquered hys lande, and the land of Og kynge of Basan. ii. kynges of the Amorites, on the other syde Iordan toward the sunne risinge: from Aroer vpon the banke of the ryuer Arnon, vnto mount Syon: whiche is called Hermon & al the feldes on the other syde Iordan eastwarde: euen vnto the sea in the felde vnder the springes of Phalsah.

The. b. Chapter.

The ten commaundmentes of the lawe, no Image may be made.

Ad Moses called vnto al Israel, & sayd vnto them: heare O Israel the ordinaunces & lawes whiche I speake in thyne eares thiss daye, and learne the & take hede þe ye doe them. * The Lorde our God made an apoyntmente with vs in Horeb. The Lord made not this bonde with oure fathers, but with vs: we are they, whiche are all here alpyue this daye. The Lorde talked with you a face to face in the mounte, oute of the fyre. And I stode betwene the Lorde and you the same tyme, to shewe you the sayinge of the Lorde. for ye were afrayed of the fyre, and therefore went not vp in to the mounte and he sayde. * I am þe Lorde thy God, which brought the out of the land of Egypt the house of bondage. Thou shalt haue therfore none other goddes in my presence. * Thou shalt make thee no grauen ymage of anye maner lykenesse þe is in heauen aboue, or in erth benethe, or in the water beneth the erth. Thou shalt nether bow thy selfe vnto the, nor serue them. * for I the Lorde thy God, am a gelouse God, visitynge the wickednes of the fathers vpon the children, euen in the thyrde and fourthe generacion, amonge the þe hate me: and shewe mercye vpon thousandes amonge them that loue me, and kepe my commaundementes.

* Thou shalt not take the name of the Lorde thy God in bayne: for the Lord wyl not holde him gylelesse, that taketh hys name in bayne. * Kepe the Saboth daye, that thou sanctifie it, as the Lorde thy God hath commaunded the. * Sixe dayes thou shalt labour & doe al þe thou hast to doe, but the seventh day is þe Saboth of the Lorde thy God: thou shalt doe no maner worke, nether thou nor thy sonne, nor thy doughter, nor thy seruaunte, nor thy mayde, nor thyne oxe, nor thyne asse, nor any of thy catel, nor the straunger that is within thy cite, that thy seruaunte and thy mayde maye rest as well as thou. And remembre that thou wast a seruaunte in the lande of Egypt, & howe that the Lord God, brought the out there with a myghtye hande and a stretched oute arme. for whiche cause the Lorde thy God commaunded thee to kepe the Saboth daye.

* Honour thy father and thy mother, as the Lorde thy God hath commaunded the: that thou mayst prolong thy dayes, and that it maye goo well with the in the lande, whiche the Lord thy God geueth the.

* Thou shalt not slee.

* Thou shalt not breake wedlocke.

* Thou shalt not steale.

Thou shalt not beare false witness agaynst thy neyghboure.

* Thou shalt not luste after thy neyghbours wyfe: thou shalt not couet thy neyghbours house, felde, seruaunte, mayde, oxe, asse, nor ought that is thy neyghbours. These wordes the Lorde spake vnto all your multitude in þe mounte oute of the rize, cloude and darckenes, with a loude voyce, & added no more thereto, and wrote them in, tables of stone, & deliuered the vnto me.

But as sone as ye hearde the voyce out of the darckenesse and sawe the hyl burne with fyre, ye came vnto me all the heades of your trybes and your elders: & ye sayde: beholde, þe Lorde our God hath shewed vs his glozpe & hys greatnesse, & we haue herde his voyce out of the fyre, and we haue sene this daye þe God maye talke with a man and he yet liue. And nowe wherfore shoulde we dye that this great fyre shoulde consume vs. Yf we shoulde heare þe voyce of the Lorde our God anye more, we shoulde dye. for what is anye fleashe that he shoulde heare the voyce of the liuinge God speakyng out of the fyre (as we haue done) & shoulde yet liue. Go thou & heare all that þe Lorde our God sayeth, & tel thou vnto vs al that the Lorde our God sayeth vnto the. & we wyl heare it and doe it.

And the Lorde hearde the voyce of your wordes, when ye spake vnto me, & he sayde

a. The Chaldees haue word to word. That is to say, with so manifest wordes and signes, that it can not be denied but that it was God.

The. vi. Chapter.

The lawe must be earnestly pynted in their hertes and to kepe it in memozy they must wyte it on the doores & postes of theyr houses. And teach it vnto their childre.

These are the commaundementes, ordynaunces, & lawes, which the LORDE your GOD commaunded to teache you, that ye mighte do theym in the lande: whyther ye go to possesse it: that thou myghtest a feare * the LORDE thy GOD, to kepe all his ordynaunces and his commaundementes which I commaunde the: both thou and thy sonne, & thy sonnes sonne all the dayes of thy lyfe, that thy dayes maye be prolonged. Heare therfore Israel and take hede that thou do there after, that it maye go wel with the, and that ye maye encrease myghtely, euen as the Lorde God of thy fathers hathe promysed the, a land that floweth with mylke and honye.

* Heare Israel, þ Lorde thy God is Lord only, & and thou shalt loue þ Lord thy God with al thyne hart, with al thy soule, & with all thy myght. * And these wordes which I commaunde the this day, shalbe in thyne herte, & thou shalt whet them on thy children, and shalt talke of theym when thou art at home in thyne house, and as thou walkest by the waye, and when thou lyest downe, and whē thou risest vp: and thou shalt binde them for a signe vpon thine hād. And they shalbe papers of remēbraūce betwene thine eyes, and shalt writ them vpon þ postes of thyne house, and vp: on thy gates.

And when the Lorde thy God hathe broughte the into the lande, whiche he swate vnto thy fathers, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, to geue the: with greate and goodly cyties which thou byldedst not, and houses ful of all maner goods which thou filledst not, & welles digged which thou diggedest not, & bynes, and olyue trees which thou plantedest not, and when thou hast eaten and arte full: Then beware lest thou forget þ Lorde whiche brought the oute of the lande of Egypte the house of bondage. * But feare the Lord thy God, & serue hym, & * sweare by his name, & se that ye walke not after straunge gods: of the goddes of the nacyōs which are about you. For the Lorde thy God is a d gelouse God amonge you: lest the wrath of the Lord thy God waxe whote vpon the, and destroye the from the erth.

* Ye shal not tempte the Lorde your God, as ye dyd at * Mase. But se that ye kepe the commaundementes of the Lorde your God, his witnessses and his ordynaunces which he hath comaūded the, and se thou do that whiche is right and good in the syght of the LORDE: that thou maist prospere, and that thou mayst go and conquere that good land which þ Lord swate vnto thy fathers, and that the Lorde maye caste oute all thyn enemies before the, as he hath said.

* When thy sonne asketh the in tyme to come, sayinge: what meaneth these witnessses, ordynaūces and lawes, which the Lorde our God hathe commaunded you: Then thou shalt say vn: to thy sonne: We were bondmen vnto Pharaο in Egypt, but þ Lord brought vs out of Egypt with a myghtye hand. The Notes.

- a. To feare God, is to honour hym by puttinge thy confydence in him, and in hauing a good and righteouse conuersacyon in his syght.
- b. To whet the commaundementes of God vpon our chyldren, is to ctercise them, in the hearyng and reading therof, causyng them to practyse the same in their lyuyng.
- c. Loke beneth in the .x. Chapter. d.
- d. Loke in Exodus. xx. a. and the Chapter next before this. d.
- e. The outward dede is rightousnes vnto the auoyding of punishment, threatnynges & curfes, and to obayne tempoial blessinges, but vnto the lyfe to come, thou must haue the rightousnesse of saynt, and thereby to receyue forgiveness of synnes and promysse of eternytaunce, and powere to worke of loue.

The .viij. Chapter.

The Israelites may make no couenante wth p<sup>r</sup> Gentyles. They must destroy theyr Idols. Them that kepe the commaundementes both God loue and blesse, and the contrary hateth & punisheth. Idolaters must be slayne.

When the Lord thy God hath brought the into p<sup>r</sup> land whither thou goest to possesse it, & hath cast out many nacjons before the: the Hethites, p<sup>r</sup> Gergesites, the Amozites, the Cananites, p<sup>r</sup> Pherezites, the Heuites and the Jebusites. .iiij. nacjons mo in nombre & myghty: er than thou: * and when the Lord thy God hath set them before the, that thou shuldest smyte them, se that thou vtterlye destroye the, and make no couenante wth theym: nor haue compassyon on theym. Also thou shalt make no marriages wth them, nether geue thy daughter vnto his sonne, nor take his daughter vnto thy sonne. * for they wil make poure sonnes departe fro me, and serue straunge Gods, and then will the wrath of the Lord waxe whote vpon you, and destroye you shortly.

* But thus ye shal deale wth the: ouerthrowe their alters, breake downe their pylers, cut downe their groues, and burne their grauen ymages wth fire. * for thou art an holy nacjon vnto the Lord thy God: the Lord thy God hath chose the, to be a seueral people vnto himselfe, of al nacjons that are vpon p<sup>r</sup> erth. It was not because of the multitude of you aboue al nacjons, that the Lord had lust vnto you, and chose you. for ye were fewest of all nacjons. But because p<sup>r</sup> Lord loued you, and because he wold kepe the * othe which he had sworne vnto your fathers, therfore he brought you out of Egypte wth a mightie hand, and deliuered you out of the house of bondage: euen fro the hand of Pharaos, kynge of Egypte.

Understande therfore, p<sup>r</sup> the Lord thy god, he is god, & that a true god: which kepeth poyntment and mercy vnto the that loue him, and kepe hys commaundementes, euen thorow out a thousande generacions, and rewardeth them that hate hym * before hys face so that he bryngeth theym to nought, and wil not deferre the tyme, vnto hym that hateth hym, but wyl rewarde him before hys face. Kepe therfore the commaundementes, ordynaunces and lawes, which I commaunde you this daye, that ye do them.

* If ye shall herken vnto these lawes, and shal obserue & do them, the shal the Lord thy God kepe poyntmet wth the, and the mercy which he sware vnto thy fathers, and wyl loue the, blesse the and multiply the: he wyl blesse the frute of thy wombe, and the frute of thy felde, thy corne, thy wyne, & thine oyle, p<sup>r</sup> frute of thine oxen, & the flockes of thy shepe, in p<sup>r</sup> lande, which he sware vnto thy fathers to geue the. Se thou feare the not, for the Lorde thy GOD is amonge you a myghtie God: and a terrible. The Lord thy GOD wyll put out these nacpous before the a lytle and a lytle: þ mayest not consume them at once, lest the beastes of the felde encrease vpon the. And the Lorde thy God shall delpyer theim vnto the, and styre vp a myghty tēpest among them, vntyl they be brought to nought. * And he shal delpyer their kinges into thynne hande, and thou shalt destroye theyr names fro vnder heuen.

There shall no man stande before the, vntyll thou haue destroyed theim. The ymages of theyr goddes thou shalt burne with fyre, and se that thou couet not the a syluer or golde that is on the, nor take it vnto the, lest thou be snared therewith. For it is an abhominacyon vnto the Lorde thy God. Bynge not therefore the abhominacyon to thynne house, lest thou be a * dāned thyng, as it is: but bitterlye despye it, & abhorre it, for it is a thing that must be destroyed.

The Notes.

a. Whatsoeuer golde or syluer, honour or profyte, callen the fro þ worde of God: beloggeth to þ images of their goddes, & must be therfore abhorred. Yea, though thou be occupied in thynges which other wyse be good: yet if the same do withhold the from that which Gods word byddeth the do, or if þ do any thyng þ Gods word forbider the, though thynne entent seme neuer so good, yet it is abhominable, and thou the doer the of arte accursed.

¶ Folos puteth the Israelit's in remembrance of the afflictions and benefites that they hadde the .xl. yere which they were in the wylernes.

And thinke on all þ waye which the Lord thy God lead the this .xl. yere in the wylernes, for to humble the: and to proue the, to wete what was in thynne herte, whether thou wouldest kepe hys commaundementes or no. He a humbled the, and made the hongrye and fed the with Man, whiche nether thou nor thy father knewe of, to make the knowe, that a * man must not lyue by bread onely: but by all that proce: deth out of þ mouth of the Lorde, must a man lyue. b. Thy * rayment waxed not olde vpon the, nether dyd thy fete swell this .xl. yeres.

Understande therfore in thynne hert, that as a man nourtereth hys sonne, eue so the Lorde thy GOD nourtereth the. Kepe therfore the comaundementes of the Lorde thy God, that thou walke in his wayes, and that thou feare him. For the Lorde thy God byngeth the into a good lande, * a lande of ryuers of water, of fountaines, and of springes that spring out both in valeyes and hylls: a land of whete and of barley, of bynes, figtrees and poyngtanates: a lande of olyue trees wyth oyle and of honye: a land wherin thou shalt not eate bred in skarcenelle, * and where thou shalt lack nothing, a lande whose stones are prou, and out of whose hylls þ shalt digge brasle. When thou hast eaten therof and fylled thy selfe, then blesse the Lord for þ good lād, which he hath geue the.

But beware that thou forget not þ Lord thy GOD, that thou woldest not kepe his commaundementes, lawes and ordinaunces which I commaunde the this day: * yea, & whē thou hast eaten & fylled thy selfe, and haste bylte goodlye houses and dwelt therein, and when thy beastes, and thy shepe are wared many, and thy syluer and gold is multiplied, and al that thou hast encreased, then beware lest thynne hert ryle, & thou forget the Lorde thy God, which brought the out of the lande of Egypte, the house of bsdage, and which lead the in þ wylernes both great and terrible, with fire serpentes, & scorpiōs, and drouth where was no water, whiche brought the water oute of þ rocke of synt: whiche fed the

D And beware that thou say not in thine herte, my * power and the myghte, of myne owne hand hath done me all these actes: But remembre the LORDE thy GOD, howe that it is he whiche gaue the power to do manfully, for to make good the promyse which he swate vnto thy fathers, as it is come to passe thys daye.

D For if thou shalt forget the Lorde thy GOD & shalt walke after straunge * gods, & serue them, & worship them, I te- stiffe vnto you this day, that ye shall suerly perishe. As the nacjons which the Lorde destroyeth before y<sup>e</sup>, euē so ye shall perishe, because ye wolde not herke vnto the voyce of the Lorde your GOD.

The. ix. Chapter.

They are forbidden to trust in theyr own strength. A rehearsal of certayne thynges that were done after the lawe was geuen, vnto the murmuring at the granes of Iud.

Hearke Israell, thou goest ouer Jordan this daye, to go and conquere nacjons, greater & myghtier then thy selfe: and cities great and * walled by to heauen, and people * great and tall, euē þ children of the Enakims, which thou knowest, and of whom thou hast herd saye, who is able to stande before the childre of Enack: But vnderstande this daye, that the Lorde thy GOD which goeth ouer before the, a consuming fyre, he shall destroye them, and he shall subdue the before the. And thou shalt caste them out, and brynge theym out, and brynge them to nought quickly, as the Lorde hath sayde vnto the.

Where is mas the Lorde thy GOD hath cast them oute ryght before the, saying: for my righteousness the Lorde hath brought me in, to possesse this land. * Nay, but for the wickednes of these nacjons the Lorde doth cast the out before the. * It is not for thy righteousness sake, & right hert that þ goest to possesse their land: But partly for the wickednes of these nacjons, þ Lorde thy GOD doth cast the out before the, & partly to performe that which þ Lorde thy GOD swate vnto thy fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.

Understande therfore that it is not for thy ryghteousnes sake, that þ Lorde thy GOD doth geue the this good lande to possesse it, for thou art a stiffnecked people. Remembre & forget not, howe thou prouokedest þ Lorde thy GOD in the wilderness: for sence the day þ thou camest out of the land of Egypt vntill ye came vnto this place, ye haue rebelled agaynst the Lorde. * Also in Horeb ye angred þ Lorde, so that the Lorde was wroth wth you, euē to haue destroyed you, after that I was gone by into the mount, to set the tables of stone, the tables of appoyntemente, whiche the LORDE made with you. And I abode in the hill fortye daies and fortye nightes, and nether ate bread nor drak water. * And the Lorde deliuered me. ii. tables of stone written wth the finger of GOD, and in theym was accordynge to all the wordes which the Lorde sayde vnto you in the mount, out of the fyre in the daye when the people were gathered together.

And when the fortye daies and fortye nyghtes were ended, the Lorde gaue me the. ii. tables of stone, the tables of the testament, and sayde vnto me: * Wap, & get the downe quickly from hence, for thy people which þ hast brought out of Egypt, haue married them selues. They are turned attōce out of the way, which I commaunded them, & haue made the a GOD of metall. Furthermore the Lorde spake vnto me, saying: I se this people how þ it is a stiffnecked people, let me alone, that I maye destroy them, & put out the name of them from vnder heauen, and I wyll make of the a nacjon both greater and mo than they.

And I turned away, and came down from the hyll (and the hyll burnte wth fyre) & had þ. ii. tables of þ appoyntment in my handes. And when I looked: and salve that ye hadde synned agaynst the Lord your god, & had made you a calfe of metal, and had turned attonce out of the way which the Lord had commaunded you. * The I took the .ii. tables & cast them out of my two handes, & brake the before your eyes. * And I fel before the Lord: eue as at the first tyme. xl. daies, and. xl. nightes, & nether ate breade nor drake water, ouer all your synes which ye had synned: in doing wickedly in the sight of the Lord, & in prouokynge hym. For I was affraid of the wrath & fearnes wherewith the Lord was angry w you, euen for to haue destroyed you. But the Lord herd my petition at that tyme also.

The Lord was very angry with Aaron also, eue for to haue destroyed him: But I made intercession for Aaron also the same tyme. And I took your sinne, * the calfe whiche ye had made, & burnt him with fire, & staped hym a grounde him a good, euen vnto small dust. And I caste the duste therof into the broke, & that disceded out of the mount. Also at * Chaberah & at Masah, & at the sepulchres of lust ye angred the Lord, yea, and when the Lord sent you from Cadis Barne, sayinge: go vp, & conquere the lande which I haue geuen you, * ye disobeyed the mouth of the Lord your God, & nether beleued him, nor herkened vnto his voyce. * Thus ye haue bene disobedient vnto the Lord, sence the day that I knewe you.

Verne And I fell before the Lord. xl. daies, and. xl. nightes which I laye there, for the Lord was mynded to haue destroyed you. But I made intercession vnto the Lord, & sayde: * O Lord God, destroy not thy people & thin enheritaunce, which thou hast deliuered thorow thy greatnesse, & which thou hast broughte oute of Egypte with a myghtye hande. Remembre thy seruauntes Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and loke not vnto the stoburnesse of this people, nor vnto theyr wyckednesse and synne: lest the lande whence thou broughtest theym, saye: Because the Lord was not able to byrug them into the land whyche he promised the: and bicause he hated the, therfore he caried them out, to destroye them in the wylbernes. Moreouer they are thy people and thyne enheritaunce, whiche thou broughtest oute with thy myghty power, and with thy stretched out arme.

The .x. Chapter.

A repetition of some of the journeyes of the Israelites. The renewing of the tables. An exhortacion to geue heede to the Lawe.

In the same reason the Lord sayde vnto me, * hewe the two tables of stone lyke vnto the fyrst, and come vp vnto me in to the mount and make the an Arcke of wood, & I wyll wyte in the tables, the wordes that were in the first tables which thou brakest, & thou shalt put the in the arcke. And I made an arcke of sethim wood, & hewed two tables of stone like vnto the first, & went vp into the mountaine, and the two tables in myne hande.

And he wrote in the tables, accordyng to the first writing (the .x. verses which the Lord spake vnto you in the mount of the fire, in the daye when the people gathered together) and gaue theym vnto me. And I departed, & came down from the hyll, and put the tables in the arcke whiche I had made: and there they remayned, as the Lord commaunded me.

* And the children of Israel toke their journey from Beroth of the chalyben of Jakan, to Mosera, where Aaron died, and where he was buried, and Eleazar his sonne became priest in his steade. And from thence they departed vnto * Gadgad: & fro Gadgad to * Jashbath a land of riuers of water. * And the same reason the Lord separated the tribe of Leui to beare the arcke of the appointment of the Lord and to stande before the Lord, and to mynyster vnto hym, and to blesse in his name vnto this day. * Wherefore the Leuites haue no parte nor enheritaunce with their brethren, The Lord he is their enheritaunce, as the Lord thy God hath promysed them.

* And I taried in the mount euen as at the first tyme. xl. daies and. xl. nightes, and the Lord herkened vnto me at that time also, so that the Lord wold not destroye the. And the Lord said vnto me: vp, and go forth in the journey before the Thyne hande shalbe fyrste vpon him to kyl hym: and then the handes of all the people. And thou shalt stonne hym with stones that he dye, because he hath gone aboute to thruste thee awaye frome the Lord thy God, whiche brought y<sup>e</sup> out of Egypte, the house of bondage. And al * Israel shall heare and feare, and shall do no more anye suche wyckednesse as thys is amonge them.

If thou shalt heare saye of one of thy cities whiche the Lorde thy God hathe geuen the to dwell in, that certen being the chyldren of <sup>b</sup> Beliall are gone oute from amonge you, and haue moued the enhabitters of they<sup>e</sup> citie, sayinge: let vs go and serue straunge Goddes, whyche ye haue not knowen. Then seke, & make serche, and enquire dyligently. If it be true, and the thyng of a suerty, that such abhominacion is wrought among you: then thou shalt smyte the dwellers of that citie with the edge of the swerde, and destroye it mercelesse, and all that is therein, and euen the very cattel therof with the edge of the swerde. And gather al y<sup>e</sup> spoyle of it in to the myddes of y<sup>e</sup> streates therof, and burne it with fyre both the citie and al the spoyle therof: & uery whytte, vnto the Lorde thy God. And it shalbe an heape for euer, & shall not be hylt agayne. <sup>a</sup> And se that there cleaue noughte of the damned thing in thyne hande, that the Lord maye turne from his feare wra the, and shewe the mercy, and haue compassion on the, and multiplye the, as he hathe sworne vnto thy fathers: when thou hast herkened vnto the voyce of the Lord thy God, to kepe all hys comaundementes which I commaunde the this day, so that thou do that which is righte in the eyes of y<sup>e</sup> Lord thy god.

The notes.

a. God geueth vs his word, & confirmeth it with myra:les, to proue who hathe a true hert. Not y<sup>e</sup> he knoweth not who is true herced (for al thynges are open vnto hym) but that thereby the herces of men, may be knowen to men, for God seeth them alwayes. And we must be very circumspecte and wyse, that in no case we credyte false prophetes, and fapned myra:les, in steede of God des true worde and sygnes.
b. Beliall by interpretation, signyfeth malice, as some will wyckednes. Wherefore, all mischeuoure, wycked, and cursed men that caste the poeche of God of they<sup>e</sup> necke, and will not obeye God: are called the chyldren of Beliall, or men of Beliall. i. Reg. i. c. Audi. xix. f.

The .xviii. Chapter.

The Leuites myghte haue no possessions. Idolatrye must be shew. The prophet Christ is promysed. The false prophet must be slayne, and how he may be knowen.

The preestes the Leuites, al the tribe of Leui* shal haue no parte nor inheritaunce with Israel. The offrynges of the Lorde and his inheritaunce they shal eate, but shal haue no inheritaunce among theyr brethren: the Lorde he is theyr inheritaunce, as he hath sayd vnto the. And this is þ duty of þ preestes of þ people, & of the that offer, whether it be ore or shepe: They must geue vnto the preeste, the shoulder, and the two chekes, and the mawe, the fyrst frutes of the corne, wine, and oyle, and the fyrste of the shepe shepyng must thou geue him. * for the Lorde thy God hath chosen hym oute of al the trybes, to stande and to mynistrer in the name of the Lorde: bothe hym and his sonnes for euer. If a Leuite come oute of anye of thy cytyes or anye place of Israel, where he is a sojourner, and come with all the luste of his herte vnto the place whiche the Lorde hath chosen: he shall there mynistrer in the name of the Lorde his God, as all his brethren the Leuites do, whiche stande there before the Lorde. And they shal haue lyke porcyons to eate, besyde that whych cometh to hym of the pattymonye of his elders.

* When thou arte come into the land whiche the Lorde thy God geueth the, se that thou lerne not to do after the abominacions of these nations. Let there not be founde among you that maketh his sonne or doughter to go thorow the fyre.

For the * Lord thy God goeth wth you, to fight for you agaynst your enemyes & to saue you.

* And let the officers speake vnto the people, sayinge: If any man haue bylt a new house, & haue not a dedicate it, let him go and returne to his house lest he dye in the battell, and another dedi- cate it. And yf anye manne haue plan- ted a byneyarde, and haue not made it

And yf any man be betrouthed vnto a wyfe, & haue not taken her, let him go and returne agayne vnto his house, lest he dye in the battell, and another take her.

And let the officers speake further vnto 3 people, and say: If anye manne feare and be fainte herted, let him go & returne vnto hys house, lest hys bro- thers herte bee made faynte as well as his. And when 3 officers haue made an ende of speaking vnto the people, let the make captaynes of warre ouer them.

When thou comest nye vnto a citie to fight against it, * offer them peace. And if they aunswere the agayne peasablye, and open vnto the, then let al the people that is founde therein, be tributaries vnto the, and serue the. But * yf they wyll make no peace with thee, then make warre againste the cytie and besege it. Thus thou shalt do vnto all 3 cyties whiche are a greates waye of from thee, and not of the cyties of these na- cyons.

Then let the preestes the sonnes of Levi. come forth: for the Lord thy god hath chosen them to ministrate, & to blesse in the name of the Lorde, and therfore at their mouth shall all stryfe and plage be tryed. And all the elders of the citie that is next to the slayne man, shall wash theyr handes ouer the heyffer that is beheaded in the playne, and shall answer and saye: oure handes haue not shedde thys bloude neyther haue oure eyes sene it. For he is the first of hys strengthe, and to hym belongeth the ryghte of the first borne: shyppe.

* If any man haue a sonne that is stoburne & disobedient, that he will not hearken vnto the voice of his father, and voice of his mother, & they haue taught him nourtour, but he woulde not hearken vnto them: Then let his father and his mother take him, & bring him out vnto the elders of the citie, and vnto the gate of that same place, & saye vnto the elders of the citie: This our sonne is stoburne & disobedient, and will not hearken vnto our voyce: he is a ryoter, and a dronekarde. Then let all the men of that citie stone him with stones vnto deathe. And thou shalt put euell awaye from thee, & al Israell shall heare & feare. * If a man haue commytted a trespase worthy of death, & is put to deathe for it, and hanged on tre: let not hys body remayne all nyghte vpon the tree, but bury hym the same daye. * And the Lord shall byynge a nacion vpon the from a farre, euen from þ ende of the worlde, as swyfte as an eagle flyeth: a nacion whose tonge þ shalt not vnderstande: a harde fauoured nacion, whiche shall not regarde the person of the olde, nor haue compassion on the younge. And he shall eate the frute of thy lande, and the frute of thy cattel vntyll he haue destroyed the: so that he shall leaue þ nether corne, wyne, nor oyle, nether þ increase of thyne oxen, nor the flockes of thy shepe: vntyll he haue brought to noughte. And he shall besege the in all thy cytyes thowoe oute all thy lande, whiche the Lord thy God hath geuen the.

* And thou shalt eate the frute of thyne owne bodye: the flethe of thy sonnes and of thy doughters, whiche the Lord thy God hath geuen the, in that straytenesse and sege wherwith thyne enemye shall besege the: so that it shall greue the mā (that is tender and excedynge delicate amonge you) to loke on his brother, and vpon his wyfe that lieth in his bosome, and on the remnaūte of his chyldren, whiche he hath yet lefte, for feare of geuyng (vnto anye of them) of the flethe of his chyldren, which he eateth, because he hath nought lefte hym in that strayghthenesse and sege, wherwith thyne enemyes shall besege the in all thy cytyes.

Yea, and the woman that is so tender, and delicate amonge you, that she dare not aduenture to set the sole of her foote vpon the grounde (for softnesse and tendernesse) shall be greued to loke on the husbāde that lyeth in her bosome, and on her sonne, & on her doughter: euen because of the after byrthe, (that is come out from betwene her legges,) and because of her chyldren which she hath borne, because she woulde eate them for nede of al thynges secretly, in the straytenesse & sege wherwith thyne enemye shall besege the in thy cytyes.

And ye shall be lefte fewe in numbze, where before ye were as the starrs of heauen in multitude: bycause thou wouldest not herken vnto the voyce of the Lord thy God.

* And as the Lord reioysed ouer you to do you good, & to multiplie you: euē so he wyl reioyce ouer you, to dystoye you & to bring you to nought. The people are exhorted to obserue the commandmentes, for the consideration of the benefytes receaued: whiche yf they breake they are threathened to be plagued.

These are the woordes of the Appoynteement whiche the Lord commaunded Moses to make with the children of Israell in the lande of Moab, besyde the appoyntmēt whiche he made wth the in Horeb. And Moses called vnto all Israell, & sayd vnto them: Ye haue sene al the Lord dyd before your eyes in the lande of Egypt: vnto Pharaō, and vnto al his seruauntes, & vnto all his lande, and the great temptaciōs which thine eyes haue sene, and those greate myracles & wonders: & yet the Lord hath not geue you an hert to perceauē, nor eyes to see, nor eares to heare, vnto thys daye.

* And I haue led you. xl. yere in the wyldernesse: and your clothes are not waxed old vpon you, nor are thy shoues waxed olde vpon thy feete. Ye haue eaten no breade, nor droncke wyne, or stronge dryncke: that ye might knowe, howe & he is the Lord your God.

* And at the laste ye came vnto thys place, & Sehon the kynge of Heshbon & Og kynge of Basan came out agaynst you vnto battel, and we smote them: & toke their lād, & gaue it an inheritaunce vnto the Rubenites, and Gadites, and vnto the halfe trybe of Manasse. Kepe therfore the wordes of thys appoyntment, and do them, that ye maye vnderstande all that ye oughte to doe.

* Ye stande here this daye euery one of you before the Lord your God: both the heades of your tribz, your elders, your officers, & all the men of Israell: your childe, your wyues, and the straunger that are in thine host, * from the heuwer of thy wod, vnto the drawer of thy water: & thou shouldest come vnder the appoyntment of the Lord, thy God, & vnder his othe, * whiche the Lord thy God maketh with the this day. For ye knowe, howe we haue dwelte in the lande of Egypte, and howe we came thozowe the middes of þ nationes whiche we passed by. And ye haue sene their abhominacions and their ydols: wood and stone, syluer and golde whiche they had.

D So that the generacion to come of your children, that shall ryle vp after you, and the straunger that shall come from a fere lande, say when they se the plages of þ lande, & the diseases wherewith the Lord hath smitten it, how al the lande is burnt vp with brimstone & salte, & þ it is nether sowed, nor beareth, nor any grasse growe therein, after the ouerthrowyng of * Sodome, Gomor, Adama and zeboim: whiche the Lord ouerthrew in his wrathe & angre.

And then shall all nationes also saye: * wherfore hath the Lord done on this facion vnto this lande? & howe feareful is thys greate wrathe. And men shall saye: bycause they left the testament of the Lord God of their fathers, whiche he made with them, when he broughte them oute of the lande of Egypte. And they went & serued straunge goddes, & worshipped them: goddes which they knewe not and which had geuen them nought. And therfore the wrathe of the Lord waxed whote vpon that land, to bringe vpo it al þ curses þ are wrytten in this boke. And the Lord caste them out of their lande in anger, wrathe, and great furiosnesse, and caste the in to a straunge lande, as it is come to passe thys daye. The secretes of the Lord oure God <sup>b</sup> are opened vnto vs, and oure children for euer, that we do al the wordes of this lawe.

The notes.

a. By this is signified, that both the wicked teacher & the disciple which receyueh cruel doctrine shall perishe together. Some reade that þ droncke maye be put to the thyrstie. Some that dronkenesse maye be put to thyrstie.

And Moses went and spake these wordes vnto all Israell, and sayde vnto them: I am an hundred and .xx. yere this day, & can no more goe out & in. Also the Lord hath sayd vnto me, thou shalt not goe ouer this Iordan. The Lord your God he wyl go ouer before the, & he wyl dystrope these nacions before the, and thou shalt conquere them. * And Josua, he shall goe ouer before the, as the Lord hath sayde. commaundementes, whiche I commaunde the this day. And the Lord thy God wyl make the plenteous in al the workes of thyn hand, and in the frute of thy bodye, in the frute of thy catell, & frute of thy lade & in riches. * For the Lord wyl turne agayne and reioyce ouer the to do the good, as he reioysed ouer thy fathers: Vt thou herken vnto the voyce of the Lord thy God, to kepe hys commaundementes & ordinaunces whiche are written in the boke of this lawe, vt thou turne vnto the Lord thy God with al thyn heart, & al thy soule.

* For the commaundement whiche I commaunde the this day, is not separated from the, neitther farte of. It is not in heauen & thou needest to saye: who shall goe vp for vs to heauen, and sette it vs, that we maye heare it and doe it: Neither is it beyonde the sea, that thou shouldest say: who shall go ouer the sea for vs, & set it vs, that we maye heare it, and doe it. But the worde is very nye vnto the: euen in thy mouth, and in thyn heart, that thou do it.

Beholde I haue set before you this daye lyfe and good, deathe and euell: in that I commaunde the this daye to loue the Lord thy God, & to walke in his wayes, & to kepe his commaundementes, his ordinaunces & his lawes: that thou mayste lyue and multiplie, & that the Lord thy God may blesse the in the lande, whether thou goest to possesse it.

But & vt thyn heart turne awaye, so that thou wylt not heare: but shalt go astraye and worship straunge gods, and serue them, I pronounce vnto you this day, that ye shall surely perishe, and ye shall not prolonge your dayes vpon the lande whether thou passest ouer Iordan to goe and possesse it.

* I cal to recorde this day vnto you, heauen and earthe, that I haue set before you lyfe & deathe, blessinge & cursyng: therefore chose lyfe, that bothe thou and thy seed may lyue, that thou mayst loue the Lord thy God, be obedyente vnto hys voyce & cleaue vnto hym. For he is thy lyfe, & the length of thy dayes, that thou mayst dwel vpon the earth whiche the Lord sware vnto thy fathers: Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, to geue them.

And Moses called vnto Josua, and sayde vnto him in the sight of al Israell. * Be ströge and bolde, for thou must go with this people vnto the lande whiche the Lord hath sworn vnto their fathers, to geue them, and thou shalt geue it them to inheryt. And the Lord he shall go before the: and he shall be with the, and wyl not let thee goe nor forsake the, feare not therefore nor be discomforted. And Moses wrote this lawe, and deliuered it vnto the priestes & sönes of Leui (whiche bare the arcke of the testament of the Lord) and vnto all the elders of Israel, and commaunded them, sayinge: * At the ende of. vii. yere, in the tyme of the feyere, in the feast of the tabernacles, when all Israel is come to appeare before the Lord thy God, in the place whiche he hath chosen: see that thou reade this lawe before all Israell in their eares. thys lawe, and þ their children whiche knowe nothyng maye heare, and lerne to feare the Lorde your God, as longe as ye lyue in the lande, whether ye goe ouer Jordan to possesse it.

D And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: Behold, thy dayes are come, that thou must die. Cal Iosua and come & stande in the tabernacle of wytnesse, that I maye geue h; in a charge. And Moses and Iosua went and stode in the tabernacle of witnesse. And þ Lorde appeared in the tabernacle: euē in þ pillar of the cloude. And the pillar of the cloud stode ouer þ doze of the tabernacle. And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: beholde, thou must slepe with thy fathers, and thys people wyl goe a whoorpyng after straunge goddes of þ lande (whether they goe) and wyl forlake me, & breake the appoyntmēt, whiche I haue made with them. And then my wrathe wyl waxe whote agaynst them, and I wyl forlake them, and wyl h; hyde my face frō them, & they shalbe consumed. * And when much aduersite and tribulacion is come vpon them, then they wyl say: because our God is not amonge vs, these tribulacions are come vpon vs. But I wyl hyde my face that same tyme, for al the euels sake whiche they shal haue wroughte, in that they are turned vnto straunge goddes.

Nowe therfore write ye this songe, & teache it the children of Israel, & put it in their mouthes, that this sōge may be my witnesse vnto the children of Israel. For when I haue broughte them in to the lande (whiche I sware vnto their fathers) that runneth with milke and honye, then they wyl eate, and fyll them selues, & waxe fat, and turne vnto straunge goddes, and serue them, and rayle on me, and breake my testament. And then when much mischefe & tribulacion is come vpon them, thys song shal answer before them, and be a witnesse. It shal not be forgootten out of þ mouthes of their seed: for I know their imaginacion, whiche they goe aboute euē now, before I haue brought them in to the lande whiche I sware. And Moses wrote this songe the same ceason, and taughte it the chyldren of Israel. And the Lorde gaue Iosua the sonne of Nun a charge, and sayde: be bolde & stronge, for thou shalt bypnyge þ children of Israel into the lande, whiche I sware vnto them, & I wyl be w; the.

When Moses had made an ende of wrytyng out of the wordes of thys law in a boke vnto the ende of them, he commaunded the Leuites, whiche bare the arcke of the testament of the Lorde, sayinge: take ye the boke of thys lawe, & put it by the side of the arcke of the testament of the Lorde your God, and let it be there for a witnesse vnto the. I for knowe thy stuburnesse, & and thy styffe necke: beholde, whyle I am yet a lyue with you thys daye, ye haue bene disobedient vnto þ Lorde: & how much moze after my death.

Gather vnto me all the eldets of your tribes, and your officers, that I maye speake these wordes in their eares, & call heauen and earth to recorde agaynst the. For I am sure þ after my deathe, they wyl vtterly marre the selues, & turne frō the way which I haue comaunded you, & tribulacio wil come vpon you in þ latter dayes, when ye haue wrought wickednesse in the sight of the Lorde, to prouoke hym with the workes of your handes. And Moses spake in the eares of all the congregacion of Israel: the wordes of this sōge, vnto the ende of them.

He founde him in a deſert lande, in a horde grounde, & a roypnge wylde- neſſe. He led him about, and gaue him vnderſtandynge, and kepte hym, as the aple of his eye.

As an Eggle that ſittrith vp her neſt, and ſtetereth ouer her younge, he ſtretched out hye * wynges, and toke hym vp, & bare him on his ſhoulders. The Lorde alone was his guyde, and there was no ſtraunge God with him.

He let hym vp vpon an hye lande, and he ate the increaſe of the feldeſ.

And Iſrael waxed fatte and kicked. Thou waſt fatte, thicke & ſmothe. And he let God goe that made him & diſpiſed the rocke that ſaued hym. They angered him with ſtraunge goddes, and with abhominacions prouoked hym.

* They offered vnto ſelbe deuels & not to God, & to goddes which they knewe not & to newe goddes that came newe: lye vp, which their fathers feared not. They haue angered me with that which is no God, & prouoked me with their vanities. * And I agayne wyl angre them with them whiche are no people, and wyl prouoke them with a folpthe nacpon. * For fyre is kyndled in my wrathe, and ſhall burne vnto the botome of hell. # The booke of Josua.

The. i. Chapter.

The Lord encourageth Josua to invade the land of promysse, and commaundeth him continually to recorde Deuteronomium.

After the death of Moyses the seruat of the LORD: the LORD spake vnto Josua the sonne of Nun. * Moyses minister, sayinge: Moyses my seruāt is dead. Howe therfore by a go ouer Jordan, both thou & al this people, vnto the lande the which I geue vnto the children of Israell. * All the places that the soules of your fete shall treade vpon, haue I geuen you, as I sayd vnto Moyses: from the wyldernesse & thys Libanon vnto the great riuer Euphrates: and all the lande of the Hethites, euen vnto the great sea toward the going downe of the sunne, shall be youre coastes. There shall not a man be able to withstande the all the dayes of thy lyfe. * For as I was with Moyses, so wyl I be with the. * I will nether leaue the, nor forsake the. * Be strong & bold: for vnto this people shalt thou deuyde the lande which I swate vnto their fathers to geue them.

I boue all thyng be stronge and harden thy self, to obserue and to do, accordyng to all the lawes, whiche Moyses my seruauant commaunded the. * Tourne there fro nether to þ right hand, nor to the lefte: that thou mayest haue vnderstanding in all thou takest in hand: let not the boke of this lawe depart out of thy mouth: But recorde therein day and nyght that thou mayest be circumspect to do accordyng to all that is wyrtten therein. For then shalt thou make thy waye prosperous, and then thou shalt haue vnderstanding. Beholde, I haue sayde vnto the, be strong and bold: neether feare, nor dread: For the Lord thy god is with the, whethersoever þ goest.

Then Josua commaunded the officers of the people, sayinge: Go thorowe the middes of the host, and commaund þ people, sayinge: prepare you vitayles for after three dayes ye shall passe ouer this Jordan, to go and enioye the land, which the LORD your GOD geueth you, to possesse it.

And vnto the Rubenites, Gadites, and halfe the tribe of Manasses, spake Josua, sayinge: * Remember that which Moyses the seruauent of the Lord commaunded you, sayinge: the Lord youre GOD hath geuen you rest, and hath geuen you this lande. Let your wyues, your children, and your cattell remaine in the lande whych Moyses gaue you on thys syde Jordan: But go ye before youre brethren armed, all that be men of warre, and helpe theym vntyll the LORD haue geuen your brethren rest, as he hath the you, and vntyll they also haue obtayned, the lande whiche the LORD your GOD geueth theym. And then retouche vnto the land of your possession and enioye it, which lande Moyses the LORDS seruauant gaue you on this syde Jordan, toward the sunne risinge. And they answered Josua, sayinge: * All that thou byddest vs, we wyl do, and whether so euer thou sendest vs, we wyl go. Accordyng as we obeyed Moyses in all thynges, so we wyl obey the, onely the Lord thy God be with thee as he was with Moyses. And whosoever disobey thy mouth, and wyl not hearken vnto thy wordes in all that thou commaundest him, let him dye: Onely be stronge and of good courage.

And the Lorde spake vnto Josua, saying: commaund the priestes that beare the arcke of witnesse, to come vp out of Jordan. And Josua commaunded the priestes, saying: Ascende vp oute of Jordan. And when the priestes that bare the arcke of the appoyntments of the Lorde were ascended out of Jordan: as soone as the sooles of the priestes sete were brought to drye land, the water of Jordan retourned againe vnto his place and went ouer all his bankes as he dyd before. And the people came vp out of Jordan the tenth daye of the first moneth, and pitched in Galgal euen in the east borders of Jericho.

The. v. Chapter.

The Canaanites are afraide. The seconde circumcysion vnder Josua.

And when all the kynges of the Amorites whiche are on thys syde of Jordan to the seawarde, and all the kynges of the Canaanites whiche lye on the sea heard, howe the Lorde had dyed by the water of Jordan before the children of Israel, buttill they were ouer, their heartes faunted in theym. And there was no spete in them anye more, for feare of the comynge of the chyldren of Israel.

That same tyme the Lorde sayd vnto Josua: Make thee knyues of stone, and go to againe and circumcise the children of Israel the second tyme. And Josua made hym knyues of stone and circumcised the children of Israel in the hyll of foreskynnes. And this is the cause why Josua circumcised. All the people that came out of Egypt that were males, al that were men of warre, dyed in the wyldernes by the waye, after they came oute of Egypt. Howe all the people that came oute were circumcised. But all the people that were borne in the wyldernes by the way after they came out of Egypt, they circumcised not. For the children of Israel walked fourtye yeares in the wyldernes, till all the people of men of warre that came oute of Egypt were consumed, which harkened not vnto the voyce hope of God, so that the Lorde sware, that he would not shewe them the lade Josua. 14. f. which the Lorde sware vnto theyr fathers, p he wold geue vs, euē a land + p C floweth with mylke & honye. And their children he set vp in their steade: theym Josua circumcised: for they were + uncircumcised, because they circumcised them not by the waye.

And when all the people were ful circumcised, they abode styll in their plac-ces in the host tyl they were whole. And the LORDE sayde vnto Josua: this daye I haue taken awaye the a shame of Egypte from you: and called the name of the same place Balgal vnto this daye. And the chyldren of Israell pyt-ched their tentes in Balgal, * and helde the feast of passeouer the fourtene daye of the moneth at euē in the felde of Jericho. And they ate of the corne of the lands on the morowe after passeouer, swete cakes and parched corne in the selfe same daye. And * Hanna ceased on the morowe, after they had eaten of the corne of the lande, nether hadde the chyldren of Israell Hanna anye more, but dyd eate of the frutes of the lande of Canaan that yete.

And when Josua was come to Jericho, he lyfte vp his eyes and looked: & beholde, there stode a man before hym with his swerde drawn in hys hande.
 And Josua wente vnto him, and sayed vnto him, art thou on our side or on our aduersaries? And he answered. Naye, but I am p captayne of the hoste of the Lord and am now come. And Josua fel on his face to the earthe, and dyd reue-rence, and sayde vnto hym: what sayeth my Lord vnto hys seruaunt. And the captayne of the Lordes host sayd vnto Josua: * do thy shoes of thy feate, for the place wheronthou standest, is holy.
 And Josua dyd so.

The wales of Jericho fall, and it is taken.

And Jericho shut in her people, and was shut for feare of the chyldren of Israell, so that no man went out or in. And the Lorde sayd vnto Josua:

behold, I haue geueit into thyne hand, Jericho & her king, & the men of warre.
 And ye shall compass the citie, al that be men of warre, ago round about it once: and so shall you do syxe dayes. And seven priestes shall beare seven trompettes of * rammes hoznes before the Arcke.

And the seuenth day, ye shall compass the citie seven tymes, and the priestes shall blowe with their trompettes. And when there is a longe blaste blowne wyth the Rammes hozne, as sone as ye heare the sounge of the hozne, let al the people shoute a myghtie shoute. And then shall the walles of the citty fall downe, and the people shall ascende vp, euery mā streight before him. And Josua the sonne of Nun, called vnto the priestes, and said vnto them: take vp p arcke of the pointment, & let seven priestes beare seven trompettes of rāmes hoznes before the arcke of p Lord. And he sayd vnto p people, go & compass the citie: & let the men of armes go before the arcke of the Lorde. And when Josua had spoken vnto the people, the seven priestes that bare the seven trompettes of rammes hoznes before the arcke of the LORDE, wente forth and blew with the hoznes, and the arcke of the tes-tamente of the LORDE folowed after theym. And the men of armes went before the priestes, that blew wyth hoznes, and the comē people came after the arcke: and as they wēt, they blew wyth the hoznes. And Josua commaunded the people, sayinge: shoute not noz let your voyce be heard, or any worde pro-ceade oute of your mouthes, vntyll the daye I bydde you shoute: and then shoute.

And so the arcke of the Lorde com-passed the citty and went about it once:
 and then they returned into the hooſte, and lodged there. And Josua rose erly in the mornynge, and the priestes toke vp the arcke of the LORDE, and seven priestes bare seven trompettes of rammes hoznes before the arcke of p Lord, and as they went, blew wyth the hoznes. And the men of armes went before them, and the comen people came after the arcke of the LORDE: and as they went, they blew wyth the hoznes.

Josua.

And the seconde day they compassed the ctyte once, and returned agayne into h host, and so they dōd syre dayes longe.

And the seuenth daye they rose erlye: euen with the dawnyng of the day, and compassed the ctyte after the same maner seuen tymes: onely that they compassed the ctyte seuen times.

And at the seuenth tyme, the prestes blew with the hornes, and Josua sayd vnto the people, shoute for the LORDE hath geuen you the ctyte. But the ctyte shall be excommunicate, both it and al that is therein, vnto the LORDE: onely Rahab the harlotte shall lyue, both she and al that is with her in the house, because she * hydde the messengers that we sente. And in anye wyse beware of the excommunicate thynges, lest ye make yowr selves excommunicate. For if thou take of the excommunicate thynges, so shall you make the hoste of Israel excommunicate and shal trouble it. But of the syluer, golde, vesselles of brasse, and yron shall be wholy vnto the LORDE and shall go into hys treasure.

And the people cryed, and blew wyth hornes: for whē the people heard the sounde of the hornes, they shouted a greate shoute: and the * walles fell downe, and the people went vp into the ctyte, euery man steyghte before him, and toke the ctyte. And they utterly destroyed all that was in the ctyte, bothe manne and woman, younge and olde, ore, shepe, and asse, wyth the edge of the swerde.

Then Josua said vnto the two men that went to spie out the countrey: * go into the harlottes house, and bring out thence, bothe the woman and all that pertaineth to her, * as ye swate to her. And the younge men that were spyres went in and broughte out Rahab, and her father, and mother, and all her brethren and all that she hadde. And they brought out all her household and put them without the host of Israel.

And they burnt the ctyte with fyre, and all that was therein. Onely the syluer, the golde, and the thynges of brasse and yeron they put vnto the treasure of the house of the LORDE. * And Josua saued Rahab the harlott, & her fathers household and all that pertaineth vnto her, and she dwelt in Israel, euen vnto this day, because she hydd the messengers whiche Josua sent to spie out Jericho.

And Josua cursed at that tyme, saying: cursed be the man before h<sup>e</sup> Lorde, that tyleth vp and byldeth thys ctyte Jericho: so that he laye the foundation with the death of his eldest sonne, and with the deathe, of hys youngest set vp the gates. And the LORDE was with Josua: and his fame was hearde, thowrowe out all landes.

Then Josua sent men from Jericho to Ai, which is besyde Bethauen, on the east syde of Bethell, and spake vnto them, saying: get you vp, and belewe the countrey. And the men went vp and spied out Ai. And returned vnto Josua, and sayde vnto him: let not all the people go vp, but lette as it were a two or thre thousande men go vp, and destroy Ai, and make not all the people to labour thither, for they are but fewe.

And so there wente vp thither, about a thre thousande men, which fledde before the men of Ai. And the men of Ai smote of them vpon a thyrtye and syre men, and chased theym before the gates euen vnto Gabarim, and smote theym in the goynge downe. And the heartes of the people, were dyscouraged and * melted lyke water. And Josua sayed. * Wh, Lorde Jehouah, wherfore hast thou broughte thys people ouer Jordan, to deliuer vs into the handes of the Amorites, to destroye vs: would to God we had aduentured & dwelt on y other syde Jordan. Oh Lord what shall I saye, when Israel turneth theyr backes before theyr enemyes: Moreouer the Canaanites, and all the enhabiters of the lande shall heare of it and shall come aboute vs, and destroye the name of vs oute of the worlde. And then what wilt thou do vnto thy migh-

And the Lorde sayd vnto Josua: get the vp, wherfore liest thou thus vpon thy face: Israel hath sinned, and also transgressed mine appoyntment, which I commaunded them, and haue taken of the excommunicate thynges, & haue stolen and hidde the, and also put them vnto theyr owne stuffe: And therefore the chyldren of Israel can not stand be-

theyr backes before theyr enemyes, because they be excommunicate. Nether will I bee with you anye more excepte ye destroy the excommunicate frome a-

C And vp and sanctifye the people, & byd them to sanctifie the selues against the morowe: for so sayeth the Lorde God of Israel, the excommunication is amonge you (Israel) and therefore ye cannot stand before your enemyes, vntil ye haue put the excommunication frome amonge you. To morow morynge ye shall come by your tribes. And the tribe whiche the Lord shall fynde guilty, shall come by kindredes. And y kindred which the Lord shall fynde guilty, shall come by householdes. And y household which the lord shall fynde faultie, shall come man by manne.
And he that is founde in the excommu-nicacion, shall be burnt with fire, both he and all that pertaineth vnto him, because he hath transgressed the couenant of the Lorde, and because he hath brought folwe in Israel.

And so Josua rose vp earlye in y mornyng and brought Israel by theyr tribes: and the tribe of Juda was caught.
Then he brought y kindredes of Juda, and founde the kindred of the zarahites guilty. And he broughte the kindred of the zarahites by householdes, and zabadi was caught. And he broughte hys householde, man by man, and Acan the sonne of Carmi, the sonne of zabdi, the sonne of zarah in the tribe of Juda was caught.

And Josua sayde vnto Acan: * my sonne, geue glory to the Lorde God of Israel, and geue him prayse, & shew me what thou hast done, & hyde it not from me. And Acan answered Josua and sayde: of a truth I haue sinned against the LORDE God of Israel, and so and so haue I done. I saue amonge the spoyle a goodlye Babylonische garmente, and two hundred sicles of syl-

I toke them. And beholde they lye hys pitched on the north syde of Ai a valey being betwene the and Ai. And he toke vpon a fyue thousand men, and put the on the west syde of the ctye. And he put the people euen al the hoste, on the north syde of the ctye, and the lyers awayte on the west. And Josua went the same night into the myddes of the valey.

And when the kynge of Ai sawe that they halted and rose bp early, then the people of the ctye went out agaynst Is raell, to battell, bothe the king and all his people, at a time apoynted, euen be fore the playne, and wylt not that there were liers awayte on the backsyde of the ctye.

And Josua & al Israell sayned the sel ues to be put to the worse before them, and fled towarde the wilderness. And al the people of the towne cried to solow after the. And they solowed after Josua till they were drawen awaye from the ctie: So that there was not a man lefte in Ai, or in Bethel, that went not out af ter Israell. And they left the citie open & solowed after Israell.

Then the Lorde sayde vnto Josua:
stretch out the bowckelar that is in thine hande toward Ai, for I haue geuen the
it. And Josua stretched out the bowckel lar that was in his hande, toward the ctie. And the liers awayte rose quickly out of theyr places, & came, as soone as Josua had stretched out his hand, & they

And when Josua and all Israell saw & that the smoke of it ascended. They turned agayne and layed on the men of Ai. And the other pssued oute of the citie

And they layed vpon them, so that they let none ether remayne or scape. And the kynge of Ai they toke a lyue, and and whē they were al fallen on the Edge

 Then all Israell returned vnto Ai and smot it with the edge of the swerde. And all that fell that daye, both of men and women, were twelue thousande, euen all the men of Ai.

for Josua plucked not hys hande sayde citie, Israell toke vnto them sel-

 Lord, whiche he commaunded Josua.
 And Josua set Ai on fyre, and made it an heape for euer, and a wildernesse, ehe hanged on tree, vntyll euen. And as sone as the sunne was downe, Josua comaunded that they shoulde take the carkas downe of the tree, and caste it in the entrynge of the gate of the cty, and cast theron a greate heape of stones, þ

Then Josua bilt an altare vnto the Lord God of Israell, in mount Eball, as Moses the seruaunt of the Lord to-maunded the chyldren of Israell, accor-dyng as it is wrytten in the boke of

 And he wrote there vpon the stones the wrote in the presence of the chyldren of

And all Israell and the elders therof, and theyr officers, and Iudges stode, were leuites which bare the arcke of the fronte of the Mounte of Garizim, and halfe of the on þ forefront of mount E-people Israell. And after that, he read al the wordes of the lawe, bothe the blessing and cursynge, accordyng to al that is wrytten in the boke of the lawe: so þ there was not one word of all that Moses commaunded, whiche Josua reade not, before all the congregacion of Is-the straungers that were amonge them.

And Josua ascended from Gilgall, both he and all the people of warre with him,

him, and all the men of mighte, and the Lord sayd vnto Josua: feare them not, for I haue deliuered them into thyne hand, ther shal not a man of them stand before the. And Josua came vnto them sodenly, and iourneyed from Galgath at nyghte. And the Lorde turmyled them before Israell, and slew of them a great slaughter at Gibeon, and chased them a longe the way that goeth by to Bethoron and slew them tyll they came to Ekah and Makeda. And as they fledde from Israell, euen in the goynge doune to Bethoron, the Lord cast downe great stones froime heauen vpon them, buttill they came vnto Ekah, that they dyed. And there were mo that dyed with haille stones, then the chyldren of Israell slew with swerde.

Then spake Josua vnto the Lord, & saye when the Lord deliuered the Amorites before the chyldren of Israell, and he sayde in the sight of all Israell: *Sunne stand thou stil vpon, Gibeon, and thou Moone, in the valey of Aialon. And the sunne abode, and the moone stode still, buttill the people hadde aduenged themselves vpon their enemies. Is not this writen in the booke of the *ryghteous, howe that the sunne abode in the middes of heauen, and halted not to go downe by the space of a whole day. And there was no daye lyke that, before it, or after it, that the Lord obeyed the voise of a man: and al because the Lord fought for Israell.

And Josua returned, and all Israell with him, vnto the hoste to Galgath: but the five kynges fledde, and hid them selves in a caue at Makeda. And it was tolde Josua, sayinge: & five kynges are found hid in a caue at Makeda. And Josua sayde: tobole greates stones vnto the mouth of the caue, and apoynte men thereto, for to kepe them. And stande ye not stille, but folowe after your enemies, and smyte the hardmost of them. And suffer them not to entre into theyr ctyes, for the Lord your God hath deliuered them into your handes. And when Josua and the chyldren of Israell had made an ende of slaying them with agreate slaughter, tyll they were wasted, yet there remaines a certayne of them, whiche entred into walled cities, and all the people returned to the hoste to Josua at Makeda in peace, for there was no man durste moue his tonge agaynst the chyldren of Israell. Then sayd Josua: open the mouth of the caue, and baynge oute these v. kynges vnto me oute of the caue. And they dyd so, and broughte thole five kynges vnto him, oute of the caue: the kyng of Jericoh, the kyng of Hebron, the kyng of Jarmuth, the kyng of Lachis, & the kyng of Eglon.

And when they had brought out those kynges vnto Josua: Josua called for all the men of Israell, and sayd vnto the capytaynes of the men of warre, which came with him: come nere a & put your fete vpon the neckes of these kynges. And they came nere and put theyr fete vpon the neckes of them. And Josua sayde vnto them: feare not nor dreade: but bee stronge and plucke by your heries, for so shall the Lord your God sette all your enemies agaynst whiche ye fighte.

And then Josua smote them, and slew them, * and hanged them on treues tyl euen. And at the goinge downe of the sunne, Josua gaue commaundement, and they toke them downe of the *trees and cast them into a caue (where they hid themselves) and layed greates stones on the caues mouth, whiche remaine vnto this daye.

And that same day Josua toke Makeda and smote it with the edge of the swerde, and the kyng thereof also, and utterly destroyed them and all the soules that were therein, and let noughte remaine. And he dyd to the kyng of Makeda, *as he dyd to the kyng of Jericho.

Then Josua wente froime Makeda, and all Israell with him vnto Libna, & foughte agaynst Libna. And the Lord deliuered it also into their handes, with the kyng also, and smote it with the edge of the swerde, and all the soules that were therein, and let noughte remaine in it, and dyd vnto the kyng thereof as he dyd vnto the kyng of Jericho.

After that Josua departed from Libna and all Israell with him, vnto Lachis, and beleged it, and assaulted it. And the Lord deliuered into the handes of Iſraell Lachis, that they toke it the ſeconde daye, and ſmote it with the edge of the ſwerde, and all the ſoules that were therein, accordynge to all that he dyd to Libna.

Then Hozam kynge of Geſer came vp to helpe Lachis: But Joſua ſmote hym and his people, buttill he leſte hym noughte remainynge.

And from Lachys Joſua departed vnto Eglon, and all Iſraell with hym, and there beſeged it, and aſſaulted it, and toke it the ſame daye, and ſmote it with the edge of the ſwerde, and all the ſoules that were therein: and utterly deſtroyed them the ſame day, accordig to all that he dyd to Lachis.

Then Joſua departed vp from Eglon and all Iſraell with him, vnto Hebron. And they foughte agaynſte it, and toke it, and ſmote it with the edge of the ſwerde, and the kynge therof, and al the towneſ that pertayned to it, and all the ſoules that were therein, ſo that they leſte noughte remainynge: but in all thinges as they did to Eglon, ſo they deſtroyed it utterly, and all the ſoules that were therein.

Then Joſua returned, and all Iſraell with him to Dabit, and they fought agaynſte it, and toke it, and the kynge therof, and all the towneſ that pertayned thereto: And ſmote them wth the edge of the ſwerde, and utterly deſtroyed all the ſoules that were therein, and let noughte remaine. And as he dyd to Hebron, ſo he dyd to Dabit and the kynge therof, and as he dyd to Libna and her kynge.

And Joſua ſmote all the hille countreys, and the ſouthe countreys, and the valeys, and the ſpringes of water, with al their kinges and let noughte remaine, but utterly deſtroyed al that breathed, as the Lorde God of Iſraell commaunded. And Joſua ſmote them from Cades barne vnto Maſ, and al the contrey of Goſan, euen vnto Gibeon. And all thoſe kinges and their lande, Joſua toke at one tyme: becauſe the Lord God of Iſraell foughte for Iſrael. And then Joſua returned & all Iſrael with him, vnto the hoſte of Gilgall.

The xi. Chapter.

The battell of Joſua with ſeuere kinges, which God ſent vnto him.

Ad when Jabin kynge of Haſor, had heard that: he ſente to Jabbab kinge of Madon, & to the kynge of Simrom, and the kynge of Achſaph. And vnto the kinges that are by northe in the mountaynes, and playnes, on the ſouthſyde of Ceneroth, and in the low countreys: and in the regions of Dor, vpo the ſea, and vnto the Canaanites bothe by Eaſte and weſte: and vnto the Amorites, Hethites, Phereſites, and Jebuſites in the mountaynes: and vnto the Heuites vnder Hermon in the land of Maſſaphah: whiche came oute and all their hoſtes wth them, a multitude of folke, euen as the ſandes of the ſea in number, with horſes and charettes exceeding manye. And al theſe kinges met together & came & pitched together vpo the water of Merom, ſo to fight w Iſrael.

And the Lorde ſayde vnto Joſua: be not afraid of them: ſo to morow about this tyme I wyl deliuer them al ſaine, before all Iſrael: and thou ſhalt hough their horſes, and burne their charettes with fyre. And Joſua came, and all the men of warre wth hym agaynſte them, vnto the water of Merom, ſodenly, and ſelle vpon them. And the Lorde deliuered them into the handes of Iſrael: and they ſmote them, and chaſed them, vnto great Sidon, and vnto the whot waters, and vnto the valeye of Maſſaphad Eaſtwarde, and ſmote them buttill they had none remainynge of them. And Joſua ſerued them as the Lorde had him, houghed their horſes, and burnt their charettes with fyre.

Then Joſua at that tyme turned backe & toke Haſor, and ſmote her king with the ſwerde. ſo Haſor before time was the heade of all thoſe kyngdomes. And

And they smote all the soules that were therein with þe edge of the swerde, bitterlye destroyng them, þe no breath was lette remayne. And burnt Hazer, with tyze, & all the cities of those kynges, with all the kynges of them. Iosua toke and smote them with þe edge of the swerde, and bitterlye destroyed them * as Moses the seruaunte of the Lorde commaunded.

But Israel burnt none of the cities that stode vpon hylles, saue Hazer only, that Iosua burnt: But al the spoyle of the sayde Cyttes and the catell, the chyldren of Israell caughte vnto them selues: But the men onelye they smote with þe edge of the swerde vntyll they had destroyed them, and had lette no breathe remaynyng. As the Lorde commaunded Iosua, and euen so dyd Iosua * and minished no worde of all that the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And so Iosua toke al the lande, the hylles and all the south countrey, and al the lande of Golan, and þe lowe countrey, and the playnes, and the mountayne of Israell, in the lowe countrey of the same, euen from mounte Balak that goeth vnto Seir, vnto Baal Gad in the balleye of Libanon, vnder mounte Hermon. And al the kynges of the same, he toke and smote them, & slue them.

Iosua made warre longe tyme wth those kynges: for there was no cytpe that made peace wth the chyldren of Israel, saue those Hethites that inhabited Gibeon: All other they tooke wyth battell: for it came of the Lorde to harden their heartes, þe they shoulde come agaynst Israell in battell: Euen to destroye them bitterlye, that they shoulde haue no mercye, but to byngne them to noughte. As the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And that same ceason Iosua wente and destroyed the Enakites out of the mountaynes, & out of Hebron, Dabir, and Anab, & out of al the mountaynes of Iuda, & out of all the mountaynes of Israell. And Iosua destroyed them bitterlye wth their cities. So þe there was not one Enakite lefte in þe lande of the chyldren of Israel: only in Alah, Beth, & Aiod, there remained of the.

And Iosua toke the whole lande accordyng to all that the Lorde sayde vnto Moses, & gaue it a possession vnto Israel: euery man his part in their tribes: and the lande rested from war.

These are the kynges of the lande whiche the chyldren of Israel smote and conquered their landes, on þe other side Jordan estwarde, fro the ryuer Arnon, vnto mounte Hermon, & al þe plaine estwarde: * Schon kyng of the Amorites þe dwelte in Hesbon, & ruled fro Arroer, whiche lyeth on the byrm of the riuer of Arnon, and to þe myddle of the ryuer, and halfe Gilead vnto þe ryuer Jabock, þe border of the chyldre of Ammon: and in þe playne vnto þe sea of Tengeroth estwarde, & vnto the sea in the playne called the salt sea estwarde, the waye to Beth, Iesimoth and by southe vnder the springes of Phasgah.

¶ Josua is commaunded to deuyde the lande to the chyldren of Israel.

When Josua was waken olde, and strycken in ye- res, the Lorde sayde vn- to hym: thou arte olde & stricken in yeres, & there remayneth yet exceeding muche lande to be possessed: This is the lande that yet remayneth: all the coastes of the Philistines: and al þe Ge- surites: from Nilus in Egypt, vnto the borders of Akaron northwarde, whiche lande was counted to pertaine vnto the Cananites, euen syue Lordes of þe Phi- listines: the Aathites, Adaites, Asca- lonites, Gethites, Akaronites, with the Guites, from the southe. All the lande of the Cananites, and Maara that per- taineth to þe Sidons, eue vnto Aphek, and to the borders of the Amozites. And the land of the Gilites, and all Liba- non towarde the sonne rysynge, from Baal Gad vnder mount Hermon vntyl thou come to Hemath, all the inhabi- toures of the hyl countre, from Liba- non vnto the * whote waters: euen all the Sidones. I wyll caste them oute from before the chyldren of Israel, & fe þe thou in any wise deuide it by lot vnto þe chyldren of Israel to enherit, as I haue comaunded the. Nowe therefore deuide this lande to enherite, vnto the nine tribes & the halfe tribe of Manas- ses. For þe other halfe w the Rubenites and þe Gadaites haue receaued their enheritaunce al readye. * which Moses gaue them beyonde Jordan E. ward: Euen as Moses the seruaunte of the Lorde gaue them: frome Aroer that lyeth on the byrmye of the ryuer Arnon: with the cyrpe in the middes of the ryuer. And all the playne of Mo- ba vnto Dibon: And all the cyrpes of Sehon, kynge of the Amozites whiche raygned in Hesbon, euen vnto the bor- ders of þe chyldren of Ammon: and Gi- lead, & the landes that border vpon the Gesurites and the Machathites, & all mounte Hermon, and all Basan vnto Salekah: eue al the kyngdome of Og, in Basa, whiche raygned in Aitharoth, and Edrai, whiche same raygned of the rest of the * Raphaites. But Moses smote them and destroyed them.

¶ Neuerthelesse the chyldren of Isra- el expelled not the Gesurites nor the Machathites: but the Gesurites & the Machathites dwell amonge the Is- raelites euen vnto thys daye: Onely vnto the trybe of Leui, he gaue none enheritaunce: * for the offeringe of the Lorde God of Israel is their enheri- taunce as he sayde vnto them.

And Moses gaue vnto the tribe of the chyldren of Ruben by their kynce- des. And their coastes were from Aroer that lyeth on the bancke of the ryuer Arnon, and the citie that lyeth in the ryuer, and the playne aboute Midba, Hesbon, and all her townes that lye in the playne: Dibon * Bamothbaal, and Bethbaalmeon: Jahazah, Kedemoth, and Mephath, Kirfathaim, Saba, mah, and zarath, zahar in mounte E- mak: and Bethpheoz and the springes of Phalgah, and Bethiesimoth: & all the cities in the playne. And al þe kyng- dome of Sehon kinge of the Amozites, whiche raygned in Hesbon, whom Mo- ses smote * w the Lordes of Madian, Eui, Rekem, Zur, Hur, and Reba, the Lordes of Schon, and the Inhabitantes of the contrey. And Baalam also the sonne of Beor & Ischafayer, the children of Israell slewe wyth the swerde, amonge other that were slayne. And the borders of the chyldren of Ruben was Jordan, with the contrey that lyeth theron. This is the inheritaunce of the chyldren of Ruben in their kynredes, wyth the cyties and villages pertaynyng therto,

D And Moses gaue vnto the trybe of Gad, euen vnto the chyldren of Gad, he gaue by kynredes. And their costes were Jazer, and all the cities of Gilead, and halfe the lande of the chyldren of Ammon, vnto Aroer that lyeth befoze Rabbah: And from hesbon vnto Ramoth Gazpah, and Betonim: and fro Mahanaim vnto the borders of Dabir. And in the valeye they had Betharam, Bethnimitra, Socoth, and Zaphon, the rest of the kyngdome of Schon kyng of hesbon, and Jordan and the costes that lye theron, euen vnto the edge of the sea of Ceneroth, on the other syde Jordan Estwarde. This is the inheritaunce of the chyldren of Gad, in their kynredes, & cyties with their villages.

* And Moses gaue vnto the halfe trybe of Manasses. And the halfe tribe of Manasses had their parte by their kynredes. And their costes were fro Mahanaim, euen all Basan, the kyngdome of Og, kyng of Basan, and all the townes of Jair whiche lye in Basan, euen thre skore cities, and halfe Gilead, and Astath, and Edrat, cities of the kyngdome of Og in Basan, which pertainge vnto the chyldren of Machir the sonne of Manasses, and that vnto halfe the chyldren of Machir by their kynredes.

These are they to whiche Moses gaue inheritaunce in þe felde of Moab, on the other syde Jordan by Jericho Estwarde. * But vnto the trybe of Levi Moses gaue none inheritaunce, for the Lord God of Israell he is their inheritaunce, * as he sayde vnto them.

C Caleb requyeth the heritage that was promysed hym, and Hebron was geuen hym.

C The. xliii. Chapter.

And these are the contreyes which the chyldren inherited in the land of Canaan, vnto which Eleazar the prelate, and Iosua the sonne of Nun, and the aunciet heades of the trybes of the chyldren of Israel, gaue them their inheritaunce * by lotte, as the Lord commaunded by the had of Moses, to geue vnto the nyne trybes, and vnto the halfe trybe of Manasses. for Moses had geuen inheritaunce vnto two tribes and an halfe on the other syde Jordan. But vnto the Leuites he gaue none inheritaunce amonge them. * for the chyldren of Joseph were two tribes, Manasses and Ephraim. And therfore they gaue no parte vnto the Leuites in the lande, saue cyties to dwelle in and þe suburbes of the same, for their bestes and cattell. * As the Lord commaunded Moses: euen so the chyldren of Israell did whē they deuyded the lande.

And the chyldren of Juda came vnto Iosua in Gilgall. And Caleb þe sonne of Iephune the Kenesyte sayde vnto him: thou wottest what the Lord sayde vnto Moses the mā of God, aboute me and the in Cades Barne. * fourtye yere olde was I when Moses the seruaunt of the Lord sent me from Cades Barne to spie oute the lāde. And I brought hym worde agayne euen as I thought in myne herte. Neuerthelesse my brethren that went wyth me dyscouraged the hertes of the people. But I folowed the Lord my God euen vnto the ende.

And Moses sware the same reasoun, saying: * the land wheron thy fete haue trooden, shalbe thyne inheritaunce and thy chyldren for euer, because thou hast folowed the Lord my God continual-lye. And now beholde, the Lord hath kepte me lusty (as he said) * this fourtye and syue yeres, euen sence the Lord spake vnto Moses, whyle the chyldren of Israell wanderyd in the wyldernesse. And now se, I am thys day fourescore and syue yeres: and yet am as stronge at this tyme, as I was when Moses sent me: loke how strong I was then, so strong I am now, to watre and to do all maner of thynges.

Howe therfore geue me this mountayne.

The lotte of parte of Ephraim.

And the lotte of the children of Joseph selle fro Jordan by Jericho vnto the water of Jericho Eastward, and the wilderness that goeth by from Jericho thowout mount Bethel: and then goeth oute from Bethel to Lus, and runneth alonge vnto the borders of Arciataroth: and goeth doune westwarde, euen to the coastes of Japhlethi, and vnto the coastes of Bethhoron the nether, and so to Gasor, and the endes of their coastes came to the sea. The lotte of porcion of the halfe tribe of Manasse. The Canaanites become tributaries to the Israelites. Manasses and Ephraim require a greater porcion of heritage.

v. l. f.

And

And the trybe of Manasses, whiche Gen. 48. c was the * eldest sonne of Joseph, receaued a lotte. And Machir the eldest sonne of Manasses whych was the father of Gilead (and a man of war) hadde Gilead and Basan. And the rest of the chyldren of Manasses recey-ued by theyr kynredde: whych were the chyldren of Abiezer: the chyldren of Helek: the chyldren of Asriel: the chylthe chyldren of Semida. These are the male chyldren of Manasses the sonne came before Eleazar the priest, and before Josua the sonne of Nun, and becommaunded Moses to geue vs an enherptauce amonge our brethren. And he gaue them at the mouth of the Lord, an enherptauce amonge the brethren porcyons to Manasses, belyde the land of Gilead and Basan whiche are on the other syde Jordan: because the dought-

And the coastes of Manasses reached from Aser to Machinathah that lyeth before Sicheu, & wente a lounge on the ryght hande, euen vnto the inhabiteurs of Enthaphuah, and the lande of Thawere on the northsyde of the riuer, & the endes of them was the sea: so the south pertayned to Ephraim, and the north to Manasses, and the sea is hys border.

 And they mette togyther in Aser north of the same: & the inhabitours of Cha-of Hagedo with the towne of the same, e-

 Manasses could not ouercome those ci-in the same lande. Neuertheles, asone as the chyldren of Israel were waxed stronge, they put the Cananites to trybute, but expelled them not.

And the chyldren of Joseph spake vnto
Josua, saying: why hast thou geuen vs but one lot, and one porcion to enherit, seynge we be muche people, and for as muche as the LORD hath blessed vs so, and Josua answered them: yf ye be much people, then get you vp to the wocontreye, and prepare for your selues there in the lande of the Pheresites and of the Kaphaites, yf mount Ephraim be to narrowe for you. Then the chyldre of Joseph sayde: agayne the hyl wyll not be gotten of vs: for al the Canani-tes that dwel in the lowe contreye haue charettes of yron, and so haue they that inhabite Bethsean, and the towne of the same, and they also that dwel in the valey of Jezreel. And Josua answered the house of Joseph, Ephraim and Ma-nasses, saying: ye be muche people, and haue great power, and shall not therefore haue one lotte. But the hyl Halbe-shall bynge it to fashon, and it shall be yours eue vnto the endes of it, for ye shall be able to cast out the Cananites for al their yron charettes, & for al they be so

And they gaue them Karath Arbe of the father of Enach, (whiche is Hebron) in the hyll contrey of Iuda, wyth the Suburbes of the same rounde about it. But the contrey that pertained to the cpye and the villages thereof, they gaue to * Caleb the sonne of Iephune, to be hys possellon.

And thus they gaue to the children of Aaron the priest, the fraunchysed cpyties of the near, Hebron wyth her Suburbes: Libna wyth her Suburbes, and Jathir wyth her Suburbes, and Ekimoa wyth her Suburbes, and Holon wyth her Suburbes, and Dabir wyth her Suburbes, and Ain wyth her Suburbes, and Jutah wyth her Suburbes, and Bethlames wyth her Suburbes: nyne cpyties oute of those two tribes. And out of p tribe of Ben Jamin they gaue Gibeon wyth her Suburbes: Gaba wyth her Suburbes: Anatoth wyth her Suburbes: Almon wyth her Suburbes: foure cpyties. All these cpyties of the chyldren of Aaron pyestes were thirtene cpyties with their Suburbes. And the kynredes of the children of Cahath that were Leuites: that is to say, the other children of Cahath had the cities of theyr lotte, out of the tribe of Ephraim. And they gaue them the free cpyte of the near: Siché wyth her Suburbes, in mounte Ephraim: and Gazer wyth her Suburbes: and Razim wyth her Suburbes: Bethhoron wyth her Suburbes: foure cpyties.

And out of the trybe of Dan: Eltheke wyth her Suburbes: Gibthon wyth her Suburbes: Atalon wyth her Suburbes, and Gathremon wyth her Suburbes: foure cpyties. And out of the halfe tribe of Manasses, Chanach wyth her Suburbes: Gathremon wyth her Suburbes: two cpyties. So that all the cpyties whiche were gyuen vnto the kynredes of the other chyldren of Cahath, were tenne wyth theyr Suburbes.

And vnto the chyldren of Gerson whych were of the kynredes of the Le

And vnto the kynredes of the children of Merari, the rest of the Leuites, they gaue oute of the tribe of Zabulon: Tecnam wyth her Suburbes: Carthah wyth her Suburbes: Damna wyth her Suburbes, and Nahalal wyth her Suburbes: foure cpyties. And out of the trybe of Ruben, they gaue Bozor wyth her Suburbes: Jabelah wyth her Suburbes: Kedemoth wyth her Suburbes, and Maphaath wyth her Suburbes: foure cpyties. And out of the trybe of Gad, they gaue the fraunchysed city of p near, Ramoth in Gilead wyth her Suburbes, Mahanaim wyth her Suburbes, Hesbo wyth her Suburbes: & Jaser wyth her Suburbes: iiii. cities in al, so p al the cpyties of p chyldre of Merari in their kynredes, which wer p rest of the kynredes of the Leuites, were by their lot, twelue cpyties. ## The. xxi. Chapter.

¶ Ruben, Gad, and the halfe trybe of Manasses see sende agayne to theyr possessions. They byde an altare for a memoriall.

When Josua called vnto the Rubenites, the Gaddites, and to the halfe tribe of Manasses, and said vnto them: * ye haue kepte all that Moses the seruaunt of the Lord commaunded you, and haue obeyed my voyce in all that I commaunded you: ye haue not leste youre brethren of a longe season vnto thys daye, but haue kepte the comaundement of the Lord your god. And now the Lord hath geuen reste vnto your brethren as he promysed the. Wherefore retorne a go vnto your tentes, and vnto the lande of youre possession, whiche Moses the seruaunt of the Lord gaue you on the other syde Jordan.

¶ But in any wise take exceeding good hede, that ye do the comaundemente and lawe, which Moses the seruaunt of the Lord charged you: whiche is, that ye loue the Lord your God, and walke in his waies, & kepe his comaundementes, & cleaue vnto him, & serue him with al your hartes, & all your soules. And so Josua blessed them & sent them away. And they went vnto theyr tentes.

Vnto the one halfe of the trybe of Manasses Moses gaue possession in Basan: and vnto the other halfe therof gaue Josua with their brethren on this syde Jordane westward. And also when Josua sent them away vnto their tentes & blessed them, he said vnto them: retorne with much riches vnto youre tentes, and with very much catel, with silver, golde, brasse, yron, and with raymente aboue measure, and deuide the spoyle of youre enemies with your brethren.

¶ And the chyldren of Ruben, the chyldren of Gad and halfe the trybe of Manasses, returned and departed from the chyldren of Israel out of Siloh (which is in the lande of Canaan) to go vnto the contreye of Gilead, and to the land of theyr possession, wherein they were possessed at the mouth of the Lord by the hande of Moses. And when they came vnto the collys of Jordan that lie in the lande of Canaan: there the chyldren of Ruben, the chyldren of Gad and the halfe tribe of Manasses, bylt an altare fast by Jordan, and that a great altare to se to. And when the chyldren of Israel hearde saye: beholde, the chyldren of Ruben, the chyldren of Gad, and the halfe tribe of Manasses, haue bylte an altare in the forefront of the lande of Canaan in the borders of Jordan on the syde of the chyldren of Israel: the hole congregacion of the chyldren of Israel gathered them together to Siloh, to go vpon them with batel. And the chyldren of Israel sent vnto the chyldren of Ruben, to the chyldren of Gad, and to the halfe tribe of Manasses into the lande of Gilead, whiche the sonne of Eleazar the preeste, and with him ten lordes, of euery chese house a lord, thorowe out all the trybes of Israel, which were heades of theyr fathers housholdes ouer the thousandes of Israel. And they went vnto the chyldren of Ruben, of Gad and to the halfe trybe of Manasses, vnto the land of Gilead, and speake with them, sayinge:

¶ Thus saye the hole congregacion of the Lord: what transgression is thys that ye haue transgressed agaynst the God of Israel, to turne away this day from after the Lord, and to bylde you an altare for to rebell thys day agaynst the Lord. Is * the wicked dede of Beor to lytle for vs, wherof we are not cleansed vnto this daye, and there was a plage in the congregacion of the Lord. But that ye also should turne away this daye from folowinge the Lord: ye shall rebelle to day agaynst the Lord, and to morowe he shall be wrathe wth all the congregacion. Not withstandinge if the lande of youre possession bee vncleane, then come ouer vnto the lande of the possession of the Lord, where the Lordes tabernacle dwelleth, and be possessed amonge vs. But rebell not agaynst the Lord, nor agaynst vs, to bylde you anye other aulter saue the aulter of the Lord oure God. * Dyd not I can the sonne of zarah trespasse in the erromunicate thynges, and wraath fell on all the congregacion of Israel, so he alone

 Then the chyldren of Ruben and of Gad, and halfe the trybe of Manasses answered, and sayde vnto the heades ouer the thousandes of Israell: The myghty God Jehouah he knoweth, and Israell shall know, if it be to rebelle or transgresse agaynste the Lorde, then the Lorde saue vs not thys daye. Or elles if wee haue bylde vs an aulter to turne from folowinge the Lorde, or to offer thereon burntoffringe or meateoffringes, or to offer peaceoffringes thereon: let the Lorde requyre it: And haue not rather done it for feare of thys: least in tyme to come your chyldren shoulde saye vnto oures: what haue ye to do with the Lorde God of Israell, saying: that the Lorde hath made Iordan a bozder betwen vs and you, ye chyldren of Ruben and of Gad: ye haue no parte therfore in the Lorde: so shal your chyldren make our chyldren cease from fearynge the Lorde.

I And therfore we sayde: Let vs cause an aulter to be made, not for burntoffringes, nor sacrifices, but it shal be a

And we thought if they shoulde so say to vs or to oure generacions in tyme to come, that we would saye agayne: Beholde the sacpō of the aulter which our fathers made, nether for burntoffringes nor sacrifices, but that it shoulde bee a witnesse betwene vs and you. God forbydde that ye shoulde rebell agaynste the Lorde, and that we shoulde retorne this daye from after him, and bylde an aulter for burntoffringes or sacrifices, saue the altare of the Lord our God that is before his tabernacle.

E And when Phinehes the preest and the Lordes of the congregacion hea- des ouer the thousandes of Israell which were with hym, hearde the wordes that the chyldren of Ruben, the chyldren of Gad, and the chyldren of Manasses spake, they were well contente. And Phinehes the Sonne of Eleazar the preeste sayde vnto the chyldren of Ruben, of Gad and of Manasses, this day we perceauē, that the Lorde is amonge vs, because ye haue not done this treaspasse agaynste the Lorde. And now ye haue rydde the chyldren of Israell out of the handes of the Lorde.

And Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar the preeste and the lordes returned fro the chyldren of Ruben and of Gad out of the lande of Gilead vnto the lande of Canaan, to the chyldren of Israell, and broughte them worde agayne. And the aunswere pleased the chyldren of Israell well, and they praysted God, and dyd not entende to go agaynste them in batelle, to destroye the lande whiche the chyldren of Ruben and Gad dwelte in. And the chyldren of Ruben and the chyldren of Gad called the aulter *Ed, because it is a witnesse betwene vs, that the Lorde is God.

The xxiii. Chapter.

I Josua exhorteth the people that they forye not them selues to the Gentyles, and that they traste in none but in God onely, whiche had fulfilled his promyses to them.

Ad it came to passe a lottige season after that the Lord had geuen rest vnto Israell from all thei enemyes rounde aboute, that Josua waxed olde, and was strycken in yeres. Wherefore he sent for all Israell, and for thei elders, thei heades, thei Judges and officers, and sayd vnto them: I am olde and strycken in yeres. And ye haue sene all that the Lord your God hath done vnto all these nacions before your faces: for the Lord your God he fought for you. * Behold, I haue appoynted these nacions that remayne, to be the inheritaunce of your tribes: euen from Jordan, and all the nacions that I haue destroyed stroyed, euen vnto the greate Sea, westwarde. And the LORDE your GOD he shall expell and caste them oute before you, and ye shall conquere their landes, as the LORDE your god hath sayd vnto you.

B *Be therfore exceedinge stronge that ye take hede to do all that is wyrtten in the booke of the lawe of Moses, & that ye holue not a syde ther from, to y<sup>e</sup> right hande or to the leste: and that ye go not vnto these nacions; that remaine with you: and y<sup>e</sup> neether make mencyon or sweare by the names of theyr Goddess: and that ye neether serue them nor bowe your selues vnto them. But that ye sticke faste vnto the LORDE your GOD, as ye haue done vnto thys dave. So shall the LORDE caste oute before you great nacions and myghtye, as ye se howe no manne hath stande before you hitherto. *One of you shall chase a thousand: for the LORDE your GOD he fighteth for you, as he hath saide vnto you. Take good hede therfore vnto your soules, that ye loue the LORDE your GOD.

But and yf ye shall go backe and cleaue vnto the reste of these nacions that remaine with you, and shall make Mariages with them, & shall go to them and they come to you: bee sure that the LORDE your GOD will not caste oute all these nacions frome before you. *But they shall bee snares and trappes vnto you, and scourges for your sydes, and pyckes in your eyes, vntyll ye peryshe from of thys good lande, which y<sup>e</sup> LORDE your GOD hath geuen you.

B Beholde, I walke this dave, by the way of all the worlde: call ye to mynde in al your hertes and in al your soules, that nothyng hath sayled of al the good thynges whiche the LORDE your GOD promysed you. All are come to passe, and nothyng hath sayled thereof. And as al good thynges are come vpon you, whiche the LORDE your GOD promysed you: so shall the LORDE byrnyng vpon you al euell vntyll he haue destroyed you fro offhys good lande, whiche the LORDE your GOD hath geue you, when ye haue traungressed the apoyntmente of the LORDE your GOD, whiche he commaunded you: and haue gone & serued straunge Goddess, and bowed your selues to them. Then shall the wrath of the LORDE waxe whote vpon you, and ye shall peryshe quyklye, frome of the good lande, which he hath geuen you.

The .xxliii. Chapter.

Iosua exhorte the people to the heppynge of the lawe. He dyeth. The bones of Ioseph are buried. Clear day dyeth.

AND Iosua gathered all the tribes of Israell to Sichem, & called for the elders of Israel, & for theyr heades, Judges and officers which presented them selues before GOD. And Iosua sayd vnto all the people, thus sayeth the LORDE GOD of Israel, *your fathers dwelt on the other syde of the floude in olde time: euen Thareh the father of Abraham and Nachor, and serued straunge Goddess. *But I toke your father Abraham fro the other syde of the floud, and brought hym into the lande of Canaan, and multiplied hys sede, and *gaue hym Isaac. And I gaue vnto *Isaac, Jacob and Esau. And I gaue vnto *Esau mount Seir, to possesse it. But *Jacob and his chyldren wente downe into Egypte.

*Then I sent Moses and Aaron. And I plagued Egypte, after the maner as I byd amonge them, and after that I brought you out, and I broughte your fathers out of Egypt. And ye came vnto the sea: and the Egyptians folowed after your fathers with charrettes and horsemen, vnto the red sea. And they cried vnto y<sup>e</sup> LORDE. And he put darcknesse betwene you and the Egyptians, and brought the sea vpon them, and couered them. And your eyes haue sene what I haue done in Egypte. And ye dwelt in the wildernesse a longe ceason. *And I broughte you into the lande of the Amorites, whiche dwelt on y<sup>e</sup> other syde Jordan. And they fought with you, and I gaue the into your handes. And ye conquered their contre. And I destroyed them in your sight.

Then Salac the sone of ziphor, kinge of Moab arose and warred agaynst Israel, and sent and *called Balaam y<sup>e</sup> sonne of Beor for to curse you. But I would not agre to herke vnto Balaam and therfore he blessed you: And so I deliuered

But if it seme euell vnto you to serue the Lord, then chose you this day whom you wil serue, whether the Goddes which your fathers serued (<sup>h</sup> were on the other syde of the floode) ether the Goddes of the Amozites, in whose land, ye dwelt, and I am my house will serue the Lord.

And the people answered and sayde: Godforbyd that we shoulde forsake the Lord our God, he it is that brought vs and oure fathers out of the lande of Egypte, the house of bondage, & whiche did those great miracles in our sight, & pserued vs in all the waye we wente and amonge all the nations whiche we came thorowe. And the Lord dyd caste out before vs all the nations, with the Amozites which dwelt in <sup>h</sup> land, wherefore we wyll serue the Lord, for he is oure God.

But Josua sayde vnto the people, ye can not serue the Lord: for he is an ho-lye God, and cannot beare your transgression and synne. But when ye haue forsaken <sup>h</sup> the Lord, & haue serued straunge Goddes, * he wyll turne and do you euell and consume you, after that he hath done you good. And the people aunsw-ered Josua: naye, but we wyll serue the Lord.

Josua. 3. b.

Then Josua sayde vnto the folke, ye are wytnesses vnto your selues, that ye haue chosen you the Lord, to serue hym: and they sayde: we are wytnesses.

Then put away, sayde he, the straunge Goddes whiche are amonge you, and bowe your heries vnto the Lord God of Israel. And the people answered Josua: the Lord our God we wyll serue, and his voyce we wyll obeye. And so Josua made a couenante with the people the same day, and set ordinaunces & lawes before them in Sichem.

And Josua wrote these wordes in <sup>h</sup> booke of the lawe of God, * and toke a greate stone, and pitched it on ende in the sayde place, euē vnder an ocke that stode in the sanctuary of the Lord. And Josua sayde vnto all the people: be-holde, this stone shalbe a witnesse vnto vs, for <sup>h</sup> it hath heard all the wordes of the Lord whiche he spake with vs. It shalbe therfore a witnesse vnto you, lest ye lye vnto your God. And so Josua let the people departe euery manne vnto his enheritaunce.

And after these thynges the tyme came that Josua the sonne of Nun, and the seruaunte of the Lord died, beinge an hundred and ten yeres olde. Whom they buried in the contrey of his enheritaunce, euē in Chamuath Sarch which is in mount Ephraim, on the north side of the hyll of Gaas.

And Israel serued the Lord * all the dayes of Josua, and all the dayes of <sup>h</sup> elders that ouerliued Josua, and which had sene al the workes of the Lord that he had done to Israel. * And the bones of Joseph, which the chyldren of Israel brought out of Egypte, they buried in <sup>h</sup> Sichem, in a parcell of grounde whiche Jacob boughte of the sonnes of Hemor the father of Sichem, for an hundred peces of syluer, which parcell became the enheritaunce of the chyldren of Joseph. And Eleazar <sup>h</sup> sonne of Aaron dyed, whome they buried in Gaba-

The firste Chapter.

After Iosua was dead, Iuda was constitute Lord ouer the army when Jerusalem was besieged. The people that were not destroyed became tributaries.

After the deathe of Iosua the chyldre of Israel asked the Lord, saying: who shall go vp fyrste vnto the Cana-
nites, to fight agaynst them: And the Lord
saide: * Iuda shal go vp: behold I haue deliuered the lande into hys handes.
Then Iuda sayde vnto * Simeon hys brother: come with me into my lotte, & let vs fyghte agaynst the Cananites:
And I lyke wyse wyll go wyth the into thy lotte. And so Simeon wente with hym.

And Iuda went vp, and the Lord deliuered the Cananites and pheresi-tes into theyr handes. And they slewe of them in Bezek ten thousande men. And they found * Adoni bezek in Bezek. And they fought agaynst hym, and slewe the Cananites and pheresites. But Ado-ni bezek fled & they folowed after hym, and caught hym, & cut of his thombes and his greate toes. Then Adoni bezek sayde: thre skore and ten kinges hauing theyr thombes and greate toes cutte of gathered theyr meate vnder my table: wherefore as I haue done so god hath done to me agayne. And they broughte him to Jerusalem, and there he dyed.

The chyldre of Iuda fought agaynst Jerusalem, and toke it, and * smote it with the edge of the sword, & set the cite on fyre. And after that the chyldren of Iuda went euen to fighte agaynst the Cananites that dwelte in the moun-taine, in the southe, and in the low contre. * And Iuda went vnto the Cananites & dwelt in Hebron, whiche before time was called Kariath Arbe. And slew Sesai, Ahiman and Chalmiai. And fro thence they wente to the inhabitants of Dabir, whose name in olde tyme was called Kariathsepher.

And Caleb sayde: he that smyteth * Kariathsepher, and taketh it, to him wil I geue Achah my doughter to wyfe.
And Othoniel sonne of Kenz Calebs younge brother toke it: to whome he gaue Achah his daughter to wyfe, and as they went, he counceled him to aske of her father a felde. And then the lighted of her asse: and Caleb said vnto her: what ayleth the? She sayde vnto him:
geue me a blessing: for thou haste geuen me a Southwarde and drye lande, geue me also springes of water. And Caleb gaue her springes bothe aboue and beneth. And the chyldren of the kenite Moses father in lawe went vp out of the cite of * palme trees, with the chyldren of Iuda into the wilbernesse of Iuda, that lyeth in the southe of Arab,
and dwelt amonge the people.

And Iuda went and Simeon wyth him, and they slew the Cananites & enhabited zephath, & utterly destroyed it, & * called the name of y cite Hormath.
And Iuda toke Azah with the costes therof, & Alkalon with the costes therof, and Akaron with the costes thereof.
And the Lord was with Iuda, that he conquered the mountaynes, but they could not dryue out the enhabitors of y valeyes, because they had charettes of y yron. And they gaue * Hebron vnto Caleb, as Moses sayde: And he expelled thence the thre sonnes * of * Erack.

* And the chyldren of Ben Jamin did not cast out the Jebusites, that enhabi-ted Jerusalem, but the Jebusites dwel with y chyldren of Ben Jamin in Jerusalem, vnto this daye.

* And in like maner the house of Joseph went vp to Bethel, & the Lord was with them, and the house of Joseph ser-with her townes, nether the inhabitants of Doz w her townes, nether p inhabiters of Jeblla with her townes, nether the inhabytours of Hagedo with her townes, and so the Cananites wente to and dwelte in the sayde lande. But as sone as Israel was wared mighty, they put the Cananites to tribute: But expelled them not.

* In like maner Ephraim expelled not the Cananites that dwelte in Gazer, but the Cananites dwelt styll in Gazer among them.

Nether dyd Zabulon expelle the enhabitours of Betron, nether the inhabitours of Nahalol: But the Cananites dwelt among the, & became tributaries.

* Nether dyd Aser caste out the inhabitours of Acho, nether the inhabytours of Sidon, of Thalah, Azib, Halbath, Aphek, nor of Rohob, but the Aserites dwelt amonge the Cananites the enhabytours of the lande, and draue them not out.

Nether dyd Nephtalim drie out the inhabytours of Bethlames, nor the inhabytours of Bethanath, but dwell amonge the Cananites p inhabytours of the lande. Neuerthelesse the enhabytours of Bethlames, and of Bethanath became tributaries vnto them.

And the Amozites kepte the chyldren of Dan in the mountaynes, and suffred them not to come downe to the valeys. And so the Amozites wente to and dwelled in mount Heres in Hailon and in Galabim. Neuerthelater the bande of Joseph waxed heuie vpon them, so that they became tributaries.
 And the costes of the Amozites was fro

The. ii. Chapter.

The Angell rebuketh the people because they had made peace with the Cananites. Idolaters are punished, but yet leaue not theyr inuencions. God sendeth them iudges to deliuer them.

And the aungell of the Lorde came by from Gilgal to Bocim and sayd, I brought you out of Egypt & haue brought you vnto the lande which I swate vnto your fathers. * And I sayde that I woulde neuer breake myne appoyntment with you, but ye should haue made no couenaunt with the inhabytours of thys lande, ye shoulde haue broken doune theyr altars: But ye haue not obeyed my voice, whi haue ye this done? wherfore I haue lykewise determynd, that I will not caste them oute before you: but they shalbe thornes in the sy-des of you, and theyr Goddes shalbe snares vnto you. And when the angell of the Lorde had spoken these wordes vnto all the chyldren of Israel, the people cryed out and wepte. And called the name of the sayd place, Bocim and offer-red there vnto the Lorde.

And when Josua had sent the people away, the chyldren of Israel went eu-ery man into his enheritaunce, to possesse the lande. * And the people serued the Lorde all the dayes of Josua, and all the dayes of the elders that outliued Josua, and had sene all the great wokes of the Lorde that he dyd to Israel.
 And Josua the sonne of Nun the ser-uaunt of the Lorde dyed, when he was an hundred and ten yeres olde: whom they

they buried in the costes of his enheritaunce: euen in Chamath hares in mount Ephraim on the northsyde of the hill Gaas. And euen so al that generacion were put vnto theyr fathers, and there arose another generacion after them which nether knew the Lorde, nor yet the workes which he dyd vnto Israell.

And then the chyldren of Israel dyd wickedlye in the syghte of the Lorde, & serued Baalim, and forsoke the Lord God of theyr fathers, whiche broughte them out of the lande of Egypt, and followed straunge Goddes, euen of the Goddes of the nations that were rounde about them, and bowed them selues vnto them, and angered the Lorde. And so they forsoke the Lorde and serued Baal and Ashtaroth. Wherefore the Lord waxed angry with Israel, and de-liuered them into the handes of rau-ners, to spoile them and solde them into the handes of their enemyes rounde about them, so that they had no power anye longer to stande before their enemies. But vnto what soeuer thiges they wente, the hand of the Lorde was vpon them with euell lucke, euen as the Lord promised the, & as he sware vnto them.
And they were sore vexed.

Neuerthelesse the Lorde raysed vp Judges, which deliuered them oute of the handes of their oppressers, & yet for all þ they woulde not harken vnto theyr Judges: but wente a whoyringe after straunge Goddes, and bowed them sel-ues vnto them, and turned quickly out of the way which their fathers walked, in obeyinge the commaundementes of the Lord, and dyd not so.

And when the Lorde raysed them vp Judges, he was with the Judge, & and deliuered the out of the handes of their enemyes all the dayes of the Judge: for the Lorde had compassion ouer their sorowinges whiche they had, by the reason of them that oppressed them and vexed them: yet for all that, as sone as the iudge was deade, they turned & dyd worke then theyr fathers, in folowinge straunge Goddes, and in seruinge the,
and ceased not frome theyr inuencions, nor frome theyr malycouse wayes.

Wherefore the Lorde was angrie with Israel, and sayde: because that hye people hath transgressed myne appointment which I commaunded their fathers, and haue not obeyed my voyce, therefore henceforth I will not cast out one man before the of þ nations, which Josua leste when he dyed, and that to proue Israel thorough them whether they wyll kepe the waye of the lord to walke therein, as their fathers dyd or not. And so the Lorde leste those naci-ons alone, and dyd them not out im-medyatelye, nether deliuered them in to the handes of Josua.

Lord, and forgot the Lord they? God and serued Baalim, and Aseroth. Therfore the Lord was angrie with Israell, and deliuered them into the handes of Chusan Rasathaim King of Mesopotamia. So that the chyldren of Israell serued Chusan Rasathaim .viii. peres.

And then the chyldren of Israel cryed vnto the Lord. And the Lord spured them by a sauer and saued them: one Othniel the sonne of Kenes, Calebs yonger brother. And the spirite of the Lord came vpon him. And he iudged Israell, and wente oute to warre. And the Lord solde Chusan Rasathaim Kinge of Mesopotamia into his hand. So that hys hande was mightie ouer Chusan Rasathaim. And the lande had rest fourtye peres. And Othniel the son of Kenes died. And then the chyldren of Israel went to agayne, and comytted wyckednesse in the syght of the Lord. And then the Lord hardened Eglon the King of Moabites, agaiſt the chyldren of Israell, because they had comytted wyckednesse befoze the Lord. And thys Eglon gathered vnto hym the chyldren of Ammon, and the Amalekites, and went and smote the chyldren of Israel, and conquered the ctyte of Paulme trees. And the chyldren of Israel serued Eglon the King of the Moabites .xviii. peres. And then they cryed vnto the Lord. And the Lord spured them by a sauer, Ahud the sonne of Gera the sonne of Iemini, a man that coulde do nothyng handsonlye with hys righte hande.

By whom the chyldren of Israel sent a present vnto Eglon the kynge of the Moabites: whiche Ahud made hym a dagger with two edges, of a cubyte lengthe, and he byd gyde it vnder hys cote vpon his right thyghe, and caried the present vnto Eglon the king of the Moabites, whiche Eglon was a verie fatte man. And when he had presented the present, he sent the people that bare it away: but he hym selfe turned agayne from the Idols by Gilgal, and sayde: I haue a secret vnto the King: and the kynge commaunded hym to holde his peace vntill al that stode about hi, wer gone out from hym.

And Ahud came in vnto him, into a somer parler, which he had seueral vnto hym selfe alone, and sayde: I haue a message vnto the Lord God. And he arose out of his seate. And Ahud put forth his lefte hand a toke the dagger frome his right thighe, and thrust it into his bely, so that the haffe wente in after the blade. And the haffe stopped in the fat, for he dize not the dagger out of his bely. And the dyte came oute. But Ahud gat hym out at a posterne doze, and shut the dozes of the parler vpon hym and locked them.

When he was gone out, his seruantes came and looked. And beholde, the dozes of the parler were locked. And they sayde: He is a doyng of his easement in his somer chamber. And when they had tarped tyll they were ashamed, for no man byd the dozes of the parler open: then they toke a key, and opened them. And beholde, they lord was fallen downe deade, vnto the erthe. But Ahud escaped (whyle they tarped) and was gone beyonde the Idolles, and escaped into Setrah.

And when he was come he blew a trompet in mounte Ephraim. And the chyldren of Israel wente doune with hym of the hylle & he befoze them. And he sayd vnto the, folow me: for the Lord hath deliuered your enemies, the Moabites into youre handes. And they descended after him and toke the passages of Jordan frome the Moabites, and suffred not a manne to passe ouer. And they slew of the Moabites, the same tyme vpon a ten thousand men, al fat, & men of myghte: that there shaped not a man, & so the Moabites were subdued that dape, vnder the handes of Israel: & the land had rest .lxxx. peres.

And after hym came Samgar the sonne of Anath, which slew of the Philistines .vi. hundred men with an oxe gode, and deliuered Israel also.

The.iiiij. Chapter.

Israel is commytted into the handes of Jabin, because they were returned to Idolatrye. Deboza and Barak deliuer them: Sisara is kyled of Jael.

And the childre of Israel began agayne to do wickedly in the syght of the Lord, whē Abud was deade. And the lord solde them into the handes of Jabin kyng of Canaan, that reygued in Hazor, whose captayne of warre was Si-sara, whiche dwelte in Haroseth of the gentyles. And the children of Israel cryed vnto the Lord: for he had nyne hundred charettes of yron, he oppressed the children of Israel with power. xx. yeres.

And Deboza a prophetesse, the wyfe of Lapidoth iudged Israel the same tyme, and dwelte vnder the paulme tre of Deboza, betwene Ramath and Bethell, in mounte Ephraim.

And the children of Israel came to her for iudgement. And she sent & called Barak the sonne of Abinoam, oute of Kedes Nephtholim, & sayde vnto him.

The Lord God of Israel commaūdeth the, that thou go and drawe to moũte Thabor, and take with the ten thousande men, of the children of Nephthalim and of the children of Zabulon.

And I wyl bringe vnto the ryuer Ki-son Sisara, the Caprayne of warre vnto Jabin, with his charettes, and hys people, and wyl deliuer the into thyne handes. And Barak sayde vnto her, yf thou wylte go with me, I wil go: But yf thou wylt not go w me, then I wil not go. And she answered, I wyl suerly go with the, but the prayse shal not be thyne, in the waye which thou goest, for the Lord shall deliuer Sisara into the handes of a womā. And she arose and went with Barak to Kedes. And Barak called Zabulō and Nephtholim to Kedes. And he wente vp a foote with ten thousande men: and Deboza wente with him.

But Haber the Kenite was remoued of Hobab the father in law of Moses, * of Ho-

And then it was shewed vnto Sisa-ra how that Barak the sonne of Abino-am was gone vp to mounte Thabor.
And Sisara called for al his charettes, euen. ix. hundred charettes of yron, and for all the people that he had, from Ha-roseth of the gentyles vnto the ryuer of Kison. Then sayde Deboza vnto Barak: vp, for this is the day in which the Lord hath deliuered Sisara into thyne handes: for the Lord is gone oute before the. And so Barak wente downe from mounte Thabor, and ten thousande men after him.

But the Lord trounsed * Sisara and all his charettes, and all hys hoste with the edge of the swerde, before Barak. And Sisara lyghted doune of his charet, and fled a fote. But Barak folowed after the charettes, and after the hoste, euen vnto Haroseth of the gentyles. And all the hoste of Sisa-ra fell vpon the edge of the swerde, that there was not a man leaste. Howe be it Sisara fled a fote to the tente of Jael the wyfe of Haber the Kenite: for there was peace betwene Jabin the kyng of Hazor, and the hou-sholde of Haber the Kenite.

And Jael wente oute agaynste Si-sara, and sayde vnto him: turne in my lorde, turne in to me and feare not. And he turned into her tente: and she coue-red hym with a mantell. And he sayde vnto her, geue me a lyttel water to dryncke, for I am thristye. And she opened * a bottell of mylke, and gaue hym drynke and couered him. And he sayde vnto her: stande in the doore of thy tente, and yf any man come and aske the, or enquire of the whether there be any man here, saye naye.

Then Jael Habers wyfe toke a naple of the tente, and an haimer in her hande, and wente softly vnto him, and smote the napele thorowe the temples of his heade in to the grounde, as he slembred beyng weye: And so he died.

And beholde as Barak folowed after Sisara, Jael came oute agaynst hym;

b. The pryde of the Israhelites is here noted because they refused to go w Debora to overcome the oppressour of Israel.

c. By these wordes signifieth Debora þ the Kinges hostes of the Canaanites came to Thānach & Magdo thynkinge verely, because of the multitude of the hoste, that they came not to fight: but to take a praye, but they were sore deceayved, for it so chaunced that they were rather a praye to Israel than Israel to them.

¶ The vi. Chapter.

Israel is oppressed of the Adianites, because he returned agayne into Idolatrie. Gedeon is set of God to be thez deliuerer. The altar of Baal is ouerthrowen.

AD the children of Israel *commytted wyckednes in þ syght of the Lorde. * And the Lorde deliuered them into the handes of the Adianites leue yeres. And when the hande of the Adianites was sore vpon Israel, the childe of Israel made them demies in the mountaynes and caues and stronge holdes. For when Israel had sowne then came the Adianites the Amalechites and they of the East contreye vpon them, a pytched thez tentes agaynste them, and destroyed the increase of the erthe, euen vnto Azah, and lefte no sustynance in Israel, nether shepe, ore, or asse, for they came with their castell, and householdes euen as grethoppers in multitude: so þ bothe they and also thez cammels were withoute numbze. And they entered the lāde to destroye it. And so was Israel exceedinglye impoueryshed by the Adianites, and cryed vnto the Lorde. And when the chylzen of Israel cryed vnto the Lorde because of the Adianites, the Lorde sent a prophete vnto them, and sayde vnto them: Thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israel: I sette you from Egypte and brought you out of the house of bondage, and I rydde you out of the hande of the Egipcians, and out of þ handes of all that oppresed you, and caste them out before you, and gaue you their landes. And I said vnto you: I am the Lorde your God, and therfore feare not the Goddes of þ Amozites in whose lande you dwel. But you haue not obeyed my voyce. And the Angell of the Lorde came, and sate byrder an Ocke in Ephrah, that pertayned vnto Joas þ father of þ Elerites. And his sonne Gedeon pressed oute wheate oute of the eares in a presse, for to flee from the Adianites: And the angel of the Lorde appeared vnto him, and said: the Lorde is with the, thou mā of might, And Gedeon answered him: Oh my lord, yf the Lorde be with vs, why is all this come vpon vs: yea, and where be al his myracles whiche our fathers tolde vs of, and sayde: the Lorde brought vs out of Egypte. But now the Lorde hathe forsaken vs, and deliuered vs into the handes of the Adianites. And þ Lorde looked vpon him, and sayde: So hence in this thy might, and deliuer Israel out of þ hādes of þ Adianites: Beholde, I haue sent the: And he answered him: Oh Lorde where with shoulde I saue Israel: Beholde my kynred is the poorest in Manasses, & I am the least in my fathers house. But then the Lorde said vnto him: I wyll be with the, and thou shalt subyte the Adianites, as they were but one mā. And he answered him, yf I haue founde grace in thy sight, thet thou arte the Lorde that talketh with me. Depart not hēce, vntil I come agayne vnto þ, & I g in þne offrig, & haue set it before þ. And he sayde: I wyll tarpe vntyll thou come agayne. And Gedeon wence and made redye a kybbe, and swete ha-kes of an Ephra of slowre, and put the fleshe in a basket, and the brothe in a pottle, and brought it out vnto him vnder the pike, and presented it. And the angell of God said vnto him: * take the fleshe & the swete hakes, and put them vpon this rocke, & poynte out the broth.

 And he did so. Then the angel of the Lord put forth the ende of the staffe he was in his hande, and touched the fleshe & the hakes. * And there arose vpon fyre out of the rocke, and consumed the fleshe & the hakes. And the angel of the Lord vanished out of his sight. And when Gedeon perceaued he it was an Angel, he sayde: Alas, my Lord Jehouah, that I haue * sene an angel of the Lord face to face that I shoulde dye. And the Lord said vnto him, peace be vnto thee, & feare not, for thou shalt not dye. Then Gedeon made an altare there vnto the Lord, and called it: Jehouah Salom, which vnto this day is yet in Ephraim, & pertapneth vnto the father of the Ezerites. And the same nyght the Lord said vnto hym, take an ore of thy fathers, and another of thine, & destroye the altare of Baal he belongeth vnto thy father, & cut downe the groue he is aboute it, & make an altare vnto the Lord thy god, vpon the toppe of this rocke & turne the it. And take the seconde ore & offer burnt sacrifice wth the wood of the groue, which he hath cutte downe. The Gedeon toke ten men of his seruantes, & did as the Lord bad him. But because he durste not do it by day for feare of his fathers & the men of the cite, he dyd it by nyght.

When the men of the cite were by eue in the moynge: Beholde, the altare of Baal was broke, & the groue he was aboute it cutte downe. And the seconde ore offered vpon the altare he was made. And they said one to another: who hath done this thing, and they required and asked. And it was tolde them that Gedeon the sonne of Joas had done it. The men of the cite sayde vnto Joas, bynyge out the sonne, for he may dye, because he hath broke the altare of Baal, & cutte downe the groue he was aboute it. And Joas said vnto all the men of the cite, by him, will ye fight for Baal, or will ye be his defenders: he that shal fight for him shall dye this moynge. If he bea God let him fight wth him & cast downe his altare. And he called Gedeon Jerobaal the same time, saying: let Baal fight wth him, because he hath broke downe his altare.

When all the Madianites, the Am-lekites and they of the East, were gathered together and had gone and pre-ched in the vale of Israel: the spirit of the Lord entred into Gedeon.

* And he blew a trompet, and called his brether to folowe him, and sente messengers thorow out all Manasses, and called them: vpon to folowe him also. And he sent messengers vnto Aser, Zabulon and Nephtalim, whiche came alio to mete him.

And Gedeon sayde vnto God: if thou wilt saue Israel by my hande, as thou hast sayde: Beholde, I will put a fleece of wolfe in the threshynge place. And if the dewe be on the fleece onely, and drye vpon all the erthe besyde: then I will be sure that thou wilt saue Israel by my hande, as thou saydest. And it came so to passe. And he rose by ety-e on the morowe, and he thurst the fleece together, and wronge the dewe therout, and fylled a boole of water.
 And Gedeon said vnto God, be not angry wth me, that I speake once more, let me proue onely once agayne wth the fleece. Let it be drye onely vpon the fleece, and dewe vpon all the ground aboute. And God did so that same nyght: so that it was drye vpon the fleece onely, and on all the ground aboute, dewe.

The vii. Chapter.

The sounde that shal goe with Gedeon to

 And they are slayne.

B And the Lord sayde vnto Gedeon: the people are yet to manye, byynge them downe vnto the water, and I wyl tye them vnto the there. And of whome I saye vnto the, this shal go with the, the same shal go with the. And whosoener I saye vnto the, this shall not go with the, the same shal not go. And when he had brought downe the people vnto the water. The Lord sayde vnto Gedeon: as many as lappe the water with their tonges, as dogges do, them put by the selues, and so do them that knele downe vpon their knees to dryncke. And the numbze of them that put their handes to theyr mouthes and lapped, were. iiii. hundred men. And all the remnaunte of the people kneled downe vpo their knees to dryncke water. And the Lord sayd vnto Gedeon, with the thze hundred mē that lapped wyl I saue you, and deliuer the Madianites into thyne hande. And all the other people shall go euery man vnto his owne home.

C And they toke vytales with them for the folke, and their trompettes. And he sent all the rest of Israel, euery man vnto his tente, and kepte the thre hundred with him. And the host of Midian was benethe him in a valeye. And the same nyghte the Lord sayde vnto hym, vp and go doune vnto the hoste, for I haue deliuered it into thyne hāde. But and yf thou feare to go doune, then go thou doune vnto the hoste, and wharā thy ladde, and heken what they saye, & so shal thyne handes be stronge, & then thou shalt go doune vnto the hoste.

Then he wente downe with Pharah his ladde, euem harde vnto the men of armes that were in the hoste. And the Madianites, the Amaleckites, and all they of the East, laye alonge in the bayle, lyke vnto greeshoppers in multitude, and their camels were wout nombre, euem as the sande by the sea syde in multitude. And whē Gedeō was come:

Beholde, there was a man that tolde a dreame vnto his felowe, and sayde: Beholde, I dreamed a dreame and me thought that a broyled looffe of barley breade tumbled in the hoste of Madian, and came vnto a tente and smote it & it fel, & ouerturned it, that the tente laye a longe. And his felowe answered, & said: this is nothyng elles saue the swerde of Bedeon the sonne of Joas a man of Israel, into whose hande the Lord hath delpyuered Madian and all the hoste.

When Gedeon hearde the tellynge of the dreame and the interpretaciō of the same, he bowed hym selfe to the erthe & he returned vnto the hoste of Israel, & sayde: bp, for the Lorde hath deliuered into youre handes the hoste of the Madianites. And he deuyned the thre hundred men into thre companies, & gaue to euery man a trompet in his hande, & an emptye pitcher, and lampes therein, and sayde vnto them: loke on me and do lykwysse: and beholde, when I come to the syde of the hoste, euen as I do, to do you. And when I blowe with a trompet and all that are with me, blowe ye with trompettes also on euery syde of the host, and saye: here is the sword of the Lord and of Gedeon.

And so Gedeon and the thre hundred men that were with him, came vnto the side of the host in the beginnyng of the middel watche, and reyled bp þ watchmen. And they blew with their trompettes, and brake the pitchers þ were in their handes. And all thre companyes blew with trôpettes and brake þ pitchers, and helde þ lampes in theyr lefte handes, & the trompettes in their right, to blowe wial. And they cryed: þ swerde of the Lorde and of Gedeon. And they stode styl, euery man in his place rounde about þ host. And al þ host ranne & cryed, & fled. And as þ thre hundred blew with trôpettes, þ Lord set euery mannes swerde vpon his neyghboure, thorow out al the hoste. And þ hoste fled vntyll they came to Bethsitah, to zere-rath, & to þ edge of Abelmeholah besyde Tabath. And þ mē of Israel gathered together of the trybe of Nephtalim, of Isser, and of all Manasses, and folowed after the Madianites. for Gedeon had sent messēgers thorow out al mount

Then al the men of Ephraim gathered together and came downe and toke þ waters bothe of Bethbarath, & also of Jordan. And they toke two captaines of the Madianites, Oreb & Zeb, and slew Oreb vpon the rocke Oreb, & Zeb at the presse Zeb, and folowed after Madian. And broughte the heades of Oreb and Zeb to Gedeon on the other syde Jordan.

Ephraim maketh insurrection agaynst Gedeon, but is sone pacified. The inhabitants of Socoth refuse to geue Gedeon and his armye breade. The towne Phaul is destroyed. Gedeon is constituted ruler ouer the Israelites. He hathc. lxx. donnes. He dyeth.

And the mē of Ephraim sayd vnto him: * Why haste thou serued vs thus, þ þ calledst vs not, when thou wentest to fyght with the Madianites. And they chode with him a good. And he sayde vnto them: What dede haue I done lyke vnto youres: are * not þ a clusters of Ephraim better, then the wyne heruel of Abiezer? God hath deliuered us to your handes the Lordes of Madiā, Oreb and Zeb. And what was I able to do lyke as you haue done. And then their spirites abated from of him, whē he had sayde that. And then Gedeon came to Jordan and passed ouer, bothe he and the thre hundred men that were with him, verpe saynte and yet folowed the chace. And he sayde vnto the mē of Socoth: geue * I praye you bakes of breade vnto the people that folowe me: for they be sayntie, that I maye folowe after Zebah & Zalmona kynges of Madian. And the Lordes of Socoth sayde: are the handes of Zebah and Zalmona now in thyne handes, that we shoulde geue breade vnto thy compaigne. And Gedeon sayde, therfore when the Lorde hath deliuered Zebah and Zalmona in to myne hande, I wyll teare the fleche of you with the thornes of the wylder-nes and with breeers. And he wēt thēce to Phaul, and spake vnto them lyke wyse. And the men of Phaul answered hym, as dyd the men of Socoth.

And he sayde also vnto the men of Phaul, whē I come agayne in peace,

I wyll breake doune this towne: Zebah and Zalmona were in Tabarn and they hostes with them, vpo a. x. thousande, whiche were all that were left of all the hostes of them of the East. And they that were sayne were a hundred and twenty thousande men that dyde swerdes.

And Gedeon went thorow the that dwelte in tabernacles on the east syde of Robah and Zebah, and smote the hoste: for the hoste dyd cast no percedes, Zebah and Zalmona fledde. But he folowed after them, and toke the two kynges, of the Madianites, Zebah and Zalmona and dyscomforted al the hoste.

And Gedeon the sonne of Joas returned from battel, þ sunne beynge yet by, and caught a ladde of the men of Socoth, and enquired of him. And he wote him out of the Lordes and Elders of Socoth. lxxvii. men. Then he came vnto the mē of Socoth and said: Behold, Zebah and Zalmona with which ye calme me in the tethe, sayinge: are the handes of Zebah and Zalmona al redde in thyn hande, that we shoulde geue breade vnto thy sayntie mē. And he toke þ elders of the cytie, and thornes of the wylder-nesse & breeers, and al to tare them there with. And he brake doune the toure of * Phaul, & slewe the men of the cytie.

And then said vnto Zebah and Zalmona, what maner mē were they which ye slew at Chabor: and they answered, the lykenesse of the and them is all one, euen after the facyon of the chyldren of a kyng. And he sayde: they were my brethren, euen my mothers chyldren, as trulpe as the Lord lyueth, þe had saued they lyues, I woulde not slewe you. And he sayde vnto Jethir his eldest sonne, by and slee them: But the lad dyde not his swerde, for he feared, because he was yet younge. Then Zebah and Zalmona sayde. Kysse thou, and fall vpo vs, for as þ mā is, so is his strength. And Gedeon arose and slewe them: and he toke awaye the Chapnes that were on their camels neckes.

Then the men of Israel said vnto Gedeon. Raygne ouer vs, bothe thou, thy sonne and thy sonnes sonne, for þ hast deliuered vs out of the handes of the Madianites. And Gedeon said vnto the ¶ Neuerthelate Gedeon sayde vnto the: I woulde desyre a certayne request of you, euen that you woulde geue me euery man the earynges of his praye. ¶ For they had golden earynges, because they were Ismaelittes. And they sayde: we wyl do it. And they spreed a matel, and dyd cast there into euery man the earynges of his praye. And þ weight of the golden earynges was a thoulande and seuen hundred cycles of golde, besydes brouches, ouches and garmentes of skarlet that were of the kynges of Syadian, and besyde the chaynes, that were aboute their camels neckes. And Gedeon made an Ephod therof, and put it in his cytie Ephrah. And all Israel wēt a whoringe after him there, which thyng was þ rupne of Gedeons house. Thus were the Syadianites broughte lowe befoze the chyldren of Israel, so þ they lifte vp their heades no moze. And the contrepe was in quietnesse fourtye yeres in the dayes of Gedeon.

¶ And Jerobaal the sonne of Joas, wente and dwelte in his owne house. And Gedeon had, lxx. sonnes of his bodye begotten, for he had many wyues. And his concubynne that dwelte in Sichem, bare him a sonne also, whose name he called Abimelech. And Gedeon the sonne of Joas dyed, when he was of a good age, and was buryed in þ burypall of Joas his father, euen in Ephrah that pertayned vnto the father of the Gyrites.

¶ But as sone as Gedeon was dead, the chyldren of Israel turned awaye, & went a whoringe after Baal, & made Baal Berith their God, and thoughte not on the Lorde their God, which had deliuered them out of the handes of all their enemyes on euery syde. Nether shewed they mercye on the house of Jerobaal, otherwyle called Gedeon, accordyng to al the goodnesse which he had shewed them.

¶ Abimelech the sonne of Jerobaal went to Sichem, vnto his mothers brethren, and communed with them, & with all his mothers fathers kynred, sayig: saye I praye you, in the eares of all the enhabytoutes of Sichem: whether is better for you, that all the sonnes of Jerobaal which are lxx. personnes raygne ouer you, ether þ one raygne ouer you. And remember therto, that I am youre bones, & youre fleshe. And his mothers brethren reherced of him in the audyence of all the Citezens of Sichem, all these wordes, and moued their heartes to folowe Abimelech, in that they sayd: how he was their brother. And they gaue hym lxx. peces of syluer out of þ house of Baal Berith, with which Abimelech hyred Jhehel and light personnes which went with him. And they wēt vnto his fathers house at Ephrah, and slew al his brethren, the sonnes of Jerobaal, euen lxx. personnes with one stone. And al the citezens of Sichem gathered together with all the house of Mello, and went and made Abimelech kynge at a certē ocke that was by Sichem.

¶ And when it was tolde Joatham, he wēt and stode in the toppe of mount Garizim, and lifte vp his voyce, and called, and said vnto the: Herken vnto me ye cytezens of Sichem, that God maye herke vnto you. ¶ The trees wēt to anoynt a kynge ouer them, and sayde vnto the olyue tree, raygne ouer vs. But þ olyue tree sayde vnto them: Shoulde I leaue my fattenesse, whiche both God & man prayseth in me, and go to be promoted ouer the trees. And yf ye haue dealte wel with Jerobaal and his house, and haue done vnto him accordyng to the deservynge of his handes, for as muche as my father foughte for you, and aduentured his lyfe. And rydde you out of the handes of the Madianites. And ye are risen vp agaynst my fathers house this daye. And haue slayne his chyldre, euen lxx. persones \* with one stone, and haue made Abimelech þe sonne of his mayde seruaunte kyng ouer the cytyzens of Sichem, because he is your brother: yf then ye haue dealte purelye and trulpe with Jerobaal and in his house this day: then reioyse ye in Abimelech, & let him also reioyse in you. But yf you haue not dealt trulpe, then I pray God a fyxe maye come oute of Abimelech, and consume the cytyzens of Sichem & the house of Bello. And that there come a fire out of þe cytyzens of Sichem, and out of the house of Bello and consume Abimelech. Whē Abimelech had ragened thre yere \* God sent an hate betwene Abimelech and the cytyzens of Sichem. And Gaal the sonne of Abed and his brethren went and gat them to Sichem. And the men of Sichem, put their confidence in him. And they wente out in to the felde, and gathered in their grapes, & troade them, and made merye: and went in to the house of their God, & dyne & drynke & cursed Abimelech. And Gaal the sonne of Abed sayde: what is Abimelech: and what is Sichem: that we shoulde serue him, is he not þe sonne of Jerobaal: and zebul is his officer: serue suche as come of \* Heinoz the father of Sichem, for what reason is it þe we shoulde serue him: would God this people were vnder my hande, then I woulde take Abimelech out of þe waye. And one sayde vnto Abimelech, make thyne hoste greater: & go out. And whē zebul the ruler of the citie hearde the wordes of Gaal þe sonne of Abed, he was wroth and sente messengers vnto Abimelech priuelye, saying: Behold Gaal the sonne of Abed & his brethren be come to Sichem: and beholde, they set þe citie agaynst the. Now therfore vp by night, both þe & al the people þe is in the, & lay in wayte in the felde. And ryse earlye in the mornynge as soone as the sunne is vp, & come vpon the citie. And whē he & the people that is w him, come oute agaynst the, do to him what thyne handes shalbe able. And Abimelech rose vp, & al the people þe were w him, by night. And they layde awayte to the citie in foure companyes. And Gaal the sonne of Abed went out, & stode in the entrynge of the gate of þe cytie. And Abimelech rose vp, and the folcke þe were with him, fro layinge awayte. And when Gaal sawe the people, he sayde to zebul: Beholde, there come people downe from the toppe of the mountaynes. And zebul sayde vnto him: the shadowe of the hylls seme me vnto the. And Gaal answered agayne, and sayde: se there come folcke downe by the mydle of the lande, and another companie come a longe by þe charmaris Dcke. And Abimelech &  $\beta$  cōpanies  $\beta$  were wth him, ranne & stode in the entrynge of the gate of the citie. And  $\beta$  two other companies ranne vpon al the people  $\beta$  were in the felds, & slue them. And then Abimelech fought agaynst the citie all  $\beta$  daye, & toke it, & slue the people that was therein, & dystroyed the citie, and sowed salt in the place. And when al  $\beta$  men of the towze of Sichem hearde  $\beta$ , they entered in to a stronge holde of the house of their God Baal Berith. And whē it was tolde Abimelech, that all the men of the towze of Sichem were gathered together, he gat him to mount zelson, bothe he & all  $\beta$  were wth him, & toke axes with him & cut downe an arme of a tree, & toke it vp, & put on hys shoulder, and sayde vnto the folke that were with him, \*whatsoeuer ye seme doe: spede your selues, and do lyke wyse. And all the people cutte downe also euery man a bough, and folowed Abimelech, & put them in to the holde, and sette the holde a fyze vpo them: so that all the men of  $\beta$  towze of Sichem were slayne, vpon a thousande persons what of men and women together.

Then went Abimelech to Thebez, & beseged it, & toke it. But there was a stronge towze in the middes of the citie, & thither ranne all the men & wemē, & al the cittizing of the citie, & shut it to them, and gor them vp vpon the toppe of  $\beta$  towze. Then came Abimelech vnto the towze & fought agaynst it, & wet harde vnto the entrynge of the gate, to set it on fyze. But a woman caste a pece of a mylstone vpon hys heade, & all to brake his brayne paine.

Then Abimelech called hastelye vnto the younge man that bare hys harness, and sayde vnto hym: *drawe thy swerde and see me, that men say not of me, a woman slue hym. And hys ladde thrust him thozowe & he dyed.

And when the men of Israel sawe  $\beta$  Abimelech was deed, they departed, euery mā vnto his own house. And thus \*all the wyckednesse of Abimelech whych he dyd vnto hys father, in slayinge hys .lxx. brethren, & therto all the wickednesse of the mē of Sichem, God dyd byng vpon their heades: And vpon them came the curse of Joathan  $\beta$  sonne of Jerobaal.

The. xi. Chapter.

Jephthah the sonne of a harlot deliuereth Israel from the Ammonites after they had asked forgiuenes.

And there was one Jephthah a Gileadite, a stronge man, which was the sonne of an harlot: howe be it Gilead begat Jephthah. But Gileades wyfe bare hym sonnes, whiche when they were come to age, thruste oute Jephthah, and sayde vnto hym: * Thou shalt not inherite in our fathers house, for thou art the sonne of a straunge wo-ma. Then Jephthah fled fro his brethren, & dwelt in the lande of Tob. And there gathered * Idle people to Jephthah, & wet out with him. But it chaun-ced in proceesse of tyme, that the children of Ammon made warre agaynst Israel.

Gen. xxi. b

1. Re. xxi. a

And when the children of Ammon fought thus agaynst Israel, the elders of Gilead went & sette Jephthah out of the lande of Tob, & sayde vnto him: come be our captayne, & let vs go fight wth the children of Ammon. And Jephthah sayd vnto the elders of Gilead: I yd not re-hate me & expelle me out of my fathers house: howe happeneth it then that you come vnto me nowe in tyme of your tribulation? and the elders of Gilead answered Jephthah. Therfore we turne agayne to the nowe, that thou goe with vs, & fight agaynst the children of Ammon, & be our heed ouer al the inhabitants of Gilead. And Jephthah sayd vnto the elders of Gilead: If ye bypunge me home agayne, to fight with the childre of Ammon, then ys the Lorde deliuer the before me, I shalbe your head. And the elders of Gilead sayde to Jephthah: the Lorde be witnes betwene vs ys if we doe not accordynge to thy wordes. Then Jephthah went with the elders of Gilead. And the people made hym head, & ruler ouer them. And Jephthah reher-sed all his wordes before the Lorde in Hazphah.

The Jephthah sent messengers vn-
to the kynge of the children of Ammon, sayinge: what ayleth the with me that thou comest vpon me, to fight agaynst my lande? And the kynge of the childre of Ammon answered vnto the messengers of Jephthah, because Israel toke awaye my land, whē they came out of Egypt: euē fro Arnon vnto Iabok, & fro thence vnto Jordan. Nowe therefore restore those lads agayne wth saye meanys. And Jephthah sent messengers agayne vn-
to the kynge of the children of Ammon, & sayde vnto hym: * thus sayeth Jephthah. Israel toke not awaye the land of Moab, nor the lande of the children of Ammon. But when Israel came out of Egypt, they walked thowme the wyl-dernesse, euen vnto the reed sea, & came to Cadis, & sente messengers vnto the kynge of Edom, saying: let vs we praye the go thowme thy lande. But the kynge of Edom wolde not agre thereto. And in lyke maner they sent vnto the kynge of Moab, but he wolde not consent. And so Israel abode styl in Cadis. And then they went a longe thowme the wyldenesse.

ness, and compassed the lande of Edō, and the lande of Moab, & came a longe by the east syde of the lande of Moab, and pitched on the other syde of the river of Arnon, and came not within the borderes of Moabites: for Arnon was their utmost border. And then Israel sent messengers vnto Sihon, kynge of the Amozites, & kynge of Hesbon, & sayde vnto hym: let vs passe thorow thy lande vnto oure owne contreye.
But Sihon trusted not Israel to goe thorow his coostes: but gathered all his people together and pitched in Ja-zah, & fought with Israel. But the Lord God of Israel deliuered Sihon & all his folke in to the handes of Israel.
And so Israel smote the and conquered all the lande of the Amozites, the inhabiters of the sayde contreye. And they conquered all the coostes of the A-mozites, from Arnon vnto Iabok, and from the wyldernesse vnto Jordan.
So now, saynge the Lord God of Israel hath cast out the Amozites before his people of Israel, shouldest thou possesse the lande? Aye, but what people Ca-mos thy God dyueth oute that lande possest thou. But whatsoeuer nations the Lord oure God expelleth, that lande oughte we to enioye. And thereto arte thou better than Balack the sonne of Zephor king of Moab: dyd he stryue with Israel or fight agaynst them? all the whyle Israel dwelte in Hesbon, and her townes, and in Aroer, and her townes, & in all the cities he be a longe by the coostes of Arnon. iii. hundred peres: why dydest thou not recouer them in all that space, wherfore, I haue not shamed agaynst the. But thou doest me wronge, to warre agaynst me. The Lord therefore be iudge thy daye, betwene the chyldren of Israel, and the chyldren of Ammon. Now be it, the kynge of the chyldren of Ammon herkened not vnto the wordes of Jephthah, whiche he sent hym.

Then the spirite of the Lord came vpon Jephthah. And he passed ouer Gilead & Manasses, & came to Mazphah that lyeth in Gilead, and from thence vnto the chyldren of Ammon. And Jephthah bowed a bowe vnto the Lord, & sayd: if thou shalt deliuer the chyldren of Ammon in to my handes, then that thyng that cometh out of the doores of my house agaynst me, when I come home in peace, from the chyldren of Ammon, shalbe the Lordes, and I will offer it vpon a burnt offering. And so Jephthah went vnto the chyldren of Ammon to fight with them. And the Lord de-liuered them in to his handes. And he smote them from Aroer vnto Menith, xx. cities. And so forth to the plaine of the vineyardes, & made an exceeding great slaughter. And thus the chyldren of Ammon were brought vnder, before the chyldren of Israel.

Then Jephthah came to Mazphah vnto his house. And se, his daughter came out agaynst hym, wth tymberelles and daunces, which was his only child: so he besyde her he had nether sonne nor daughter. And when he sawe her, he rent his clothe, & sayd: alas my dought-er, thou hast made me stoupe & arte one of them that trouble me. For I haue opened my mouth vnto the Lord, and can not goe backe. And she sayde vnto him: my father, if thou haue opened thy mouth vnto the Lord, then doe with me accordyng to that proceeded oute of thy mouth, for as muche as the Lord hathe auenged the of thyne enemyes the chyldren of Ammon. And she sayde vnto her father, doe thus much for me: let me alone two monethes, that I may goe downe to the mountaynes, and bewyle my virginite with my felowes.
And he sayde: goe, and so he sente her awaye two monethes. And she wente with her companions, and lamented her mayden head vpon the mountaynes. And after the two monethes, she turned a-gayne vnto her father, which dyd with her accordyng vnto his bowe which he had bowed, and so she knewe no man.
And it became an ordinaunce in Israell yere by yere, that the daughters of Israel shulde go and lament the dought-er of Jephthah the Gileadite, foure dayes in a yere.

The xiii. Chapter.

Israel began an Idolatrye in the dayes of the sons of Barak.

As the chyl dren of Israell beganne agayne to commit wickednesse in the syght of þ Lorde. * And the Lorde deli-uered them in to þ handes of the philistines fourtie yere. And there was a man in zarah of the kynred of þ Dan-nites, named Manoah, whose wyfe was barren & bare not. And the angell of þ Lorde appeared vnto hys wyfe, & sayde vnto her: Beholde, thou arte barren & bearest not: But thou shalt conceaue & beare a sonne. And nowe beware, & and dryncke no wyne, nor stronge drynke, nether eate any vncleane thinge for is,
thou shalt conceaue and beare a sonne.
And there maye no * rasor or sheres come on hys head: for the ladde shalbe an abstayner vnto God, euen from the tyme of his birth. And he shal begyne to delpue Israel out of the handes of the philistines.

Then the wyfe wente and tolde her husbande, sayinge: a man of God came vnto me, and the facion of hym was lyke the facion of an angell of God, excedynge fearefull. But I asked hym not whēce he was, nether told he me his name. And he sayde vnto me: * behold, thou shalt be with chylde and beare a sonne, and nowe dryncke no wyne, nor stronge dryncke, nether eate anye vncleane thyng: for the ladde shalbe an abstayner to God, euen fro hys birth, to the day of hys death.

Then Manoah made intercession vnto the Lorde, and sayde: I praye the my Lorde, let the man of God whych thou sendest come once more vnto vs, and teache vs what we shall do vnto þ lad, when he is bozne. And God heard the voyce of Manoah, and the angel of God came agayne vnto the wyfe as he satte in the felde: but Manoah her husbande was not with her. Then the wyfe made haste, and ranne, and shewed her husbande, and sayde vnto him: beholde, the mā appeared vnto me, that came the other day vnto me.

And Manoah arose and went after his

hys wyfe, and came to the man, & sayd vnto him: arte thou the man that spakkest vnto my wyfe? And he sayde, yea.

C Then Manoah sayde: now when thy sayinge is come to passe: what shalbe þe manner of the chyld, and what shall he doe? And the angel of the Lorde sayde vnto Manoah: thy wife must abstayne fro all that I sayde vnto her: she maye eate of nothyng that cometh of the vyne tree, nor of vyne wyne or stronge vyne, nor eate any vncleane thyng: But muste obserue all that I bad her. Then sayde Manoah vnto the angell of the Lorde, graunte vs to tarpe vntill we haue made redy a kydde, & haue sette it before the. And the angel of the Lorde sayde vnto Manoah: thoughe thou make me abyde. * I wyll not eate of thy meate. And mozeouer if thou wylte prepare a burnt offeringe that thou muste offer vnto the Lorde. For Manoah wist not, that it was an angel of the Lorde. And Manoah sayde vnto the angell of the Lorde: what is thy name, that when thy sayinge is come to passe, we may doe the some wortheppes? And the angell of the Lorde sayde vnto hym: * Why askest thou after my name: when it is maruelouse.

And Manoah toke a kydde with a meate offeringe, and offered it vpon a rocke vnto þe Lorde. And the angel did wonderfylly. Manoah and hys wyfe lokynge vpon. For when the flame came vp oute of the aulter, the angell of the Lorde ascended vp in the flame of the aulter. And Manoah and his wyfe looked vpon, and fel flat on their faces vnto the ground: But the angell of the Lorde dyd no moze appeare vnto Manoah and his wyfe. And then Manoah knewe þe it was an angel of the Lorde: and sayde vnto his wyfe: * we shall surely dye, bycause we haue sene God. But hys wyfe sayde vnto hym: Yf the Lorde wolde kyl vs, he wolde not haue receaued a burnt offeringe & a meate offeringe of oure handes, nether wolde he haue shewed vs all these thyngs, nor wolde haue told vs as he hath of thynges to come. And the wyfe bare a sone, and called hys name Samson. And þe ladde grewe, and the Lorde blessed hym. And the spirite of the Lord bega firste to be with the house of Dan, betwene Zarah and Eschahol.

The xiiij. Chapter.

C The marriage of Samson. He killeth a Lyon. He propoundeth a ryle. He killeth xxx. men. His wyfe forsaketh hym and taketh another.

S Amson went downe to Thamnath, and saue a woman in Thamnath of þe daughters of the philistynes, and came vp and tolde hys father and hys mother, and sayde: I haue sene a woman in Thamnath of the daughters of the philistynes. And nowe geue her me to wyfe. Then hys father and mother sayde vnto hym: * is there neuer a womā of the daughters of thy brethren, amonge al my people: but that thou muste goe, and sette a wyfe of the vncircumcised philistynes? And Samson sayde vnto hys father: geue me this woman, for she pleaseth me well. But hys father and mother wyfte not that it was the Lordes doyng, & that he sought an occasion of the philistynes, whiche at that tyme raygned ouer Israell.

Then went Samson and his father and hys mother downe to Thamnath. And when they came to the bynepardes of Thamnath: beholde, a younge Lyon rozed vpon him. And the spirite of the Lorde came vpon hym. * And he tare hym, as a man wolde rente a kydd, and yet had nothyng in hys hande. Neuerthelatter he tolde not his father and mother what he had done. And he wente downe and talked with the woman, whiche semed well fauoured in þe syghte of Samson.

And within a shorte space after, as he went thither agayne to take her to wyfe, he turned out of the waye, to se þe carcasse of the Lyon. And behold, there was a swarme of bees in þe carcasse of the Lyon and honye. And he toke of the honye in hys handes & wente eatynge, and came vnto hys father and mother, and gaue them also. And they dyd eate. But he tolde not them, that he had taken the honye oute of the carcasse of the Lyon.

And when his father was come vnto the woman, Samson made there a feast, for so vsed the younge men to do.

And

And when her frendes sawe hym, they broughte .xxx. companions to beate hym telowshyppe. And Samson sayde vnto them: I wyl put forth a ryddle vnto you. And yf you can declare it within .viij. dayes of the feast, and find it out, I wyl geue you thirtie shyrtes, and thirtie chaunge of garmentes: But and yf you can not declare it me, then shal you geue me thirtie shyrtes & thirtie chaunge of garmentes. And they answered him, put forth the thy ryddle, and let vs heare it. And he sayd vnto them oute of the eater came meate: and out of the stronge came swetnes. And they coulde not in thye dayes expounde the riddle. And when the seuenth day was come, they sayde vnto Samsons wyfe. Flatter with thyne husband, that he maye declare vs the ryddle, or els we wyl burne the and thy fathers house with fyre, haue ye called vs to make vs beggers or not? Then Samsons wyfe wept vnto hym, and sayde: it can not be but that thou hatest me and louest me not: for thou hast put forth a ryddle vnto the children of my folke & wylt not tell me what it meaneth. And he sayde: Beholde, * I haue not tolde it my father nor my mother, and shulde I tel it the?

And. 14. v

And she wepte vnto him. .viij. dayes whyle the feast lasted. And the seuenth daye he tolde her, because she laye so sore vpon hym. And she tolde it the children of her folke. And the men of the cite sayde vnto him the seuenth daye, before the sunne went downe. What is sweter then honye, and what is stronger then a Lyon. Then sayde he vnto them: Yf ye had not plowed with my cause, ye had not founde out my ryddle. Then the spirite of the Lord came vpon him. And he wet doune to Askalon, & sette thyrtye men of them, and spoyled them, and gaue their garmentes vnto them whiche expounded the ryddle. And he was wrothe and went vpon to his fathers house. * But Samsons wyfe was geuen to one of his companions, that bare hym compayne.

Then sayde Samson vnto them: Nowe I am blamelesse concerninge the Philistines, though I doe them euell.

And Samson wente oute, & caught thye hundred foxes, and toke fyrebrandes, and fastened taylor to taylor, and put a fyrebrande in the myddes, betwene two tayles. And he set the fyrebrandes on fyre, and put them in to the corne of the Philistines, and burnte vp bothe the reped corne and also the standynge, with vines & olpues. Then the Philistines asked, who had done that? And it was tolde the that Samson the sone in lawe of the Chanmite, because he hadde taken his wyfe, and geuen her to one of his companions. And the Philistines came and burnte her & her father with fyre.

And Samson sayde vnto them: shoulde ye do so? I wyl surely be auenged of you, and then I wyl cease. And he smote them legges and thyrghes with a myghty plage. And then he wet doune & dwelt in the caue of the rocke Etam.

Then the Philistines came vpon, & pitched agaynst Juda, and laye in Lehi. And the men of Juda sayde: Why are ye come agaynst vs? And they answered to binde Samson are we come, euen to do hym as he hath done to vs. Then thye thousand men of Juda wet doune to the caue of the rocke Etam, & sayde to Samson: wottest thou not that the Philistines are rulers ouer vs? wherefore then haste thou serued vs thus? And he answered them: as they serued me, so haue I serued them.

And they sayde vnto hym, we are come come to bynde the, and to delpyer the in to the handes of the philistines. And Samson sayde vnto them: swere vnto me, that ye shall not hurte me your selues. And they sayde, we wyl not hurte the, saue onely bynde the and delpyer the vnto their handes: But we wyl not kyll the. And so they bounde hym with two newe cordes, and brought hym vp from the rocke. And when he came to Lehi, the philistines shouted agaynst him. And the spirite of the Lorde came vpon him, and the cordes that were vpon hys armes, became as flaxe & was burnt with fire, and the bandes loused frome of hys handes. And he founde a Jaw bone of a rottē asse, and put forth hys hande and caughte it, and slewe a thousande men therewith.

And Samson sayde: with þe Jawe of an asse, haue I made heapes of the: with the Jaw of an asse haue I slayne a thousande men. And when he had left speakynge: he caste awaye the Jawe oute of hys hande and called the place * Ramath Lehi. And he was sore a thurst, and called on the Lord, and sayd. Thou Lorde haste geuen thys greate victorie, thorowe the hande of thy seruante. And now I muste dye for thurst and fall in to the handes of the vncircumcised. But God brake a great toth that was in the Jawe, and there came water therout. And whē he had dronke hys spirite came agayne, and he was refreshed, wherefore the name thereof was called, * the well of the caller on, whiche is in Lehi vnto thys day. And he iudged Israell in þe dayes of þe philistines twentye yeres.

¶ The. xxi. Chapter.

¶ Samson lyfeth vp the gates of Gaza and carpeyth the vp in to the mountayns. He was deceaued by Dalilah and made blinde. He pulleth down the house vps the philistines and dyeth with them.

When wente Samson to Gaza, and saue there an whoze, & went in vnto her. And it was tolde the Gazites, that Samson was come thither. And they went about, and layde a wayt for him al nyghte in the gate of the cite, but were skyll al the nyght, saying: Tarpe tyll the moornyng that it be dape, and then lette vs kyll hym. And

Samson toke hys rest tyll mydnyght, and arose at mydnyght, and toke the doores of the gate of þe citie, and the two syde postes, and rent them of, barres & all, and put them vpon hys shoulders, & carped the vp to the toppe of an hyll that lieth before Hebron.

And after that he loued a woman, vpon the ryuer of Sorek, called Dalilah vnto whome came the Lordes of the philistines, and sayde vnto her: flatter with hym, and see wherein hys great strength lyeth, & by what meane we maye haue power ouer hym, that we maye bynde hym, to brynge hym vnder, and we wyl geue euery man a leuen hundred syluerlynges.

And Dalilah sayde vnto Samson: B. Oh, tell me where thy greate strengthe lyeth, and if thou were bounde wherewith men myght constrayne thee. And Samson sayd vnto her: If men boude me with .iii. grene wythes that were neuer dyed, I shuld be weake & as an other man. And then the lordes of the philistines brought her .iiii. wythes that were yet grene and neuer dyed, and they bounde hym therewith. Notwithstandinge she had men lyng in wayte with her in the chambze. And she sayd vnto hym: the philistines be vpo the Samson. And he brake the wythes as a strynge of towne breaketh, when it fealeth fyre. And so hys strengthe was not knowne.

Then sayde Dalilah to Samson: C See, thou haste mocked me and tolde me lyes. Nowe yet tell me I praye the, wherewith thou myghtest be bounde. And he sayde: If I were bounde with newe ropes that neuer were occupied, then shoulde I be weake, and as another man. And Dalilah toke newe ropes, and bounde him therewith, & sayde vnto him: the philistines be vpon the Samson. And there were lyers of wayte in þe chambze, and he brake them from of hys armes, as they had bene but a threde. And Dalilah sayde vnto Samson, hitherto þe hast begyled me, & tolde me lyes: I praye the yet tell me wherewith men maye bynde the. And he sayd vnto her: If thou plattedest the seven lockes of my head with an heere lace & fastenedest the with a nayle, I shoulde be weake be weake. And she sayde vnto hym: the philistines be vpon the Samson. And he awaked out of hys slepe, and plucked and went awaye with the nayle that was in the plattynge and with the heere lace. Then she said vnto him:

D Howe canst thou saye that thou louest me, when thyne hearte is not with me: for thou hast mocked me this .iii. tynes and hast not tolde me wherin thy great strength lyeth. And as she lay vpon him wyth her wordes continually verryng of hym, his soule was encombred euen vnto the death. And he tolde her al his heart, and sayd vnto her: *there neuer came raser nor theres vpon myne head, for I haue bene an abstapner to God, euen frome my mothers wombe. If myne heere were cut of, my strength woulde goe from me, and I shoulde waxe weake and be lyke all other men. And when Dalilah saue that he had tolde her all hys heart, she sente for the philistines, sayig: come yet this once, for he hath shewed me all his heart.

Amn. vi. a
And. xiii. b.

E Then the lordes of the philistines came and broughte the money in their handes. And she made hym slepe vpon her lappe, and sent for a man, and cutte of the seuen lockes of his heed, and he ganne to bere hym. But hys strength was gone from hym. And she sayde: the philistines be vpon the Samson. And he awooke out of his slepe, & thoughte to goe oute as at other tynes befoze & make hym selfe, and wryte not that the Lorde was departed from hym. But the philistines toke hym and put out hys eyes, and brought him doune to Gaza, and bounde hym with fetters. And he was made to grinde in the prisō house, howe be it the heere of hys head began to grow agayne after y he was shorne.

F Then the lordes of the philistines gathered them together, for to offer a solempne offeringe vnto Dagon their God, and to reioyce: for they sayde: our god hath deliuered Samson our eney myne in to oure handes. And when the people saue hym, they prayled their god: for they sayd: our god hath deliuered in to oure handes oure eney, y destroyed our contreye and slue manye of vs. And when their heartes were merce, they sayde: sende for Samson, and let hym playe befoze vs. And they fet Samson out of the prisō house, & he played befoze them, and they sette hym betwene the pylers. And Samson sayde vnto the ladde that lede hym by the hande: set me that I maye touche the pylers that the house stande vpon, and that I may leane to them. And the house was ful of men and wemen. And there was all the lordes of the philistines. And there were vpon the stage a thre thousande men and wemen, that behelde howe Samson played.

And Samson called vnto the Lorde, and sayde: my Lorde Jehouah thynke vpon me, and strengthen me, at this time onely O God, that I maye be auenged of the philistines for my two eyes. And Samson caughte the two myddle pylers on whiche the house stode, and on whiche it was borne bp, the one in his right hand, and the other in his lefte, and sayde: my soule bye to the philistines, and bowed them with al his myght. And the house fel vpon y lordes and vpon al the people that were therin. And so the dead whiche he slue at his death, were mo then they which he slue in hys lyfe. And then hys brethren and all the house of hys father came downe and tooke hym bp, and brought him and buryed hym betwene zarah and Esthaol, in y buryng place of Manoah hys father. And he iudged Israel twentye yere.

The. xvi. Chapter.

Of Michah whose mother made hym an Idol of syluer. Of the yongste pyette of the kynage of Aun of Bethlehem.

Here was a man in moule Ephraim, named Michah which sayde vnto his mother: the leuen hundred syluerlinges that were take from the, aboute whiche thou cursedest and saydest in myne eares: Beholde, the syluer is with me, for I toke it awaye. Then sayde hys mother, blessed be thou my soune, in the Lorde. And so he restored the leuen hundred syluerlinges to hys mother agayne. And his mother sayde: I bowed the syluer vnto the Lorde of myne hande, for thee my sonne: to make a grauen ymage and an ymage of metal. Now therfore I geue it the chappell of Gods, & made an Ephod and ymages, and fylled the hande of one of his sonnes whiche became his priest.

* for in those dayes there was no kyng in Israell, but euery man dyd what thoughte hym best in his owne eyes.

C And there was a younge mā out of Bethlehem Juda, and oute of the kyn-a Leuite, and sojourned there. And the man departed out of the cytie of Bethlehem Juda, to go dwel where he coulde

Ephraim, and to þ house of Micah as he iourneyed. And Micah sayde vnto dwel with me, and be vnto me a father

And the Leuite went and beganne to dwel with the man, and was vnto hym

Micah fylled the hande of the Leuite, and the younge man became his priest, and continued in the house of Micah.
Then sayde Micah, now I am suer that the Lorde wyll be good vnto me, seynge, I haue a Leuite to my priest.

Cher. xiii. Chapter.

The chyldren of Dan take the Godes and þ priest of Micah awaye. They destrye Laish, and after bylde it agayne.

* those dayes there was no kyng in Israell. And in those dayes þ trybe of Dan sought the an enheritaunce to dwell in, * for vnto that tyme there fell none enheritaunce vnto them amonge the trybe of Israell. And the chyldren of Dan sente of their kyn-redes fyue men of actyuitie, in feates of warre out of their coostes, euen oute of Zaraah and Esthaol, to beue the lande, and searche it oute, & sayde vnto them: go, and searche out the lande. And they came to mount Ephraim, euen to the house of Micah and lodged there.

And whē they were come vnto þ house of Micah, they knewe the voyce of the younge man the Leuite, and turned in thither, & sayd vnto him: who brought the hyther: and what makest þ in this place: and what hast thou here: And he sayde vnto them: thus and thus dealeth Micah with me and hath hired me to be his priest. And they sayde vnto him: Aske of God I praye the, that we maye knowe whether the waye which we go, shalbe prosperouse or no. And the priest sayd vnto them: go in peace, for þ waye whych ye go is before the Lorde.

Then the fyue men departed, and came to Laish, and sawe the people that were therein, howe they dwelte carelesse, and after þ maner of the Sidons, styll, and without castynge of pavelles, and that no mā made any trouble in þ lāde, or vsurped any dominiō, and how they were farre from the Sidons, and had no busynes with any nacion. And they came vnto their bytthre, to Zaraah, and Esthaol. And their bytthren sayde vnto them: what trydynge byynge you?

And they sayde: byp and let vs go vnto them, * for we haue sene the lande, that it is very good. Haste therfore, and be not slouthfull to departe, and to go and cōquere þ laude. When ye be come, ye shal come vnto a people that casteth no pavelles, and vnto a large contrey: for God hath geuen into youre handes a place wherin is no lacke of any thyng that is in the worlde.

And there departed thence of the kynred of the Danites, out of Zaraah and Esthaol, fyue hundred men appoynted with instrumentes of warre. And they went, and pitched in Kartath Jarim in Juda. Wherfore the place is called Mahannah Dan vnto this daye, which is on the backe syde of Kartath Jarim.
And they wēt thēce vnto mount Ephraim, and came to þ house Micah. Then answered the fyue mē that went to spy-out the contrey of Laish, and sayde vnto their bytthren: wot ye not, that there is in these houses an Ephod & Images, and a grauen Image, and an Image of metal: Now therfore consyder what ye haue to do.

Judges.

And they turned thitherwarde and came to the house of the young mā the Leuite, in the house of Micah, and saluted him pleasantly. And þe syre hūdered men gyrded wē wepons of warre which were of þe childre of Dan, stode in þe entering of the gate. And the syre mē that went to speye out þe lande, wēt in thither, and toke the kerued Image, & þe Ephod, the kerued Image, & the Image of metal. And the priest stode in þe entring of the gate wē the syre hūdered men þe were armed to battel, whyle þe other went to Michas house, & set þe kerued Image, the Ephod, the kerued Image and the Image of metal. Then sayde the priest vnto the: what do ye? & they answered him, holde thy peace, & put thine hāde vpo thy mouth, & come wē vs, & be vnto vs a father and a priest, whether is it better for þe to be a priest vnto þe house of one man, or to be priest vnto a trybe or a kindred in Israel. And þe priest was glade, & toke the Ephod & the Images, and the grauen Image, & went with the people. And they turned and departed, and put the chyldren, the cattell, and theyr costlye thinges before them.

When they were a good waye from the house of Micah, the men þe were in the houses þe were by Michas house, made an out crye, and folowed after the chyldren of Dan, & called vnto the. And they turned their faces, and sayde vnto Micah, what ayleth the, þe thou makest an out crye: And he said, ye haue taken awaye my Goddes which I made, & also the priest, & go your wayes with the: And what haue I more, how the saye ye vnto me, what ayleth the? And þe chyldre of Dan said vnto him, let not thy voyce be heard amōge vs, lest angry felowes runne vpo the, and thou loose thy lyfe, with the lynes of all thyne housholde to. And so the chyldren of Dan wēt their wayes. And when Micah sawe þe they were to stronge for him, he turned, and went backe vnto his house agayne.

And they toke the thinges whiche Micah had made, and the priest which he had, and wente vnto Laish, euen vnto a people that were at reast and without mistruste, and smote them with the edge of the swerde, and burnt the cite with fyre. And there was no man to helpe, because it was farre from Sodon, and they had no medelynge with any other nacion. And the ctyte stode in the valeys that lyeth by Bethrehab. And they bylde the ctyte and dwelte therein. * And called it Dan, after the name of Dan theyr father, whiche was borne vnto Israel. Howe be it, in very dede the name of the ctyte was Laish at the begynnyng.

And the chyldren of Dan set them by the grauen Image. And Jonathan the sonne of Gerson, the sonne of Manasses and his sonnes were the priestes vnto the trybe of the Danites, vntill they were carped awaye out of the land captiue. And they set them by the kerued Image which Micah made, all the whyle that the house of God was in Siloh.

Of the Leuite whose wyfe was villanously kept in Siloh. Whiche is deuyded in to .xii. partes and of his sente to emere trybe of Israel a prece.

It chaunced in those dayes, when there was no kynge in Israel, that a certen Leuite dwellinge on the side of mount Ephraim, toke to wyfe a concubynne out of Bethlehem Juda: whiche concubynne played the whoze in his house, & went away from him, vnto her fathers house to Bethlehem Juda, & there continued foure monethes. And her husband arose and wēt after her, to speake freely vnto her, and to byngne her home agayne, and his lad with him, and a couple of asses. And she brought him vnto her fathers house, and when the father of the damosel sawe him, he reioysed of his commynge. And his father in lawe the damoselles father kept him that he abode with him thre dayes, and so they ate and dranke and lodged there.

The fourthe daye they arose earlye in the mornynge, and the man stode vp to departe. But the damoselles father said vnto his sonne in lawe, comforte thyne heart with a morsel of breade, & the go your waye. And they late doune, & dyd eate and drinke both of them together. Then sayde the damoselles father vnto the man, go to I praye the and tarpe all night, & let thine heart be merce. Howe be it the man stode vp to departe: but his

And then the man arose to departe C with his concubine and his ladde. But his father in lawe the damoselles father sayde vnto him: beholde, the day goeth fast awaye, and draweth towarde euen, tarye all nyght: at the least wape tarye this day here, and let thynne hert be merrye. And to morowe get you early vpon your wape, and get the to thy tent. Neuerthelater, the man woulde not tarye, but arose & departed, and came as ferre as Jebus, whiche is Jerusalem, & hys two asses laden, and his a concubynne and his lad with him. And when they were faste by Jebus, the daye was fore spent, and the pounge man sayde vnto his master, come I praye the, and let vs turne in, into this citie of the Jebusites, and lodge al night there. But his master said vnto him, we wil not turne in to a straunge citie that are not of the chyldren of Israel: we wyll go forth to Gibeah. And he sayde vnto his lad, go forwarde, & we shall come to one place or other and hal lodge al nyght, in Gibeah or in Ramah. And they wente forwarde vpon theyr wape, and the sunne wente downe vpon them, when they were fast by Gibeah whiche is in Benjamin. And they turned thitherwarde to go and lodge all nyghte in Gibeah. And when they came in, they sat them doune in a streate of the cytie, for there was no man toke them in to lodge.

But beholde, there came an olde man E from his worcke, out of y<sup>e</sup> felde at euē, whiche was also of mounte Ephraim, and but a straunger in Gibeah for the men of the place were of the chyldren of Jemim. And when he had lyfte vp his eyes, and sawe a wayefaringe man in the streates of the citie, he said: whither goest thou? And whence comest thou? And the other answered him, we come from Behlehem Juda, towarde the syde of mounte Ephraim: from thence am I, and went to Behlehem Juda, and go now to the house of the Lord. But there is no man that receaueth me to house: and yet I haue strawe and prouander for our asses, and breade and wyne for me & thy handmayde, and thy lad that is wth thy seruante, and lacke nothing.

The olde man sayde, peace be with the, all that thou lackest shalt thou fynde with me: onely abyde not in the streates al night, and he broughte him in to his house, and gaue fodder vnto his asses. And they washed their fete, and dyd eate and dryncke. And as they were makynge theyr hertes merre, the men of the cytie which were wicked, beset the house rounde aboute, and thrust at the doze, and spake to the man of the house, the olde man, sayinge: brynge forth the man y<sup>e</sup> came into thine house, that we maye knowe him.

* But the man of the house went out to them and sayde vnto them: Oh, naye my brethren, do not so wickedlye, seyng that this mā is come into my house: do not this folye. Beholde, my doughter, a mayden, and this mannes concubynne, them I wyll brynge oute vnto you, and *humble them, and do with them what semeth you good: but vnto this mā, do not this folye. But the men woulde not herken to him. Neuerthelesse y<sup>e</sup> mā toke his concubynne, and broughte her oute vnto them, and they had to do with her, and entreated her shamefullye, all the night euē vnto the morning. And when the day begā to spring, they let her go.

And then came the woman in the dawnyng of the daye, and fell downe at the doze of the mannes house, where her Lord was, and there she lay til daie. And her Lord arose vp in the morning & opened y<sup>e</sup> dozes of the house, & wēt out to go his way. And beholde, his concubine lay a lōg befoze y<sup>e</sup> doze of the house, and her hād vpo the thresholde. And he said vnto her: vp, & let vs be going. But she answered not. Then he toke her vp vpon an alle & stode vp & gat him vnto his own home. of Iſrael ſtoode by etye and beleged Gibeah. And the men of Iſrael went out to battell agaynſte Benjamin, and put fycht agaynſt Gibeah. And the childre of Benjamin came out of Gibeah, and deſtroyed in Iſrael that day, xxii. thouſande men, & broughte the to the etye.

And the folke of the children of Iſ-rael plucked by their heartes, and went to agayne, and made battell in the ſame place where they did the fyrſte day: but they went fyrſte by and wept before the Lorde vnto euē, and asked of the Lord, ſayinge: ſhall we go agayne to battell againſte the children of Benjamin our brethren. And the Lorde ſaid: go by to them, and whē the children of Iſrael were come to the children of Benjamin the ſeconde daye, the children of Beniamin went agaynſt them out of Gibeah, the ſeconde day, and deſtroyed to ſ etty of the children of Iſrael once agayne. xxviii. thouſande men that drew ſwerdes euery man of them.

Then the children of Iſrael and all the people went by and came vnto Bethel, and wepte and ſat there before the Lorde, & faſted the ſame day vnto euē, and offered burnt offeringes & peace offeringes before the LORDE.

And

And they asked the Lord: for there was the atke of the appoyntment of God in those dayes. And * Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar, the sonne of Aaron waiting vpon it at that time: and they said, that we go out any more to battell agaynst the children of Benjamin oure brethren, or that we cease? And the Lord said, go: for to morowe I wil deliuer thee into your handes. And Israel set layes awayte agaynst Gibeah rounde aboute. And the children of Israel went agaynst the children of Benjamin the thirde time, & put them selues in aray agaynst Gibeah, as twise before. Then came the children of Benjamin agaynst the people, tyll they were drawen a great way from the citie. And they began to smyte of the people deade (as twise before, by two hye wayes of whiche one goeth vnto Bethel, & the other to Gibeah thorow the felde) vpon a thirtie men of Israel. For the children of Benjamin thought that the other had ben beaten before them, as at the fyrste tyme. But the children of Israel sayde: let vs flee and plucke them awaye from the citty, vnto the hye wayes.

And then all the men of Israel rose vp out of their standynge, and put the selues in aray at Baal Thamar. And lykewyse the layes in wayte of Israel came forth out of their places, euen out of the medowes of Gibeah, & came before Gibeah: ten thousande chosen men out of all Israel, & there was soze battel. But the other wist not that euyl was so nye them. And the Lord plagued Benjamin before Israel, so that the children of Israel destroyed in Benjamin the same daye, xxv. thousande, and a hundred men, that drue swerdes euerye one of them. It seemed the children of Benjamin, that the other had ben put to the worse. For the men of Israel gaue counseil to Benjamin, because they trusted vnto the layes in wayte whiche they had layde agaynst Gibeah. And the layes in wayte halted, and ranne vpon Gibeah, & went and smote al the citty with the edge of the swerde. And the appoyntment of the men of Israel with the layes in wayte to runne vpon Benjamin with the swerde, was when they should make the smoke to ryse vp out of the citty. And the men of Israel fled in the battell. And Benjamin began to smyte deade of the children of Israel, aboute a thirtie parsonnes, for they supposed the other had bene put to the worse before them, as in the fyrst battell. Then began to aryse out of the citty, a pyller of smoke. And the Beniamites looked backe: and beholde, the waynginge of the hole citty began to ascende vnto heauen.

When the men of Israel turned agayne, the men of Benjamin were abashed: for they sawe the euyl approached them. And they turned before the men of Israel vnto the waye that leadech to the wyldernesse, the other folowynge them at the harde heles. And besyde the citty destroyed them in the myddle of them. And they compassed Benjamin aboute, and chased them to Menah, and ouer ranne them before Gibeah on the east syde: and there were slayne of Benjamin, xviii. thousande, and all men of myghte. And they turned & fled to the wyldernesse warde, and vnto the rocke of pomegranettes. And the other flue by the waye of the rest of them, foure thousande men, and sticke vnto them vntill they came to Gibeah, and flue two thousande more of them. So the all that were slayne the same daye of Benjamin were, xxv. thousande men that drue swerdes, and al men of myght: & onely, vi. hundred men turned and fled to the wyldernesse, vnto the Rocke of pomegranettes and abode there, till monethes. And then the men of Israel turned backe agayne vnto the children of Benjamin, and smote them with the edge of the swerde in the cities, bothe man and beast, and al that came to hande, and more ouer set al the ctyes they coule come by, on fyre.

The. xxi. Chapter.

And the men of Israel sware in Hazyphah, sayynge: there shall none of vs geue his daughter vnto any of Benjamin to wyfe. And the people came to Bethel & abode there till eue, before god, & lift vp their voices & wept sore, & said: O lord god of Israel, why is this chaunce red in Israel, & there should be this day one tribe lacking in Israel. And on & moze the people roie by betpme, & made there an altare and offered burnt offerpnges, and peace offerpnges.

And the childre of Israel asked, who are they amonge al the trybes of Israel, that came not with the congregatio vnto the Lorde: for they had made a great othe concernyng the that came not vp to the Lorde to Hazp hab, sayinge: that they shoulde surely dye. And the children of Israel had pytie on Benjamin their brethren, and said: there is one tribe cut of from Israel this daye: what shal we do vnto the remnaunte of them, for to get them wyues, for as muche as we haue sworne by & Lorde, that we wil not geue the of our daughters to wyues. Then they sayde, what are they of the tribes of Israel & came not vp to Hazp hab to & Lorde. And beholde there came none of & inhabitoures of Jabes Gilead vnto the congregacion. And when the people were bewed: beholde, there were none of the inhabitants of Jabes Gilead there. And & congregacion sent thether. xii. thousande men of the strongest of the, & comaunded them, sayinge: go & smyte & inhabitants of Jabes Gilead wth & edge of & swerde, both wemen & children. * And this is & ye shal do: utterly destroye al the males & al the wemen & haue lien by men. And they foude among & inhabitants of Jabes Gilead foure hundred damoselles vergins, & had knowen no m<sup>a</sup> by lying with any male. And they brought them vnto the host to Siloh, which is in the lande of Canaan.

And the hole congregacion sente and spake with the childre of Benjamin. * & were in the Rocke of pomegranettes, & called peaceably vnto them: & Benjamin came agayne at that tyme, & they gaue them the wemen which they had saued a lye of the wemen of Jabes Gilead. But they so suffised the not. And & people had copassion on Benjamin, because & God had made a gap in & trybes of Israel. And the elders of the congregacio, said: what shal we do to the remnaunte of them, to get them wyues, seynge al the wyues of Benjamin are destroyed. And they said: there must be an inheritaunce for them & be escaped. & Benjamin & a tribe be not destroyed out of Israel: howe be it, we may not geue them wyues of oure daughters. For the children of Israel had made an o<sup>u</sup>rturacion, sayinge: * cursed be he that geueth a wyfe to Benjamin.

Then they said: beholde, there is a feast of & Lorde perlye in Siloh, which is on the north syde of Bethel, & on the east syde of the waye, that goeth from Bethel to Sichem, and southe from Libanon. And they commaunded & children of Benjamin, sayinge: go and lye in wayte in the bynepardes. And when ye se that & daughters of Siloh come oute to daunce in a rowe, then come ye out of the bynepardes, and catche you euery man a wyfe of the daughters of Siloh, and get you vnto the lande of Benjamin. And yf they fathers or brethren come vnto vs to complayne, we wyl saye vnto them, haue pytie on them, because we reserued not to eche man his wyfe in tyme of warre, & thereto because that ye gaue them none in due tyme, ye were to blame.

And the children of Benjamin dyd enen so: and toke them wyues accordyng to the nombze of them of the dauncers whiche they caught. And then they w<sup>er</sup> and retozned vnto their inheritaunce, and bylt their cittes and dwelt in the.

And the children of Israel departed thence at that tyme, and went euery m<sup>a</sup> to his trybe, and to his kynned, & wente out from thence euery man to his inheritaunce. * In those daies there was no kynge in Israel: but euery man dyd what semed hym ryghte in hys owne eyes.

Jud. x. 8

That is, had kylled a trybe of Israel.

In the tyme whē Jūdges iudged, there tell a deaſth in þe lāde. Wherefore a certē mā of Bethlehem Jūda went for to iourne in þe countrey of Moab: with his wyfe and two ſonnes. The name of the mā was Elimelec, and his wyfe Noemi, and the names of hys two ſonnes were Mahalon and Chilion, & they were Ephraites, out of Bethlehem Jūda. And when they came in to the lāde of Moab, they continued there. And Elimelec Noemies huſbāde died, and he remayned with her two ſonnes whiche toke them wyues of the naciōs of the Moabites: the ones name was Orpah, and the others Ruth. And whē they had dwelled there about a tē yere, Mahalon and Chilion dyed alſo euen bothe two of them, ſo that the wiſe was left deſolate of her two ſonnes, & of her huſbande thereto. Thē ſhe ſtoode vp with her doughters in law, and returned frō the countrey of Moab: for ſhe had herde ſape, beyng in the cōtre of Moab: how that the Lorde had blyſſed his people, and geuen them fode. Wherefore ſhe departed out of the place where ſhe was, and her two doughters with her. And as they wente by the waye returnyng vnto the lāde of Jūda, Noemi ſaid vnto her two doughters in lawe: go & retorne eche of you vnto youre mothers houſe: the Lorde deale as kyndly with you, as ye haue dealte with the deade & with me. And the Lorde geue you, that you maye fynde reſte, ether of you in the houſe of her huſbande: & ſo ſhe kyled them.

Then they cryed and wepte, & ſayde vnto her: we wyll go with the vnto thy folke. But Noemi ſayde: turne agayne my doughters: for what cauſe woulde you go with me: thynke you that there be any more childre in my bowelles, to be youre huſbandes? Turne agayne my doughters, and go: for I am to olde to haue an huſbande. If I ſaid, I haue hope, alſo yf I toke a man this nyght: yea, and thoughte I had al readye borne ſonnes: woulde ye ſape after them, till they were of age: or woulde ye for them ſo longe reſcapne from takyng of huſbandes? Not ſo my doughters:

for it greent me much for your ſakes, that the hande of the Lorde is gone out agaynſt me.

Wherwith they cryed and wepte agayne, howe he it. Orpah kyſſed her mother in lawe, but Ruth abode ſtil by her, then ſhe ſayde: ſe, thy ſyſter in lawe is gone backe agayne vnto her people and vnto her God: retorne thou after her. But Ruth ſayde: entreate me not to leaue the, and to retorne from after the: for * whether thou goeſt, I wyll go, and where thou dwelleſt, there I wyll dwell: thy people are my people, and thy God is my God. Where thou dyeſt, I wyll dye, & there wil be buryed. The Lorde do ſo and ſo to me, excepte that deathe onely departe the and me a ſondre.

When ſhe ſawe that ſhe woulde needes go with her, ſhe leſte ſpeakyng vnto her. And ſo they wente bothe together vntill they came to Bethlehe. And when they were come to Bethlehem, it was noyſed thowowe all the cite, and þe women ſayde: is not this Noemi? But ſhe ſayde vnto them, cal me not * Noemi: call me * Mara, for the all myghtye hath made me verpe bitter. I wete out full: but the Lorde hath broughte me home emptye. Why ſhoulde ye then cal me Noemi: ſeynge the Lorde hath humbled me, & þe almighty hath broughte me vnto aduerſyte. And the tyme when Noemi with Ruth the Moabiteſſe her doughter in lawe returned oute of the countrey of Moab and came to Bethlehem, was in the begynnyng of barley harueſt.

Ruth leaſeth corne in the felde of Booz and findeth fauour in hys ſyghte.

And Noemi had a kynſeman of her huſbandes, a man of myghte, of the kynred of Elimelec, named Booz. And Ruth the Moabiteſſe ſayde vnto Noemi, let me go to þe felde, & leaſe & gather eares, after whoſoever I ſide grace in his ſyght. And ſhe ſaid vnto her: go my doughter. And ſhe wet & caſt gather red after the harvest men, & her chaunce was, that parte of the felde pertayned vnto Booz, which was of the kynred of Elimelec. And beholde, Booz came fro Bethlehem, and sayde vnto the harvest men, the Lorde be with you. And they answered him: the Lorde blesse thee:

Then sayde Booz vnto the pounge mā that had the ouer syght of the heruest men: whose damosell is this? And the pounge man that was set to ouer se the heruest men answered and sayde: it is the Moabitish damosell, that came with Naomi oute of the countrey of Moab, and she sayde: let me I praye the, lease & gather after the heruest men, & eares that remaine: and so she came, & hath contynued euen from the mornynge vnto now, & tarped not lōge in þ house.

Then sayde Booz vnto Ruth: hearest thou my daughter: go to no nother felde to geather, nether go from hence: but abyde by my maydens. Thine eyes are on a felde that shalbe reaped: go after the maydens therfore, for I haue charged the pounge men, þ they touche the not. Moreover, when thou arte a thyrist, go vnto the vessels and dryncke of that which the laddes haue drawen. Ge. xxxiii. 8 Then he fel on her face and bowed her selfe to the grounde, and said vnto him: howe is it that I haue founde grace in thyne eyes, to knowe me, seyng I am an almaynte.

And Booz answered & said vnto her: al is tolde me that thou hast done vnto thy mother in lawe, sece þ death of thine husbāde, how thou hast left thy father and thy mother, & the lāde where þ wast borne, and art come vnto a nacio which thou knewest not in tyme passed. The Lorde quyte thy worcke, and a full reward be geuen the of the Lord God of Israel: vnto whō þ arte come, to trust vnder his winges. Then she sayde vnto him: let me fynde fauour in thy sight my Lorde for thou hast comforted me, and hast spokē hartely vnto thy maide, whiche yet can not be lyke vnto one of thy maydens. And Booz whē the tyme of refection was come, said vnto her: cōe hither & eate of þ bread, & dip thy sop in the binager. And she sat doune by þ reapers, & he taughte her parched corne. And so she did eate & was suffised & left parte. And whē she was risen vp together, Booz said to þ youg mē, saying: let her gather & eares & remaine & do her no despote. And thereto pull out of þ sheues for her & let it lye, þ she may gather it vp, and rebuke her not. And so she gathered vntylt euen & the thershed þ she had gathered, & it was vpon an Ephā of barley. And she toke it vp and wente to þ cite, & shewed hir mother in lawe what she had gathered. And thereto she plucked out, & gaue to her þ she had reserved, whē she had eaten ynough. The said her mother in law vnto her, where gatheredst þ to daye? & where wroughtest thou: blessed be he that knewe thee. And she shewed her mother in law with whō she had wrought, & said: þ mannes name is whō I wrought to daye is Booz. Then sayde Naomi vnto her daughter in law: blessed be he of the Lord, for he ceaseth not to do the same goodnesse to the deade, þ he dyd to þ luyng. And Naomi said vnto her: þ mā is nye vnto vs, euen of our nexte kynne. And Ruth þ Moabite said: he bad me also, that I should continue with his pounge men, vntil they had ended all the heruest he hath. Then said Naomi vnto Ruth her daughter in law, it is best my daughter that thou go out to his maydens, and that no man mete þ in any other felde. And so she kept her by the maydens of Booz, to gather vnto the ende of barley harvest & of wheate harvest also: and dwelte with her inoher in lawe.

¶ The.iii. Chapter.

¶ Ruth sleepeth at Boozs feet, and is knowen his bond woman.

AS Naomi her mother in law sayde vnto her: my daughter I wyl seke rest for the, that thou mayst be in better case. For nowe this Booz our kynsman is whose maydens thou wast, wenoeth his barleye to nyght in the threshing floure: washe thy selfe therfore, & anointe the, and put thy raymente vpon the, & get the to þ threshing floure. But let not þ man beware of the, vntyl he haue leaft eatynge and drynckynge. And whē he goeth to slepe, marcke the place where he layeth him doune, and then go and lyfte vp the clothes, that are on his feete, and laye the downe and so shal he tell the what thou shalt doe.

 And she answered her al that thou biddest me, I wyl doe. And so she went vnto the flour, and byd accordinge to all þæt her mother in law bad her. And whē Booz had eaten and droncken & made hym merre, he wente and lapyd downe by the syde of the heape corne. And she came softly & lifte vp the clothes of his fete, and layde her doune. And at mydnyght the man was astrappe and gropped. And beholde, a woman laye at his fete. Then he sayd: what arte thou, and she answered: I am Ruth thyne handmayde, spede thy mantell ouer thyne handmayde, for thou arte the nexte of the kynne. And then he sayde: blessed be thou in þe Lorde my doughter, for thou hast shewed more goodnesse in the latter ende, then at the begynnynge, in as muche as thou folowedest not yonge men, whether they were poze or ryche. And nowe my doughter feare not, I wyl doe to the all that thou requirdest, for all the gates of my people knowe, that thou art a woman of vertue. And it is true that I am of thy next kynne: Howe be it, there is one nyet then I. Carry al nyght. And when the morning is come yf he wil marie the, it is good, so let hym doe. But and yf he wyl not haue the, as sure as the Lorde lyueth I wyl haue the: Ipe styl vntyl the morninge. And so she lay at his fete vntyl þæt morning. And she arose vp before one coulde knowe another. And he said: let no mā beware, that there came any woman in to the threshynge flour. And he sayde: bynge thy matell yf thou haste byd the, & holde it vp. And she helde it vp. And he met in, vi. measures of barley, & layed it on her. And she gat her in to the cite: & she came in to her mother in lawe, whiche sayd: what tydnges my doughter. And she tolde her al that the mā had done to her. And sayd thereto, these syxe measures of barley gaue he me, and sayde: Thou shalt not go emptie vnto thy mother in law. Then sayde she: my doughter, syt styl, vntyll thou knowe howe the matter wyl chaunce. For the man wyl not be in tēd, vntyll he haue finished the matter this same daye.

Then went Booz vnto the gate, and satte hym downe there: and beholde the kynsman of whiche Booz spake came by. vnto whome he sayde: come and sytte downe here, and called hym by hys name. Hannah

Hannah answered & sayde: not so my Lord, I am a woman sorrowful in myne herte, & haue droncke neither wyne nor any stronge dryncke, but I haue poured oute my soule before the Lorde. Count not thyne handmayde to be lyke a doughter of vnchristines, for out of the haboundance of my meditacion and greife haue I spoken bytherto.

Eli answered & sayde: goe in peace: the God of Israel shal graunt the thyng that thou haste asked of hym. Then she sayde: let thyne handmayde finde grace in thy sight. And so the woman wente her waye, and dyd eate, & labored no more so sadde. And they rose by etye, and bowed themselves before the Lorde, & then returned, and went to their house to Ramath. And Elkanah lay by his wife Hannah, and the Lord remembred her. And in processe of tyme she conceaued, and bare a sonne, and called hys name * Samuël: because she had asked hym of the Lorde. And Elkanah & al his house went vp to offer vnto the Lorde, bothe the offerynge due for the feast, and also his vowes: but Hannah wente not vp, for she sayde vnto her husband: I wyl tarpe until I haue ben wened, & then I wil bring him, & he may appeare before the Lorde & there abide for euer. And Elkanah her husband, said to her: do what semeth the best: tarpe but I haue wened him, onely the Lorde make good hys sayinge. And so the woman abode, & gaue her sone sucke, until she wened him. And then she toke him w her, when she had wened hym, w thre bullockes & an Ephra of flour, & a borte of wyne, & brought him vnto the house of the Lord in Siloh, how he shoulde be wened. And they slue the bullockes & broughte in the lad to Eli, & then she sayde: Oh my Lord: as truly as thy soule lyueth my Lord: I am the woman I stode by the here, prayinge vnto the Lorde, & for this ladde I prayed, & the Lorde hath geue me my desire, which I asked of him: & therefore I also sende him to the Lorde, as long as he may be lent the Lorde. And so they prayed there vnto the Lorde.

The .ii. Chapter.

The songe of Hannah. The offering of the sonnes of Eli. Eli is rebuked for the vnmeasurable sufferance of hys chylde.

And Hannah prayed & sayde: mine heart reioyleth in the Lorde, myne horn is hie in the Lorde, and my mouth is wide open ouer myne enemies, for I reioyse in thy sayings. There is none so holy as the Lorde: no, there is none saue thou. Neither is there anye strength lyke vnto our God. Take not to much proudly: let olde thynges depart out of your mouthes, for the Lorde is a God of knowledge, and Iudgeth thoughtes. The bowes of the strong are broken: and the weake, are endued with strengthe. They that were full, haue hired out themselves for bread, & they that were hōgtie, cease so to be: in so much that the barren hath borne seuen, & she that had many chylde, is waxed feble.

The Lorde * kylleth, & maketh a lyue, byngeth doune to hell & fetcheth vp agayne. The Lorde maketh poore, and maketh ryche: byngeth lowe, and heueth vp an hie. * He repleth vp the poore out of the dust, and lifteth vp the begger from the donge hyl: to set them amonge princes, and to enherit them w the seat of gloire. For the pylers of the erth are the Lordes, and he hath set the rounde worlde vpon the. He wyl kepe the fete of his sainctes, but the wicked shal kepe silence in darkenes. * For in his own might shal no mā be strong. The Lordes aduersaries shalbe made to feare him: and out of heauen he shal thunder vpon them. The Lorde shall iudge the endes of the worlde, and shall geue myght vnto hys kynge, and exalte the horne of hys anoynted. And Elkanah wēt to Ramath to his house, and the ladde dyd minister vnto the Lorde before Eli the prieste.

But the sonnes of Eli * were vnchristle chylde, and knew not the Lorde. For the maner of the priestes with the people was, whensoever anye man offered anye offerynge, the priestes lad came, whyle the fleathe was in seching, and a fleshooke with, iiii. teth in his hande, and thrust it in to the pane, & kelle, ketle, caldren, or pottle. And al that the fleshoke broughte vp, the prieste toke awaye. And so they dyd vnto all Israel that came thither to Siloh. Yea: & therto before they had offered the fat, the priestes ladde came and sayd to the mā that offered: geue flesh to rost for þe priest, for he wyl not haue sodden flesh of the, but rawe. And yf any man sayde vnto hym: let the fatte be offered according to the day, & then take as much as thyne heart desireth. The lad wolde answer hym, thou shalt geue it me now, or els I wyl take it with violence. And the sinne of the younginē was verye greate before the Lorde. for they despyled the people and also the offeringe of the Lorde.

But the ladde Samuell ministred before the Lorde, girded about with a linnen Ephod. Moreover his mother made hym a lytell coote, and brought it to hym from feast to feast, when he came vp with her husband, to offer the offering of þe sayd feast. And Eli blessed Elkanah and his wyfe, and sayde: the Lorde geue the seed of thys woman, for that she hath lente the Lorde. And they went vnto their owne home. And þe Lorde visited Hannah, so that she conceived, and bare thre sonnes, and two daughters. But þe boye Samuel grew dwellynge styll with the Lorde.

Eli was very olde and hearde all þe hys sonnes dyd vnto al Israel, & howe they slept with the women that wayted in the doore of the tabernacle of witnessse, & sayde vnto them: why do ye suche thynges? for I heare your wicked deades of all these people. Oh, naye my sonnes: for it is no good reposte þe I heare howe that ye make the Lordes people to trespasse. If one man synne agaynste another, * dayemen maye make hys peace: but yf a man synne agaynst þe Lorde, who can be hys dayseman? Not wythstandynge they herkened not vnto the voyce of their father, because the Lorde woulde slaye them. The childe Samuel profited & grewe, and was in fauoure bothe wyth the Lorde, and also wyth men.

And there came a mā of God vnto Eli, and sayd vnto him: thus sayth the Lorde. I appeared vnto the house of thy father, when they were in Egypte, in Pharaos house. And I chose thy father oute of all þe trybes of Israel to be my priest, for to offer vpon myne altare, & to burne incense, & to be an Ephod before me. And I gaue vnto þe house of thy father al the offeringes of the chyldren of Israel. wherfore kydde ye agaynste my sacrifice and agaynste myne offeringe whiche I comaunde in the tabernacle, and honourest the chyldren aboute me, and make youe fatte of the fyrste frutes of all the offeringes of Israel my people? the Lorde God of Israel sayth: that thyne house, and the house of thy father shoulde haue walked before me for euer. But now the Lorde sayth: þe be fatte fro me: for the that wylt me, I wyl worshyp, & they that despise me, shall be despised. Beholde, þe dayes wyl come that I wyl cut of thyne arme, and the arme of thy fathers house, that there shall not be an elder in thyne house. And thou shalt se thyne enemye in the tabernacle, in al that shall please Israel, and there shall not be an elder in thyne house whyle the worlde standeth. Neuerthelesse, I wyl not destroy al thy males that come of the from my altare, to dase thy syght with al, and to make thyne hert melt. And al þe multitude of thyne house shall dye pouge.

And this shall be a sygne vnto the, that shall come vnto thy. ii. sonnes, * Hopht & Phineches: euen in one daye they shall dye bothe of the. And I wyl styte me vp a faythful priest, þe shall do as it is in myne hearte & in my mynde. And I wyl bylde hym a sure house. And he shall walke before myne anoynted for euer. And they that are lefte in thyne house, shall come & crouche to hym for a lytell pecce of syluer, & a cake of breade, & shall saye: put me I praye the in one office or other amāge the priestes, þe maye eate a morsel of breade.

in Siloh for a longe season: he yet called Samuel the thirde tyme: & sheweth hym what should befall on Eli.

And p̄ chyld Samuel ministred vnto p̄ Lord before Eli: & the worde of the Lord was precious in those dayes: for there was none open vision. And it chaunced at p̄ tyme, p̄ Eli lay in hye place, & his eyes begā to waxe dyme, p̄ he could not se. And yet p̄ lāpe of God went out, Samuel layde him doune to slepe, in p̄ temple of p̄ Lord, where the arcke of God was. And p̄ Lord called Samuel: & he sayde: here am I, and he ran vnto Eli, and sayde: here am I, for thou calledest me. And he sayde: I called the not: goe agayne, & slepe. And he went & layde him doune to slepe. And p̄ Lord called once agayne: Samuel, & Samuel arose & went to Eli, & sayde: I am here thou dydest call me. And he answered: I called the not my sonne. Goe agayne & take thy rest: but it was yet Samuel knewe the Lord, & yet p̄ worde of the Lord was opened vnto him. And p̄ Lord wēt to & called Samuel the thirde tyme. And he arose, and wēt to Eli, & sayde: I am here, for p̄ hast called me. The Eli perceaued that the Lord had called the lad. And sayd vnto him, goe and lye doune: & p̄ he call the agayne, then say: speake on Lord, for thy seruante heareth. And Samuel wēt, & layd him down in his place. And the Lord came, & stode & called as before, Samuel Samuel. And Samuel said: speake on, for thy seruāth heareth the. And p̄ Lord sayd to Samuel: behold, I wyl do a thinge in Israel, that the eares of as many as heareth it, shall tingle. In that daye I wyl performe to Eli, al p̄ I haue spoken concerning his house: I wyl begynne it, & ende it. For I haue tolde him p̄ I wyl iudge hys house for ever, for the wickednes whiche he knoweth, howe hys sonnes are vngacious, & he was not wroth therewith. And therefore I haue sworn vnto the house of Eli, p̄ the wickednes of Elies house shall not be poureged with sacrifice nor offeringe, while p̄ worlde standeth. And Samuel lay til the morning, and then opened the doores of the house of the Lord.

But Samuel feared, to shewe Eli the vision. Then Eli called Samuel, & sayde: Samuel my sonne. And he answered: Here I am. And he said: what is p̄ Lord hath sayd vnto the? se p̄ hide it not fro me. The Lord do so, & so to the, p̄ thou hide any thing fro me, of al that he sayde vnto thee. And Samuel tolde him euerye whit, & hide it not fro him. And he answered: it is p̄ Lord, let him do what semeth hym best.

And Samuel grewe, and the Lord was with him, & leste none of his wordes vnpurformed. And all Israel from Dan to Bersabe wiste that Samuel was trulye made p̄ Lordes prophete. And the Lord appeared agayne in Siloh: for p̄ Lord opened him selfe to Samuel i Siloh, thozow p̄ word of p̄ Lord.

The battell of the Philistines. Israel fleeth. The Arcke of the Lord is taken. Elies chyldren dye. The hym selfe also.

And Samuel spake vnto all Israel. And Israel wente oute agaynst the Philistines to battell, and pitched beyde the helpe stone. And the Philistines due in aray alonge by the feldes, aboute a foure thousande men.

And when the people were come into their tētes, p̄ elders of Israel sayde: wherfore hath the Lord beaten vs this daye before p̄ Philistines: let vs fetch p̄ arcke of p̄ apoyntmēt of p̄ Lord, out of Siloh vnto vs, & let it come amonge vs, & saue vs out of the handes of oure enemies. And the people sent to Siloh, & fet fro thence p̄ arcke of p̄ apoyntmēt of p̄ Lord of hostes, which dwelleth betwene the Cherubins. And there were the two sōnes of Eli, Hophni, & Phinehes w p̄ arcke of p̄ apoyntmēt of God. And whē the arcke of the apoyntmēt of the Lord came into the host, al Israel shewed a mightie howte, so that the earth range agayne.

When the Philistines hearde p̄ noyse of the howte, they sayde: what meaneth the soude of this mightie howte in the hoste of the Chyres? And they vnderstode, how p̄ the arcke of the Lord was come into the host. And the Philistines were asfayde, when it was tolde how p̄ God

And the Philistines foughte, and Israell was put to the worlke and fledde, euery man into his tente. And ther was a mighty greate slaughter, so y<sup>e</sup> ther were ouerthrowen of Israell. xxx. thousande sote men. And the arcke of God was taken, and the two sönes of Eli, Hophni, and a phinehes were dead. And there cam a man of Beniamin out of the arape, & came to Siloh the same daye, with his clothes rente, and erth vpon his heed. And whē the mā came in, Eli late vpo a stole by the way side lokyng: for his heart feared for the arcke of God. And the man came in and tolde it in the citie. And all the citie cryed.

When Eli hearde the nopsle of the cryng, he asked what y<sup>e</sup> nopsle of y<sup>e</sup> ruymorment. And the man halted, & came & tolde Eli. Eli was foure score & eigh<sup>t</sup> tene yere olde, & his sight fayled him, that he could not se. And whē he made mencion of the arcke of God, Eli fel from of hys stole backwarde toward the gate, and hys necke brake, and he died: for he was olde & binweldye and he had iudged Israell fourtye yeres.

The .v. Chapter.

Dagon the god of the Philistines is called that he toke the arcke. The Philistines are placed in the lower places. The inhabitants of Aharon refuse to receive the arcke.

And the Philistines toke the arcke of God & caried it from the helpe stone, vnto Asdod, & brought it in to y<sup>e</sup> house of Dago, & set it by Dagon. And whē they of Asdod were vp i<sup>n</sup> y<sup>e</sup> morninge: beholde, Dago lay grouelinge vpon the earth before the arcke of the Lord. And they toke Dagon & set hym in his place againe. And whē they were vp erlye en the next morninge, behold, Dago lay grouelinge vpo the groude before y<sup>e</sup> arck of the Lorde, & his head & his two hādes cut of vpo y<sup>e</sup> thresholde, that the body onely was left on hym. wherfore nether the priestes of Dago nether any mā y<sup>e</sup> cometh into Dagon's house might treade on the thresholde of Dagon in Asdod, vnto this daye.

But the hand of the Lord was heuy vpon thē of Asdod, & he destroyed thē, & smote thē wth emerodes, both Asdod, & al y<sup>e</sup> costes therof. And whē y<sup>e</sup> mē of Asdod saw y<sup>e</sup> it was so, they sayd: the arcke of the God of Israell shall not abyde here wth vs, for hys hande is soze vpon vs & vpo Dagon our god. And so they sent and gathered al the Lordes of the Philistins vnto thē, & sayde: what shal we do wth the arck of the God of Israell? Thē sayde they of Geth let the arcke of the god of Israell be caried about. And they caried y<sup>e</sup> arcke of y<sup>e</sup> God of Israell about. And whē they had caried it about, y<sup>e</sup> hāde of the Lord was in the citie wth a mightie great plage, & he smote the mē of y<sup>e</sup> citie bothe smale & greate: & they were smittē in their secret places, with the emerodes. Then they sent and fette al the Lordes of the Philistines vnto them, and sayde: sende a way the arcke of the God of Israel, and let it goe home agayne, vnto his owne place, that it slee vs not with oure people. for there was a plague of death thorow out al the cittle, and the hande of God was excedynge sore there, in so muche þ they whiche dyed not, were smyten w the Emerodes: so þ the crye of the cittle went vp to heauen.

The hefters byynge home the arcke with the rewarde. The Bethsamites were plagued after they had sene the arcke.

They answered: pf you sende the arcke of the God of Israell home agayne, sende it not emptye: But rewarde it w a trespase offering: & the þe shalbe hole, & it shalbe knowe to you, why hys hande departeth not frõ you.

Then sayde they: what shal be the trespase offeringe whiche we shal rewarde him w. And they answered: siue golden artles with Emerodes, & syue golden myce, accordynge to the nõbre of the Lordes of the Philistines. for it was one maner of plage þ was on you all, & on poure Lordes to. wherfore ye shal make images lyke to your artles w Emerodes, and images like to your mice þ destroyed poure land, & shal geue gloppe vnto the God of Israel: that he maye take his hande frome of you, and from poure Goddes, and from of your land. wherfore shuld you harden your heartes as the Egyptians & Pharaõ hardened their heartes: whiche for all that (when he had playde hys pages aunes with them) were sayne to let the people goe and departe.

Then take þ arck of the Lord & put it in the carte, & put the Juelles of golde (whiche ye rewarde hym with for a trespase offeringe) in a forcer by the syde therof, & sende it awaye & let it go. And marke pf he go vp by the waye þ leadeth vnto hys own coste, to Bethsames, the it is he þ dyd vs this great euell. But and pf he doe not, then it is not his hande þ smote vs, but it was a chaunce þ happened vs. And the men dyd euen so: they toke two kyne þ gaue milcke, & tyed them in the carte, & kept the calues at home, & they layde the arcke of the Lord vpon the carte, & the forcer w the mice of golde, & the images of the artles with Emerodes. And the kyne toke the straight way to Bethsames, both one waye, & as they went, lowed, turning nether to the right had ner to the lefte. And the Lordes of the Philistines wet after them, vntyl they came to the borders of Bethsames.

And they of Bethsames were reping their wheate haruest in þ baleye. And they lift vp their eyes, & spied the arck. And reioysed when they saw it. And the carte came into þ groue of one Jeholus a Bethsamite, and stode stil there. Ther was there also a greate stone. And they sente messengers to the inhabitants of Cariath Jazrim, sayinge: The Philistines haue brought home agayne the arcke of the Lord: come downe & set it vp to you.

The. vii. Chapter.

The arcke is brought to Cariathiazrim. The people wepe, for whiche Samuel maketh intercession to the Lord. The Prophesies are written.

AND the men of Cariathiazrim came, & set vp the arcke of the Lord, & brought it into the house of Aminadab in Gibeon & sanctified Eleazar his sonne, to waite vpon the arcke of the Lord. And while the arcke abode in Cariathiazrim, the dayes multiplied & it was. xx. yeres, & al Israel lamented after the Lord.

And Samuel spake vnto all Israel, saying: yf ye be come agayne vnto the Lord w<sup>al</sup> your hertes, the put away the straunge goddes fro amonge you, & Ashtaroth, & prepare your heartes vnto the Lord, & serue hym alone, & so shal he rydde you oute of the handes of the Philistines. And the children of Israel dyd put away Baalim & Ashtaroth, & serued the Lord only.

Then sayd Samuel: gather all Israel to Mizpah, & I maye praye for you vnto the Lord. And they gathered together to Mizpah, & drew water: powred it out before the Lord & fasted the same day, and sayd there: we haue sinned agaynst the Lord. And Samuel iudged the causes of the children of Israel in Mizpah. And the Philistines heard, & the children of Israel were gathered together to Mizpah, & lordes of the Philistines went vp agaynst Israel. And when the children of Israel heard, they were afrayde of the Philistines, & sayde to Samuel: cease not to crie vnto the Lord our God for vs, & he may saue vs out of the handes of the Philistines. And Samuel toke a suckynge lambe, & offered it al together for a burnt offeringe, vnto the Lord, & a cryed vnto the Lord for Israel: & the Lord heard him. And as Samuel offered the burnt offeringe, the Philistines came to fyght agaynst Israel. But the Lord thundred a great thunder that same day vpon the Philistines, & turnoyled them, that they were beaten before Israel. And the me of Israel issued oute of Mizpah, & pursued the Philistines, & slue them, vntyl they came vnder Bathear. And the Samuel toke a stone & pitched it betwene Mizpah & Sen, & called the name thereof the stone of helpe, sayinge: thus farre hath the Lord holpe vs. And so the Philistines were broughte vnder, & they came no more into the costes of Israel: for the hande of the Lord was vpon the Philistines all the dayes of Samuel. Therto the cities whiche the Philistines had taken fro Israel, came agayne to Israel, euen from Akaron to Geth, wth the costes of the same, whiche Israel plucked out of the handes of the Philistines. For ther was peace betwene Israel & the Amorites. And Samuel iudged Israel al the dayes of hys lyfe, and went about pere by pere, to Bethel, Gylgal, and Mizpah, & iudged Israel in al those places, & came agayne to Ramath: for there was his house, & there he iudged Israel, & ther he bilt an altare vnto the Lord.

Israel requireth a Kynge. Fol. xxxii

Bel prayed vnto þ lord. And the lord said vnto Samuel, heare þ voyce of þ people in all that they saye vnto the. * For they haue not cast the awaye, but me: þ I should not raigne ouer them. And as they haue euer done (sence I brought the out of Egypt vnto this daye, & haue forsake me, & serued other Goddes) eue so do they vnto the. Now therfore herke vnto their voyce: howe be it yet, testifie vnto the & shew the the dutie of þ king that shal raigne ouer the. And Samuel tolde all þ wordes of the Lord vnto the people þ asked a king of him, & he said: this shalbe the * dutie of the king that shal raigne ouer you: he wil take your sonnes, & put the to his charettes, & make his horsemen of the & they must rüne before his charet, & wyl make hym captaynes of the ouer thousandes & ouer fifties, & will let the to eate his groundes, & to gather in his heruest, & to make instruments of warre, & apparell for his charettes. And he wil take your daughters and make them the dzessers of his oymntes, & his cookes & bakers. And he shal take the best of your felde, & of your bynepardes, & of your oliue trees, & geue the to his seruantes. And he shal take the tenth of your seed, & of your vines, & geue it to his lordes, & to his seruantes. And he shal take the best of your menseruantes, & mayde seruantes, & young men, and of your asses, & do his worke with them. And he shal take the tenth of your shepe, & ye shalbe his seruantes. And when ye crye out at that tyme vpon your king, which ye shal haue chosen you, the Lord will not heare you at that daye.

Neuerthelesse, the people wolde not heare þ voyce of Samuel, but dyd saye: naye, not so: But ther shalbe a kynge ouer vs, & we wyl be like al other naciōs. And our kynge shal iudge vs, & go out before vs, & fight our battelles. And Samuel hearde all the wordes of the people, & rehersted them in the eares of the Lord. And the lord sayd to Samuel: herken vnto their voyce, & make them a king: Then saide Samuel vnto the me of Israel, go euery man vnto his citie.

¶ The. ix. Chapter.

¶ Saul the sonne of Cis leaeth his father's Altar and is chosen kynge.

Now there was a mā of Benjamin named, * Cis the sonne of Abiel, the sonne of Zeror, the sonne of Berchorath, the sonne of Aphiah, the sonne of a mā that was a Leminite, a mā of myght: þ same had a sonne called Saul, a goodly young mā, so that among the childre of Israel, ther was none goodlyer then he, & was therto fro the shouldders vwarde hyer then al the other people. And it chauced that þ Altes of this Cis Sauls father, were lost: Then saide Cis to Saul his sonne: take one of the laddes with the & by and go seke the Altes. And they wēt thorow mouint Ephraim, & thorow the land of Salisa: & founde the not. Then they went thorow the lade of Salim, & there they were not. Then they wēt also thorow the land of Jemini, & they founde the not. Then when they were come to the lād of Iuph, Saul sayde to the young mā that was with him: come let vs teturne, lest my father leue caring for the Altes, & take thought for vs. And he answered him: behold, ther is in this citie a worshipfull man of God, & all that he sayth, cometh to passe. Now then let vs go thither: peradventure he shal shew vs what waye we may go. Then saide Saul to his lad: yf we go, what shal we bring the mā: for our bread is al spent out of our hampers, and there is no nother present to byng the mā of god: what haue we? And the young man answered Saul agayne, and sayde: I haue sold about me the fourth part of a siccle, that wyl we geue the man of God to tell vs our waye.

Before tyme in Israel when a man went to seke an answer of God, thus wyl he spake: come, & let vs go to the sear. For he that is now called a prophet, was in þ olde tyme called a sear. Then sayde Saul to his young man: well sayd of the: come, let vs go. And so they went vnto the citie where the man of God was. And as they were goig by into the cite, they met with damofelles þ came out to draw water, & sayd vnto them: is there here a sear. And the maydes answered the: yea, behold, he goeth there before you. Make hast now, for he came this day to the citie, for þ people must offer this day in þ hill. where he come into the citie, so shall you finde hi, per he go bp to the hill to eate: for the people will not eate vntill he come, because he must blesse the offeringe. And the eate they that be biddē to the feast. Now therfore get you bp, for euē now shall ye fynde him. And they wēt bp into the citie. And whē they were come into the middes of the citie: behold, Samuel came out against thē, for to go bp to the hill.

C * But the lord had tolde Samuel (i his eares a daye before Saul came) saying: to morow this tyme I will sende the a mā out of the lāde of Bējamin, hi shalt thou anoynte to be captaine ouer my people Israel, & he maye saue my people out of the hande of the Philistines: for I haue looked vpon my people, and their crye is come vnto me. When Samuel saw Saul, the lord answered hi: se, this is the mā whō I spake to & of. This same shall raigne ouer my people.

Then went Saul to Samuel in the middle of the gate, and sayde: tell me I praye the, where about the sears house is, & Samuel answered Saul, & sayd: I am & sear, go bp before me vnto the hill, for ye shall eate with me to daye. And to morow I will let the go erlye, & wyll tell the al that is in thine hert, and as for thine asses & were lost this daye thre dayes, care not for thē, for they are found. And mozeouer whose shall the bewtiful thinges of Israel be-belong they not to the, and vnto all thy fathers houer. But Saul answered and sayde: am not I the sonne of a Jeminite, * of the smallest trybe of Israel, & my kynred the least of all the kynredes of the trybe of Benjamin, wherfore then speakest thou so to me?

And Samuel toke Saul & his lad, & brought them into the parter, & made thē sūt in the chiefe place amonge thē that were biddē: which were vpo a thirtie persones. Thē sayde Samuel vnto the cooke: byng forth the porciō which I gaue the, & of which I sayde kepe it with the. And the cooke toke bp & shoulder & brought it, & set it before Saul. And Samuel saide: behold, that which is left: put it before the and eate, for I kept it for the of purpose, whē I called the people. And so Saul byd eate with Samuel that daye. And whē they were come downe from the hill into the citie, Samuel comuned with Saul vpo the toppes of the house: & they arose erlye. And about the spryng of the daye Samuel called Saul vpon the toppes of the house, saying: bp, that I maye send the awaye. And Saul arose. And they wēt out at the doores both of them, both he and Samuel. And when they were come almost out of the towne, Samuel sayde to Saul: byd the lad go before vs, and he went, but stande thou still a whyle euē now, that I maye shewe the what God sayeth.

The .x. Chapter.

Saul is anoynted kynge, and propheseth. Samuel declareth the people their faulte, in that they asked a kynge. God sende the kynge lyte.

And thē Samuel toke a bore of oyle & powred it vpon his heed and kissed him, & sayde: the Lorde hath anoynted the to be a captayne ouer his enheritaunce. And now when thou art departed from me, thou shalt mete two mē by * Rahels sepulchre in the borders of Benjamin euē at zalezah. And they wyll saye vnto the, the asses which thou wētest to seke, are founde: se, thy father hath left the care of the asses, and soroweth for you, saying: what shall I do for my sonne. Then thou shalt go forth fro thēce, and shalt come to the ocke of Chabor. And there shalt thou mete thre mē going to God to Bethel: one carpyenge thre kiddes: and another carpyeng thre loues of bzeed: & a thrid carpyng a botell of wine. And they will salute the, & geue the two loues of bzeed: which thou shalt receaue of their handes. After that thou shalt come to the hill of God, * where the Philistines kepe their wathe. And when thou art come thither to the cytie, thou shalt mete a cōpanye of prophetes comyng doune fro the hill, with a psalter, a timbrell, a pipe, & a harpe before thē, and they prophesying. And the spryte of the Lorde will come vpon the, and thou shalt prophesie with thē, & shalt be turned into another mā. And whē these signes are chauced the, thē do what thou shalt hast to do, for god is with the. And thou shalt also go before me to Gilgal. And behold, I will come vnto the, to sacrifice burnt sacrifice, & peace offeriges. * Take for me seuen dayes, till I come to the, & shewe the what thou shalt do. And as sone as he had turned his shoulde to go from Samuel, God gaue him another maner of herte, & all those tokens came to passe that same daye. Whē thei came to the hill: beholde, the cōpanye of prophetes met him, & the spryte of god cam vpon him, & he prophesied among the. And all that knew him before, whē they saw that he prophesied among the prophetes, they sayde eche to other: what is happened vnto þ sonne of Cis? * Is Saul also among the prophetes? And one of þ same place answered and sayde: who is their father? And therof sprang a prouerbe: what is Saul also among the prophetes? And whē he had made an end of prophesying, he cam to the hill. Saules fathers brother sayde vnto him, & his lad: whether went ye? And he answered: to seke the asses, and whē we saw that they were no where, we wēt to Samuel. Thē sayd Saules vnclē: tell me what Samuel sayde vnto you? And Saul answered his vnclē: he tolde vs that the asses were founde. But of þ kyngdome wherof Samuel spake, tolde he him not. After þ Samuel called the people together vnto the Lorde to Mizpah, & sayde vnto the children of Israel: thus sayth the Lord God of Israel, I brought you out of Egypt, & deliuered you out of þ hād of the Egyptians, & out of the hādes of all kyngdomes þ oppressed you. And ye haue this daye cast awaye youre God, that holpe you out of al your aduersities & tribulations. And ye haue sayde vnto him: * make a kinge ouer vs. Now therfore stāde before the Lord by your tribes & youre thousandes. And when Samuel had brought al þ tribes of Israel, þ tribe of Benjamin was caught. When he had brought the tribe of Benjamin by their kindredes, þ kinrede of Manasse was caught: & Saul the sonne of Cis was caught. And they sought him: but he could not be found. Thē they asked the lord further: whither þ m<sup>a</sup> shulde come thither. And þ Lord answered: beholde, he hath hid him selfe among the stufte. And they came & fet hi thēse. And whē he stode among the people, he was hēt the any of the people, frō the shoulde bywarde. And Samuel sayd to all þ people: there se ye whō þ Lord hath chosen: & how there is none like him, among all the cōpanye. And all þ people howted and sayde: * God lend the kyng lyfe.

Then Samuel tolde the people the dutie of the kyngdome, & wrote it in a booke, & layde it by before the Lord, & so sent all the people awaye, euery man to his house. And Saul also wēt home to Gibeah. And there went with him an hoste, suche as God had touched their hartes. But þ childre of vntyrstynesse sayde: how shall he saue vs? & despised him, & brought him not presentes. And he made as though he had not heard it.

¶ The people deliuered from the tyranye of Nabal, & smyth the kyngdome of Saul.

When Nabal the Ammonite came, and beseged Jabes in Gilead. And all the people of Jabes sayde vnto Nabal: make a couenaunt wth vs, & we wilbe thy seruantes. And Nabal þ Ammonite sayde: herto wyl I make a couenaunt with you, euen to thrust out all youre right eyes, that I may bring that shame vpon al Israel. Then saide the elders of Jabes: geue vs seuen dayes respit: that we maye send messengers vnto all the costes of Israel. And then yf there come no man to helpe vs, we wyl come out to the. Thē came the messengers to Gibeah where Saul dwelt, and tolde this tidings in the eares of the people. And all the people lifte by their voyces and wept. And beholde, Saul cam followinge his oxen out of the felde, and asked what ayled the people to wepe. And they tolde him the tidings of the men of Jabes. * Then cam the spryte of God vpo Saul, whē he herde those tidings, & he was excedyng angrie. And toke a pouke of ore, & hewed thē in peces, & sent thē thorow out all the costes of Israel by the handes of messengers, saying: whosoever cometh forth after Saul & after Samuel, so shall his ore be serued. And the messengers said: & shewed the men of Iabes, & they were glad. And then the men of Iabes sayd: to morowe we wyl come out vnto you, that ye maye do with vs all & please you. ## The. xii. Chapter.

Samuel being an innocent Judge (the people them selues to witness) requeth the people of vniuersall becaue they demanded a kyng. When that repenteth he becometh good forgereth, because of his promise.

1 He said Samuel vnto all Israel: beholde, I haue obeyed your voyce in all & ye sayde vnto me, & haue made you a kyng. And se your kyng walketh before you. But I am olde & graye headed: beholde, my sonnes are with you and I haue walked before you fro my childhede vnto this daye. Behold here I am: answer me before the Lord and before his anoynted, * whose ore haue I taken: or whose alle haue I taken: whom haue I done wrong to: or whom haue I pilled: And of whose hand haue I receiued any brybe, to blynde myne eyes therewith: and I will restore it you agayne. And they sayde: thou hast done vs no wrong, nor pilled vs, neither hast thou taken ought of any mannes hande. Then sayde he to the: the Lord is witness vnto you, & his anoynted is witness this daye, & ye haue founde nought in my handes. And they answered: we are witnesses. Then sayde Samuel vnto the people: it is the Lord * that made Moyses and Aaron, and which brought your fathers out of Egypt. Now therfore stande still, and let me reason with you before the Lord, of all the ryghte witnessses of the Lord which he shewed both you and your fathers.

* After that Jacob was come into Egypte, your fathers cryed vnto the Lord, * and the Lord sent Moyses and Aaron, whiche brought your fathers out of Egypte, and made them dwell in this place. * Neuerthelater they forgoat the Lord their God. And he solde them into the hande of Sisara chefe captayne of Iabin kyng of Hazor, * and into the handes of the philistines: and * into the handes of the kyng of Moab, whiche fought agaynst them. Then they cryed vnto the Lord, and sayde: we haue synned, because we haue forsake the Lord, and haue serued Baalim and Ashtaroth. But now deliuer vs out of the handes of our enemyes, and we will serue the. And the Lord sent Jerobaal * Badan. * Jephthah, and * Samuel, and deliuered you out of the handes of your enemyes on every syde, so that ye dwelled without feare. And for all that, when you sawe that Ahas the kyng of the children of Ammon came agaynst you, ye sayde vnto me: * not so, a kyng shall craigne ouer vs, when yet the Lord your God was your kyng. Howe therfore beholde, the kyng whom ye haue chosen and whome ye haue desired: se, the Lord hath geuen you a kyng, Oh that ye wolde feare the Lord and serue him and heare his voyce, and not disobey the mouth of the Lord: and that both ye & the kyng that reigneth ouer you, wolde folow the Lord your God. For ye shall not hearken vnto the voyce of the Lord, but shall disobeye disobeye the Lordes mouth: the shall the hâde of the Lord be vpon you, & on poure fathers. Now also stâde & se this great thing which the Lord will do be-foze poure eyes: is it not now wheatheruest. And yet for all that, I will call vnto the Lord, & he shall sende thunder & rayne. Wherbye perceaue & vnderstâd:

howe that poure wyckednes is great, whiche ye haue done in the syght of the Lord, in asking you a kyng. * And whē Samuel called vnto the lord, the Lord sent thunder and rayne the same daye.
And all the people feared the Lord & Samuel excedynglye. Then sayde all the people vnto Samuel: praye for thy seruantes vnto the Lord thy God, that we dye not: for we haue synned in asking vs a kyng, besyde all the synnes that euer we dyd.

Then sayd Samuel vnto the people: feare not. And though ye haue done all this wyckednesse, yet departe not from the Lord in any case. But serue hym with all poure hertes. Neither turne ye after bayne thynges which cannot de-liuer you, for they are but vanities.

* But the Lord wyll not forsake his people, because of his great names saker: because * the Lord hath begone to make you his people. Whereouer, God forbydde that I shulde synne agaynst the Lord in leyrnge prayinge for you and to helpe you the good and ryght waye. Onlye feare you the Lord and serue him truly w all poure hertes: for he hath done great thynges for you.
But & yf ye shall do wyckedlye: the shall bothe ye and poure king therto perishe.

The. xiii. Chapter.

The Philistines are smytē of Saul and Jonathan.
Saul being disobedient to Goddes commaundemēt is beweyed of Samuel that he shall not reigne.

Saul was as a childe of a pere solde, when he began to raygne. And when he had raygned two yerres ouer Israel, he chose hym thre thousand men out of Israel. Two thousand were with Saul in Bachmas, and mount Bethel, and a thousande with Jonathan in Gibeath Beniamin. And the rest of the people he sent euery man to his owne house. And Jonathan sue the philistines in auholde they had in Gibeath, and it came to the philistines eares. And Saul caused the trompet to be blowen tho-row out all the lande, sayinge: let the Cherues heare. And all Israel hearde saye, how that Saul had destroyed an holde of the philistines, and how that Israel stauke vnto the philistines.

And all the people cryed after Saul to Gilgal.

Then the philistines gathered thē selues together to fyght with Israel; thirtie thousande charretes, and sixe thousande horse men, with other people lyke the * land by the seas sid e in multitude and came by, & pitched in Bach-mas eastwarde from Bethauen. And when the men of Israel saw thē selues in a strapte, & that the people were accombed, they hyd thē selues in caues, in prey holes, in rockes, denues & pit-tes. And the Cherues went ouer Jordan vnto the land of Gad and Gilead. But Saul was yet in Gilgal, & all the people that folowed him were astonied. And he tarped seuen dayes, as Samuel had appoynted. But Samuel came not to Gilgal, & the people skatered fro him.
Wherefore Saul sayde: bring burnt sacrifice to me and peace offerings. And he offered burnt sacrifice. And as sone as he had made an ende of offerig burnt offerings: behold, Samuel came. And Saul wēt against him, to salute him.
Thē saide Samuel to Saul: what hast thou done? And Saul sayd, because I saw that the people skatered fro me, & that thou camest not * w in that dayes appoy-nted, & that the philistines gathered thē selues together to Bachmas: thē saide I, the philistines shall come doune vpo me to Gilgal, yet I haue made supplicatiō vnto the Lord. And therfore I toke a courage with me & offered burnt offerings. Thē sayde Samuel to Saul: * thou hast done folylye and hast not kept the commaundemēt of the Lord thy God which he comaunded the. For at this tyme wold the Lord haue stablissed thy kyngdome vpon Israel for euer. But now, thy kyngdome shall not cōtinew.
* The Lord hath sought him a mā after his own hart, & hath comaunded him to be a captaine ouer his people: because thou hast not kept that which the Lord comaunded the. And Samuel arose, & gat hē fro Gilgal to Gibeah Benjamin. And Saul nombred the people þ were found with him, about a fixe hūdred mē. And Saul & Jonathas his sonne, & the people that were found with thē, had their abyding in Gibeah Benjamin. But þ Philistines had pitched in Machmas. And there came out of the host of the Philistines thre cōpanies, to destroye: one cōpanye turned vnto the waye that leadeth to Ephrah, vnto þ lād of Saul. And another cōpanye turned the waye to Bethōron. And the thyrde cōpany turned to the waye of the coast that turned to the valey of Iebolim toward the wil der nesse. But there was no smith thow row out all the lande of Israel. for the Philistines thought, þ then the Chyues might make the swerdes oz speres. And therefore must all Israel go downe to þ Philistines, to mende euerye man his share, his mattock, his axe, oz his cycle: as ofte as the edges of þ cyckles mat tockes, doung forckes, and axes were blunt, and also to mende their goades. And so in tyme of battell there was neither swerde nor spere founde in the hādes of any of the people that were with Saul & Jonathas: saue for Saul & Jonathas his sonne was there somewhat founde. And the Garison of the Philistines came out, and stode on the other syde before Machmas.

Jonathas cōpanied with his harnessebearer putteth the Philistines to flight. He raketh the honye whiche his father, unknowing to him, had forbidden the whole host. He shalbe therefore haue deare sayne but the people deliquit hym.

Ad it fell on a daye, that Jonathas þ sonne of Saul sayd vnto his yong man þ bare his harnes: come, & let vs go ouer to the watche men of the Philistines that are poulder on the other syde, and tolde not his father. But Saul tarried in þ vtmost parte of Gibeah vnder a pomegranet trees, that was i Magro, and the people that were with him were bpō a fixe hundred mē. And Abiah the sonne of Abitob Iehabodes brother, the sonne of Abinches, the sonne of Eli, was the Lordes priest in Siloh & bare an Ephod. But the people wist not that Jonathas was gone.

And in the waye ouer by whiche Jonathas sought to go ouer vnto the garison of the Philistines, were there two sharpe rockes, euē one on the one side, & the other on þ other side: the one called Bozez, & the other Seneh. And the one leaneth northward toward Machmas, and the other southwarde toward Gibeah. Thē said Jonathas to the yong mā that bare his harnesse: come & let vs go ouer vnto the stāding of these vncircūcised, paraduēture þ Lord wil worke with vs: for the Lord is free to saue many oz with fewe. And his harnessebearer sayd vnto him: do all that is i thine hert: set þ forwarde: & se I am with thē, as thine hert lusteth. Then saide Jonathas: beholde, whē we go ouer vnto the mē, & shew oure selues vnto thē: if they saye on this wise, to vs: tarpe vntill we come to you, thē we will stād still where we be & not go bp vnto thē. But if they so say vnto vs: come bp vnto vs, thē we will go bp, for þ * Lord hath deliuered thē into oure handes. And this shalbe a signe vnto vs. And whē they had bothe shewed thē selues vnto þ garison of the Philistines, the Philistines sayd: se, the * Chyues come out of the holes where they had hidd thē selues in. And the mē of þ garison answered Jonathas & his harnessebearer, & sayd: come bp to vs, & we wil shew you a thing. Thē sayd Jonathas vnto his harnessebearer: come bp after me, for þ Lord hath deliuered thē into the hādes of Israel. And Jonathas clame bpō hādes & fete, & his harnessebearer after him. Thē they fell before Jonathas: & his harnessebearer stue thē after him. And þ first slaughte which Jonathas & his harnessebearer made was vpon a twētie mē, wīn the cōpasse as it were about an halfe aker of lande. And there was a feare in the host þ was in þ selde, & amōg all the people: in so moche that they þ kept þ holde, & they þ were gone to robbe, were afraid also: & the erth trembled, & there was a feare set of god. No reouer ſ<sup>r</sup> Chreues ſ<sup>r</sup> were with the philiftines befoze ſ<sup>r</sup> tyme, & were come with thē in all partes of the hoſte, they turned to Iſrael that was with Saul and Jonathas. And they alſo whiche had hydde them ſelues in mouſte Ephraim, as ſone as they hearde how ſ<sup>r</sup> the philiftines were ſledde, they folowed after them in battell. And ſo God holpe Iſrael that daye. And the battell cōtinued vntyll they came to Bethauen.

D And the men of Iſrael toynded thē ſelues togeather that daye: & Saul aduised the people ſaying: Curſed be he that eateth anye fode vntyll nyghte, that I maye be aduenged of myne enemyes. But Jonathas heard not when his father adured ſ<sup>r</sup> people, wherfoze he put forth the ende of the ſtaffe ſ<sup>r</sup> was i his hād, & dypte it in an honye combe, & put his hande to his mouth, & his eyes receaued ſight. But rowle a great ſtone vnto me now, & go abroade among the people and byd them byng euery mā his oxe, & euery mā his ſhepe, and ſlay them here, & ſynne not agaynſt the Lorde in eatyng with the bloud. And the people brought euery man his oxe in his hand by nyght and ſue thē there. And Saul made an altare vnto ſ<sup>r</sup> lord. And ſ<sup>r</sup> was the firſt altare that he made vnto the Lorde. And Saul ſayde: let vs go downe after the philiftines by nyght, and let vs make hauoke among them vntill it be daye in the moynyng, and let vs not leaue one of thē. And the people answered, do whatſoever thou thinkeſt beſt. Then ſayde the preaſte: let vs come hither vnto God. And Saul asked of God: Shall I go downe after the philiftines, and wiſt thou deliuer them into myne handes? But he answered him not at that tyme. Then ſayde Saul: let the people come hither out of all quarters, & know & ſe, in whom this ſynne is chaūced this daye: for as truly as the Lorde lyueth whiche hath ſaued Iſrael, though it be in Jonathas my ſonne, he ſhall dye for it. But no man answered him of all the people.

Then he ſayde vnto all Iſrael: be ye on one ſyde, & I & Jonathas my ſonne wil be on another. And the people ſayde vnto Saul: what thou thynekeſt beſt, ſ<sup>r</sup> do. And Saul ſayd vnto the Lord God of Iſrael: geue a perfect knowledge. And Saul and Jonathas were caught, and the people ſkaped free. Then ſayde Saul: caſt lottes betwene me and Jonathas my ſonne. And Jonathas was caught. Theſaul ſayde to Jonathas: tell me what thou haſt done. ## The .xv. Chapter.

Saul is commaunded to sle Amaleck. He is disobedient to the voyce of God, and sancti the people to offer it vnto the Lorde: for whiche the Lorde reiecteth and saith him awaye. Samuel moueneth for Saul.

Then sayde Samuel vnto Saul: the Lorde sent me to anoynt the kyng ouer his people Israell. Now therfore obeye thou the voyce of the wordes of the Lorde. Thus sayth the Lorde of hostes: I haue called to remembraunce that whiche Amalech did to Israell, howe they laye in wayte for the in the waye, as they came out of Egypt. Now therfore go, and slaye the Amaleckites, and only destrope ye all that pertaineth vnto the, and se thou haue no compassion on the. But say bothe mā & womā, mēt & sucklyng, & oxe, shepe, camell & ass.

And Saul tolde it to people, & nobred the in. Telam two hundred thousand foote men, & ten thousand me of Iuda. And Saul came vnto a citie of the Amaleckites, & fought in a vale. But Saul sayd vnto the Kenites: go, & departe, & get ye doune fro among the Amaleckites, lest I destrope you with the: for ye shewed mercy with Israell when they came out of Egypt. And the Kenites departed fro among the Amaleckites.

And Saul slue the Amaleckites fro Heula to Sur the lyeth before Egypt, & toke Agag the king of the Amaleckites aloue, & bitterly destroyed all the people in the edge of the swerde. But Saul & the people spared Agag, & they left of the shepe & of the oxe and fat thinges, & the labes & all that was good, & wolde not destrope the. But all that was nought worth and flaggie, they destroyed bitterly. The came the worde of the Lorde vnto Samuel, saying: it is repeth me that I haue made Saul kyng. for he is turned fro me, & hath not performed my commaudemētes, wherfore Samuel was euell apaide, and cryed vnto the Lorde all nyght. And Samuel rose earlye, to mete Saul in the mornynge. And it was tolde Samuel that Saul was come to Carmel: and had set him by a pillar of triuphe. And was turned and departed and gone to Gilgall.

And whē Samuel was com to Saul, Saul sayde vnto him: Blessed be thou in the Lorde. I haue done the commaudemēt of the lord. And Samuel answered: what meaneth the bleatinge of the shepe in myne eares, & the noyse of the oxe whiche I heare? And Saul sayde: they haue brought the from the Amaleckites. for the people spared the best of the shepe & of the oxe, to sacrifice the vnto the Lorde thy god. And the remnant we haue destroyed.

But Samuel sayde to Saul: cease and let me tell the what the Lorde hath sayde to me this nyght. And he sayde vnto him: saye on. And Samuel sayde: when thou wast byle in thine owne lyght,

fyghte, wast thou not made the head of the trybes of Israell. And the Lorde anoynted the kynge ouer Israell. And then the Lorde sent the on a iournepe, and sayde vnto the: se that thou vttterly destroye those synners, the Amaleckites and fyghte againste them, vntyll ye haue vttterly destroyed the. And wherfore hast thou now not obeyed the voice of the Lorde: But dyddest turne to the praye and hast wrought wickednesse in the syght of the Lorde.

And Saul sayd vnto Samuel: yea, I haue obeyed the voyce of the Lorde, and went the way which the Lorde sente me, and haue broughte Agag the kynge of the Amaleckites. And haue vttterly destroyed the Amaleckites. And the people toke of the spoyle, shepe, oxen, and the chiefest of the thynges whiche shoulde haue bene destroyed, to offer vnto the Lorde thy God in Gilgall. Then sayde Samuel: hath the Lorde as great pleasure in burnt sacrifices and offeringes as he hath that thou shouldest obeye his voyce. Beholde, to obeye is better then offrynge, and to geue hede is better then the fat of rammes. For rebelyousnesse is as the sinne of witchcraft, and stubbornnesse is wickednesse and Idolatrye. Because therefore thou hast cast away the worde of the Lorde, therefore hath the Lorde cast away the also, frome being kynge.

Then sayde Saul to Samuel: I haue synned, for I haue trespassed the mouth of the Lorde, and thy wordes, because I feared the people, and obeyed theyr voyce. But nowe take awaye my synne, and turne agayne with me, that I maye worshippe the Lorde. Then said Samuel vnto Saul: I wil not retorne with the: for thou hast cast awaye the byddynge of God & therefore the Lorde hath cast awaye the also, that thou shalt not be kynge ouer Israell. And as Samuel turned to go away, he caught the lappe of his coote, and it rente. Then Samuel sayde: the Lorde hath rent the kingdome of Israell from the this daye, and hath geuen it to a neyghbour of thyne, that is better then thou. And therto he that geueth victorie to Israell, will not begyle nor repent: for he is not a man, that can repent.

Then he sayde: I haue synned. But yet honoure me before the elders of my people, and before Israell, and turne agayne with me, that I maye praye vnto the Lorde thy God. And Samuel turned agayne and folowed Saul. And Saul prayed vnto the Lorde. Then sayd Samuel: Synge ye hither to me Agag the kyng of the Amaleckites. And Agag came vnto him: delicatlye. And Agag sayde: trulpe the bitternesse of deathe cometh on. And Samuel sayde: As thy sword hath made women childlesse, so shall thy mother be childlesse amonge other women. And so Samuel hewed Agag in peces before the Lorde in Gilgall. And then Samuel departed to Ramath. And Saul went home to hys house to Gibeah Saul. But Samuel came no more to se Saul vntyll the daye of hys deathe. Neuertheless Samuel mourned for Saul, because the Lorde repented that he had made him kynge ouer Israell.

For man loketh on outward apperaunce: but the Lord beholdeth the harte. Then Iſai called Abinadab & made him come before Samuel. And he ſayde: neither hath the Lord choſen this. Then Iſai made Samah come, & he ſayde: nether yet hath the Lord him choſen. Then made Iſai ſeuē of hys ſonnes come before Samuell. And Samuell ſayde vnto Iſai: the Lord hath choſen none of theſe.

Then answered one of hys ſeruautes, and ſayd: Beholde, I haue ſene a ſonne of Iſai the Bethlehemite, that can play vpon instrumentes, and is an actyue ſelow, and a man of warre and prudente and well made, and the Lord is with him, wherevpon Saul ſent meſſengers vnto Iſai, and ſayde: ſende me Dauid thy ſonne whiche is with the ſhepe. And Iſai toke an aſſe laden with breade, & a ſackat of wine, and a kyddē, and ſente them by Dauid his ſonne vnto Saul. And Dauid wente to Saul, and came before him, and he loued him verpe well, ſo that he was made his harnesbearer. And Saul ſente to Iſai, ſayinge: let Dauid remaine with me, for he hath founde fauour in my ſyghte. And when the euell ſpīte ſente of God came vpon Saul, Dauid toke an harpe and played with his hande, ſo Saul was reſreſhed, and did ameide, and the euell ſpīte departed from him.

And then came a man and stode in the myddes, oute of the tentes of the Philistines named Goliath, of Geth sye cubites and an hand bredeth long, and had an helmet of brasse vpon hys heade, and a coote of maple about him. And the weyghte of his coote of maple was syue thousande Cykles of brasse. And he had bootes of brasse vpon his legges, and a shyld of brasse vpon hys shoulders. And the sharpe of his speare was lyke a weuers beame. And hys speare heade weyed. vi. hundred sykles of yron. And one beaung a shyld went beioze him.

And he stode & called vnto the hoste of Israell, and sayde vnto them: what nedeth that ye should come out in aray to battell? am not I a Philistine, and you seruauntes to Saul? chose you a man, and let him come downe to me, yf he be able to fyght with me and to beate me then we wyll be youre seruauntes. But yf I can ouercome hym and beate him: then ye shalbe our seruauntes and serue vs. And the Philistine sayde: I haue defyed the hoooste of Israell this daye, geue me a man and let vs fighte together. When Saule and al Israell hearde those wordes of the Philistine, they were discouraged and greatlye afrayed. * And this David was the son of an Ephrathite of Bethlehem Juda, named Isai, whiche Isai had eighte sonnes. And was an olde manne in the dayes of Saul among the people. And the thre eldest sonnes of Isai, went and folowed Saul to battell. And the names of his thre sonnes that went to battell, were: Eliab the eldest, and the next to him Abinadab, and the thyrde Samah, and David was y<sup>e</sup> youngest. And when the thre eldest were gone after Saul, David wente & departed from Saul, to seke his fathers shepe at Bethlehem. And the Philistine came forth the euerye moornyng, and eueryng, and contynued forthye dayes.

And Isai sayde vnto David hys sonne: take for thy brethren this Epha of parched corne, and these ten loues, and runne to the hooste, to thy brethren. And carrie these ten freshe cheles vnto the captaine, and loke howe thy brethren fare, and set out theyr pledges. And Saul and they and al the men of Israell were in Oche valey fpyhtynge with the Philistines. And David rose vp earlye in the moornyng, and lefte the shepe with a keeper, and toke & wente, as Isai had commaunded him, and came where the host laye. And the host was goinge out in aray, and shewted in the battell: for Israell and the Philistines had put them selues in aray, the one agaynste the other. Then David put the panper from him, vnto the handes of the keeper of the vessels, and ranne into the hoste, and came & saluted hys brethren. And as he talked with them: Beholde, there stode a man in the myddes, Goliath the Philistine by name, of Geth, whiche came out of the aray of the Philistines, & spake after y<sup>e</sup> maner aboue reherfed, that David hearde it. And all the men of Israell, when they sawe the manne, ranne awaye from him, and were soze afrayed. And euery man of Israell sayd: Se ye thys man that is come forth: euen to reuple Israell is he come. * And to him that beatech hym wyl the kyng geue great ryches, and wyl geue hym hys daughter therto: yea, and make his fathers house fre in Israell.

Then spake David to the men that stode by, and sayde: what shalbe done to the mā that beatech this Philistine, and taketh awaye the shame from Israell? for what is this vncyrcumcised Philistine, that he should reuple y<sup>e</sup> hoste of y<sup>e</sup> liuing God? And the people answered as it is reherfed, sayynge: so shal it be done to the man that beatech hym. And Saul said to David againe, thou arte not able to go vnto this philistine, to fyght with him. for thou arte but a lad, & he hath bene a man of warre euen from his youth. Then sayde David vnto Saul, as thy seruaunt keppe his fathers shepe, there came a * Lyon, and lyke wyse a Beare, and toke a shepe out of the flocke. And I wente oute after hym & smot him, & toke it out of his mouthe. And when he arose agaynst me, I caughte him by the bearde, and smot him, and slue hym. for bothe a Lyon & also a Beare hath thy seruaunte slaine. And this vncircumcysed philistine shalbe as one of them, for hys rapynge on the hoste of the lpyng God. And David spake moreouer, the Lorde that deliuered me oute of the handes of the Alio, & out of p hādes of p Beate, he shal deliuer me also out of the handes of the philistine.

Then sayd Saule to David go, and the Lorde be with the. And Saul put his rayment vpon David, and put an helmet of brasse vpon hys heade, and put a cote of mayle vpon him, and girde David with his owne swerde vpon his tapment. And he assayed to go, for he neuer proued it. Then sayde David vnto Saul: I cannot go in these, for I haue not bene bled thereto, and put them of him, and toke hys staffe in his hande, & chose him fyue smothe stones oute of a broke, and put them in a shepardes bagge whiche he had, & in a poke, & his sling in hys hād, & went to p philistine.

And the philistine came and dreme to David, with the man that bare a shylde before him. And when the philistine looked about and sawe David: he dysdained him, for he was but a ladde, rounde and goodlye to loke vpon. And the philistine sayde vnto David: am I a dogge, that thou comest to me with a staffe: and he cursed David in the name of his goddes. And he saide to David: come to me and I wyl gyue thy fleshe vnto the fowles of the ayre, and to the beastes of the felde. Then sayd David to the philistine: thou comest to me w a swerde, a speare and a shylde: But I come to the in the name of the Lorde of hostes, the God of the hoste of Israel whome thou haste rayled vpon. This daye shall the Lorde deliuer the into my hande, and I shal smite the and take thyne heade from the, and I wyl geue the karcaises of the host of p philistines this daye vnto the fowles of the ayre, & to the beastes of the earth, & al p worlde shal know p ther is a god in Israel. And al this congregacion shal know: that p Lorde saueth not with the swerde and speare. for the battell is the Lordes, and he shal geue you into our handes.

And when the philistine arose and came and dreme vnto David. David hastened and ranne in aray euen agaynst the philistine. And David put his hād in his poke, and toke oute a stone and slange it, and smote the philistine in hys forheade that the stone soycke into hys forheade, & he felle grouelyng to the erthe. And so David ouercame p philistine w a sling & a stone, & smot p philistine & slue him. And because David had no swerd in his hande, he ran & stode vpon the philistine, and toke hys swerde and dreme it out of his sheath, and slue him, and cutte of his head therewith. And whē the philistines saw that their champion was deade, they fled. And the men of Israel and of Iuda arose, and howled, & folowed after the philistines vntyll they came to the valeye and vnto the gates of Akaron. And the philistines fel downe dead by the way, euen vnto Geth and Akaron. And then the chyldren of Israel returned frome chaslinge after the philistines, and toke their tentes. And David toke the heade of the philistine, and brought it to Ierusalem: But he put his armour in his tente.

When Saul saw David go forth agaynst the philistine, he sayde vnto * Abner the captaine of his host: Abner, whose sonne is this lad? And Abner answered, as trulpe as thy soule liueth, O kyng, I cannot tel. Then sayd p kyng: Enquyre thou, whose sonne the younglynge is. And so when David was returned fro p slaughter of p philistine. more home to his fathers house. And Jonathas and Dauid bound them sel-ues the one to the other, for Jonathas loued him as hys owne soule. And Jonathas put of his owne coote that was vpon him, and gaue it Dauid, and ther-to hys mantel, his swerde, his boowe & his gyrdle. And Dauid wente oute to all that Saul sente him, and behaued hym selfe wyselye. And when Saul had set him ouer his menne of warre, he pleased all the people, and Sauls ser-uautes thereto.

And it happened as they went, when Dauid was returned from the slaughter of the Philistines, that women cam out of al cyties of Israel, syngyng and dauncyng, agaynste Saul, with tym-brelles, with ioye, and with fyddis. And the women that sange thereto, and sayd:

*Saul hath slayne his thousande, and Dauid his ten thousande. Then was Saul excedyng wroth, and the sayng displeased him, and he sayde: they haue ascribed vnto Dauid ten thousande, & to me but a thousande, and what can he more haue saue, the kingdome? wherefore Saul looked on syde of Dauid fro that daye forthward.

And it happened on the morowe that the euell spirite sent of God came vpon Saul, so that he prophesied in the myddes of the house. And Dauid played on the instrumente with his hande as he was daylye wont. And Saul had a speare in his hand, a houre lyd it entendinge to haue nayled Da-uid to the walls. But Dauid auoyded out of hys presence two tymes. For Saul was afearde of Dauid, because the Lorde was with hym, and was departed from Saul. And then Saul put Dauid from him, and made him a captayne ouer a thousande, and he wente oute and in before the people. And Da-uid was wise in al & he took in hande, and the Lorde was with hym. Wherefore when Saul sawe that he was so excedyng wise, he was afearde of hym. But all Israel and Juda loued Dauid, because he went out and in before them.

Then sayde Saul to Dauid. Beholde, my eldest daughter Merob, her I will geue the to wyfe: Only play the manne and fyghte the Lordes battelles. For Saul thought myne hand shall not be vpon hym, but the hande of the Philistines. And Dauid answered Saul:
what? what am I? and what is my life, or the kyndred of my father in Israel, &
I shoulde be sonne in lawe to the king?
Howe bee it when the tyme was come that Merob Sauls daughter shoulde haue bene geuen to Dauid, he was geuen vnto Abiel a Gheolothit, to wife, Howe bee it, Michol Sauls daughter loued Dauid. And when it was shewed Saul: the thyng pleased him wel. And he sayde: I will geue hym her that she may be a snare to him, to bring the had of the Philistines vpon him. And Saul sayde to Dauid: thou shalt thys day be my sonne in lawe agayne. And Saul commaunded his seruantes, to come with Dauid secretlye, and saye: Behold the kynge hathe a fauour to the, and al hys seruantes loue the, be therfore the kinges soure in lawe.

And Sauls seruantes spake those wordes i the eares of Dauid. But Da-uid answered: semeth it to you a lyghte thyng to be the kynes sonne in lawe, when I am a pooze man and of smalle reputation? And Sauls seruantes tolde him agayne, sayinge: of thys maner answered Dauid. The sayd Saul: this wise saye to Dauid: the kynge ca-reth for no nother dowry, but for an hu-dred foreskynnes of the Philistines, to be aduenged of the kynes enemyes.
For Saul thought to make Dauid fall into the handes of the Philistines. The his seruantes tolde Dauid these wodes, and it pleased Dauid wel to be the kinges sonne in lawe. And shortly after Dauid arose with his men, and went, & slue of the Philistines, two hundred men, and broughte theyr foreskynnes,
and

and satisfied the King thereof to be his sonne in lawe. * And so Saul gaue him Michol his daughter to wife. And when Saul sawe and vnderstode, howe that the Lorde was with David, and that Michol his daughter loued hym, he was the more afrayed of David, & became Davids enemy for euer. And when the Philistines went out to warre, David behaued him selfe wylsely then all the seruantes of Saul: so that his name was much set by.

And the warre began agayne, and David wente out and fought with the Philistines, and slue a great slaughter, and put them to flight. And the euil spryte of the Lorde was vpon Saul as he sat in his house hauinge a Jauelyng in his hande, and David played with his hande. And Saul entended to naye David to the walle with the Jauelyng: But David rydde hym selfe out of Sauls presens, and he smote  $\phi$  speare into the walle. But David fled, and saved him selfe that same nyght. Then Saul sent messengers vnto Davids house, to wathe him, and to slep hym in the moynyng. But Michol his wife tolde it hym, saying: If thou saue not thy selfe this nyght, to morow thou arte a deade manne. And so Michol let David downe thowow a window, and he wente and fled, and saved him selfe. And then he toke an Image and layed it in the bed, and put a pylowe stuffed with goates heere vnder the heade of it, and couered it with a cloth. And when Saul sent messengers to fetch David, he sayd: that he was sycke: The Saul sent the messengers to se David, saying: bypnyng him to me, bed and al, that he may be slayne. And when the messengers were come in: Beholbe, there laye an Image in the bed, with a pylowe of goates heere vnder the heade of it. Then sayde Saul to Michol: why hast thou mocked me so, and sent away mine enemy, that he is escaped? And Michol answered Saul: he sayde vnto me, let me go, or elles I wyl kyll thee. And so David fled, and escaped, and wente to Samuel to Ramath and tolde hym all that Saul had done to hym. And he, and Samuel went and dwelt in Batoth.

And it was tolde Saul, saying: beholbe, David is at Batoth in Ramath, then Saul sent messengers to set David. And when they sawe a companye of prophetes  $\phi$  prophesying, and Samuel standynge faste by them, the spryte of God fel vpon  $\phi$  messengers of Saul, & they prophesied to. And they sayd: se they be at Batoth in Ramath, and as he went thither, to Batoth in Ramath the spirit of God came vpon him also, and he wente prophesying, vntill he came to Batoth in Ramath. And he scrypte of hys clothes, and prophesied before Samu- ell in lyke maner, and <sup>b</sup> fell naked all that daye and all that nyghte, wherfoze it is a comen sayinge: is\* Saul also among the prophetes?

The .xx. chapter.

David beynge in Treopardy of his lyfe complayneth to Jonathas. Jonathas loueth him euen as him selfe, & dyspurereth him. A proper policy deuised betwixt them by which David should know the entent of Saul, and yet Jonathas be blamelesse.

AND David fled from Batoth in Ramath, and went & sayde before Jonathas: what haue I done: wherin am I faulty? what is the synne that I haue commit- ted before thy father, that he seketh my lyfe? And Jonathas answered hym: God forbyd, thou shalt not dye. For se my father wyll do nothing ether great or small, but that he wyll shewe it me. For why shoulde my father hyde this thyng frome me: there shalbe no suche thyng. And David sware agayne and sayde: thy father knoweth that I haue found a grace in thyne eyes, & therefore he thiketh, Jonathas shal not know it, lest he be sorry. For in very dede, euen as truly as <sup>p</sup> Lord liueth, and as truly as thy soule liueth, there is but a step be- twene me and death. Then sayd Jona- thas vnto David: whatsoeuer thy soule desireth that I will do vnto the. And David sayde vnto Jonathas: behold, to morow is the first daye of the mo- neth, and I should syt with the king at meate. But let me go that I maye hyde my selfe in <sup>p</sup> felde vnto this daye thre dales at euē. If thy father misse me, the- n saye: David asked leaue of me, that he might go to Bethlehem to his owne cy- tie: for ther is holde a yerele feast for al his kinne. And if thy father say thus: it is wel done, then thy seruaut shal haue peace. But & if he be angry: then be sure <sup>p</sup> wickednesse is vterlye concluded of him. And then thou shalt shew mercye vnto thy seruaut, & for thou hast made with me thy seruaut a bonde in <sup>p</sup> Lord. Notwithstandyng, yf there be in me any trespase, then slep me thy selfe, for what nedeth the to brynge me to thy father.

And Jonathas answered: God kepe that frome the, that I shoulde knowe, that wickednesse were concluded of my father, to come vpon the: & shoulde not tel it the. Then sayd David, who shalt tell me, if thy father aunswere cruelly? then sayd Jonathas to David, come, & let vs go oute into the felde. And they went out both of them into the felde.

And Jonathas sayde vnto David: the Lord god of Israel, loke on it, whē I haue groped my fathers mynde, one tyme or other within thys thre dayes, that it stande well with David: and I then sende not vnto the and shew it the, the Lord do so and so vnto Jonathas. But yf my father haue any pleasure to do the euell, I wyll shewe the also, and sende the awaye, that thou mayst go in peace. And the Lord be with the as he hath bene with my father. And thou shalt perforce vnto me <sup>p</sup> mercy of the Lord, not only whyle I lyue, but euen whē I am dead, & plucke not thy mercy away from my house for euer: so not when the Lord hath destroyed the ene- myes of David euerie one from the face of the erthe.

And so Jonathas made a bond with the house of David, desyringe that the Lord shoulde seke it out of the handes of Dauids enemyes theyr wickednesse. And with other wordes Jonathas ad- iured David, because he loued hym. For as his owne soule he loued hym.

Then sayde Jonathas to David: to morow shalbe the first day of the mone. And thou shalt bee mysse, because thy place shal appere emptie. But this day thre dayes: come in anye wise vnto the place where thou shalt hide thy selfe, when it is worckedaye: euen by the stone Csell. And I wyll shote thre a- rowes by the one side therof, as though I shotte at a mark, and wyll sende af- ter and I haue spoken: behold the Lord is witnesse betwene the & me for euer. And so Dauid byd him selfe in the feld. And when þ new mone was come, þ king sat him downe at meat, for to eate. And the kyng sat him downe after the olde maner, in his seate by the wall. And Jonathas arose, & Abner sat by Sauls side, & Dauids place was emptie. Neuer thelesse, yet Saul sayde nothyng at all that day. For he thought: some thyng had chauced him that he is not cleane. But on the morow which was þ second daye of the mone, when Dauids place appered emptie. Saul sayde vnto Jonathas hys sonne: wherfore cometh not the sonne of Isai to meat, nether yester daye nor to day. And Jonathas aunswere red vnto Saul. Dauid asked licence of me to go to Bethlehem, sayinge: let me go, I pray the, for our kynred holde an offryng in the cytpe, and my brother hath sent for me. Nowe therefore yf I haue found fauour in thine eyes, let me go, and se my brethren. And therfore he cometh not vnto the table of the kinge.

Then was Saul angrie with Jonathas, & sayde vnto him: O froward and rebellious, thynekst thou I know not, how thou hast chosen the sonne of Isai vnto thine owne rebuke, and vnto the rebuke and shame of thy mother: for as long as the sonne of Isai lyueth by on the erthe, thou shalt not be stablyshed, nor yet thy kyngdome, wherfore now sende & fet him vnto me,* for he is the chyld of death.

But Jonathas answered Saul his father, and said to him: wherfore should he dye: what hath he done. Then Saul cast a speare at him to hye him, wherby Jonathas wist well, that it was vtterlye determined of his father, to sleie Dauid. And so Jonathas arose frome the table in a great anger, and dyd eate no meate the seconde daye of the monethe, for he was sorie for Dauid, because hys father had done him shame. On þ next morynge Jonathas went out into the feld, at the time apointed with Dauid, and a lytle ladde with him. And he sayd vnto the boye: runne and fynde oute myne arrowes whiche I shote. And as þ boye ran, he shot an arrowe beyond him. And whē the lad was come to the place whether Jonathas had shot the arrow, Jonathas cryed after hym, and sayde: the arrow is beyonde the. And he cryed after the lad: hast, make speede and stand not still. And Jonathas lad gathered by the arrowe and came to his master. But the lad wist nothyng of the matter: Onlye Jonathas and Dauid wiste it. Then Jonathas gaue hys wepons vnto the lad, & sayde vnto him: go & carie them to the towne. And as sone as the lad was gone, Dauid arose out of a place that was towarde the southe, and fel on his face to the ground, and bowed him selfe thre tymes. And they kyssed eyther other and wepte together, but Dauid moze abundantly. And Jonathas sayde to Dauid: go in peace, what foeuer we haue sworne bothe of vs in the name of the Lord, sayinge: the Lord be betwene the and me, and betwene thy seide & myne for euer. And he arose and departed. And Jonathas went in to the towne.

Dauid fleeth into Nob to Ahimelech the preeft and getteth of him shew breade to satisfye his hunger: and that with a cleane conserued lye. After he spech to king Achis, and there sayarth him selfe to be mad.

Then came Dauid to Nob, to Ahimelech the preeft: And Ahimelech was a stoned at hym: why comest þ thy selfe alone, and no man with the. And Dauid sayde to Ahimelech the preeft: the kyng hath commaunded me to do a certē thing, and sayde vnto me, let no man know where about I sende thee, & what I haue commaunded the to do. And therfore I haue appointed my seruauntes to suche and suche places. And now what hast thou byder under thine hande: * geue me five lo-ues of bread, or what cometh to haue.

And the priest answered Dauid, and said: there is no comē bred vnder myne hande, but there is halowed bred, of the pounge men haue kept the selues from uncleane thinges, especiall ye women.

And Dauid answered the priest, & said vnto him: of a trueth weimen hath bene locked vp from vs about a thre dayes, whē I came out: and the * vessels of the pounge mē were holy. Howe be it, * this taken from before the Lorde, to put frethe bread there, the daye that it was taken awaye.

And there was there the same daye a certain man of the seruauntes of Saul abydyng before the Lord, named Do-eg an Edomite, the cheifest of Sauls hearde men. And Dauid sayde vnto Ahimelch: is not here vnder thine hande other speare or swerde? for I haue nether broughte my swerde nor myne harnes with me, because the kynges bushnes requyred haste. Then the priest answered: the swerde of Goliath þ whilisme whome thou sluest in þ Ockdale, that is here wrapte in a clothe behynde the Ephod. If thou wilt take that, take it: for there is no nother saue that here.
And Dauid sayd: there is none to that,
geue it me.

And Dauid arose and fled the same daye from the presence of Saul, & went to Achis the kyng of Geth. And þ seruauntes of Achis sayde of him: is not this Dauid the kyng of the lande? did they not singe vnto this felow in daunces, sayinge: * Saul hathe slayne his thousande, & Dauid his ten thousande.
And Dauid put those wordes into hys heart and was soze astrapde of Achis the kyng of Geth. And he chaunged hys countenance before them, and taued in their handes, and scabbed on the dores of the gate, & let his spittel fall downe vpon hys bearde. Then sayde Achis vnto his seruaunte: Loo, ye sawe that this man was besyde hym selfe, wherfore then haue ye broughte hym to me? lacke I madde men, þ ye haue brought this felowe to playe the madde man in my presence: he shall not come into my house.

D Dauid deliuered Keilah. He ſpeth in to the wyl-derneſſe of iſrah. He is comforted of Jonathan. The ſp-ghens woulde haue betrayed hym, but he chaſteth.

S Then men tolde Dauid, ſayinge: Beholde, the Philiftines fyghte agaynſt Keilah, and ſpoile ſe barnes. * Then Dauid asked the Lorde aduylſe, ſayinge: ſhall I goo and ſmyte the Philiftines? And the Lorde ſaid vnto Dauid: go & ſmite the Philiftines, & ſaue Keilah. Then ſayde Dauids men vnto himſe, we be afrayed here in Iuda. What ſhal we the be, when we come to Keilah, to the hoſte of ſe Philiftines. Then Dauid asked the Lorde agayne. And the Lorde answered hym, and ſaid: yep, and go to Keilah, for I wyl deliue the Philiftines in to thyne handes.

And ſo Dauid and his men went to Keilah, and fought with ſe Philiftines and drane awaye their cattel, and ſlew a great ſlaughte of them. And ſo Dauid ſaued the enhabitors of Keilah. And it chaunced when Abiathar the ſonne of Ahimelech fled to Dauid to Keilah, that he brought an Ephod in his hãde.

And it was tolde Saul, that Dauid was come to Keilah. Then ſaid Saul: God hath deliuered hym into myne hande. For he is ſhut in, that he is come into a towne with gates and barres. And Saul called all the people to war, for to go to Keilah, to beſege Dauid and his men. But Dauid had knowledg that Saul imagened myſchete agaynſt hym, & ſaid therfore to Abiathar

Then sayde David, O Lorde God of Israel, thy seruaunt heareth, that Saul is about to come to Keilah to destroye the cytle for my sake: wyl the men of Keilah deliuer me into his hande: or wyl Saul come as thy seruaunte heareth saye: Lorde God of Israel tell thy seruaunt. And the Lorde sayd: he wil come. Then sayde David: wyl I men of Keilah deliuer me, and my men into I hande of Saul: and the Lorde sayde: they wyl deliuer you.

Then David and his men whiche were vpon a. vi. hundred, arose, and departed out of Keilah, and wete whether chaunce draue them. And when it was tolde Saul, I David was fled from Keilah, he let the tozney alone. And David abode in the wyldernesse in stronge holdes, and in a mountayne in the wyldernesse of ziph. And Saul sought him all his lyfe, but God deliuered him not into his hande. And David sawe that Saul was come oute, to seke his lyfe, whyle David was in the wyldernesse of ziph in a thicket. And Jonathas Sauls sonne arose & went to David to the thicket, & strengthened him in God, & said vnto him: feare not, for I hande of Saul my father shal not fynde the, and thou shalt be kynge ouer Israel, and I must be nexte vnto the. And Saul my father therto knoweth that it shalbe so. And they made * a bonde bothe of them together before the Lorde. And David taried stil in the thicket, and Jonathas went to his house.

Then came the ziphites to Saul, to Gibeon, saying: David hydeyth him selfe faste by vs in stronge holdes that are in a thicket in the hyll of Hachilah on the ryght syde of the wyldernesse. Now therfore syz kynge, come downe with all the luste that thy soule hathe to come. And oure parte shalbe to deliuer hym into the handes of the kynge. Then said Saul: Blessed are ye in the Lorde: for ye haue compassion on me. Go I praye you and marke moze dilygentlye, and knowe and se his haute, where his fote hath bene, & who hath sene him there: for it is tolde me that he is very sotel. Se therfore, and know al the loutkyng places where he loutketh, and come a-gayne to me with the certentye, and I wyl go with you. And then yf he be in the lande, I wyl hunt him out with all the thousandes of Iuda.

And they arose and went to ziph, besyde Saul. But David and his men were in the wyldernesse of Maon, in the wyldes felde, on the ryghte hande of the wyldernesse. For when Saul was gone with his men to seke, it was tolde David. And therfore he wet vnto a Roche, and dwelt in the wyldernesse of Maon. And whē Saul hearde that, he folowed after David into I wyldernesse of Maon. And Saul and his men went on the one syde of the mountayne, and David and his men on the other. And David as a mā amased, made hast to get from Saul. for * Saul and his mē had compassed David and hys men rounde aboute, to take them.

* But there came a messenger to Saul, saying: Hast the, & come, for the philistines are come in & roue I lande. Wherfore Saul returned from persecutinge David, and went agaynst the philistines. And therfore the place is called * Sela Mahalecoth. And then David went thence & dwelt in stronge holdes at Engadi.

And then Samuel dyed, and al Israel gathered together and lamented hym and bury-

And Dauid arose and gat him to the wyldernesse of Pharan. And there was a man in Maon, whose catel was in

 But þy man was churlyshe, & of greuous when Dauid hearde in the wyldernesse, vnto thy seruantes & to thi sone David

And Davids younge men came and tolde Nabal al those wordes in þ name of David, and then stopped. And Nabal answered Davids seruantes, and sayd: what is David? and what is the sonne of Iſai: there is plēte of seruantes now & adayes, that breake away euery man from his maſter. I ſhoulde take my breade, my water and my fleſhe that I haue kyllled for my ſerers, and geue it men whiche I wot not whence they be.

And Davids ſeruantes turned their waye and went agayne, and came and tolde him accordyng to all thoſe ſaynges. Then David ſaid vnto his men: gyrd euey mā his ſwerde about him. And they gyrded euey man his ſwerde on, & David therto girde on his ſwerde. And there folowed David vpon a foure hundred men, and two hundred abode by the ſtuffe.

But one of the laddes tolde Abigail Nabals wyfe, ſaying: ſe, David ſente meſſengers vnto oure maſter out of the wylderneſſe to ſalute him, and he railed on thē. And yet the mē were very good vnto vs, and dyd vs no diſpleaſure, ne ther myſſed we any thyng, as long as we were conuerſant with them, when we were in the feldeſ. But they were a wal of defence vnto vs bothe by nyght and alſo by daye, all the whyle we were with them keepyng thepe. Nowe take hede and ſe what thou haſte to do, for it is concluded to do myſchiefe vnto oure maſter and to all his houſholde. And he is vngacious to ſpeake to. * Then Abigail made haſt and toke two hundred lounes and two botelles of wyne & fyue thepe readye drefſed, and fyue meaſures of parched corne, and an hundred bondelles of reaſyngs, and two hundred trayles of fygges, and laded them on aſſes, and ſayde vnto her younge men: go before me, and ſe, I come after you, and tolde her huſbande Nabal nothing therof. And as ſhe rode on her aſſe, and was commyng downe in a ſlade of the hyl, David and his men came downe agaynſt her, and ſhe met them.

And David ſayde: in bayne haue I kepte all that this ſelow had in the wylderneſſe: ſo that noughte was myſ-ſed that pertayned vnto hym, for he hath quyte me with euell for good. So and ſo do God vnto þ enemyes of David, as I wyll not leaue of all that pertayne to him, by the dawnyng of the daye, oughte * that yſſeth agaynſt the walle.

When Abigail ſawe David, ſhe haſted and lpyght of her aſſe and fel before David on her face, and bowed her ſelfe to the grounde, and ſell at his fete, and ſaid: Let this vnhappye dede be counted myne, my Lord, and let thyne hande mayde ſpeake in thyne audienee, and heare the wordes of thine handemayde. Let not my Lord regarde this vnthyſſe man Nabal, for as his name is, ſo is he: * Nabal is his name and folly is with him. But I thyne handemayde ſawe not the younge men of my Lord whiche thou ſendeſt.

And nowe my Lord, as ſure as the Lord lyueth and as thy ſoule lyueth, the Lord hath withholden the fro commyng to ſhede bloude, and fro adueryng thy ſelfe with thine owne hande. Furthermore I praye God that thyne enemyes and they that entēde to do my Lord euell, may be as Nabal. And now this bleſſyng which thine handemayde hath brought vnto my Lord, let it be geuen vnto the yong men that ſolowe my Lord, for geue the treſpace of thine handemayde, that the Lord maye make my Lord a ſure houſe, becauſe my Lord ſyghteth the battelles of the Lord, and there coulde none euell be founde in the in all thy lyfe. And yf any man ryle to perſecute the, and to ſeke thy ſoule, the ſoule of my Lord be bounde in a bondel of life with the Lord thy God. * And the ſoules of thy enemyes be ſlonge in the mydle of a ſyng. ## The xxvi. Chapter.

David slepeth in his tent. And David taketh away his speare and a cruise of water, that stood at is head.

After þ came the ziphites vnto Saul to Gibea, sayinge: David hydeth him selfe in þ hil of Ba-chilah euen before the wyldernesse. Then Saul arose, and wēt to the wyldernesse of ziph, and thre thousande chosen men of Israel with him, for to seke David in the wyldernesse of ziph. And Saul pytched in the hyl of Bachilah whiche lyeth before the wyldernesse, by þ waies syde. But David dwelte in the wyl-dernesse. And when he sawe that Saul came after him into the wyldernesse, he sent out spyres and vnderstode, þ Saul was come of a suertie.

Wherfoze David arose and went to the place where Saul had pytched, and behelde þ place where Saul laye, with * Abner the sonne of Ner his chefe captaine. for Saul laye within a rounde to Ahimelech the Bethite, and to Abi-sai the sonne of Zeruiah, and bzother to Joab, sayinge: who wil go downe with me to Saul to þ host: and Abisai said:

I wyl go downe with the.

And so David and Abisai came to the people by night. And beholde, Saul

But

But David said to Abisai: destroy him not, for who can laye his hande on the Lordes anoynted, and be guiltlesse? And David sayde furthermoze: as sure as the Lord lyueth, the Lord shall smyte him, or his daye shall come to dye, or he shall descende into battel and there perishe: but the Lord kepe me fro laying myne hande vpon the Lordes anoynted. Now then take a felowshipp the speare that is at his heade, and the crewse of water, and let vs go. And David toke the speare and the crewse of water that were at Sauls heade, & they gat the awaye, & no man saw or wist it or awoke. For they were al a slepe, because the Lord had sent a fomber vpon the. Then David went ouer to the other syde, & stode on the top of an hil a farre of (a greete space beyng betwene them) and cryed to the people, and to Abner the sonne of Ner, saying: hearest thou not Abner? & Abner answered, and sayde: what arte thou that cryest to the kyng? & David said to Abner: art not thou a mā, & who is lyke the in Israel? But wherfore hast thou not kept thy Lord the kyng? for there came one of his folke to destroye the kyng thy Lord. It is not good that thou hast done. As truly as the Lord lyueth, ye are worthy to dye, because ye haue no better kepte the Lordes anoynted. And now se where the kynges speare is, and the crewse of water that were at his heade.

Then Saul knew Davids voyce, and said: * is this thy voyce my sonne David? and David sayde: it is my voyce, my Lord o kyng. And he sayd therto: wherfore doth my Lord persecute hys seruaunt? for what haue I done? or what euell is in myne hāde? Now heare therfore (my Lord the kyng) the wordes of thy seruaunt. If the Lord haue sitted the vp agaynst me, he shall smel the sauoure of sacrifice. But if they be the children of men, cursed be they before the Lord. For they haue cast me out from abydinge in the enheritaunce of the Lord, saying: hence and go serue other Goddes. And yet I hope my bloude shall not fall to the erth before the face of the Lord, though the kyng of Israel be come out to hunt a flee, as men hunt the partridges in the mountaynes.

Then said Saul: I haue synned, come agayne my sonne David, for I wil do thee no more harme, because my soule was precious in thine eyes this daye. Beholde, I haue played thefole, & haue erred exceedinge much. And David answered and sayde: Beholde, the kynges speare, let one of the younge men come ouer, & fet it. The Lord rewarde euery mannes ryghteousnesse and sayth: for the Lord deliuered the into my hande this daye, but I woulde not laye myne hāde vpon the Lordes anoynted. And as thy lyfe was much set by this time in myne eyes: so be my lyfe set by in the eyes of the Lord, that he deliuer me out of all tribulacion. And Saul sayd to David: Blessed art thou my sonne David, for thou shalt be a doer, & also able to byngne to an ende. And so David wēt his way, and Saul turned to his place agayne.

The xxvii. Chapter.

David fleeth to Achis kyng of Geth, which geueth him zikeleg to dwell in. He killeth the Philistines. And when Achis demanded agaynst whom he had roued, he geueth him a fole answer and deceaureth hym properly.

Then thought David in his hert: I may perishe one daye or other by the handes of Saul. There is no better for me, then to flee into the lande of the Philistines, that Saul of very dyspayre to fynde me, may cease to seke me any more in al the coastes of Israel: for so I may escape his hāde. And David arose, & he & the syxe hundred men that were with him wēt vnto Achis, his sonne of Maach, kyng of Geth. And David dwelt w Achis at Geth, bothe he & his mā, euery mā w his houtholde, & David with his two wiues: Abinoam the Jezrahelyte, and Abigail Nabals wyfe of Carmell. And when it was tolde Saul that David was fled to Geth, he sought no more for him. Then sayde y lordes of y philistines:

Achis answered, & said to David: I

The David & h<sup>is</sup> people h<sup>is</sup> was wth him, lyft vp their voyces & wept, vntyl they could wepe no more. And Dauid's two wyues were taken prisoners also. Ahinoā the Jezrahelite, and Abigail the wyfe of Nabal the Carmelite. And David was in a shrowde straye: for the people entended to stone hym, by cause the heartes of al the people were vexed for their sons & their doughters

But David toke a good corage to him in h<sup>is</sup> Lord his God, & said to Abiathar h<sup>is</sup> priest Ahimelechs sōne: bring me h<sup>is</sup> Ephod. And Abiathar brought h<sup>is</sup> Ephod to David. And David asked h<sup>is</sup> Lord, saying: shal I folowe after thys cōpanie: and shal I ouertake thē? And he sayd to hym: folowe, for thou shalt ouertake them, and recouer the praye.

And he wente and the fyre hundred men h<sup>is</sup> were wth hym, & they came to the riuer Besor, where a part of thē abode. But David & foure hundred men followed: but two hundred abode behinde, beyng to wery to goe ouer the ryuer Besor. Then they founde an Egyptyan in the felde, & broughte hym to David,

& gaue him breade to eate, & water to dryncke, & gaue him a fewe figgs & ii. clousters of reasinges. And whē he had eatē, his spirites came agayne to him: for he had eatē no bread, nor dryncke no water in .iii. dayes, & .iii. nightes. Thē David sayde vnto hym: to whō belongeth thou, & whēce arte thou: and h<sup>is</sup> lad answered: I am an Egyptyan and seruaunte to an Amalekite: And my maister left me behynde, because it is .iii. dayes agone h<sup>is</sup> I fel sick: we came a rouinge vpo the southe of Crethis, & vpo thē of Juda & on the southe of Caleb. And we burnt zikeleg wth fyre. And David sayd to hym: canst thou bringe me to thys cōpanye? And he sayde: I were vnto me by God, h<sup>is</sup> thou wylte neither kyl me, nor deliuer me in to the handes of my maister, & I wyl bringe the vnto them. And when he had broughte hym: see, they lay scatered al abrode vpo the erth, eatynge & drynckynge, & tryumphynge ouer all the great praye h<sup>is</sup> they had carped away out of the land of the Philistines, & out of the lande of Juda.

And David layde vpon thē from the twylight vntyl the euen on the morrow: so h<sup>is</sup> there escaped not a mā, save foure hundred ponge men, whiche rode awaye vpo camels and fledde. And David recouered all h<sup>is</sup> the Amalekites had carryed awaye, & his two wiues: so h<sup>is</sup> there was no person lacking smale or great, sonne or doughter, or of the spoyles of al that they hadde taken awaye, David brought al againe. And David toke al the shepe, and the oxen. And they draue the catel before, and sayde: this is Dauid's praye. And thē David came to the two hundred men h<sup>is</sup> were to wery to folow David, which they made to abyde at the ryuer Besor. And they came to mete David, and the people h<sup>is</sup> were wth hym. And when David came to the people, he saluted them. Thē answered all the wycked & the vnthyrftes (of the men h<sup>is</sup> went wth David) & sayde: bycause they went not wth vs, therefore shal none of the praye that we haue recouered, be geuen vnto them, save to euerye man hys wyfe and hys chyldren: whiche let them carry away and be walkynge.

Then sayd David: ye shall not doe so (my bryethē) wth h<sup>is</sup> the Lorde hath geuen vs, & hathe preserued vs, & deliuered the cōpanye h<sup>is</sup> came agaynst vs, in to our handys. For who shulde herke vnto you in this mater? but as his parte is h<sup>is</sup> goeth & lighteth, so good shal hys parte be, that tarteth by the stuffe, they shal parte it a lyke. And so from h<sup>is</sup> day forwarde: was that made a lawe and a custome in Israel, and dureth to thys day. When David came to zikeleg, he sent of his pray vnto the elders of Juda & to hys frends, saying: se, there is a *blessynge for you, of h<sup>is</sup> spoyles of the enemies of the Lord. He sent to them of Bethel: to thē of south Ramath: to thē of Gether: to thē of Troer: to thē of Sephamoth: to thē of Esthamo: to thē of Rachal: to thē of the cities of h<sup>is</sup> Jerhamelitz: to thē of h<sup>is</sup> cities of h<sup>is</sup> Benitz: to thē of Haramah: to them of Bozala: to them of Athach: to them of Hebron, & to all places where David & hys men were wont to haunte.

The there arose & went ouer: twelue of Benjamin by nombre, whiche pertayned to Ithobeth the sonne of Saul, and twelue of the seruantes of Dauid. And they caught eche his felowe that came agaynst hym, by the head, and thruste hys swerde in hys syde, and so felle downe all at once. Wherefore the place was called *helath zutim whiche is in Gibeon. And there beganne an exceedingly cruell battell that same daye. But Abner and the men of Israel were put to the worlde of the seruantes of Dauid.

And Abner sayd agayne to Alahel: tourne from me, for I were loth to smite the to the grounde. For the how shulde I holde by my face before Joab thy brother: howe be it he wolde in no wyse departe.

* Then Abner with the hynder ende of the speare smote hym vnder the thort rybbes, that the speare came oute behynde hym: that he fell downe in the place, and dyed there. And as manye as came to the place where Alahel fel doune and dyed, stode still. But Joab & Abisai folowed Abner tyll the sunne went downe. And whē they were come to the hyl Amah that lyeth before Giah, in the waye that goeth thowowe the wyldernesse of Gibeon, the children of Benjamin gathered themselues together after Abner on a plape, & stode still on the top of an hyl. The Abner called to Joab, and sayde: shall the swerde deuoure without ender knowest thou not, bitternesse is wonte to come in the latter ender: how long shal it be, yet thou byd the people retorne fro folowynge their brethren? And Joab answered: as truely as God lyueth, yf thou haddest so sayde, then euen in the morninge had the people departed, eche from folowynge hys brother. And with Joab blew a trompet, and all the people stode still, and pursued after Israel no more, nor fought no more. And Abner and hys men walked all that nyght by the wyde felde, & went ouer Iordā, & past thowowal Bethhorō and came to Mahanaim.

And Joab retourned fro after Abner, & gathered al the people together. And there lacked of Dauid seruantes nyntene persons, and Alahel. But the seruantes of Dauid hadde slayne of Benjamin and of Abners men, thre hundred & thre score mē. And they toke by Alahel, & buryed hym in the sepulchre of hys father in Bethlehem. And Joab and his men went all nyght, and came in the dawninge to Hebron.

The.iii. Chapter

Abner cometh to Dauid & hyngeth hym hys wyfe Michol. Joab killeth Abner. Dauid bewepeth hys death, and curseth Joab.

Here was longe stryfe betwene the house of Saul, & the house of Dauid. But Dauid waxed stronger and stronger, & the house of Saul waxed weaker & weaker. * And Dauid had children borne hym in Hebron: his eldest sonne was Amnon of Ahinoam the Jezrahelite: the seconde Chesleab of Abigail the wyfe of Nabal the Carmelite: the thirde Absalom, the sonne of Maachah & daughter of Tholmai the kynge of Gessur: the fourthe Adoniah the sonne of Hagith: the fift, Saphattah the sonne of Abital: the vi. Jethrae by Egla Dauids wyfe: these were borne to Dauid in Hebron. And as longe as there was battell betwene the house of Saul, and the house of Dauid, Abner helde by the house of Saul. byner. Then was Abner very wroth for p words of Ishboeth, & sayde: am I not a dogges head, which agaynst Iuda haue shewed mercy this daye vnto the house of Saul thy father, and to hys brethren & frendes, & haue not deliuered them into p hand of Dauid: sayng thou syndest a fault in me this day for a woman? * So do God to Abner and to therto: except that as the Lord hath sworne to Dauid, I so doe to hym, and byng the kyngdome from the house of Saul, & set vp the throne of Dauid ouer Israell, and ouer Iuda, euen fro Dan to Berfabe. And he coulde geue Abner neuer a woorde to answer, by cause he feared hym.

And Abner sent messengers to Dauid forthwith, sayinge: whole is the lande: and he sayd therto: make a boode with me, and see, my hande is with the to byng al Israell vnto the. And Dauid answered: wel sayde, I will make a bonde with the. But one thinge I re-quite of the, that thou see not my face, except thou first bringe Michol Sauls doughter, when p comest to see me.

And Dauid sent messengers to Ishboeth Sauls sonne, sayinge: * deliuer me my wyfe Michol, whiche I married wth an hundred foyleynes of the Philistines. And Ishboeth sente, and toke her fro her husbade * Phaltiel the sonne of Laïs. And her husbade went to her, & came wepyng behynde her, till they came to Bahurim. Then sayd Abner vnto hym: go and returne. And he returned. And Abner had communication with the elders of Israell, sayinge: ye haue longe gone about p Dauid shuld be kyng ouer you. Now the do it: for p Lord hath sayd of Dauid, by p hand of my seruant Dauid, I wil saue my people Israell out of the han-des of p Philistins, and out of the hand of all their enemies. And lyke wordes had he with Benjamin, & then wente to tell in the eares of Dauid in Hebron al that Israell was content with, & the whole house of Benjamin. And when Abner was come to Dauid to Hebron and twenty men wth hym. Dauid made him and the men that were wth hym a feast. Then Abner sayde vnto Dauid: I wil vp and go gather al Israell vnto my Lorde the kyng, & they may make an appoyntment with the, & thou mayst be kyng ouer al that thyn heart desireth. And so Dauid let Abner departe, and he went in peace.

And see, the seruantes of Dauid: Joab came from chasynge p robbers & brought a great praye with them. But Abner was not with Dauid in Hebron:
for he had sente hym awaye to departe in peace. When Joab and all the hoste that was wth hym were come, men tolde Joab, sayng: Abner the sonne of Ner came to the kyng, & he hath sente hym awaye, that he is gone in peace.
Then Joab went to the kyng, & sayd: what hast thou done? See, Abner came vnto the, why hast thou set him awaye, that he shoulde scape quyte? Thou mightest knowe Abner p sonne of Ner, that he came to flatter with the, and to know thy conuersacion & behauoure, & to knowe all that thou doest. And when Joab was come oute from the kyng, he sent messengers after Abner, which brought hym agayne from the well of Sirah vntwepng to Dauid. And whē Abner was come agayne to Hebron, Joab tooke hym a syde in the gate, to speake wth hym gilefullie, and there smote him vnder the thort rybbes p he died, for p blude of Asahel his brother.
And when it afterwarde came to Dauid eare, he sayde: I and my kyngdom are gillelesse before the Lord foruer, concerninge p bloude of Abner the sonne of Ner. It fall therfore on p heed of Joab, & on all hys fathers house: p the house of Joab be neuer without one or other p hath cūning issues, or without lepers, & goers on crouches, & that fall on the swerde, & that lacke bread. And the cause why Joab & Abisai slue Abner, was, that Abner had slayne their brother * Asahel at Gibeon in battell.
And Dauid sayde to Joab, & to all the people p were wth hym, rent youre clothes, & a put on sacke clothe, & mourne before Abner. And kyng Dauid hym selfe folowed p bere. And whē they had buried Abner in Hebron, p kyng left bp hys voyce, and wepte ouer the se-

And these sonnes of Remon the Berothite, Rechab & Baanah went, & came in the heate of þ daye to the house of Ithobal, as he slept on þ bed at none. And beholde, they came in to the house as though they wolde haue bought weate, & smote him vn- der þ thort ribbes & fled. And they brought þ head of Ithobal vnto Dauid, to Hebron & sayd to the kynge: be- holde there the head of Ithobal Sauls sonne thynne enemye, which soughte thy soule. But the Lorde hath aduen- ged my Lorde the kynge thys daye, of Saul and of hys seede.

And Dauid answered Rechab and Baanah hys brother, the sonnes of Re- mon the Berothite and sayd vnto the: * as surely as the Lorde lyueth, which hath deliuered my soule out of all ad- uerities: * him that tolde me how that Saul was deed, thynkynge to haue brought me good tydynge, I caught & slue in zikeleg, to geue him a rewarde for hys tydynge bringynge. And they toke the head of Ithobal and buried it in the sepul- chre of * Abner in Hebron.

The. vi. Chapter.

The arche is brought forth of the house of Abinadab. Ozah is strecken and dyeth because he toucheth the arche. The arche is brought in to the house of Abinadab, and fro thence into Ierusalem. Dauid dwelleth befoze it, & is therefore despised of hys wyfe Michol.

After that, Dauid chose oute all the chiefe younge men in Israell to the summe of thyrtye thousande, & arose & went & al the folke ꝑ were with him of ꝑ men of Iuda, to set awaye the arche of God vpon whiche is called the name of the Lorde of hostes that dwelleth betwene the cherubins. And Dauid and al the house of Israell played befoze the Lorde with all maner instrumentes of fyre woode, wyth harpes, psalteries, tymbrelles, cyddelles, and tymbals.

And when they came to Bachans threthyngge floure, Ozah put hys hand to the arche of God, and held it, for the oxe stobled. And the Lorde was wrauth wth Ozah & God smote hym in ꝑ same place for hys faulte, and there he dyed by the arche of God. And Dauid was displeased, because the Lorde had rent Ozah. And the name of the place was called Perez Ozah vntyll this daye.

And Dauid was then afrayed of the Lord, and sayd: how should the Arcke of the lord come to my houser. And so Dauid wolde not bypnyng the Arcke of þe lord with him into the citie of Dauid. But caried it into the house of Obed Edom a Gethite. And the Arcke of the Lord continued in the house of Obed Edom the Gethite, thre monethes, & the Lord blessed Obed Edom and all his housholde. And when it was tolde kyng Dauid how that the Lord had blessed the house of Obed Edom and all þe people, capned vnto him, because of the Arcke of God, he went and brought the Arcke of God from the house of Obed Edom, vnto the cytie of Dauid with gladnes. And euer when they that bare the Arcke of the Lord, had gone syxe passys, he offered an oxe and a fat shepe. And Dauid daunced before the Lord with all his might in a linnen Ephod girde vnto him. And Dauid and all the house of Israel brought the Arcke of the Lord with shewing and trumpet blowing.

And as the Arcke of the Lord came in to the citie of Dauid, Michol Sauls daughter looked thorow a wyndow and saw kyng Dauid spyng & daunce before the Lord, & therfore dyspyled him in her hert. * And whē they had brought in the Arcke of the Lord, and had set it euen in his place, euē in the tabernacle that Dauid had prepared for it: Dauid offered burntofferings and peaceofferings before þe Lord. And as sone as Dauid had made an ende of offering burntofferings and peaceofferings, he blessed the people in the name of the Lord of hostes, & gaue among all þe folke, euē among the hole multitude of Israel, as well to the wemē as mē, euerie one a Cake of breed, and a pece of fleshe & a flacket of wyne. And so þe people departed euery man to his house.

Then Dauid returned to salute his housholde. And Michol the daughter of Saul came out against him, & sayd: Oh howe glorious was the kyng of Israel to daye, whiche scrifte him selfe to daye before the eyes of the maydens of his seruantes, as a lyght brayned felowe is wont to stripe him selfe. But Dauid sayd againe to Michol, I will make sports before the Lord which chose me before thy father, & before all his kynne, commaundyng me to be ruler ouer al his people Israel. And therfore will I playe before the Lord. And I wil be yet moze vyle then so, and wil be meke in myne owne syght: and shall for all that of the very same mayde seruantes whiche thou speakest of, be had in honoure. But the sayd Michol doughter to Saul had no childe vnto þe daye of her death.

The. vii. Chapter.

Dauid of a good entent, entredyng to bylde an house vnto the Lord, is forbydden of God. We prayeth that the promyses of God maye be fulfilled.

And in a procelle as the king dwelt in his house after that the Lord had geuen him rest to lide about fro all his enemyes, he sayd vnto Nathan þe prophet: beholde, I dwell in an house of Cedar trees, but þe Arcke of god dwelleth in the myddes of curtaynes. Then sayd Nathan vnto the kyng: go & do all that is in thyne hert, for the Lord is with the.

But that same nyght, the woord of the Lord came vnto Nathan, sayng: go, & tell my seruant Dauid, thus sayth the Lord: shalt þe go bylde me an house to dwell in? for I haue not dwelt in any house sence þe tyme I brought the children of Israel out of Egipte, vnto this daye: but haue walked in a tēt and in a tabernacle. In any waye where I went among all the children of Israel, spake I one worde with any of the tribes of Israel (sence I commaunded the iudges to fede my people Israel) sayng: why bylde ye not me an house of Cedar tree? Now therfore, so saye vnto my seruant Dauid: thus sayth the Lord of hostes. * I toke the out of a sheperdes cote, from folowynge shepe to be a ruler ouer my people Israel. And I was in the in all that thou wentest to, and haue destroyed all thyne enemyes out of thy syght, & haue made the a great name, lyke vnto the name of the great men of the worlde. And I will appoynt a place for my people Israel, and will plant it and they shall continue in one place and shall moue no moze, nether shall wycked people trouble them any moze as they did at the begynnyng, and

C David restoreth all the fylde of Saul, to Miphiboseh the sonne of Jonathas.

A He sayd David: is there yet any man liste of the house of Saul, that I maye shew him mercye for Jonathas sake. And there was of p household of Saul, a seruauant named * zibah, which was called vnto David. And the kyng sayd vnto him: art thou zibah. And he sayde: thy seruauant is the man. Then sayd the kyng, remayneth ther yet any man of the kynted of Saul, whō I maye shew the mercye of God vpon. And zibah said vnto the kyng: * Jonathas hath yet a sonne whiche is lame on both fete. And the kyng sayd vnto him: where is he. And zibah sayd vnto the kyng: behold, he is in the house of Machir: the sonne of Amiel in Lodaber. Then kyng David sent, and fette him out of the house of * Machir the sonne of Amiel, out of Lodaber. Now when Miphiboseh the sonne of Jonathas the sonne of Saul was come vnto David, he bowed hym self and fell on his face. The sayd David: Miphiboseh. And he answered: Behold thy seruaut. And David sayde: feare not, for I wyl surely shewe the kindnesse, for Jonathas sake, and will * restore the all the felde of Saul thy father, & thou shalt eate meate on myne owne table all waye. And the other bowed him selfe and sayde: what is thy seruauant that thou shouldest bouche safe to loke vpon suche a deed dogge as I am.

Then the kyng called vnto zibah Sauls young man, sayng vnto him: I geue vnto thy masters sonne all p petyneynd to Saul and to all his kynde.

Se therefore that thou & thy sonnes, & thy seruantes tyll the lande for him, bringe in, that thy masters sonne maye haue fode to eate. For Miphiboseh thy masters sonne shall eate meate all waye vpon my table. For this zibah had fiftene sonnes & twentye seruantes. Then sayd zibah vnto the kyng: all that my Lorde hathe sayde vnto his seruauant, thy seruauant shall do. For (sayde the kyng) Miphiboseh must eate vpon my table, as one of the kynges sonnes. ## The .x. Chapter.

The messengers of David are spitefully and byllously entreated of the kyng of Moab: whyche thinge David auengeth.

It happened after this, that the kyng of the chyldren of Ammon died, and Hanō his sonne reigned in his steade. The said David: I wil shew kindnesse vnto Hanō & his sonne of Nahas, * as his father shewed kindnesse vnto me. And ther vpon David sent to comfort him by the hand of his seruauntes, ouer the death of his father. Now when Davids seruauntes were come in to the land of the chyldren of Ammon, the Lordes of the chyldren of Ammon saide vnto Hanon their Lord: thinkest thou that David dothe honoure thy father, because he hath sent to comfort the? Naye, he hath rather sent his seruauntes vnto the, to searche the cytie and to spie it out, euen to ouerthrowe it.

Wherfore Hanon toke Davids seruauntes, and shaued of the one halfe of euery mannes berd, and cut of their garmetes euē in the myddle, euē harde by the buttockes of them, and sent them away. When it was tolde David, he sent against the (for they were men exceedingly shamed) & said: tarie at Jericho vntill your beardes be growen, & then retorne. And when the chyldren of Ammon saw, that they stancke vnto David, they sent and hired the sonnes of Bethzechob and of the Sirciens of Zobah, xx. thousand fote mē, and of king Maachah a thousand men, and of Itob twelue thousand men. And whē David hearde of it, he sent Joab and all his host of strong men. And the chyldren of Ammon came out, and waged battell before the gate, and the Sirciens of Zobah, of Rehob, Itob and Maarah were by them selues in the felde.

When Joab saw that the front of the battell was before and after, he chose of all the best of Israel, and put them in arraye against the Sirciens. And the rest of the people he deliuered into the hand of Abisai his brother, whiche put them in arraye agaynst the chyldre of Ammon. And he said: yf the Sirciens ouertome me, then succoure me. But yf the chyldre of Ammon be to good for me, I wil come & succoure the, quyte & like a mā, & let vs fight lustely for our people, & for the cyties of our god. And the lord do what semeth best in his eyes. And forthwith Joab proceeded & the people he was wth hym in to battell agaynst the Sirciens, which fled before him. And whē the chyldre of Ammon saw that the Sirciens were fled, then fled they also before Abisai, & entered into the cytie. And so Joab returned fro the chyldre of Ammon & came to Jerusalem. And whē the Sirciens saw that they were put to the worst before Israel, they gathered together. And Hadadezer set & brought out the Sirciens that were beyonde the ryuer. And the host of them came, and Sobah the captayne of the host of Hadadezer before them.

And when it was shewed David, he gathered all Israel & passed ouer Jordan and came to Helam: where the Sirciens put them selues in arraye agaynst David and fought with hym, how be it the Sirciens fled before Israel. And David destroyed seuen hundred charrettes of them, and fourty thousand horsemen, & smote Sobah the captayne of his host, that he there dyed. And whē all the kynges that were seruauntes to Hadadezer saw that they were put to the worst before Israel, they made peace with them and serued them. And so the Sirciens feared to helpe the chyldren of Ammon any more.

woman it shuld be. And it was answered again, she was Bethsabe the daughter of Eliam, a wife to Urias the Hethite.
And Dauid sent messengers to sette her, and she came vnto him, and he laye with her. And she was streyght waye pur-fied fro her vnclennesse, and returned vnto her house. And when the woman had perceaued that she had conceaued, she sent and tolde Dauid, and saide: I am with childe. Then Dauid sent to Joab, to sende vnto him Urias the Hethite.

And Joab sent Urias to Dauid. And whē Urias was come vnto him, he demaunded how Joab dyd, and how the people fared, and how the warre prospered.
And Dauid saide moze ouer to Urias:
go doune to thyne house and washe thy fete. And Urias departed out of the kynges palace, and there folowed him a seruyce fro the kynges table. But Urias slept at the doze of the kinges palace: id all the seruauntes of his Lorde, and went not doune to his house.

19. The they tolde Dauid, saying: Urias descendid not into his house. Then saide Dauid vnto Urias: Seyng thou art come fro iorneying, why doste thou not go doune vnto thyne house? And Urias sayde vnto Dauid: the arcke and Israel and Iuda dwell in pauilions: and my Lord Joab and the seruauntes of my Lord lye in tentes vpon the flatte erthe: and shoulde I then go into myne house, to eate and to drynke, and to lye with my wife?
By thy life and as sure as thy soule lyueth I will not do this thyng. Then sayd Dauid vnto Urias: tarry here this daye also, and to morrow I will let the departe. And so Urias abode in Ierusalem that daye, and on the morrow. And Da-uid called him, and he ate and dracke before hym, and he made hym droncke.

And at euen he wēt out to lye on his couche with the seruauntes of his Lord, and went not doune to his house.
Wherefore on the morrow Dauid wrote a letter to Joab and sent it by Urias.
And he wrote in the letter, saying: put Urias in the forefront of the battell where it is moost strōg, and come back from him so he may be smitten to death.
And as Joab beseged the cite, he assigned Urias vnto a place where he wist that strong men were. And the men of the cite came out and fought wth Joab. And there were certen overthrowen of the people and of the seruauntes of Dauid, and Urias the Hethite dyed also.

Then Joab sent and tolde Dauid al the processe of the warre, and charged the messengers, saying: when thou hast made an ende of telling the storie of the warre vnto the kyng, if he begynne to fume and saye vnto the: wherfore ap-proched ye so nye vnto the cite to fight? wylt ye not that men wolde houre and shote from the walles? who smote Abimelech sonne of Jeroboam? did not a woman cast a pece of a mylstone vpon hym from of the walles, that he dyed in Thebes? why then went ye nye the wal-les, then saye thou: thy seruaunt Urias the Hethite is dead also.

And the messengers went and came and shewed Dauid al that Joab had sent him with, and saide vnto Dauid: the men preuayled agāst vs, and cam out vnto vs into the felde, and we flacke vnto the,
euen vnto the entering of the gate.
And the shoters shotte from the wal-les, and some of the seruauntes of the kyng be dead. And thy seruaunt Urias the Hethite is dead also. Then sayde Dauid vnto the messenger, thus wylle saye vnto Joab, let not that thyng trouble the. For the swerde deuoureth one as well as another: make thy battell moze stronge agāst the cite and de-stroye it, and se thou courage Joab.
And whē the wyfe of Urias heard that her husband was dead, she mourned for hym, and as sone as the mourning was ended, Dauid sent and sette her to his house, and she was his wyfe and bare hym a sonne. But the dede that Dauid had comitted, displeased the Lorde.

Ammon Dauid's sonne desyleth his syster Thamar. Absalom therfore kylleth Ammon and after flyeth awaye for feare of his father.

And it chauced that Absalom Dauid's sonne had a fayre sister named Thamar, whom afterwarde Ammon another sonne of David loued. And this Ammon was so vexed that he fell spyke for the loue of his sister Thamar: for it thought hym harde to come by hys purpose of her, seynge she was yet a virgyn. But Ammon had a companyon called Jonadab, the sonne of Samah the brother of David: which Jonadab was a very wyse man. And he sayd vnto hym: how cometh it that thou beyng the kynges sonne art thus consumed euery morning: mayst thou not tell it me? And Ammon answered him: I loue Thamar my brother Absaloms syster. The said Jonadab vnto him: lye on thy bedde, & sayne thy selfe spyke. And when thy father is come to se the, saye vnto him: Oh, let my syster Thamar come, and geue me meate, and dresse it in my syght, that I maye se it, and eate it of her hande.

And Ammon lape downe and made him selfe sicke. And whē the kyng was come to se him, Ammon said vnto him: Oh let Thamar my sister come, & make me a couple of frytters in my syght, & I maye eate of her had. And David let come to Thamar, saying: go to thy brother Ammons house and dresse hym meate. When Thamar came to her brother Ammons house he laye. And she toke flour, & made paste, & made frytters in hys syght, & did bake the, & toke a platter & powred the out before hym. And Ammon wolde not eate, but comaunded to haue out al me scs him. And they went all out from him. Then said Ammon vnto Thamar: beyng the meate into the chābre, & I maye eate of thyne hand. And Thamar toke the frytters, which she had made, & brought the into the chābre to Ammon her brother: & set the before hym to eate. And he toke her & saide vnto her: come lye w me my syster. And she answered him: nay, my brother, do not force me, for it ought not to be so in Israel, do not this folly. * For whither shal I go w my shame? And thou shalt be as one of the soles in Israel. But speake vnto the kyng, and he shal not denye me vnto the.

Howe be it, he wolde not herke vnto her voyce, but was to stronge for her & forced her, & laye w her. And the Ammon hated her exceedingly: so the hate wherwith he hated her, was greater the the loue, w whiche he before loued her. And he said vnto her: vp & awaye. The she said vnto him: I haue no cause. This great cruelnesse I thou puttest me away, passeth I other I thou diddest vnto me. Neuerthelesse, he wolde not heate her, but called his lad I wanted vpon him, & saide: put her out at I dozes scs me, & bolt I doze after her. And she had a kirtell of diuerse coloures vpon her: for w suche were I kynges doughters (I were virgines) appareled, made strait vnto them. Then his seruauant brought her oute at I dozes & locked I dozes after her. And Thamar put ashes on her heed, & rēt her gape kytell that was on her, & put her hand on her heed, and so went: and as she wēt, cried. Then Absalom her brother saide vnto her: hath Ammon thy brother bene with the? Howe then be still my syster: for he is thy brother. And let not this thing greue thine hert. And so Thamar remained discomforted in her brother Absaloms house. And kyng David heard of all these thynges and was very wroth. And Absalom sayde vnto hys brother

And the king said vnto Abfalō: Oh naye my sonne, let vs not go euerye one of vs þ we be not chargeable vnto þ. And Abfalom laye soze vpon him: how be it, he wolde not go, but blessed him. Thē said Abfalom: yf thou wilt not come, thē let my brother Ammō go with vs. And the king answered him: what nedeth it that he go with the. But Abfalō made suche instace, that he let Ammō go with him, and all the kynges children.

Then Abfalō comaunded his young men, saying: marke when Ammons hert is mery with wyne, and whē I byd you smyte Ammon, then kill him: feare not, for it is I that byd you, be holde ther: fyre, & playe the lusty blondes. And the young men of Abfalom serued Ammō, eue as Abfalom comaunded them. And all the kynges sonnes arose, & toke eche mā his shule and fled. And whyle they were yet in the waye, tydinges came to Dauid that Abfalom had slayne all the kynges sonnes, so that none was left a lyue. Thē the kyng arose, and rare his garmentes, and laye a long on the erth: and all his seruantes stode by wyth their clothes rent. Then Jonadab the sonne of Samah Dauids brother answered & sayd: let not my Lord suppose that they haue slayne all the young mē the kynges sonnes, saue Ammon only is deed. For that hath bene euer in Abfaloms mouth sence he forced his sister Thamar: Now therfore let not my lord the kyng take the thing so greuouse, to thyncke that all the kynges sonnes were deed, when Ammon only is deed.

But Abfalom escaped and went to Cholmay the sonne of Amihud kyng of Gesur. And the kyng mourned for his sonne continually. And so Abfalom escaped and went to Gesur, & was there thre yeres. And by that tyme the kyng turned his mynde from pursuyng Abfalom. For he had left mournynge for the death of Ammon.

And he sayd: as sure as the Lord lyueth, * there shal not one heere of thy sonnes heade fall to the erthe.

D Then the woman sayd: let thine hand mayde speake one worde more vnto my Lorde the kyng, and he sayd: saye on. And the woman sayd wherfore then hast thou determined on thys lame maner against þ people of God: that the king shoulde speake this thyng and be fauourer therin, so that the kyng shoulde not fet home agayne hys banished. for we muste nedes dye, and peryshe as water spilt on the grounde, whiche cannot be gathered vp agayne: and God wyl not take awaye the lyfe, but fynde the meannes that the banished be not utterly expelled from him. And now concerning that I am come to speake of this thyng vnto the kyng my Lord, in the presence of the people: thy handmayde thought: surely I wyl speake vnto the kyng, peradventure the kyng wyl heare the request of his handmayd. And the king shall heare his handmayde, and deliuer her out of the hand of the mā that wold haue destroyed me, and my sonne also, oute of the inheritaunce of God. Then thynne handmayde sayde: I praye God that the worde of my Lord the kyng maye be * immutable. for my Lord the kyng is as an Angell of God, in hearinge of good or bad: and therefore the Lorde thy God be with the.

Then the kyng answered and sayde vnto the woman: hide not from me (I praye the:) the thyng that I shall aske the. And the woman sayde: let my Lord the kyng say on. Then sayde the kinge: Is not the * hande of Joab with the in al thys matter? And the woman answered, and sayde: as sure as thy soule lyueth my Lorde kinge, it is * nether on the ryghte hande nor on the lea fte that my Lorde the kyng hath spoken. For thy seruante Joab he bad me, and he put all these wordes euen in the mouth of thynne handmayde. And the turninge of my tale a nother waye, that made thy seruante Joab. And so I se that my Lord is wylle euen as an Angell of God, to vnderstande all thynges that are in the erthe. Then sayde the kyng to Joab: beholde, I am contente to do thys thyng. So therfore fet home the ladde Absalom. And Joab fell to the grounde on hys face, and bowed hym selfe and * blessed the kyng, and sayde: nowe thy seruaut knoweth that I haue founde grace in the syghte of my Lord the kyng, in that he hath fulfilled the request of hys seruante. And so Joab arose and went to Gesur, and broughte Absalom to Ierusalem. Then saide the kyng: let him turne to hys owne house, but se that he come not in my presence. And so Absalom wente to hys owne house, but came not in the kynges presence.

Moreover in all Israell there was not so goodly a manne as Absalom, or so greatly praised, from the soole of his fote to the toppe of his heade, ther was no blemish in him. And when he shaued hys heade (for at euerye yeres ende he shaued it, because it was heuy on him, and therfore he shaued it) the heere ther of waped two hundred cicles weight of the kynges weyght. And this Absalom had thre sonnes bozne him, & one daughter named Thamar, which was a fayre woman to loke vpon. When Absalom had dwelt two yere i Ierusalem without comynge into the kynges presence, he sent for Joab, to haue sente hym to the kinge. But he wolde not come to hym. And he sent agayne, and for all that he wolde not come. Then he sayde vnto his seruantes: beholde, Joab hath a parcel of lande faste by myne, and hath barlye therein: Go and sette it on fyre. And Absaloms seruantes wente & set it on fyre.

Then Joab arose, and came to Absalom vnto hys house, and sayde vnto hym: wherfore haue thy seruantes burnt my felde with fyre? And Absalom sayde to Joab: beholde, I sent for thee, desiringe the to come, because I wold haue sente the to the kyng, for to saye: wherfore am I come from Gesur. Jo had bene as good for me to haue bydde there styll. Now therefore let me come to the kynges presence, or ellesse there be any trespase in me, kyll me. And Iobab went to the kyng and tolde him. And he sente for Abfalom: whiche whan he was come, fell to the grounde on hys face before the kyng. And the kyng kissed hym.

The .xv. Chapter.

Abfalom maketh insurreccyon against his father. David is fayne to flee for feare of him.

At. Reg. i. a.

After thys Abfalom gat hym charettes & hoxes and ffty men to runne before him. And thereto he vsed to rise by etly in the moynnges and to stande by the wayes side that led to the gate of the cytie. And all the men of Israel that had complayntes and came to the kyng for Iudgement, he called vnto hym and sayd: of what cytie arte thou? And when the other answered: thy seruaunt is of such a tribe of Israel. Then sayde Abfalom vnto hym: se, thy matter is good and ryghteous, and yet no manne is deputed of the kyng to heare the. Then Abfalom sayde mozeouer: Oh, that I wer a iudge in the lād, and that all men whiche haue pleyes & matter in the lawe, shoulde come to me. For I woulde do them iustice. And also when any man came nye to hym to do him obeyssance, he put forth his hande & toke hym to hym and kyssed hym. And on thys maner byd Abfalom to all Israel that came to the kyng for Iudgemente, and therewith* stalle the hartes of the men of Israel. And at fouretye yeres ende Abfalom sayde vnto the kyng: let me go I praye the to Hebrō, and paye my bowe which I haue bowed, vnto the Lorde: for thy seruaunte howed a bowe (when I was in* Gesur, in the lande of Siria) sayinge: yf the Lorde shall byynge me againe to Jerusalem, I wyll serue the Lorde. And the kyng sayde: go in peace. And so he arose, and went to Hebron.

Then Abfalom sente spies thoroowe out all the tribes of Israel, saying: as loue as ye heare the voyce of the tromper blowe, say: Abfalom catgneth king in Hebron. And with Abfalom wente two hundred men out of Jerusalem, & were called. And they wente with purer hertes and with nothyng of the matter. And Abfalom sent also for Ahithophel the Gilonit Dauids counsellor, & set him out of his cyty Giloh, when he sacrificed sacrifices. And ther was wrought strog treason. And the people dyne to Abfalom in greate multytude. And there came a messenger to David, and sayd: the hertes of the men of Israel are turned to folowe Abfalom. Then sayde David vnto all his seruauntes that were with hym, at Jerusalem: by, and let vs flee, for we shall not else escape frome Abfalom. Make spede to departe: lest he come sodenly, and catche vs, and bring some myscheyse vpon vs, and smyte the cytie with the edge of the swerde. And the kynges seruauntes sayd to him: beholde thy seruauntes are redye to do what soeuer my Lorde the kyng shall apoynte.

And the kyng and all his household, departed a fote. And he lefte behind him ten wyues that wer his concubines, to kepe the house. And so the kyng and all the people went out a fote and tarped farre from the house. And al hys seruauntes went by hys syde. And all the Gethites, and al the Shelethites, and all the Gethites, euen .vi. hundred men which were come a fote from Geth, went before the kyng. Then sayde the kyng to Ethai the Gethite, wherfore shouldest thou go with vs also? Returne and abyde with the kyng, for thou arte a straunger, and art remoued from thine owne place. Thou camest but yesterdaye, and shouldest thou be vnquiet the to day to go with vs? I wyll go whether I ch. But returne thou and carpe agayne thy brethzen. Mercy and truth be with the. And Ethai answered the kyng, and sayde: as surely as the Lorde lyueth, and as surely as my Lorde the kyng lyueth, in what place my Lord the kyng shalbe, whether in deathe or lyfe, euen there wyll thy seruaunt be. Then sayde the kyng to Ethai, come & go forwarde. And Ethai the Gethite wente forth, and all his menne, and all the chyldren that were with him. And al the contrey wept with a loude voyce. And all the people wente forwarde the straughte waye to the wildernesse. And beholde, Sadock and all the Levites were with him, and bare the arcke of the appoyntment of God. And when they had set downe the Arcke of God, Abiathar came by, until the people were all come ouer, out of the citie. The said the king vnto Sadock. Carpe the Arcke of God agayne into the city. If I shal fynde sauour in the eyes of the Lorde, he wyl bypunge me agayne, & shew me bothe it and the tabernacle therof also. But and yf the Lorde thus say: I haue no lust vnto the. Beholde, here am I, let him do with me, what seemeth best in his eyes.

f The kynge sayd also vnto Sadock the preeft: thou arte a Sear. Returne therfore into the citie in peace. And take poure two sonnes with you: Ahimaaz thy sonne, and Jonathas the sonne of Abiathar: And se, I wyl tarpe in the felldes of the wyldernesse vntyl there come some worde frome you to bee tolde me. And so Sadock and Abiathar carped the Arcke of God agayne to Ierusalem, and they tarped there. And Dauid went vpon mount Oliuet, & wept as he wente, and had his heade couered, and wente thereto barefote. And al the people that was with him, had euery man his head couered, and as they wente wept also. And one tolde Dauid sayinge: Abithophel is one of them that haue conspired with Abalom. Then sayde Dauid: O Lord, turne the counsel of Abithophel in to foolishnes.

f When Dauid was come to the toppe of the mounte, and had bowed him selfe vnto God: beholde, Husai the Arachite came agaynst him with his coote tozme and erthe vpon his head. Vnto whome Dauid sayde: yf thou go with me thou shalt be a burthen vnto me. And yf thou returne to the citie: then shalt thou say vnto Abalom. I wyl be thy seruante. O kynge (thus longe haue I bene thy fathers seruant, and now I am thine.) And destroy me the counsel of Abithophel. And thou hast there with the Sadock and Abiathar the preeftes, vnto whiche thou shalt shewe all thou canst heate oute of the kinges house. And beholde, ye haue there with you they two sonnes: Ahimaaz Sadockes sone, and Jonathas Abiathars sone, by whych ye shal sende me all that ye canne heare. And so Husai Dauids frende gat hym to the citie. And Abalom also entred into Ierusalem.

The .xvi. chapter.

Ziba bringyng presentes to Dauid, dothe falsly accuse Miphiboseth: Semei curseth Dauid and hurlet stones at him. Abalom by the counsell of Abithophel lyeth with his fathers concubines.

Ad when Dauid was a lytle past the toppe of the hyll: beholde, ziba the seruante of Miphiboseth came agaynst him with a couple of Asses sadelled, & vpon them two hundred loues, and one hundred bonches of Respynges, and an hundred frayles of dyed fygges, and a bottel of wyne. Then sayde the kynge to ziba: what hast thou there? And ziba sayde: Asses for the kinges household to ryde on, and breade and frute for the young men to eate, and wine to dryncke, yf any manne saynt in the wildernesse. Then sayde the kynge: where is thy masters sonne? and ziba sayde vnto the kynge: beholde, he tarteth styl at Ierusalem. For he sayde: this day shall the house of Israel restore me the kyngdom of my father: Then sayde the kynge to ziba: behold, thine are al that pertained vnto Miphiboseth. And ziba aunswered: I beseeche the that I maye fynde grace in thy syghte my Lorde king.

B And when kynge Dauid came to Bahurim: beholde, thence came oute a manne of the kynred of the house of Saul, named Semei the sonne of Gei, and he came out cursyng. And thereto he cast stones at Dauid, and at al the seruantes of kynge Dauid, all the people and al the men of warre goyng part on his ryght hand, & parte on his lefte. And thus sayd this Semei as he cursed: come forth, come forth thou bloud shedder, and thou vnyustitie man. The Lorde hathe broughte vpon the all the bloude of the house of Saul, in whose steade thou hast raygned, and he hathe deliuered Exo. xlii.

Del puered the kyngdome into the hande of Absalom thy sonne. And thou arte wrapped aboute with thyn owne mischeue, because thou arte a bloude shedder.

Then sayde Absai the sonne of Zeruiah vnto the kyng: why dothe thys deade dogge curse my Lorde the kyng: let me go, and take of the heade of hym. And the kyng sayde: what haue I to do with you, ye sonnes of Zeruiah: let hym curse: for the Lorde hathe bydden hi curse Dauid. And who dare presume to saye: wherfore dothe he so? And Dauid sayde to Absai, and to all hys seruantes: beholde, my sonne which cam out of myne owne bowelles, teketh my lyfe. How muche moze then maye thys sonne of Jemini do it? Suffre him therfore to curse, *for the Lorde hathe bydden him: haplye the Lorde wyll loke on my wepyng eyes and wretchednesse, & do me good for his cursyng thys day. And thus as Dauid and his men went by the waye, Semei went alonge on the hilles syde ouer agaynste him, and cursed as he wente, and threwe stones at hi, and caste dust. And the kyng and all that were with him came wepyng, and refreshed them selues there.

And Absalom and all the people of the men of Israel came to Jerusalem, and Ahithophel was with him. And as soone as he was come: Husai the Archite went vnto Absalom and sayd vnto him: God saue the kyng, God saue the kyng. And Absalom sayde agayne to Husai: is this the kyndnesse thou owest to thy frende? Why wentest thou not with him? And Husai sayde vnto Absalom: naye not so, but whome the Lord and this people and all the men of Israel chose, his wyl I be, and with hym wyll I dwell. And forthermore, vnto whome shall I do seruice, but euen to his sonne? And as I was seruante before with thy father, euē so shall I be with the. Then spake Absalom to Ahithophel: geue counsell what is best for vs to do. And Ahithophel sayde vnto Absalom: get thee in vnto thy fathers concubines whiche he hathe left to kepe the house. For when al Israel shal heare, that thou haste made thy father to stynke, then shall the handes of all that are with the, bee stronge. And so they pitched Absalom a tente vpon the *toppe of the house. And he went in vnto his fathers concubynes in the sight of al Israel.

And the counsell of Ahithophel which he counceled in those dayes, was as a man had asked counsell of God: euen so was all the counsell of Ahithophel, bothe vnto Dauid and also vnto Absalom.

The .xviij. Chapter.

Ahithophel, being his counsell disallowed of Dauid, forsaken, hangeth himselfe.

Ahen Ahithophel sayde vnto Absalom: let me chose oute I praye the twelue thousande men. And I wyll by and for low after Dauid by nyght. And I will come vpon him while he is wepyng, and weake handed, and wyll feare hym, that all the people that are with hym shall flee. And so wyll I synge the kyng onelye, and wyl byngne agayne all the people vnto the. And when all these men which thou sekest are turned to the, all the people shall haue reste. And the sayinge pleased Absalom well, and all the elders of Israel. Then sayde Absalom: call also Husai the Archite, and let vs heare his sentence. When Husai was come to Absalom, Absalom spake vnto hym, saying: Ahithophel hathe geuen suche counsell: whether it be best we do after his saying, or not tel thou.

Then sayde Husai to Absalom: the counsell that Ahithophel hathe geuen, is not good at thys time. For (sayde Husai) thou knowest thy father, and the menne that are with hym, howe that they bee stronge menne. And they be chased in theyr myndes, euen as a Beare robbed of her whelpes. And thy father is a man practised in warre, and wyll not lye a nyght among the comen people. Beholde, he lurked now in some caue, or in some other place. And therto though some of his men be ouerthrowen at the fyrste brynte: yet they that heare it wyll thyncke the people foloweth Absalom be put to the worst. By the reason wherof the best men thou haste whose heartes are as the hartes of Lyons, shall synke there at. For al Israel knoweth that thy father is a man, and that they which be with him be chyl-

C But my counsell is, that all Israell be gathered vnto the, from Dan to Ber-sabee, as the sand of the sea in nombre, & that thou go to battayle in thyne owne person. And we wyll come vpon hym in one place or other, where we shall fynde him, and we wyl pytche a selde agaynst hym, euen as thycke as the dew falleth on the grounde. And there shal not one of them be lefte, nether he nor any of all that are with him. Moreover if he take a towne then shall all the men of Israell * bynge ropes to that cytpe, and we wyl drawe it into the ryuer, vntill there be not one stone found vpon a nother. And Abalom and all the men of Israell sayd: that the counsell of Husai the Archite was better then the counsell of Ahithophel. For it was euen the Lordes determinacyon to destrope the * counsell of Ahithophel: whiche was good, that the Lorde mighte bynge euell vpon Abalom. Then sayd * Husai vnto Sadoc, and Abiathar & prestes: of this and that maner did Ahithophel and the elders of Israell counsell Absalom. And thus and thus haue I cou-celled. Nowe therfore sende quyklye, and shewe Dauid, sayinge: tarpe not al-nyghte in the felde of the wildernesse, but get the ouer, lest the kyng be deuour-ed & all the people that are with hym.
Nowe Jonathas and Ahimaaz abode by the wel rogell: (for they might not be seene to come into the city.) And a wench wente and tolde them. And they to go & shewed kinge Dauid.

C Neuerthelesse there was a lad sawe them whiche tolde it to Abalom. But they went bothe of them away quickely, and came to a mannes house in Ba-hurim, whiche had a well in hys yarde, into whiche they went downe. And the wyfe toke and spred a couerlet on the top of the well, and strawed thereon steaped barley to drye. And the thyng was not spred. And when Abaloms seruans came to the wyfe, to the house, & asked wher one Ahimaaz and Jonathas were, the wyfe sayde vnto them: they be gone ouer the lytell brocke of water.
And when they had soughte them and coulde not fynde them, then they returned to Jerusalem. And as sone as they were departed, the other came out of the well, and went and tolde kinge Dauid, and sayde vnto hym: by, and get you quykly ouer the water for suche coun-cell hath Ahithophel geuen. Then Da-uid arose and all the people that were with hym, and they were come ouer Jordan, by that it was day, that there lacked not one of them & was not come ouer Jordan. And when Ahithophel saw, that his counsell was not folowed, he sadelled his Asse and arose and gate hym home to his owne house, & to his owne cytie, and put his houshoulde in order, and hanged hym selfe, and dyed, & was buried in y sepulchre of hys father.

Then Dauid came to Mahanaim.
And Abalom passed ouer Jordan, both he and all the men of Israell with him. C And Abalom made Amasa captayne of the hoste in steade of Joab, whiche Amasa was a mannes sonne named Jethra a Iesrahelite that went in to Abigail & doughter of Naah, syster to Iacub, & Joabs mother. And Israell and Abalalom pitched in the lande of Gilead. And when Dauid was come to Mahanaim, Sobi the sonne of Naah oute of * Ra-bath the cyty of the chyldren of Ammō, and * Machir the sonne of Amiel oute of Lodaber, and * Berzelai the Gileadite oute of Rogelim, brought beddes, basens, and erthen vessels: and also corne, barley, floure and parched corne, benes, and rice, hony, butter, shepe and chese of kyne, for Dauid and al the people that wer wyth him, to eate. For they supposed that the people shoulde be hogry saynty, & thursty in the wildernesse.

The .xxviii. Chapter.

C Abalom is ouercome in battell. He hangeth by the heere on an Oke. He is kylled and put in a pytche. Da-the people answered: naye, for * p<sup>r</sup> we see, our aduersaries wyl not care for vs: nether thowge halfe of vs were naye, shall they regarde vs. But thou were worthe ten thousande of vs. And therto it is better that thou be readye to succoure vs out of the ctyte. Then sayde the kynge: what semeth you best, that wyl I do.

B And the king stode by the Gates side, and all the people came oute by hundredes and by thousandes. And the kynge commaunded Joab and Abisai, and Ethai, sayinge: intreate me gently my sonne Abisalom. And all the people hearde when the kynge gaue al the captaynes charge ouer Abisalo. And p<sup>r</sup> people wente oute into the felde agaynste Israell, and the battel was in the woode of Ephraim. Where the people of Israell were put to the worse before the seruantes of Dauid, and there was a great slaughter that daye, euen of twety thousande menne. And the felde was fought in dyuerse places, all abroade vpon the earth. And the woodes deuoured moo people that daye, than dyd the swerde. And it chaunced Abisalom to come before the seruantes of Dauid, ryding vpon a Mule which caried him vnder p<sup>r</sup> thycke bowes of a great Ocke. And his heade caughte in the Ocke, & he was lyft betwene heauē & earth, & the Mule p<sup>r</sup> was vnder hi wēt his way. And one that saw it tolde Joab, sayinge: beholde, I saw Abisalo hange in an Ocke: a Joab sayde vnto him that tolde him: lo, sawest thou him. And why didest not thou there smyte hym to the grounde, that I should haue geuen the ten sicles of syluer, and a souldyours gyrdle.

And the mā answered Joab: though I had a thousande sycles of syluer told in my hande, yet woulde I not stretche out my hande against the kynges sonne. For we heard with our eares when the king charged the, Abisai and Ethai, saying: spare me the lad Abisalom. Moreouer though I had leoparded my life & done falsly therto, yet coulde nought of all the matter haue bene hyd frome the kynge: yea, and thou thy selfe wouldest be agaynste me. The sayd Joab: * I may not stande taryng with the.

And therewith he toke thre speares in his hande and thruste them into the heart of Abisalom, whyle he was yet allyue on the bodye of the tree. And thre seruantes that bare Joabs wepons, turned and smot Abisalom, and slue him. * Then Joab blew a trompet, and the people returned from followinge Israell: for Joab spared the people. And they toke Abisalo, and caste him into a great pyt that was in the woode, and caste a myghty greate heape of stones vpon him. And all Israell fled euerie man to his tente. And thys Abisalom yet in his * lyfe time, toke and reared vp a pylle, whiche is yet in kynges dale. For he sayde: I haue no male childe. And thertoze to kepe my name in remembraunce do I it. And he called p<sup>r</sup> pylle after his owne name. And it is called vnto thys day, Abisaloms pylle.

Then sayde Ahimaaz the sonne of Sadock: let me runne I praye the, and heare the kynges tydings, how that the Lorde hath iudged hym quite of the handes of all his enemyes. And Joab sayd vnto hi: thou arte no man to beare tydings to daye: thou shalt beare tydings a nother tyme: but to daye thou shalt beare none, because the kynges sonne is dead. Then sayd Joab to Chusi: go, and tell the kinge, what thou hast sene. And Chusi bowed him selfe before Joab, and ranne. Then sayde Ahimaaz the sonne of Sadock agayne to Joab: come what come wyl, let me runne I praye the after Chusi. And Joab sayde: wherfore shouldest thou run in my sonner for and thou runne thou gettyst no reward: wel, come what wyl let me runne. And he sayde vnto him: runne. Then Ahimaaz ranne by the playne waye and ouerranne Chusi.

And Dauid sat betwene the two gates. And the watche man went vp to the rouffe ouer the gate vnto the walle, and lifte vp his eyes, and sawe: and behold, there came a man runnyng alone. And the watche manne called, and tolde the kyng. And the kyng sayde: p<sup>r</sup> he come alone, there is tydynge good in hys mouthe. And he came, and dyewe nre. And the watchman sawe a nother man runnyng, and called vnto the porter, & sayde: beholde, there cometh a nother runnyng alone. And the kyng answered red: he is also a tydynges byrnger. And the watchman sayde: me thynketh the runnyng of the formost is lyke the runnyng of Ahimaaz the sone of Sadock. And the kyng sayde: he is a good man, and cometh with good tidinges. And Ahimaaz called and saide to the kyng: good tydynges, and bowed hym selfe to the erthe vpon his face before the kyng, and sayde: blessed be the Lord thy God, which hath shut vp al the me that lyft vp their handes against my Lord & kyng. And & kyng sayd: is the lad Absalom safe? And Ahimaaz answered: I saw a great do, whē the kynges seruaunt Joab sent me thy seruaunt. But I wotte not what it was. And the kyng sayde: turne and stande here. And he turned & stode still.

And beholde, Chusi came and sayde: tydynges my Lorde the kyng, & Lord hath the quytte the thys daye oute of the handes of all that rose against the. And the kyng sayd to Chusi: is the lad Absalom safe? And Chusi answered: the enemies of my Lorde the kyng, and all that ryle agaynst thee, to do the hurte, be as thy lad is. And the kyng was moued, and wente vp to a chamber ouer & gate, and wept. And as he went, thus he sayd: my sone Absalom, my sonne, my son, my sone Absalom, would to God I had dyed for the Absalom, my sonne, my sone.

The. xix. Chapter.

David is restored to hys kyngdome, and broughte agayne to Jerusalem.

AD it was tolde Joab, howe that the kyng wept and mourned for Absalom. And the victoary was turned that day into mourning vnto all the people. For the people hearde saye that daye, howe the kyng sorowed for hys sonne, and the people wente stealyng awaye that daye from goyng into the cty, as people confounded steale awaye, when they flee in battell. And the kyng hyd his face and cryed with a loude voice: my sonne Absalom, Absalom my sonne my sonne.

And Joab went into the house to the kyng, and sayd: thou hast shamed thys daye the faces of all thy seruantes, whiche this daye haue saued thy lyfe, & the liues of thy sonnes & daughters, & the lyues of thy wyues, and concubines, in & thou louest thine enemies & hatest thy frendes. Thou hast declared this day, that thou carest nether for thy Lordes nor seruantes. For this day I do perceane, if Absalom had lyued, & all we dyed this day, & then it had pleased the well. Now therfore, vp, & come out, & speake kindly vnto thy seruantes, I swere by & Lord, except & come out, they wil not tary one man w the this night. And that wil be worse vnto the, then al & euell & fel on the from thine pouth vnto this houre. Then & kyng arose, and sat downe in & gate. And it was told vnto al & people, how the kyng sat in the gate. And then al the people came before the kyng. But Israell fled euery manne to his tente.

And all the people were at steppe thowrow out al the tribes of Israell, saying: the kyng deliuered vs out of the hande of oure enemies. And he deliuered vs out of the hande of the philistines. And now he is fled out of the land for Absalom. But Absalom whome we anoynted ouer vs is dead i battell. Now therfore why are ye so still, that ye bring not the kyng agayne? And kyng David sent to Sadock and Abiathar the priestes, saying: speake vnto the elders of Juda, & saye: why shoulde ye bee the laste that shoulde byrnge agayne the kyng to his house, seing & such tidinges is come fro al Israell vnto & kyng, euē to his house: ye are my brethren, my bones and my flethe: wherfore then shoulde ye be laste that shoulde come to byrnge the kyng home agayne? And saye to Amasa: atte thou not my bone and my flethe? And God do so to me and so thereto: excepte thou be captayne of the host to me for euer in the roume of Joab. And he bowed the hertes of all the men of Juda, as a man would bow the hert of one mā: so that they sent worde to the kyng, & he shoulde retorne w al his seruantes. And the kyng returned and came to Jordan. And Juda came to Gilgall, for to go agaynst the kyng, to conueye him ouer Jordan. And Semet the sonne of Geera, the sonne of Jemini, whiche was of Bahurim, halted & came with & men of Juda against kyng David, & a thousand men of Benjamin with him, & Ishba the seruaunt of the house of Saul, and his & sonnes and twenty seruantes with him.

D And Semei the sonne of Gera fell before the kynge (as he was come ouer

Lorde impute wickednes vnto me, nor let him not remember the wickednesse the kynge departed out of Jerusalem) that the kynge shoulde take it to herte.

For thy seruaunt dothe know, how that shal no manne dye this daye in Israell: for I know, the I am thys day king ouer thou shalt not dye, a sware vnto hym.

E *And Giphthiboseh the sonne of Saul cam also to mete the king, and had nether dressed hys fete, nor shauen his beard, nor washed hys clothes from the time the king departed, vntyl he came againe in peace.
And when he was come to Jerusalem toward the king, the king sayde vnto hym: wherfore wentest not thou with me Giphtiboseh. And he sayd: my Lorde, O king, my seruaunt deceaued me. For thy ser-diddest thou put me among them the eate landes betwene you. And Giphthiboseh said vnto the king: yea, let him take all: for so much as my Lorde the king is come in peace vnto his owne house.

And Berselai the Gileadite came fro-mother. But lo, here is thy seruaunte Chamaam: let him go with my Lorde the king, and do to him, what shal please thee.

And the king answered: Chamaam shal go with me. And the I wyl do to him the the shalt be content with. And therto what loeuert thou shalt require of me, the I will do for the. And al the people went ouer Jordan. And when the kynge was toke his leaue of him, & he wente backe the king wente to Gilgall, & Chamaam went with him. Now all the men of Ju-

The xx. Chapter.

¶ Seba the sonne of Bochi rayseth Israel agaynst Dauid. Joab killeth Amasa traitorously. The heade of Seba is deliuered to Joab. Dauids receauers are nominated.

And there happened to be an vnthyrifte felowe named Seba, the sonne of Bochi a man of Gemini, whiche blew a trompet, and sayde: we haue no parte in Dauid, nor enherytaunce in the sonne of Iſai, O Israel, let vs departe therfore euery man to hys tent. And all Israel went from Dauid and folowed Seba the sonne of Bochi. But the men of Iuda claued faste vnto the kyng, from Iordan to Ierusalem.

And when Dauid was come to his house to Ierusalem, he toke the tē wyues his concubynes that he had lefte behynde him to kepe the house, and put them in warde, and ministred all thynges vnto them: but laye no moze with them. And so they were enclosed vnto the daye of the death of them, and liued a wydowes lyfe.

Then said þe kyng to Amasa: cal me the mē of Iuda together to in thre dayes, & present thy selfe here. And Amasa went to gather þe men of Iuda together: but taried longer then þe tyme which was appointed him. Wherefore the kyng sayd to Abisai: nowe shall Seba the sonne of Bochi be worlde to vs then Absalom.

Take thou therfore thy Lordes seruantes and folowe after him: lest he get him walled cyties, and escape vs.

And there wente oute after him Joabs men, and the Crethites & the Shelethites, & þe mē of might. And they departed out of Ierusalem to folow after Seba þe sonne of Bochi. And when they were come to þe great stone in Gibeon, Amasa met them. And Joab had his garment that he had about him, gird vnto him, and had gyrded therō a knyfe ioynd fast to his loynes, in suche a thete that (as he wente) it fell some tymes oute. And Joab sayde to Amasa: are all thynges in rest and peace my brother. And Joab toke Amasa by the chymē with þe right hande, as though he would haue killed hym. And Amasa toke no hede to the knyffe that was in Joabs hande, with which Joab smote him in þe short rybbes, and shed oute his bowelles to the grounde, and smote hym but one stroke, and he dyed.

And then Joab and Abisai hys brother folowed after Seba the sonne of Bochi. And one of Joabs men þe stode by him, sayd: what is he that he would be as Joab, and what is he that he would be vnto Dauid in stede of Joab. And Amasa laye walowynge in bloude in the myddes of the waye. And there was a mā, that saw al the people stande styl, And when he saw that al that came by him stode styl, he rowled Amasa oute of the waye into the felde and cast a clothe vpon him. And as sone as he was tombeled out of the waye, all þe people went after Joab, to folowe after Seba the sonne of Bochi.

And he went thowow all the trybes of Israel vnto Abel, Bethmaacah and all Barim. And the people gathered vnto him, and went also after him. And they came & beleged hym in Abel Bethmaacah. And they cast vp a bancke agaynst the cytye. And it was beleged. Al þe people that was with Joab labored busely to ouerthrowe the wal. Then cryed a wyse woman out of þe cytie, heare, heare, byd I praye you Joab that he come hit her, & I maye speake with hym. When Joab was come, the woman sayde: arte thou Joab. And Joab answered: þe am I. And she sayde to him: heare the wordes of thy handemayde. And he sayde: I am readye to heare. And she sayde: it hath bene a comen sayinge in þe olde tyme, men must aske of Abel, and then go to and finishe the worcke. Abel is one of the quyetest and saythfullest cyties that are in Israel. And thou goest about to destrope a cytie that is as a mother in Israel. Why deuourest thou the enheritaunce of the Lorde.

And Joab answered and sayde: God forbyd, God forbyd it me, that I should ether deuowze or destroy it. The matter is not so: But there is a man of mounte Ephraim (Seba the sonne of Bochi by name,) which hath lyfte vp his hande

The. xxi. Chapter.

The deare peres. The vengeance of the synnes of Saul lyghthe on his vii. sonnes, whiche are hanged. Four great battelles, whiche David had agaynst the Philistines.

When there fel an hunger in the dayes of David thre yeres, yete by yere. And David enquired of the Lorde. And the Lorde answered: it is for Sauls sake, and for his house of bloude, because he slue the Gibeonites. And the king called the Gibeonites, & said vnto them. Now these Gibeonites are not of the children of Israel, but a remnaunt of the Ammorites, and the children of Israel sware vnto them. And yet Saul sought to slep them, for a zeale he had to the chyldren of Israel and of Iuda. Wherefore David sayd vnto them: what shall I do for you: and wherewith shall I content you that ye maye * blesse & enheritaunce of the Lorde.

This is, fauoure & let by. As in Eia. 1701. b

And the Gibeonites said vnto him: we haue no matter of syluer or of golde with Saul or with his house: nether haue we any man that we would kyll in Israel. Then he sayd: what say ye that I shall do for you: And they sayd vnto the kyng: the man that consumed and imagened to bynge vs to nought, him we ought to destroye, that noughte of him continue in anye of the coostes of Israel, let seven men of his sonnes be delyuered vnto vs, that we maye hange them by vnto the LORDE.

in Gibeah of Saul the lordes electe. And David sayde: I wyl geue them you.

But the kyng had compassion on Miphiboseth the sonne of Ionathas, the sonne of Saul, because of the Lordes othe, that was betwene them: that is to say betwene David & Ionathas the sonne of Saul. But he toke & two sonnes of Kezphah the doughter of Achish (whiche he bare vnto Saul), Armoni and Miphiboseth, and the fyue sonnes of Micho (the doughter of Saul) whiche he bare to Noziel the sonne of Berselai the Molathite, and delyuered them vnto the handes of the Gibeonites, whiche hanged them in the hyll before the Lorde. And they fell all seven together, in the fyrste dayes of heruest: euen in the begynnyng of Barley heruest.

And Kezphah the doughter of Achish toke sackclothe and spred it vnder her vpon the Roche, euen from the begynnyng of haruest, vntill rainge dropped vpon them out of heauen: and suffered nether the byrdes of the Ayre to fal on them by daye, nor beastes of the felde by nyght. And when it was tolde David what Kezphah the doughter of Achish the concubyne of Saul had done, he went and toke the bones of Saul and of Ionathas his sonne, of the men of Jabes in Gilead, which they had stole fro the strete of Bethsan, where the Philistines had haged the in the dayes when the Philistines had slayne Saul in Gilboa. And he brought thre bones of Saul and the bones of Ionathas his sonne, & they set away the bones of them that were hanged, & buryed the in the bones of Saul & Ionathas his sonne in the contrey of Benjamin, in zela, in the sepulchre of his father. And when they had performed all that the kyng commaunded, God was then at one with the lande.

And the Philistines had yet againe warre with Israel. And David wente downe, and his seruantes with hym, and fought with the Philistines. And David waxed sayntie, & Jebi of Gad one of the sonnes * Haraphah (whiche speare heade waxed thre hundred sciles of Brasle, and was gyrded with a newe swerde) thought to haue slayne David.

But

But Abisai the sonne of Nethaneiah succoured him, & smote the Philistine, and killed him. Then the seruantes of David swore vnto him, sayinge. * Thou shalt go no more out with vs to battell, that the lyght of Israel be not put out, And there was yet after this, battell with the Philistines at Nob, in whiche Hothai the Gathite slew Saph one of the sonnes of Paraphah.

And there was yet the thirde battell in Nob, with the Philistines, where Ehanan the sonne of the Jaere Digin, a Bethlehemitte slew one Goliath a Gethite: the staffe of whose speare was as great as a weeners cloth beame.

And there was yet battell in Geth, where was a man of a size and had on euery hande. vi. fyngers, and on euery fote. vi. toes. xxiij. in all. And was also of the kindred of Paraphah in Geth, and defyed Israel. And Jonathas the sonne of Samach, the brother of Dauid slew him. These foure were of the sonnes of Paraphah in Geth, & were ouerthrowne by the hande of Dauid and by the handes of his seruantes.

The. xxii. Chapter.

The Lanticle of songe of Dauid for the deliuerance from his enemyes.

AND Dauid spake the wordes of this song vnto the Lorde, what tyme the Lorde had deliuered him oute of the handes of all his enemyes, and out of the handes of Saul.

And he sayde: the Lorde is my rocke, my castel, and my deliuerer. God is my strength, and in him wyl I truste: my shilde and the horne that defendeth me: myne hie holde and refuge: O my Sa- uer, saue me from wronge.

* I wyl prayse and cal on the Lorde, and so shal be saued from myne enemyes. For the waues of deeth haue closed me aboute, & the floudes of Belial haue feared me. The cordes of hel haue compassed me aboute, & the snares of deeth haue ouertaken me. In my tribulacion I called to the Lorde, and cryed to my God. And he hearde my voyce oute of his temple, & my crye entred into his eares. And the erth trembled & quoke, and the foundacio of heuen moued and shoke, because he was angrie.

Smoke went vp out of his nostrelles, and consumynge fyre out of his mouth, that coles were kyndled of him. And he bowed heuen, and came downe, & darcknesse was vnderneath his fete. And he rode vpon Cherub & flew: & appered vpon the wynges of the wynde. And he made darcknesse a tabernacle rounde aboute him, with water gathered together in thicke cloudes. Of the bryghtnesse, that was before him, coles were set on fyre.

The Lorde thundred from heuen, and the most hye put out his voyce. And he shotte arrowes, and skatered them: and hurled lyghtenynge & turmoyled them. And the bottome of the sea appered, and the foundations of the world were sene, by the reason of the rebukynge of the Lorde, and thow the blastynge of the breath of his nostrelles. He sente from an hye and set me, and plucked me oute of myghtie waters.

He deliuered me from my mightie enemye, and from them that hated me, and were to stronge for me. When they had compassed me in the day of my tribulacion, the Lorde stayed me vp. And he brought me out into towne, and deliuered me, because he deliued in me.

* The Lorde rewarded me accordynge to my ryghtwysnesse: and accordynge to the purenesse of my handes he dealt wth me. For I kept the wayes of the Lorde, and dyd no wyckednesse for lakynge my God. But I had all his lawes in my syght, and turned my face from none of his ordynaunces. But was pure vnto himwarde, and kept my selfe from wickednesse.

And the Lorde dyd to me agayne, accordynge to my ryghteousnesse, and after my purenesse that I had in his syghte. With the holpe thou shalt be holy, and with the man that is vncorrupte, thou shalt be vncorrupte. With the pure thou shalt be pure, and wth the froward thou shalt be frowarde also. And the poore people that are in aduersite, thou shalt helpe. And on the proude shalt thou caste thynne eyes. Thou arte my lyght O Lorde, and the Lorde shal lyght my darcknesse.

With thy helpe I wyl runne thow an hoste of men, and by the ayde of my h.ii. God

Roma. 2.8

That is, the dedes of God are pure and his corrupte.

God wpll sprynge ouer a walle. The waye of God is vndefiled, and þ word of the Lorde sƿned as golde, and he is a shyld to all that trust in him.

Who is a God saue the Lorde: and who is myghtie, saue oure God? God is my strength in warre, and ryddeth þ waye cleare before me. And maketh my fete as swyfte as an hyndes, and setteth me fast vpon my hye holde.

ps. cxliiii. a

* And teacheth my handes to fyghte, that a bowe of brasse is to weake for myne armes.

And thou haste saued me with thy shyld, & keppest me euer in meakenes. And thou madest me space to walke in, that my fete shoulde not stamble. I folowed myne enemies & destroyed them, and turned not agayne vntyll I had consumed them.

I wasted them and so clouted them, that they coude not aryle: but fell vnder my fete.

And thou compassedest me about with might to battel, and madest them that a rose agaynst me to stoupe vnder me.

That is, to rurne awaye & flee from me.

And thou madest myne enemyes, to turne their backs to me, and the that hated me, and I destroyed them. They looked for helpe: But none came to saue them, vnto the Lorde they cryed, but he hearde them not.

And I wpll beate them as smal as the dust of the erth, and wil stape them as the dytte of the strete, & wil spreade them abroad.

And thou deliueredst me from þ dyscensio of my people, and kepest me to be an heade ouer nacions: for the people which I knew not, becæ my seruautes.

And the alpenes crouched vnto me, and obeyed me at a worde.

And the alpenes that shyrike as waye shall tremble for feare in theyr defended places.

That is, eue there where the church and hyde them selues: althoughe in strong holdes.

And deliuereth me from myne enemyes, thou lpfest me by on hye from them that ryle agaynst me, and deliuerest me from the wycked men.

The notes.

a. Godly men haue called the Lorde by diuers names accordynge to theyr saythe: that is as they thought of God with in them selues, and as they also had proued. As David here called hym bys rocke, his castell, his deliuerer, his strength, his shyld, his house of defence. ps. lxxvi. a.

b. To synge vnto the name of God is a common maner of speakynge to the psalmist, for to goure charytes and to shewe the vertue and glorye of God, as in the psalm. xxxi. c.

The. xliii. Chapter.

The last communicacion of David, and the descripcion of the myghtye men to hym belongynge.

These be the last saytynges of David. David þ sonne of Isai said: And the man (is lpfte by on hye, the anoynted of the God of Jacob, and pleasaunt psalmist of Israel) sayde: the spirite of the Lorde spake in me, and his wordes were on my tonge. The God of Israel spake vnto me, and the strength of Israel sayde: he that beareth rule ouer men, he that ruleth iustlye in the feare of God. And he shalbe as the moonyng light, when the sunne shineth in a moonyng in whiche are no cloudes to let the byghtnesse, and as the grasse of the erth is by the vertue of þ raine: And is not myne house so with God? in that he hath made to me an eueryday synge couenaunte, perfecte in al popnytes: and in that he shal fulfill al that is healesome vnto me, and all my desires therto. When the vntyngnes me are al of the ag thornes taken oute of theyr places, whiche cannot be taken by handes: But the man that shal touch them, must be armed by yron, or a long helme. * And then shall they be burnte with fyre to sƿt therby.

These be the names of the myghtye men that were aboute David: b. Ioseb of Sebeth the Thachmonte, fyrste of thre, otherwyle called Adino the Homite, which lue. viii. hundred at one time. And nexte to him Eleazar the sonne of Dodai the sonne of Ahohi, one of the thre pryncypall that were with David, whiche when they desyed the phyllystynes that were there gathered together in battell (and the men of Israel Israel were gone by) arose layd on the Philistines vntyll hys hande asked and claue vnto the swerde. And the Lorde made a great victorie the same daye. And the Lord gaue him a great victorie.

* And these thre of the thirtie of the Lordes went downe and came to Dauid in the haruest tyme vnto the caue of Adullam. And the host of the Philistines had pyched in the valey of Geraunt. And Dauid was then in an holde. And the Soudiours of & Philistines were then in Bethlehem. And Dauid longed and sayde: Oh, that I had of the water that is in the well in the gate of Bethlehe for to drynke. And anone the thre myghtie brake throzowe the host of the Philistines, and fet water out of the well of Bethlehem & was in the gate, & toke & brought it to Dauid: neuerthelesse he would not drinke therof, but offered it vnto the Lorde, and said: the Lord forbyd & I should do so, shoulde I drinke & bloude of & men that were in leoparde of their lyues: and so he would not drinke it. These thinges dyd these thre myghtie men.

Then Abisai the brother of Joab, the sonne of Saruias: he was a captayne ouer & thre, and he lyfte by his speare agaynst thre hundred, & slue them, and was named with the thre. For he was nobler man then the thre, & was theyr captayne. Howe be it he attayned not vnto those thre in actes.

sayde to Joab the captayne of his host: go abroade I praye the, thorowe out al the trybes of Israel, euen from Dan to Bersabe and nombre the people, that I maye knowe the nombre of them. And Joab sayde vnto the kynge: I beseeche that the Lorde thy God, make the people as many moo as they be: yea, & an hundred tymes so many mo, and that the eyes of my Lord the kyng may se them. But howe is it that my Lord the kyng hath a luste in this thyng? Notwithstandynge the kynges wordes preuailed against Joab, and against al the captaynes of the hoste.

Then Joab and the captaynes of the host, wente out from the presens of the kynge, to betwe the people of Israel. And they passed ouer Jordan, & pitched in Aroer on the ryghte syde of the citie that lyeth in the middes of the valley of Gad and so forth to Jazer. And then they went to Gilead and to the nether lande of Hodesi, and from thence to Dan Jaan, and aboute to Sidon, and came to the stronge towne of Tyre, and to al the cities of the Heuites and of the Cananites, and then wente oute to the South of Iuda, euen to Bersabe. And so when they had bene abrode thorowe out al the lande, they returned to Jerusalem agayne, at the ende of nyne monethes and twentie dayes. And the Joab deliuered by the rekenynge of the nombre of the people vnto the kynge. And there were founde in Israel eynge hundred thousande men of myght that drewe swerdes. And the men of Iuda were fyue hundred thousande men.

And Dauids heart smote him, after that he had nombred the people. And he sayd vnto the Lorde: I haue synned exceedingly in that I haue done. And now Lorde take awaye the trespass of thy seruauant: for I haue done very folishe. And when Dauid was by in a mornynge, the worde of the Lord came vnto the prophete Gad, Dauids sear, sayinge: go and say vnto Dauid, this sayeth the Lorde. I offer the thre thynges, chole whiche of them I shal do to the.

And Gad came to Dauid and shewed him, and sayde vnto him: whether wilt thou haue. bit. peres hunger in the lande, or if thou slee the monethes before thyne enemies, & they solowenge the, or that there be thre dayes pestilence in the lande. Nowe vnderstande and se, what worde I shal bring agayne to him that sent me. Then said Dauid vnto Gad: I am in a maruelous strait. * But let me fall I praye the, into the handes of the Lorde, for muche is his mercye, and let me not falle into the handes of men.

And the Lorde sente a pestilence in Israel from the mornynge vnto the ende of the tyme appoynted. And there died of the people betwene Dan and Bersabe. lxx. thousande men. And whē the Angel stretched out his hande vpon Jerusalem to haue destroyed it, the Lorde had compassion to do that cruel and sayde to the Angell that destroyed the people: it is sufficiente: let thyne hande cease. And the Angel was at the threshynge place of Arefnah the Jebusite. Then spake Dauid vnto the Lorde (when he sawe the Angel that smote the people,) & said: loo, it is I that haue sinned, and I that haue done wyckedly. But these shepe, what haue they done? let I praye the thine hande be on me and on my fathers house.

And Gad came the same day to Dauid, and said vnto him: go by and reare an aultare vnto the Lord in the threshynge flowre of Arefnah the Jebusite. And Dauid (accordynge to the sayings of Gad) went by as the Lorde commaunded. And when Arefnah looked, and sawe the kynge, and his seruantes comynge towarde him, he went oute: and bowed him selfe to the kynge, flat on his face to the grounde, and sayde: wherfor is my Lorde the kynge come to his seruante? And Dauid said: to bye the threshynge flowre of the, for to make an aultare vnto the Lord, that the plague may cease from the people.

And Arefnah sayde vnto the kynge: let my Lorde the kynge take and offer what semeth him good in his eyes: be holde here be oxen for sacrifice, and heawdes, and the other instrumentes of the oxen for wood. And Arefnah the kynge stonde gaue all to the kynge, and sayde moreouer vnto the kynge: the Lorde thy God accepte the. But the kynge sayde vnto Arefnah: not so, but I will

And Dauid bylt there an aultare vnto the Lorde, and offered burnt sacrifices and peaceofferpynges. And so the Lorde was agreed with the lande. And the plague ceased from Israel.

When kyng Dauid, was waxen olde & styken in yeres, though they couered him w clothes, yet he caughte no heate: wherfore his seruantes said vnto him: let there be soughte for my Lorde the kyng a younge mayden to wayte vpon him and to cheryshe hym. And let her lye in thy bosome, that my Lorde the kyng may get heate. And so they soughte for a fayre Damosel thowt out al the coostes of Israel, & founde one Abisag a Sunamite and broughte her to the kyng. And the Damosel was exceedyng fayre, and cheryshed þ kyng and ministred to him: But the kyng knewe her not.

But Adoniah the sonne of Hagith exalted him selfe, sayinge: I wil be kyng. And he gat him a charet and horsemen, and fyfye men to runne before hym. And his father rebuked hym not at any tyme, nor sayd so much to hym, as why dost thou so. And he was therto a goodly man, and his mother bare him nexte after Absalom. And he continued with Ioab the sonne of zacariah, & with Abiathar the priest. And they holpe Adoniah. But Sadock the priest, Banasah the sonne of Jehoiada, Nathan the prophet, Semei and Rei, and all þ men of myght which were with Dauid, fauoured not Adoniah. And Adoniah sacrificed shepe and oren, and fatpynges at the stone of zohelath, whiche is faste by the well of Rogel, and bad al his brethren the kynges sonnes, and all the men of Iuda the kynges seruantes. But Nathan the prophet and Banasah and the myghtye men and Salomon his brother he bad not.

Wherupon Nathan spake vnto Bethsabe the mother of Salomon, sayinge: hast thou not hearde howe that Adoniah the sonne of Hagith dothe ragne, vnto the kyng vnto our master Dauid. Nowe therfore come that I maye geue the counsell, howe to saue thyne owne lyfe, and the lyfe of thy sonne Salomon. And se, whyle thou yet talkest there with the kyng, I wyl come in after the, and wyl ende thy wordes.

And Bethsabe went in vnto þ kyng into the chambere. And the kyng was very olde, and Abisag the Sunamite ministred vnto him. And Bethsabe stouped and made obeysaunce vnto the kyng. And the kyng sayde: what is thy matter. And she answered and said: My Lorde, thou swarest by the Lorde thy God vnto thyne handmayde: Salomon thy sonne shall raigne after me, and he shall sit vpon my seate. But nowe se, Adoniah is kyng, & thou my Lord, the kyng wottest it not. And he hath offered oren, fatpynges, and shepe aboudantly, and hath called al the sonnes of þ kyng, and Abiathar the priest, and Ioab the captaine of the hoste. And beholde whyle the yet talked with the kyng, Nathan the prophet was come. And they tolde the king, say- ing: here cometh Nathan the prophet. And when he was come before the kyng, he made obeysaunce vnto the king vpon his face vnto the ground, and said:

D My Lord o kyng hast thou said, Adoniah shal raygne after me, & he shall sit vpon my seate: for he is gone downe this daye, and hath offered oxen, fatlinges, & shepe aboundantly, and hath called all the kynges sonnes and the cap- taines of the host, & Abiathar the priest. And se, they eate and drinke before him and saye. God saue kyng Adoniah. But me thy seruauit and Sadock the priest, and Banaiah the sonne of Jehoiada, and thy seruante Salomon he hath not called. Is this thyng done of my Lord the kyng, and yet woldest not shewe me thy seruauit, who should sit on the seate of my Lord the kyng after him?

Then kyng David answered, and said: call me Bethsabe. And she came in and stode before him. And the kyng swate, saying: As sure as the Lord (that hath tye my soule out of all aduersyte) liueth: euen as I swate vnto the by the Lord God of Israel, saying: Salomō thy sonne shal raygne after me, and he shall sit vpon my seate for me, so wyll I do this daye. And Bethsabe bowed on her face to the erth, & dyd obeysaunce vnto the kyng, and sayd: I pray God my Lord kyng David maye liue euer.

E Then sayde kyng David: call me Sadock the priest, and Nathan the prophet, and Banaiah the sonne of Jehoiada. And when they came before the kyng. The kyng said vnto them: take ye pou the seruantes of your Lord, and set Salomon my sonne vpon myne owne Mule, and carpe him downe to Gihon.

And let Sadock the priest, & Nathan the prophet anoynte him there, to be kyng ouer Israel. And then blowe ye with trompettes, and saye: God saue kyng Salomon. And then come vp after him, and let him come and sit vpon my seate. For he shal be kyng in my steade. And him I haue comaunded to be captayne ouer Israel and Juda. And Banaiah the sonne of Jehoiada answered the kyng, and said: Amen, and so I praye God that the Lord God of my Lord the kyng say so to. And as the Lord hath bene with my Lord the kyng, euen so, I praye God that he may be with Salomon, and that he make his seate gloriouser then the seate of my Lord kyng David.

And so Sadock the priest & Nathan the prophet, and Banaiah the sonne of Jehoiada, and the Crethites and the lethites went downe, and set Salomon vpon kyng Davids Mule, & brought him to Gihon. And Sadock the priest toke an horn of oyle out of the tabernacle, & anoynted Salomō. And al they of the people blewe trompettes, and al they said: God saue kyng Salomō. And al the people came vp after him, piping with pypes, and reioysyng greatly, so that the erthe range with the sounde of them.

And Adoniah and al the gesses that were with him, hearde it, euen as they had made an ende of eatyng. And when Joab hearde the sounde of the tropet, he sayde: howe happeneth it that there is suche a noyse in the cyttyer. And as he yet spake, se, Jonathas the sonne of Abiathar the priest, came. And Adoniah sayde: come in, for thou arte a lustye bloude, and byngest good tydpuges. And Jonathas answered and sayde to Adoniah: Merely our lord kyng David hath made Salomō kyng. And the kyng sent to him, Sadock the priest, & Nathan the prophet: & Banaiah the sonne of Jehoiada, & the Crethites & the thelethites, & they haue set him vpon the kyngs Mule. And Sadock the priest & Nathan the prophet haue anoynted him kyng in Gihon. And as they came vp againe, & reioysed, the citty did soude againe. And this is the noyse ye haue heard. And therto Salomō sitteth on the seate of the kyngdome. And mozeouer the kynges seruantes went in to blesse our lord kyng David, say- ing: thy god make the name of Salomō moze honourable then thy name, and his seate moze gloriouser then thine. And the kyng bowed him selfe vpon the beed. And last of all thus sayde the kyng: blessed be the Lord God of Israel: which hath made

And there was a seat set for the kyng's mother, & she sat on his right side. The she sayde: I must desire a litle peticion of the: I praye the *saye me not naye. And y<sup>e</sup> kyng sayd vnto her: aske on my mother: for I wil not say the naye. And she sayd: let Abisag the Sunamite be geuen to Adoniah thy brother to wyfe. And kyng Salomon answered, & sayd vnto his mother: why doest thou aske Abisag the Sunamite for Adoniah: but rather aske for hym y<sup>e</sup> kyngdome, seinge he is mine elder brother: eue for him aske it & for Abiathar the priest, & for Joab the sonne of zacariah. Then kyng Salomon sware by the Lorde, sayinge: <sup>a</sup>God do so to me, & so thereto yf Adoniah haue not spoken this word agaynst his own life. And so Salomon put away Abiathar fro be yng priest vnto the Lorde: to fulfyl the wordes of the Lorde whiche he spake ouer the house of Eli in Siloh. Then tithynges came to Joab: for Joab had tourned after Adoniah but not after Salomon. Wher vpon he fled vnto the tabernacle of the Lorde and caughte *handfast on the hornes of the aulter. And the kyng sayde: do euen as he hath sayde: smyte hym, & burie hym, & take awaye the bloude (whiche Joab shed causelesse) frome me and from the house of my father. And y<sup>e</sup> Lorde byng his bloude vpo hys owne head, for he smote two men ryght wyser and better then he, and slue them with the swerde, my father vnwetyng: euen Abner the sone of Ner, captayne of the host of Israel, and Amasa y<sup>e</sup> sonne of Jether, captayne of the hoozte of Iuda. And their bloud retorne vpon the head of Joab, and on the head of hys seede for euer. And prosperite be vnto Dauid, & vnto hys seed, and vnto his house, and vnto hys seate, of the Lorde for euer.

And Banaiah the sonne of Jehoiada went vp, and smote him, & slue him, & buried him in hys owne house in the wilderness. And the kyng put Banaiah the sone of Jehoiada in his rowme ouer the hoozte, and put Sadocke the priest in the rowme of Abiathar.

Then the kyng sent and called Semei, and sayde vnto him: buylde the an house in Ierusalem, & dwel there: & see that thou goe not once thence any whither, for be thou sure of it, the day thou goest out & passest ouer y<sup>e</sup> ryuer of Cedron, thou shalt dye for it, & thy bloude shall be on thyne owne head. And Semei sayde vnto the king: it is wel said: as my lord the kyng hath sayde, so wyl hys seruaunte doe. And Semei dwelt in Ierusalem manye a day. And it chauced at the end of thre yerres that two of the seruauntes of Semei rane awaye vnto Achis sonne of Maacah kyng of Geth. And one tolde Semei, sayinge: se, thy seruauntes be in Geth. the kinge sent & called Semet, & sayde vnto him: dyd not I adiure the by the Lord, & testifie vnto the, saying: be sure whe so euer thou goest out, & walkest abroad anye whether, thou shalte dye for it: And thou answeredst me: it is good tydynges that I haue hearde. Why then hast thou not kept the oth of the Lorde, and the comaundement that I commaunded thee.

And then the kinge sayde to Semet: *thou remembrest all the wyckednesse which thyne heart knoweth, that thou diddest to Dauid my father. The Lord therefore render agayne thy wickednes vpon thyne owne head: & kinge Salomon be blessed, & the seate of Dauid be stablyshed before the Lorde for euer. And þe kyng commaunded Banatah the sonne of Jeholada: whiche went oute & smote hym that he dyed. And so was the kyngdome stablyshed in the hande of Salomon.

Salomon taketh Pharaos daughter to wyfe. The Lorde apereyth to hym and geueth hym wysedome. The playnyng of þe two harlottes who shoulde owe the lyf of a childe: and Salomons sentence therein.

When Salomon drewe affinite with Pharaos king of Egypt, and toke Pharaos daughter & brought her in to the city of Dauid, vntil he had made an ende of byldynge hys owne house, & the house of þe Lord, & the walles of Ierusalē rōude aboute. Only þe people sacrificed in aulters made on hylls, because there was no house bylt vnto þe name of þe Lord, vntil thole dayes. And Salomon loued the Lorde, and walked in the ordinaunces of Dauid his father, saue only that he sacrificed & offered incense vpon aulters in hylls. *And þe kinge went to Gibeon, to offer therfor þe was a great offerig place. And there Salomon offered a thousande burnt offeringes vpon þe aulter. And in Gibeon the Lorde appeared to Salomon in a dreame by nyghte. And God sayd: aske what I shall geue the. And Salomon sayd: thou hast thewed vnto thy seruante Dauid my father greute merce, accorpyng as he walked before the in truth, & in righteousnes, & playnesse of heart with the. And thou hast kept for hym this great mercie, & thou hast geue him a sonne, to syt on hys seate: as it is come to passe thys daye. * And nowe Lorde, my God, it is thou that hast made thy seruante kyng in steade of Dauid my father. * And I am a yōge lad & wote not how to order my selfe. And thy seruant is in the middes of thy people, whiche thou hast cholen, a people that are so manye that they cā not be told nor nombred for multitude. * Geue therefore vnto thy seruante an vnderstandynge hearte, to iudge thy people, & to decerne betwene good & bad. For who is able to iudge this thy so weyghtie a people?

And it pleased the Lorde well, that Salomō had desired this thing. Wherefore God sayd vnto him: because thou hast asked this thing, & haste not asked long lyfe, neither hast asked riches, nor the liues of thyne enemies, but hast asked the discrecion to vnderstāde equite. Se, I haue done accorpyng to thy petition: and behold, I haue geuen the a wise and an vnderstandynge heart, so þe there was none like the before the, neither after the shal any aryse lyke vnto the. And thereto I haue geuen the that which þe askedest not, both riches, & honoure: so that there shall be no kyng lyke the al thy dayes. And yf thou wilt walke in my wayes, to kepe myne ordinaunces and comaundemēt, as Dauid thy father dyd walke, I wyll lenger then thy dayes also. When Salomon awoke, this was hys dreame. * And he came to Ierusalē & presented him selfe before the arcke of the testament of the Lorde, and offered burnt offeringes and peace offeringes, and made a feast to all his seruantes.

Then came there two women, that were harlottes vnto the kyng, & stode before hym. And the one of the sayd: my lord: I & thys woman dwell bothe in one house. And I was deliuered of a childe wher in the sayde house: And þe thiede day after þe I was deliuered, she was deliuered also: we two beynge together and no straunger wās in the house, saue we two alone. ¶ Hiram sendeth Cedar timbre to þ byldyngs of the temple. The dyscrecion of the workes.

And Hiram kinge of Tyre sent his seruauntes vnto Salomon, for he had hearde, þ they had anoynted hi king in þ rowme of his father. * And therto Hiram was euer a louer of Dauid. * And Salomō set agayne to Hiram, sayng: þ knowest of Dauid my father, how he coulde not bylde an house vnto þ name of þ Lord his God, for war whiche he had on euery syde, vntyl the Lord had put the vnder þ soles of his fete. But now the Lord my God hath geue me rest on euery syde, so þ there is nether aduersarpe, nor any euil plage.

And therfore I am disposed to bylde an house vnto the name of the Lord my God, as he promysed Dauid my father, sayinge: thy sonne which I wyll put vpon thy seate for the, he shal bilde an house vnto my name. Nowe then comaunde þ they hewe me Cedar trees in Libanon. And let my seruauntes be wth thine, & I wil geue þ hire of the seruauntes, in all suche thynges as thou shalt appoynte, for thou knowest that there are not amonge vs, that can skyl to hewe timbre, lyke vnto the Sidons.

When Hiram heard the wordes of Salomon, he reioysed greatly, & sayd: Blessed be the Lord this daye, whiche hath set Dauid a wyse sonne ouer this myghtye people. And Hiram sent agayne to Salomon, sayinge: I haue accept the request whiche thou sentest to me for, & wyll satisfie all thy luste, concernyng timbre of Cedar trees and fyre. My seruauntes shal brynge the fro Libanon to the sea. And I wyll conuey the by shipp vnto the place þ thou shalte sende me worde, and wyll cause the to be discharged there, that thou mayst receyue them. And þ shalt do me this pleasure agayne, to minister fode for myne house. And so Hiram gaue Salomō Cedar trees, & fyre trees, as muche as he desired. And Salomon gaue Hiram twētie thousand quarters of wheate to fede his household withal, & .xx. buttes of pure oyle. And so much gaue Salomō to Hiram yere by yere.

And the Lord gaue Salomon wysdome as he promysed hym. And there was peace betwene Hiram and Salomon, & they were confedered together. And kynge Salomon reyled a tribute thowowe out all Israel. And the tribute was thirtie thousande men, whiche he sente to Libanon, .x. thousande a moneth by course, so þ they were .i. moneth in Libanon, & .ii. monethes at home.

The. vi. Chapter.

The frame & forme of þe temple porch and anteer. v.

AND it came to passe, the four hundred & foure score yere (after the chylde of Israel were come out of þe lade of Egypt) * & þe in þe fourth yere of the raigne of Salomon hyon Israel, & the seconde moneth called * zif, þe he * began to bilde þe temple vnto þe Lorde. And þe house whiche Salomon bylte for the Lorde, was thre score cubites long and twentye brode, & thyrtye cubites hye. And the * porch that was before the bodie of the temple, was twentie cubites long, after þe measure of þe bredeth of the house, & ten brode, euen at þe verpe ende of þe house. And he made vnto the house windowes to open and shutte.

And vnder þe walles of the house he made galaries rounde aboute, bothe rounde aboute the temple and also the quere. And so made syde rounde about. And the nethermoste galarie was .v. cubytes brode, & the myddle galarie vi. And the thirde. vii. cubites brode. For he made the walles without wher on the beames lay, euer thinner & thinner, so that they were not fastened in the walles of the house. And the house was bylte of stone, made perfecte all readye per it was broughte thither, so that there was neither hammer or axe ether anye tole of yron heard in the house, whyle it was in byldynge.

B And the doore of the middle galarie was in þe ende of þe house on the righte syde. And men went by with windyng seares into the myddle galarie, and out of the myddle into þe thyrde. And so he bylte the house, and finished it, and couerte it with beames of Cedar timber, made holow and ioyned together. And then he bylt chambers ouer al the temple of fyue cubytes heygth, & coupled the house together with beames of Cedar.

And the worde of the Lorde came to Salomon, sayinge: concernynge the house whiche thou art in byldynge, if thou wylte walke in myne ordynaces, and execute my lawes, and kepe all my commandementes, to walke in the: Then wyl I make good vnto thee my promysse * whiche I promysed Dauid thy father. * And I wyl dwel amonge the children of Israel, and wyl not forsake my people Israel. And so therfore Salomon bylte the house and finished it, and spyled the walles of the house within, with ribbes of Cedar tre: euen from the pauemente vnto þe rouffe dyd he spyle it within, and boarded the floure of the house with planches of firre.

And he spyled twentie cubytes in the ende of the temple bothe floore & walles, wth bordes of Cedar, and dressed it within to be the quere & place most holye. And þe first house, that is to say, the body of þe temple without, was fourtie cubites longe. And the Cedar of þe house within, was karued wth knoppes, & grauen with floures, & all was Cedar timber, so that no stone was sene. And the quere þe was within the temple, he prepared to set there the arcke of þe appoyntment of the Lorde. And the quere before, was .xx. cubytes longe, and twentie in bredeth, & twelue in height. And spyled it with pure golde, and boarded the aulter with Cedar.

And Salomon filled the house with in also with pure golde. And he made golden barres runne along the quere, whiche he had couered with gold. And the whole house, he ouerlayde wth golde, vntill he had ended it. And the aulter that was in the quere, he ouerlayde with golde also.

And within the quere he made two * Cherubins of oliue tre, tē cubites hie a pece, and every wyngē fyue cubites longe: so that fro the vntermost part of þe one wyngē vnto the vntermost part of the other, were ten cubytes.

And the other Cherub was ten cubytes hye also: so that both Cherubes were of one measure and one spyle. The heygth of the one Cherub was ten cubites, & so was it of the other. And he put the Cherubes in the myddle of the inner house. * And the Cherubes stretched their wynges, so that the one wyngē of the one touched the one wall, and

and the one wyng of the other touched the other wall. And the other two wynges of the touched one another in the myddes of the house. And he ouerlaped the Cherubes with golde.

And all the walles of the house rounde aboute, he garnyshed wth worke of Cherubes and paulme trees, and graue floures, bothe within the quere, and wythoute in the temple. And the floure of the house he couered wth golde bothe within the quere and also wythoute the temple. And in the enterpyng of the quere he made two dozes of olyue tree, wyth the bypper and two syde postes fyue square. And the two dozes of olyue tree, he graued the wth grauing of Cherubes, and paulme trees: and graued floures, and couered them with golde, and layde golde ouer the Cherubes and also the paulme trees. And in like maner vnto the doze of the temple, he made postes of olyue tree. iiii. square, and two dozes of fyre tree, and ether doze wyth two foldyng leues, & graued thereon Cherubes paulme trees, and floures, and couered them with golde made playne by a ruelar.

And then he bylte the inner courte wyth thre rowes of hewed stone, and one rowe of Cedar woode.

In the fourthe yere of hys raygne was the foundation of the house of the Lorde layde, euen in the moneth of *zif, and in the xi. yere of the moneth *bul, which is s. viii. moneth, it was fulfilled in all that pertayned thereto, & fashioned as it shuld be in al poyntes: and so was he. vii. yere in byldyng of it.

¶ The. vii. Chapter.

The byldyng of the house of Salomon. The house of Pharaos daughter. The forme of the pylars of brasle, of the bylden sea. &c.

AND Salomon bilt his owne house in. xiii. yere space, and ful finished it. And he bylte the house of the woode of Libanon, an hundred cubites longe, and fiftie brode, & thyrtye hie, foute square with rowes of Cedar pylars, & Cedar beames alonge vpon the pylars. And sth rowe was Cedar aboute an hie vpon the beames that laye an hie on the pylars, whych pylars were foute and fyue in nobre, & fteene on a row.

and sth spaces betwene the pylars were one agaynste an other thre folde. And all the doozes wyth syde postes were foute square, one agaynste another thre folde.

And he made a porche of pylars fyfte cubites longe, and thyrtye cubites brode: and yet a porche before that wth pylars, and a thyrke pylar before that. Then he made a porche to syt and iudge in, syled with Cedar thow out al the pauemētes. And hys owne house (where he kepte resydence in another courte wythoute the porche) was of the same worcke. And then Salomon made an house for Pharaos daughter: whiche he had taken to wyfe, lyke vnto that porche.

And all these thynges were of ryche stones hewed after a measure, and sawed wyth sawes within & wythoute, euen frome the foundation vnto that wheron the beames were layde, and on the out syde therto towarde the greate courte. And the foundation was of ryche stones, and sth mightie great stones, of ten cubites, & of egypte. And aboue were ryche stones hewed accordyng to the same syle, and also with Cedar. And the greate courte rounde aboute was with thre rowes of hewed stones and one rowe of Cedar planches. And lyke wyfe was it in the pinner courte of the house of sth Lorde, & of the porche of the temple. And kynge Salomon sent and fet one Hiram out of Tyre, a wisedowes sonne of the trybe of Nephtalim, his father beyng of Tyre. Which Hiram was a craftes man in brasle, and * full of wysdome, vnderstandyng and connyng, to woorken all maner of woorken in brasle. And he came to kynge Salomon, and wroughte al hys woorken. He caste two * pylars of brasle, of. xviii. cubites a pece hie, and a stryng of. xii. cubites myghte compassse ether of the aboute. And he made two heed peces of molten brasle, to set on the toppes of the pylars, of fyue cubytes longe a pece, wth garlandes of brodyed woorken, and whopes of chayne woorken for the heed peces that were on the pylars. vii. for the one & vii. for sth other. And he made the pylars, and for ether of the heed peces a garland with two two rowes of pomegranetes to couer the wal. And the heed peces that were on the toppes of þe pyllars were wrought with lyknes in þe porche the space of foure cubites of them. And þe pomegranetes aboue & benethe on the wzethen chaynes that compassed the middle of the heed peces were in nombre two hundred on ether heed pece. And he set vp the pyllars in the porche of the temple, and when he had sette vp the ryghte piller, he called þe name therof Jachin, and when he had set vp the left piller he called the name thereof Boaz. And the toppes of the pyllers were thus wrought with lyknes, and so was their workmanshyppe finished.

ii. pa. iii. a * Then he cast a sea of brasse, ten cubites wyde from bryn to bryn & round in compass, and fyue cubites hye. And a stryng of .xxx. cubytes might compass it about, and vnder the bryn of it as it were apples compassed and embrazed the sea of ten cubytes wyde in two rowes caste wpyth it when it was cast. And it stode on twelue oxen of whiche thre looked North, thre Weste, thre South, & thre East, & the sea on hie vpon them, & al their hynder partes were inward. And it was an hand breadeth thicke, and the bryn wrought lyke the bryn of a cuppe with floutes of lylies. Dr. thre. ii. pa. iii. a And it contayned * two thousande Bathes.

C And he made ten botomes of brasse, foure cubytes longe, & foure cubytes brode a pece, & thre hye. And the work of the botomes was on this maner, that þe sydes were as it were flat bordes betwene the ledges. And on the flat bordes betwene the ledges were lyons, oxen and Cherubes. And vpon the ledges that were aboue: and benethe the lions & oxen, was toynd pendat worke. And euery botome had foure brasen wheles, whose axeltrees were also of brasse. And in the foure corners were underfettters vnder the lauatozpe caste sche ouer agaynst hys felowe.

And the stalcke of the lauatozpe was in the myddle of the botome one cubite hye, and a cubyt and an halfe rounde, and it had knoppes there on in þe bare places whiche were foure square not rounde. And vnder þe sydes were foure wheles and their axeltrees toynd fast to the botome. And the heygth of euery whele was a cubyte and an halfe. And the workmanshyppe of the wheles was lyke the worke of a charer whele. And the axeltrees, the nauelles, spokes and shaftes were all molten. And the foure underfettters in the foure corners were of the verye botomes.

And vnder the stalcke of the lauatozpe in the myddes of the botome was there a rounde fote of halfe a cubyte hye. And thereon playne places and ledges of the self. And he graued in the playne and also on the ledges, Cherubes, Lyons and paulme trees, euery where rounde aboute. And on this maner he made the tenne botomes caste worke: al of one measure, and one stile. Then he made tenne lauers of brasse, contaynyng foure Bathes a pece, and they were of foure cubytes a pece, for euery one of þe botomes a lauer. And he put fyue of those botomes on the ryghte corner of the temple, and other fyue on the lefte: And putte the sea on the ryghte corner of the temple Eastwarde and towarde the South.

And Hiram made pottes, shouelles, and basons, and so finished all the worke that he made kyng Salomon for the house of the Lorde: That is to saye, two pyllars, and two skalpes of the heades that were on the toppes of the two pyllars, and foure hundred pomegranetes vpon two wzethes, two rowes on ether wzethe, to couer the two skalpes of the heades that were on the toppes of the two pyllars: And the ten botomes of brasse with ten lauers vpon them: and a sea with twelue oxen vnder it: And pottes shouelles and basens. And all these vessels whych Hiram made to kyng Salomon for the house of þe Lorde were of bygght brasse. And in the playne of Jordan dyd the kyng caste them: Euen in the clape of the earthe betwene Socoh and zartha. And Salomon left al the vessels vniwarped, for the exceedinge abundaunce of brasce that was in them.

* And Salomon made all the vessels that pertayned vnto þe house of the Lorde: The aulter of golde, and the table of golde wheron the shewe bread was

was put: And fyue cadellstiches, for the ryght syde, and as many for þe left, befoze the quere, of pure golde: and with flowres, lampes, and snoffers of gold: and bolles, psalteries, basos, spones and fyve pannes of pure golde: a hynges of golde bothe for the dozes of the quere, the place most holpe, and for the dozes of the temple also.

And so was ended all the worke that kyng Salomon made for the house of the Lord. And the * Salomō brought in the thynges whiche Dauid his father had dedicated in syluer, golde and other vesselles, and put the to the treasure of the house of the Lord.

The. viii. Chapter.

The Arcke is borne in to the temple. A Cloude fylled the temple. The Temple is blessed.

When * Salomon gathered the elders of Israel, all the heedes of the trybes and auncient Lordes of þe chyldre of Israel, vnto him to Jerusale, to byngge vp the Arcke of the apoyntment of the Lord, * oute of the cytie of Dauid, which is Sion. And all the men of Israel assembled vnto king Salomō, to the feast that falleth in the moneth * Ethanim, which is the seuēth moneth. And when all the elders of Israel were come, þe prestes toke vp the Arcke of the Lord, and brought it and also the tabernacle of witnesse: and all the holpe vesselles that were therein. And the prestes & the Leuites brought them vp. And kyng Salomon, and all the congregacion of Israel, that were assembled, and wēt with him befoze the Arcke, dyd offer shepe and oxen, that coulde not be tolde nor nombred for multitude.

And so the prestes brought the Arcke of the apoyntment of the Lord vnto his place: euē into the quere of the temple, and place most holy, vnder the wynges of the Cherubes. For þe Cherubes stretched oute their wynges ouer the Arcke, and couered bothe it, and also þe stauess therof a hye vpon it. Now be it the stauess were so longe that the endes of the appered out of the holy place befoze the quere, but were not sene without. And there they be vnto this daye. And there was a nothyng in the Arcke * saue the two tables of ston which Moyses put there at Horeb, when the Lord made an appoyntment with the chyldren of Israel after they were come out of Egypt.

And whē the prestes were come out of the holy place, then a cloude fylled the house of the Lord, that the prestes coulde not endure to minister, because of the cloude: for the glorie of the Lord had fylled the house of the Lord. Then spake Salomon: the Lord sayd, * that he wolde dwell in darckenesse. I haue bylt the an house to dwell in, & an habitacion for þe to abide in for euer. And the kyng turned his face, & blessed all the congregacion of Israel, all the cōgregacion standyng. And he sayde.

Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, which hath fulfilled * with his * hand, that he spake with his mouthe vnto Dauid my father, sayinge: fro the daye I brought my people Israel out of Egypt, I chose no cytie amonge of the tribes of Israel, to buyld an house, that my name myghte be there: But I haue chosen * Dauid, to be ruler ouer my people Israel.

And it was in the hert of Dauid my father, to bylde an house for the name of the Lord God of Israel. But the Lord God sayde vnto Dauid my father: in þe it was in thyne hert to bylde an house for my name, thou dyddest well, that thou wast so mynded. Nevertheless þe shalt not bylde the house, but thy sonne that shal come out of thy loynes, he shall bylde an house for my name. And the Lord hath made good his word that he spake. for I stode vp in the towne of Dauid my father, and sate on the seate of Israel, as the Lord promised, and haue bylt an house for the name of the Lord God of Israel. And I haue prepared therein a place for the Arcke, wherein the couenaunt of the Lord is, which he made with oure fathers, after he had brought them out of the land of Egypt. And Salomon stode befoze the aultare of the lord in þe sight of al þe cōgregacio of Israel, & stretched out his handes to heuē, & sayde: * Lord God of Israel, there is no God like the in heuen aboue, or in the erthe benethe, that kepeth appointmēt & mercye w thy seruautes that walcke before the w all their hertes: which also hast kepthe with thy seruautes Dauid my father, & thou promisedst him. Thou spakest with thy mouthe, & hast fulfilled w thyne hand, as it is come to passe this daye. And now lord God of Israel, kepe with thy seruaunt Dauid my father, that & promisedst him, saying: * thou shalt not be without one or other before me, sitting on the seate of Israel: Now be it of thy children shall take hede to their wayes & they walcke before me, as thou hast walcked before me. Now then (O lord God) of Israel, let thy worde be stable which thou spakest vnto thy seruaunt Dauid my father.

But in dede can God dwelle on the erthe. And herken vnto the supplicacio of thy seruaunt and of thy people Israel, which they shall praye in this place: And heare thou vp vnto heuen thy dwelling place, & when & hearest, haue mercye. * And yf any man trespase agaynst his neybour, and his neybour take an adiuracio to adiuere him with all, & the adiutacion come before thyne altare at this house, then herken thou vp to heuē, & worke and iudge thy seruautes, that thou condempne the wycked to bring his waye vpon his head, & iustifie the righteous, to geue him accordyng to his rightwisnesse. * When thy people Israel be put to & worke before their enemyes, because they haue synned agaynst the, & afterwarde turne agayne to & & prayse thy name, & praye & make supplicacio vnto & i this house: thē heare thou vp to heuen, & be merciful

* If heauen be shut vp, that there be no rayne, because they haue synned agaynst the: yet yf they praye i this place, and prayse thy name and turne from their synnes, thozow thy scourging of them: then heare thou vp to heauē, and be mercifull vnto the synne of thy seruautes and of thy people Israel; that thou shewe them a good waye to walke in, & geue rayne vpon thy lād, that thou hast geuen vnto thy people to enheryte.

If there chaunce darth in the land, pestilence, blastynge, or wytherynge of corne, or that the frutes be deuoured of Grasshoppers or Caterpillers, or yf their enemyes besege them in the lande and in their owne cyties, or whatsoeuer plage or sycknesse chaunce: * then heare thou vp to heauen thy dwelling place, all the prayers and supplicacions that shall be made of all men thozow out all the people Israel, whiche shall knowlege euery man the plage of his owne hert, and stretch forth his handes vnto this house, and be mercifull, and worke, and giue euery man accordyng to his wayes (euen as & onely knowest euery mannes hert, for thou knowest the hertes of all the children of Adam) that they maye feare the as longe as they lyue vpon the erth whiche thou gauest vnto their fathers. * And when Salomon had made an ende of praying all this prayer, & supplication vnto the Lorde, he arose from before the aultare of the Lorde, and fro knelyng on his knees, and stretchynge of his handes bp to heauē & stode & blessed all the cōgregacyon of Israel with a loude voyce, sayinge: Blessed be the Lorde that hath geuen reste vnto his people Israel, accordyng to all that he promised: * so p there is not one worde

And these my wordes which I haue prayed before the lord, be nye vnto the Lorde our God, daye and nyght, that he defende the cause of his seruauant, and of his people Israel euer more, that all nacyns of the erth maye knowe that the Lorde, he is God and none but he. And I praye God that your hertes maye be sounde wryth the Lorde our God, to walke in his ordinaunces and to kepe his lawes as we do this daye.

And the kyng & all Israel with hym, offered offerynges before the Lorde. * And the peaceofferynges that Salomon offered vnto the Lorde, were. xxii. thousande oxen & an hundred a twenty thousand shepe: And so the kyng & all the childre of Israel dedicated p house of the Lorde. And the same daye p kyng halowed the myddle of the court, that is before the house of p Lorde: for there he offered burntofferpynges, & meateofferynges, & the fat of the peaceofferynges, because the brasen aultare p was before the lord, was to lytle to receaue the burntofferpynges, & meateofferynges, and the fat of the peaceofferings.

And Salomon helde that same tyme an hye feast and all Israel with him, a myghtie congregacion, euen from the costes of Hemath vnto the ryuet of Egypte, before the Lorde our God, * seue dayes, and yet seue dayes, that is. xiiii. dayes. And the. viii. daye he sent p people awaye. And they blessed the kyng & went vnto their tetes to pouise, and glad in herte for all the goodnesse that the Lorde had shewed vnto Dauid his seruauant, and to Israel his people.

The quene of iiii. Kynges. Saba Jo. lxxvii.

And when kyng Salomō had made the house perfecte, he made shippes in Zion Gaber, whiche is besyde Cloth, on the byncke of the red sea, in the lād of Edom. And Hiram sent by shippe also of his seruauntes, that were shipmē, & expert in the sea, with the seruauntes of Salomon. And they went to Ophir, and fet from thence gold, to the summe of.iiiii. hundred and .xxii. talentes, and brought it to Salomon.

The .x. Chapter.

The Quene of Saba cometh from the uttermost partes of the lande to heare and se the wysdome of Salomon. The very revenues and rentes of Salomon. His throne, vessels of golde, Charettes, Workmen, and abundance of syluer.

AND the quene of Saba heard of the wysdome of Salomon (concernyng the name of the Lorde) & came to proue him with ryddelles. And she came to Ierusalem with a mightie great multitude of Camelles that bare swete odoures, & golde exceedyng muche, and pzeious stones. And when she was come to Salomō, she comuned with hym of all that was in her hert. And Salomō expounded her all her questions, so that there was not one thyng hyd from the king, which he expounded her not.

And when the quene of Saba had sene all Salomōs wysdome, & the house that he had bylt, & the meate of his table, & the sptyng of his seruauntes, & the standing of his seruitours & theire apparell, & his buttelers, and his sacrifice that he offered in the house of the Lorde, she was astounded. Then she sayd to the kyng: the word I hearde in myne owne lande of thy dedes and wysdome, is true. How be it I beleued it not, till I came & sawe it with myne eyes. And she, the one halfe was not tolde me: for thy wysdome and goodnesse exceedeth the same whiche I hearde. Happy are thy men: and happye are these thy seruauntes, which stande euer before the, and heare thy wysdome. And blessed be the Lorde thy God, whiche had a lust to the, to set the on the seate of Israel, because the Lorde loued Israel for euer, & therfore made the kyng, to do equite and ryght wysnesse.

And she gaue the kyng an hundred and .xx. talentes of golde, and of swete odoures exceedyng muche, and pzeious stones. There came neuer after suche a boundance of swete odoures as the Quene of Saba gaue to king Salomō. And therto the * shippes of Hiram that brought golde from Ophir, brought from Ophir great plenty of * Almug tre, & pzeious stones. And kyng Salomō made of the Almug trees pillars in the house of the Lorde, & in the kynges palace, & made harpes & psalteries for syngers. There came no more suche Almug tre, noz was anye more sene vnto this dape. And kyng Salomon gaue vnto the Quene of Saba all her desyre that she asked of him: besydes that he gaue her with his owne hande. And so she returned vnto her owne countrey with her seruauntes.

The weyght of golde that came to Salomon in one yere, was .vi. hundred thye skore and .vi. talentes of gold, besydes that he had of chapmen, and of marchauntes, of potycarpes, and of all the kynges of Arable, & of the Lordes of the countrey. And kyng Salomon made two hundred bouketers of beaten golde. .vi. hundred sicles of gold went to a bouketer. And he made thye hundred shylbes of beaten golde, thye pound of gold goyng to a pere, & put the in the * house of the wood of Libanon.

And the kyng made a great seate of Iuorpe, and couered it with pzeious golde. And the seate had sixe steppes. And the toppe of the seate was rounde behind his backe, w pomelles on ether syde on the place where he satte, & two Lyons standyng besyde the pomelles. And there stode .xii. Lyons on the steppes. .vi. on a syde. Ther was none lyke sene in any kyngdome. And all kynges Salomons drinckynge vessels were of gold, and all the vessels of the house of the wood of Libanō, were of pure gold. And as for syluer, it was nothing worthe in the dayes of Salomon. For the sea shippes whiche the kyng had in the sea, with the shippes of Hiram, came euerye thyrde yere lade with gold, syluer, Iuorpe, apes and pecoakes.

* And so kyng Salomon exceeded all the kynges of the erthe in richesse and wysdome. And all the world resorted to Salomō, to heare his wysdome, which God had put in his hert. And brought him euery man his present, vessels of syluer and of golde, & of rayment, harness, swete odours, horses & Mules, pere by pere. And Salomon gathered together charettes & horsemen: so that he had a thousand and .iiii. hundred charettes, and .xii. thousand horsemen, which he bestowed in the charette cyties, and with the kynge at Jerusalem.

¶ And the kynge made syluer in Jerusalem as plenteous as stones, & Cedar as plenteous as the mulberry trees that growe in the valeys. And Salomons horses came out of Egypte from Keua: The marchauntes set them from Keua at a pryce. A charet came out of Egypte for .vi. hundred sicles of syluer, and an horse for an hundred & fiftie. And euen so by the handes of the sayde marchauntes, horses were brought out for all the kynges of the Pethites and for the kynges of Siria.

The .xi. Chapter.

¶ Salomon hath seven hundred Quenes and thre hundred Concubynes, whiche bring him to Idolatrye. His aduersaries rebel agaynst hym. He dyeth, and Jeroboam his sonne carryeth in his Reade.

But kynge Salomon loued many outlandishe wemen: the daughter of Pharao: and of the Moabites, Ammonites, Edomites, Zidonites and Pethites, euē of nacions of which the Lord sayd vnto the childre of Israel, sepe come not at them, nor let them come to you: for surely they will turne youre hertes after their Goddes. Neuerthelesse, to luse the Salomon claue & fell in loue with them. And he had seven hundred bevy Quenes and thre hundred concubynes whiche turned away his hert. For when Salomon was olde, his wiues turned his herte after other Gods: so that his hert was not perfecte with the Lord his God, as was the hert of Dauid his father.

B And Salomon folowed Astarothe the God of the zidons, & Milcon the abhominacion of the Ammonites. And Salomon wrought wickednesse in the syght of the Lord, and continued not after the Lord as dyd Dauid his father. After that Salomon bylt an alter for Chamos the abhominacion of the Moabites, in the hill that standeth befoze Jerusalem, and vnto Moloch the abhominacion of the children of Ammon. And lyke wise byd he for all his outlandishe wyues, which burnt cense, & offered vnto their Gods. The was the Lord angrie with Salomon, because his hert turned fro the Lord God of Israel, which appeared vnto him twise, & gaue him a charge of this thyng that he shoulde not folowe other Gods. But he kept not that whiche the Lord commanded hym: wherupon the Lord sayde to Salomon: for as muche as this is done of the, and thou hast not kepte myne appoyntment, and myne ordinaunces, whiche I haue commanded the, therefore I will rent the kingdome from the, and will geue it to thy seruauent. For wythstanding in thy dayes I wyll not do it, because of Dauid thy father: but wyll take it fro thy sonne. Howe be it I wyll not take awaye all: But wyll geue one tribē to thy sonne, because of Dauid my seruauent, and because of Jerusalem whiche I haue chosen.

And the Lord styred by an aduersarie vnto Salomon: one Hadad an Edomite, & of the kinges legnage of Edom. For when Dauid was in Edom, & Joab the capitayne of the hoste was gone by to bryske the that were slayne: & had slayne all the mā childre in Edom. For .vi. monethes dyd Joab remaine there & all Israel, tyll he had destroyed all the mā childre in Edom. And this Hadad fled & certen other Edomites of his fathers seruantes with him, to go to Egypte Hadad beyng yet a lytle lad. And they arose out of Hadan, and went to Pharan, and toke men wyth them out of Pharan, and came to Egypte vnto Pharaos kynge therof, whiche gaue him an house, and apointed him bitailes, and gaue him landes.

And Hadad gat great fauoure in the syght of Pharaos, so that he gaue hym to wyfe, the syster of his owne wife, the syster of Chahaphnes the Quene. And the syster of Chahaphnes bare hym Senubath his sonne. And Chahaphnes wened hym in Pharaos house. And he was in Pharaos house among the sonnes of Pharaos. And when Hadad heard saye in Egypte that Dauid was layde to slepe wyth his fathers, and that Joab the captayne of the host was dead also, he sayde to pharao: let me departe, that I maye go to myne owne countrey. The sayd pharao vnto hym: what lackest thou here wth me, that thou woldest go to thyne owne countrey? and he sayde, nothing: how be it let me go. And God styred vp an other aduersary, one Razon the sone of Eliada, which fled fro Hadadezer king of Zobah his master. Whiche Razon gathered me vnto him, & became captaine ouer the compaignie, when Dauid sue them. And they went to Damasco, and dwelt therein, and raygned in Damasco. And he was an aduersary to Israel all the dayes of Salomon, with the euell that Hadad dyd, which aboyred Israel, and raygned in Siria.

C And Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat an Ephraimite of Zaredah (whose mother was called Zeruiah, & was a wydow and he Salomons seruaunt) * lifte vp his hand agaynst the kyng. And herof came it, that he lifte vp his hand agaynst the kyng. Salomon bylt Melo, & mended broken places in the cite of Dauid his father. And this felowe Jeroboam was an actiue man. And when Salomon saw the younge man, that he wrought so lustely in the worke, he made hym ruler ouer all the charges of of the house of Joseph. And it chaunced at that ceason, as Jeroboam was gone out of Ierusalem, that the prophet Ahiah the Silonite met him by the waye, hauyng a newe mantell on him, and they two were alone in the felde. And Ahiah caught the new mantell he was on him, and rent it in twelue peces, & sayde to Jeroboam: take the ten peces. for this sayth the Lord God of Israel: behold, I will cte the kyngdome out of the handes of Salomon, and will geue ten tribes to the, * and he shall haue one, for my seruaunte Dauids sake, and for Ierusalem the cite whiche I haue chosen out of all the tribes of Israel: because they haue forsaken me, and haue bowed them selues vnto Achazoth the God of the zidons, and to Camos the God of the Moabites, and to Milcom the god of the children of Ammon, and haue not walked in my wayes, to do that pleasure me, and myne ordinaunces and cō-uincis, as byd Dauid his father.

* How be it I will take none of the kyngdome out of his hande: but will make him cheafe all his lyfe longe, for Dauid my seruautes sake, whiche I chose: because he kept my cōmaundementes and ordinaunces. But I will take the kyngdome out of his sonnes hand, and will geue vnto the ten tribes of it: and will geue his sone one, that Dauid my seruaunt maye haue a lyght alwaye before me in Ierusalem, the cite whiche I haue chose me, to put my name there. And I wil take the, and thou shalt raygne vpon all that thy soule despyeth, & shalt be kyng ouer Israel. And yf thou shalt hearken vnto all that I cōmaunde the, and shalt walke in my wayes, and do that is ryght in my syght, that thou kepe myne ordinaunces and cōmaundementes (as Dauid my seruaunt dyd:) then will I be with the, and byld the an house that shall continew, as I bylt for my seruaunt Dauid, and will geue Israel vnto he. And I wil for this offence (whiche Salomon hath cōmitted) bere the seede of Dauid, but not for ever.

And Salomon sought to kyll Jeroboam, wherfore Jeroboam arose & fled into Egypt vnto Sisak king of Egypt, and continued there vntill the death of Salomon. And the rest of the Actes of Salomon and all that he dyd, and his wyldome: are wyrtten in the * boke of the Actes of Salomon. And the tyme that Salomon raygned in Ierusalem vpon all Israel, was fourtie yere. And then he layde hym to rest with his fathers, and was buryed in the cite of Dauid his father, and Rehoboam his sonne raygned in his steade.

Rehoboam, iii. Kynges Jeroboam

And they sent & called him: and so Jeroboam and all the congregation of Israel came, and spake vnto Rehoboam, saying: thy father made oure yoke greuous, but now make thou the greuouser seruite of thy father and his sore yoke which he put vpon vs, lighter, and so we will serue the. And he sayde vnto them: depart yet for the space of thre dayes, and then come agayne to me. And the people departed.

And kyng Rehoboam toke counsell with the olde men that stode before Salomon his father, while he yet lyued, & sayd: what counsell geue ye, to answer this people with all? And they sayde vnto him: If thou shalt be a seruaunt vnto this people this daye, & serue the and answer the & speake kynde wordes to the: they will be thy seruantes for euer. But he leste the counsell that the olde men had geue him, and counceled with the yonge men, & were nourished vp with him, and had wayted on him.

And he sayde vnto them: what counsell geue ye, to answer this people with all whiche haue communed wyth me, sayinge: make the yoke whiche thy father dyd put vpon vs, lighter. And the yonge men that were brought vp with him, answered him, sayinge: this people that haue sayde vnto the: thy father made oure yoke heuie, make thou it vs lighter: thus answered the.

¶ My lyttle synger shalbe wayghtier the my fathers loynes. And now where as my father put a greuous yoke vpon you, I wyll make it heuier. For where my father corrected you with scourges, I wyll chastyse you with scorpions. And when Jeroboam: and all the people were come to Rehoboam the thyrde daye, as the kyng apoynted the, saying: come to me agayne this daye thre dayes the kyng answered the people thus: lythly, and leste the aduise that olde men gaue him: and spake to them after the counsell of the yonge men sayinge: My father made youte yoke greuous, but I wyll make it greuouser. For where my father chastised you with whippes, I will chastise you with scorpions. And so the kyng hearkened not vnto the people: for turning away was of the Lorde, * to performe his sayinge, which the Lorde sayd by Ahias the seer vnto Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat.

And when all Israel saw the kyng regarded the not, the people gathered the kyng a gayne, saying: we haue no parte in Dauid, nor inheritance in the sonne of Israhel. * To youte tentes therfore Israhel, and nowe to thine owne house Dauid. And so Israel departed vnto their tentes. Howe be it, ouer the chyldren of Israhel whiche dwelt in the cytie of Iuda, dyd Rehoboam raigne syll. Then kyng Rehoboam sent Duram the receauer of the tribute. And all Israel stoned him to death with stones. But kyng Rehoboam made speede and gat him vp to his charret & fled to Ierusalem. And so Israel departed from the house of Dauid vnto this daye. And when all Israhel heard that Jeroboam was come agayne, they sent and called him vnto the congregation, and made him kyng ouer Israhel: so there folowed the house of Dauid, but the tribes of Iuda only. * And when Rehoboam was come to Ierusalem, he gathered all the house of Iuda and the tribes of Benjamin an hundred and foure score thousande of choyse men and good warriours, to fight agayne the house of Israhel, and to byrge the kyngdome agayne to Rehoboam the sonne of Salomon.

¶ Then came the worde of the Lorde vnto Sameliah the man of God, saying: speake vnto Rehoboam the sonne of Salomon kyng of Iuda, and vnto all the house of Iuda and Benjamin, and the remnant of the people, and saye: Thus saythe the Lorde god of Israhel, I will not be agayne to youe, nor yet fight agayne to youe, neither in the chyldren of Israhel, but recheue euery man to his house, for this songe is of the Lorde. And they obeyed the word of the Lorde, and returned and departed according to the word of the Lorde. When Jeroboam bylt Bethel in mount Ephraim, and dwelt therein, and went from thence * and bylt Bethel.

¶ And Jeroboam thought in his hert: Howe myght the kyngdome retorne to the house of Dauid agayne. For if this people shall go vp and do sacrifice in the house of the Lorde at Ierusalem, the shal their hertes turne agayne vnto the their Lorde Rehoboam kinge of Iuda. And so shall they kpl me and go againe to Rehoboam king of Iuda. * Whereupon the kinge toke counsell, and made two calues of golde and sayde vnto the people: ye shal not nede to go any moze to Ierusalem. * Beholde, your gods O Istraell whiche brought you out of the lande of Egipte. And he put the one in Bethel, and the other in Dan. And that doing was a cause of sñe. And the people wente before the one as far as Dan. And he made houses of hylaulters * and made of y lowest of the people priestes, whiche were not of the sonnes of Leui. And Jeroboam made a feaste the .xv. daye of the .viij. moneth, lyke vnto the feaste that was in Iuda, and offered on the aulter. And so dyd he in Bethel, to offer vnto the calues that he had made. And he put in Bethel the priestes of the hylaulters, whiche he had made. And he offered burnt offeringe vpon the alder, whiche he had made in Bethel, the .xv. daye of the .viij. moneth, whiche he had imagened of his owne heart: and made a solempne feast vnto the chyldre of Istraell, and wente, vp to the aulter to burne sacrifice.

The xliij. Chapter.

Jeroboam Sacrificing vnto Calues is reprehended of the Prophets. He is hanged by the waye whyle he putteth it out against the prophet. The prophet is killed and buried.

Ad beholde, there came a man of God out of Iuda (with y word of God) to Bethel, as Jeroboam stood by the aulter to offer, and cried against the aulter at the commaundement of y Lorde, and said: Aulter, aulter, thus saith y Lorde. Behold, a child shall bee borne of the house of Dauid. (Jotham by name) which vpon the shal offer the priestes of the hylaulters y sacrifice vpon thee, and shall burne mens bones vpon thee. And he gaue the the same tyme a signe, sayinge: this is the signe of y the Lorde hath promysed. Beholde, the aulter shal rent, & the ashes yare in it shal fall oute. And when the kinge heard the saying of the manne of God (whiche he cryed against the aulter in Bethel) he stretched out his hand from the aulter, sayinge: holde him. And his hande whiche he put forth toward him, dyed vp, that he coulde not pull it in againe to him: & the aulter clake, and the ashes ran out of the aulter, accordinge to the token whiche the manne of God had given at the commaundement of the Lorde. And the kinge answered, and sayd vnto the man of God: * Oh praye vnto the Lorde thy God & make intercessio for me, that my hand maye be restored me againe. And the man of god besought the Lorde and his hande came to him againe, as well as before.

Then sayde the kyng vnto the man of God: come home with me, and refresh thy selfe, and I wll geue the a reward. But the man of god answered the king, yf thou wouldest geue me halfe thyne houle, I woulde not go with the: nether woulde I eate meate or dryncke water in this place. For so was it charged me, & thowme the word of God, & sayd to me: eate no breade nor dryncke water, nor turne againe by y same way thou wentest. And so he went a nother waye and returned not by the waye he came to Bethel. And there dwelte an olde prophet in Bethel, whose sonnes came and tolde him all the workes, that the man of God had done that daye in Bethel, and the wordes whiche he spake vnto the kinge, they tolde thep father also. And their father sayde to them: what waye went he: for his sonnes had sene what way the man of God went, whiche came from Iuda. Then sayde he to his sonnes: saddle myne Ass. And they saddled him an Ass. And he gat him by theron, and wente after the manne of God, and founde hym springe vnder an Ocke, & sayde vnto hym: arte thou the manne of God that comest from Iuda? And he sayd, yea.

Then he sayd to him: come home with me, and eate breade. And the other said againe: I maye not retorne with the, to go with the, nether maye I eate breade or dryncke water with the in this place. For it was sayde to me by the commaundement of the LORDE, eate no bread, nor dryncke water in this place, nor turne againe by the way thou wentest. And the olde prophet sayde vnto him: I am a prophet as well as thou, and an Angell spake vnto me with the word of the Lord, saying: bring him againe with thee to thynne house, and let hym eate breade and dryncke water, and yet lye vnto him. And so the other went a gayne with him, and ate breade in his house and dranke water.

And as they sat at the table, the word of the Lord came vnto the prophet that brought hym againe. And he cryed vnto the manne of God that came from Iuda, saying: thus sayth the Lord: because thou haste disobeyed the mouth of the Lord, and hast not kept the commaundement which the Lord thy God commaunded the, but camest backe againe, and hast eaten breade, & droncke water, in the place in whiche he had thee thou shouldest eate no breade nor drinke water: therefore thy carkasse shall not come vnto the sepulchre of thy fathers.

And when he had eaten breade, and droncke, he saddled an Asse for the prophete whiche he had brought agayne. And as he tourneyed, a Lyon met hym by the waye, and flue him, and his carkasse laye a longe in the waye, and the Asse stode thereby, and the Lyon stode by the coorse also. And men that passed by sawe the carkasse cast a longe in the waye, and the Lyon standinge thereby, and went & told it in the towne wher the olde prophet dwelte. And when the prophete brought hym backe againe fro the way, hearde therof, he sayd: it is the man of God: which disobeyed the mouth of the Lord. And therefore the Lord hath deliuered him vnto the Lion which hath cent him and slayne hym, accordyng to the worde of the Lord, whiche he sayd to him. And he sayde to his sonnes: ca- die me an Asse: and so they dyd. And he went and founde the bodye cast alonge in the waye, and the Asse and the Lion standinge thereby. And the Lion had not eat the carkasse nor hurt the Asse. And he toke vp the body of the man of God and put it vpon the Asse, and brought it againe, & came to the city of the old prophete to lament hym, and to burie hym. And he laide his body in his owne graue, and lameted ouer him, Oh my brother.

And when he had buried him, he spake to hys sonnes, sayinge: when I am deade, se that ye burie me in the sepulchre wherin the man of God is buried, & lay my bones by his. For the saying which he cried at his bidding of the Lord against the aulter in Bethel, & against all the houses of hylaulters whiche are in the cityes of Samaria, shall come to passe.

Howe be it, for all that, Jeroboam turned not from hys wicked waye: but turned away and made of the lowest of the people preestes of the hylaulters. Whosoener woulde, he filled their handes, & they became preestes of hylaulters. And this doing was sene vnto the house of Jeroboam, euen to destroye it, and to put it awaye from of the face of the erthe.

The. xliij. Chapter.

Jeroboams wyfe of hery counsell of Abiah the prophete, which prophesied vnto her the death of her sonne & the destruction of all the Rodaine. Jeroboam dyed. Abiah king of Egypte robbeth the house of the Asse. Jeroboam dyed and Abiah succedeth him.

At that tyme Abiah the sonne of Jeroboam fell sicke. And Jeroboam said vnto his wyfe: by a felowship, and chaunge thine apparell, that thou be not knowen to be the wyfe of Jeroboam, and get thee to Siloh. For there is Abiah the prophete whiche told me that I shoulde be kynge ouer this people. And take with thee ten loues and cracknelles, and a crust of honye, and go to him: for he wil tel the what shal come of the ladde. And Jeroboams wyfe dyd so: she arose, and wente to Siloh and came to the house of Abiah. But Abiah coulde not see, for hys eyes were waxen dymme for age.

And the Lord sayd vnto Abiah: be holde, the wyfe of Jeroboam cometh, to questyon with thee about her sonne which is sicke. This wyfe and thys wyfe are twere her. And when she came, she said: ned hit selfe to bee a nother woman. But when Abiah hearde the sounde of her fete as she came to the doze, he said: come in thou wyfe of Jeroboam, wher feynest thou thy selfe to be a nother? I am sent to the a cruell messenger.

So and tell Jeroboam, thus sayeth the Lord God of Israel: for as muche as I exalted thee from amonge the common people, and made the prince ouer my people Israel: and dyd reue the

C Jeroboam, and will stryke from Jeroboam all that pisteth against the wal, and what soeuer is in prison, or forsaken in Israell, and will take awaye the remnaunt of the house of Jeroboam, as men take awaye a dong hyll, till it bee consumed. And whosoever of Jeroboams house dye in the towne, hym shall the dogges eate, and hym that dyeth in the felde, shal the foules of the ayre eat: for the Lorde hath sayde it, vp and get the to thine house, and as sone as thy fote entreth the cytys, the lad shall dye. Howe be it al Israell shal moune him, and burye hym, for thys onely of all Jeroboam shal come to the sepulchre, because in hym there is sounde goodnesse toward the Lord God of Israel in the house of Jeroboam.

Moreover, the Lorde shal stryke him vp a kynge ouer Israell which shal destroye the house of Jeroboam in that daye. And what is that that is nowe in hande: And the Lord shal smyte Israell, as a rede that groweth in the water is shaken, and will wede Israell oute of thys good lande (whiche he gaue to theyr fathers) and will skatter them beyond Euphrates, because they haue made their groues, to angre the Lord. And he will geue Israell vp, because of the synnes of Jeroboam, wherewith he dyd synne, and made Israell synne thereto.

C And Jeroboams wife arose and departed and wente to Thersah, & by that she was come to the thersholde of the doze, the lad was deade. And all Israell buried him, & lamented hym, according to the worde of the LORD whiche he spake by the hande of hys seruante Ahiah the prophet. And the reste of the dedes of Jeroboam, howe he warred, and howe he reygned, are written in the booke of the Actes of the kinges of Israell. And the dayes whiche Jeroboam reygned, were .xxij. yere. And thou he rested with his fathers, and Nadab his sonne reigned in his steade.

And Rehoboam the sonne of Salomon reigned in Iuda, & was .xli. yere olde when he beganne to reygne, and reigned .xlii. yere in Ierusalem (the cite whiche the Lorde had chose oute of all p'tybes of Israell, to put his name ther.) His mothers name was Naamah an Ammonite. And Iuda wroughte wickednesse in the sight of the Lorde, and angred him aboue al that theyr fathers dyd, with theyr synne whiche they synned. For they also made them hyll aulters, and Images, and groues on euery hye hil, & vnder euery grene tree. And thereto there was a stues of male children in p'land, & they did according to all the abhominations of p' nations whiche p' Lord cast out before the chyldren of Israell. And p' fiftie yere of king Rehoboam came Siseak kinge of Egypt vp to Ierusalem, & toke awaye the treasures of the house of p' Lorde, & the treasures of the kinges house, and al p' was to bee had. And he toke awaye the shildes of gold which Salomon made. In whose steade kynge Rehoboam made brasen shildes, and put them in the keeping of the captaynes of p' garde, which waited at the doze of the kinges house. And as ofte as the kinge wente into the house of p' Lord, they of his garde bare them, and euer brought them againe in, to the garde chamber.

The rest of the Actes of king Rehoboam, and all he dyd, are written in the booke of the Actes of the kinges of Iuda: And there was warre betwene Rehoboam and Jeroboam al theyr lyues. And Rehoboam layde him to rest with hys fathers, and was buried with hys fathers in the cytlye of Dauid. And hys mothers name was Naamah an Ammonite. And Abiam hys sonne reigned in his steade.

And he walked in all the synnes of his father whiche he dyd befoze him, and his hert was not whole with the Lord his God as the heart of Dauid his father. Nevertheless, for Dauids sake dyd the Lord his God geue him a lyght in Ierusalem, that he set vp hys sonne after hym, to continue in Ierusalem. Because that Dauid dyd that which pleased the Lord, and turned from nothinge that he commaunded hym all the dayes of his lyfe, * saue onelye in the matter of Nias the Bethite. And there was war betwene Rehoboam and Jeroboam as longe as he liued. And the rest of the dedes of Abiam & al that he dyd, are written in the boke of the dedes that were done in the dayes of the kinges of Iuda. And there was warre betwene Abiam and Jeroboam. And Abiam rested with his fathers, and they buryed him in the cite of Dauid. And Asa his sonne reigned in his steade.

The xx. yere of Jeroboam kyng of Israel began Asa to raygne ouer Iuda, and ruled in Ierusalem. xli. yere. And his mothers name was Maacah the doughter of Abisalom. And Asa did that semed ryghte in the eyes of the Lord, lyke Dauid his father. * And he made the stues of males departe the lande, & put away al the Idoles & his fathers hadde made. And thereto he put downe Maacah his mother from bearing rule, because she had made an Idole in a groue. And Asa destroyed her Idole and burnt it by the broke Cedron. But he put not downe the high alters. Nevertheless Asas herte was whole with the Lord al his dayes. And he brought in that hys father had dedicate, and thynges dedicate vnto the house of the Lord, syluer, golde, and Jewelles. And there was war betwene Asa and Baasa kyng of Israel all their dayes.

Then Asa toke all the syluer and golde that was left in the treasure of the house of the Lord, and all the treasures of the kynges house, and deliuered it vnto his seruautes, and sent them to Benhadad the sonne of Tabrimon the son of Hezion kyng of Siria (that dwelt at Damasco) sayinge: there is a bond betwene the and me, as was betwene thy father an mine. Therefore I sende thee bothe golde and syluer for a gyfte, that thou go and breake the appoyntmente betwene the and Baasa kyng of Israel, that he may departe frome me. And Benhadad herkened vnto kyng Asa, and sente the captaynes of the hostes which he had agaynst the cyties of Israel, and smote Thion, Dan, Abell called Beth Maacah and al the region of Cenerothe, wyth all the lande of Neptali. And when Baasa hearde that, he lefte buyldinge of Ramah and dwelte in Therzah. Then kyng Asa made a proclamacyon thowowte all Iuda, that none shoulde be excused. And they toke the stones of Ramah and the tymber (wherewith Baasa had buylt) kyng Asa bilt therewith Gibeah in Benjamin and Mazphah.

And the remnaunt of all the dedes of Asa, and of all his myghte, and of all that he dyd, & the cyties which he buylt, are written in the chronicle of the actes done in the dayes of the kynges of Iuda. Neuerthelater in his olde age he was diseased in his lete. And Asa layde hym to rest with his fathers, and was buryed with his fathers in the cytie of Dauid his father. * And Jehosaphat hys sonne raygned in his towne. And Baadab the sonne of Jeroboam beganne to raygne vpon Israel the seconde yere of Asa kyng of Iuda, and reigned vpon Israel two yere. And he dyd euil in the syghte of the Lord, and walked in the way of his father, & in hys synne wherewith he made Israel synne. But Baasa the sonne of Abiah (of the house of Isaac) conspired agaynst him, and slue him at Gebethon a cytie of the Philistines, for Nabal and all Israel laye at sege befoze Gebethon. And it was the thirde yere of Asa kyng of Iuda, when Baasa so slue him, and raygned in hys steade. * And as soone as he was kyng, he slue

The rest of the dedes of Nabab, and all he dyd, are wyrtten in the chronicles of the kynges of Israel. And there was warre betwene Asa and Baasa kyng of Israel al their daies.

In the thirde yere of Asa kyng of Iuda, Baasa the sonne of Ahiah began to raighe ouer al Israel in Thersah, and conynued xxiii. yere. And he dyd that which displeased the Lorde, for he walked in the waye of Jeroboam, and in hys synne, wherewith he made Israel synne.

And Amri departed from Gebethon, and all Israel with hym, and beseged Thersah. And when Zambel saw that the cite must nedes be taken, he went into the palaise of the kynges house, and set the kynges house a fyre vpon hym selfe and there dyed, for hys synnes whiche he synned, in doinge wyckednesse in the syghte of the the Lorde, and for walkynge in the way of Jeroboam and in his synnes whiche he byd, and made Israel synne.

E The reste of the Actes of Amri, and the treason that he wrought, are wyrtten in the booke of the chronicles of the kynges of Israel. Moreover that same season was Israel deuyded in twayne, for halfe the people folowed Chebni the sonne of Gineth, to make him kyng. And the other halfe folowed Amri. But the people that folowed Amri, preyed against them & folowed Chebni the sonne of Gineth. And so Chebni dyed, and Amri reigned.

The .xxxi. yere of Asa kyng of Juda, beganne Amri to raygne ouer Israel. .xii. yere, and he ruled .vi. yere in Cherzab. And he bought the hill of Samaria of one Semar for two hundred talentes of syluer, and buylt in the hyll, & called the name of the city which he had buylt Samaria after the name of Semar, the Lord of the hyll. And this Amri wroughte wickednesse in the eyes of the Lorde, worse then all that were before hym, and walked in all the wayes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, and in his synnes, wherewith he made Israel synne, to anger the Lord God of Israel with theyr banyties. The reste of the actes of Amri, which he did, and his power that he vled, are wyrtten in the chronicles of & kynges of Israel. And Amri layde hym to rest wryth his fasthers, and was buryed in Samaria, and Ahab his sonne raygned in his steade.

The .xxviii. yere of Asa kyng of Juda, beganne Ahab the sonne of Amri to raygne ouer Israel, and raygned in Samaria .xxii. yere. And he displeased the Lord aboue al that wer before him. For it semed him a light thing to walke in the synne of Jeroboam & sonne of Nabat. But toke Jezabell the doughter of Ethbaal big of the Sidonites to wife, and went and serued Baal, and bowed vnto him. And he reared an aulter to Baal in the house of Baal, whiche he had made in Samaria. And Ahab made a groue, and proceded farther in angering the Lord God of Israel, then all the kynges of Israel that were before hym.

In hys dayes Hiel of Bethel bylde Jericho. And it * toll him Abira his eldest sonne when he layed the foundation, and his yongest sonne Segub, whiche he set by the gates, agreinge vnto the word of the Lord which he spake by Josua the sonne of Nun.

The .xxii. Chapter.

Elijah is nourished and fedde of Ravens, and after is sente to the woman of Sarephtha: wherof Childs he receiveth to lyfe.

And Elijah the Thersbite (which was of the enhabiters of Gilead) sayde vnto Ahab: * as trulpe as the Lord God of Israel lyueth, before whome I stande, there shalbe neither dewe nor rayne these yeres, saue as I appoynte it.

And the worde of God came to hym, saying: get the hence, and turne the ewarde, and hyde thy selfe in the brooke Karith that lyeth before Jordans brinch of the ryuer, for I haue commaunded the rauens to fede thee there. And he went, & dyd accordig vnto the worde of the Lorde: he went and dwelt by the brooke Karith that lyeth before Jordan. And the rauens broughte hym breade and fleshe euery morninge, and euery eueninge, and he dranke of the brooke. And it chaunced after a while that the brooke dried vp, because there fell no rayne vpon the earth. Then came the worde of the Lorde vnto him, saying: * vp and get thee to Sarephtha a cite of Sidon, and dwell there. Behold, I haue commaunded a wydowe there to sustayne the. And he arose, and went to Sarephtha. And when he came to the gate of the cite, there was a wedowe there gathering fykes. And he called to her, and sayde: * fet me I praye the, a litle water in a dysch that I may drinke. And as she went to fet it, he cried to her, and sayde: byng me I praye the, a morsell of breade in thyne hande. And she answered: as surely as the Lord thy God lyueth, I haue no breade, but euen an handful of Mele in a pycher, and a litle Oyle in a cruse. And se, I haue gathered a fewe fykes for to go & bake it for me and my sonne, that we maye eate it and then dye.

And

C And Eliab sayde vnto her: feare not, but go and do as thou haste sayde: but make me therof a lytle cake fyfte of al, and bynge it out to me: and after ward make for the, and thy sonne. For thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israel: the pitcher of Oyle shall not be wasted: neither shall thy oyle cruse be without oyle, vntyll the Lorde haue sent rayne vpon the earthe. And she wente, and dyd as Eliab bad. And she and he, at her house dyd eate a good space, and the pytcher of Oyle wasted not, neither was the oyle cruse without oyle, accordynge to the worde of the Lorde which he spake thowtwe Eliab.

D And after these thynges, it happened that the sonne of the wyfe of the house fell sicke. And his sicknesse was so sore, that there was no breathe lefte in him. Then sayde she vnto Eliab: what haue I to do with the, O thou man of God: arte thou come vnto me, that my synne shoulde bee thoughte on and my sonne slayne? And Eliab sayde vnto her: geue me thy sonne. And he toke hym oute of her lap and caried hym by into a losse, where he laye, and layde him vpon hys owne hedde, and called vnto the Lorde, and sayde: O Lorde my God, hast thou bene so euell vnto the wydow (with whom I sojourne) that thou haste slayne her sonne? And he stretched him self vpon the lad thre tymes, and called vnto the Lorde, and sayde: O Lorde my god, let the laddes soule come into him againe. And the Lorde hearde the voyce of Eliab, and the soule of the lad came into him againe, and he reuyned. And Eliab toke the boy & broughte hym downe out of the chamber into the house, and deliuered hym vnto hys mother, and sayde: se, thy sonne lyueth. Then the wyfe sayde to Eliab: now I knowe that thou arte Goddes manne, and that the worde of the LORDE in thy mouth, is true.

The. xliii. Chapter.

Eliab is sende to Ahab. Abdiash hydeyth an hundred prophetes & saureth them. Baal can not heare although the people crye very loude. Eliab helieth all Baals prophets: and after obteyneth rayne.

And at the laste the worde of the Lorde came to Eliab the thyrde yere, sayinge: go shew thy selfe vnto Ahab, that I maye sende rayne vpon the earthe. And Eliab went to shewe him selfe vnto Ahab, for there was a greatesampnyment in Samaria. Wheretoze Ahab called Abdiash the gouerner of hys house: which Abdiash feared God greatly: in so muche that when Jezabell destroyed the prophetes of the Lorde, he toke an hundred of the prophetes and hyd them, fiftie in one caue, and fiftie in another, and prouided bread & water, for them. And Ahab sayde vnto Abdiash: walke thowtwe the lande, vnto all fountaynes of water, and vnto all brookes, to se whether anye grasse maye be founde, that we maye saue the horses and the Mules, that we destroy not the beastes. And they deuyded the lande betwene them to walke thowtwe it. Ahab went one waye by hym selfe, and Abdiash went another waye by hym selfe.

B And it chaunced as Abdiash went in the way, that Eliab met him. And Abdiash knew hym: and fel on his face, and sayd: art not thou my Lord Eliab. And he sayde vnto him: I am he. Go and tel Ahab that Eliab is here. And the other answered: what haue I synned, that thou wouldest deliuer me into the hande of Ahab, to sleie me? As surely as the Lorde thy God lyueth, there is no nation or kingdome, whether my Lord hathe not sent, to seke the. And when they sayde: thou wast not there, he toke another of the kyngdome and nacyon, because he founde the not. And now thou sayest: go tel thy Lorde, Eliab is here. And as sone as I am gone from the, the spirite of the Lorde shall carpe the away, whether I shall not knowe: and then when I haue gone and tolde Ahab, & then he can not fynde the, he shall sleie me. And yet I thy seruaunt haue feared the Lorde from my young age. Was it not tolde my Lorde, what I dyd, when Jezabell sleue the prophetes of the Lorde, how I hid an hundred of the Lordes prophetes, fiftie in one caue, and as many in another, and prouided them of bread, & water. And yet now thou sayest, go shewe thy Lorde, that Eliab is here, that he shoulde sleie me.

C Then Eliab sayde: as trulpe as the Lord of hostes liueth, before whom I stand: I wil shew my selfe vnto him this day. And ther vpon Abdiash went to mete Ahab Ahab & tolde him. And Ahab wente agaynst Eliab. And when Ahab saw Eliab, he sayd vnto him: arte thou he that troubleth Israel? And he sayd: it is not I that trouble Israel, but þ and thy fathers house, in that ye haue forsaken þ commaundementes of the Lorde, and hast folowed Baal. But now sende, and gather to me all Israel vnto mount Carmel, & the Prophetes of Baal, four hundred & fiftie, & the Prophetes of the grooues foure hundred, which eate of Jezabels table. And Ahab sente for all the chyldren of Israel, and gathered the Prophetes vnto mount Carmell.

D And Eliab came vnto all the people, & sayd: why halt ye betwene two opynions? If þ Lord be very God, folow him: or if Baal be he, then folow him. And þ people answered him not one worde. Then sayd Eliab vnto the people: I on ly remaine of þ Lordes Prophetes, and Baals Prophetes are foure hundred & fiftie. Let two oxen be geuen vs, & let them chose þ one, & cut him in peces, and lay him on wood, & put no fyre vnder. And I wil dresse þ other, & put hym on wood, and wyll put no fyre vnder. And call ye on the name of your God, and I wil call on the name of the Lorde. And then the God that answereth by fyre, he is the verye God.

E * And al the people sayd: it is wel spoken. Then sayd Eliab vnto þ Prophetes of Baal, chose you an ore, & dresse hym first (for ye are many) & call on the name of your God, but put no fyre vnder. And they toke þ ore that was geuen them, & dressed it, & called on þ name of Baal, from morning to none, saying: O Baal heare vs. But ther was no voice, nor answer. And they lept about þ aulter þ they had made. And at noone, Eliab mocked them, & sayd: call lowde (for he is a god: but he is talking or occupied, or in the way, or happely he slepeth) þ he may awake. And they cried lowd, & cut them selues, as their maner was, with knyues and launcers, tyll the bloud folowed on them. And when mydday was passed, they prophesied vntyll it was time to offer. But ther was nether voice nor answer nor any þ regarded them.

F Then Eliab sayde to all the folke: come to me. And all the people came to him. * And he mended the aulter of the Lorde that was broken. * And he toke xii. stones accordyng to the nombre of the xii. tribes of þ sonnes of Jacob (vnto whome the worde of the Lorde came, saying: * Israel thalbe thy name. And with the stones he made an aulter i the name of the Lorde. And he made a gutter rounde about the aulter, able to receaue two peckes of corne. And he put the woode in order, and hewed the ore in peces, and put him on the wood, and sayde: fyll foure pytchers with water, and powze it on the sacrifice, and on the wood. And he sayde: do so agayne. And they dyd so agayne. Then he sayde: do it the thyrde tyme. And they did so the thyrde time. And the water ran rounde aboute the aulter, and the gutter was full of water also.

And when offrynge tyme was come, Eliab the prophet wet to & sayd: O Lord God of Abraham, Isaac and of Israel, let it be knowen thys daye, that thou art the God in Israel, and that I am thy seruaunte, and that I do all these thynges at thy commaundement. Hear me o Lorde, heare me, that this people maye knowe, that thou Lorde, arte the God, and that thou haste turned theyr heartes backward. * And there fel fyre from the Lorde, and consumed the sacrifice, and the wood, and the stones, and the duste, and lycked vp the water that was in the gutter. And when al the people sawe that, they fell on theyr faces, & sayde: the Lorde, he is God, the Lorde he is God. Then sayde Eliab vnto them: laye þ handes on the Prophetes of Baal, let not one of them escape. And when they had taken them, Eliab broughte them downe vnto the broke Jisbon, and slue them there.

Then Eliab sayd vnto Ahab, get the vp, and eate and dryncke, for ther is a sounde of muche rayue. And when Ahab went vp to eat and to dryncke, Eliab went vp to the toppe of mount Carmel. * And bowd him selfe to the earth, and put his face betwene hys knees, & sayde to his seruaunte: go vp (I praye the) & loke toward the sea. And he went vp & looked, & saide: ther is nothing. And he sayd: go agayne. vii. times. And þ seventh tyme, he sayd: behold, ther ariseth a lytle take hebe what thou doest: for when the yere is aboute, the kynge of Siria wyl come agaynste the agayne. Then sayde the seruauntes of the kynges of Siria to him: the Goddes of þe hylls are their Gods, and therfore they had the better of vs. But let vs fight with them in the playne, and for what ye wyl, we shall haue the better of them. And this do: take the kynges awaye euery man out of his place, & put dukes in their rowmes. And do thou nombze the an hoste, lyke the hoste that thou hast losse, and horse for horse, & charet for charet, and let vs fyghte with them in the playne, and for a wager, we get þe better of the. And the kynge hekened vnto theyr voyce, and dyd euen so.

And as sone as the yere was aboute, Benhadad nombzed the Syrians, and wēt vp to Aphek to warre with Israel. And the chyldzen of Israel were nombzed, and prouided of bitaile, and went agaynst them, and pyched before them, lyke two litle flockes of kiddes: but the Syrians fylled the countreie. Then there came a man of God, & sayde vnto the kynge of Israel: thus saith þe lord: because þe Syrians saye þe lord is but a God of the hylls, and not God of the valeys: totherfore wil I delyuer al this great multitude into thine hande, that ye maye knowe that I am þe lord. And they pitched one ouer agaynste the other. vii. dayes, and the seuenth daye fopned batayle. And the chyldzen of Israel slue of the Syrians an hundred thousande fote men in one day. And the rest fled to Aphek into the cite. And there set a walle vpon. xxvii. thousande of them that were left. And Benhadad fled, and wēt into the cite, from chambr to chambze.

Then sayde his seruauntes vnto him: beholde, we haue hearde say, þe kynges of the house of Israel are merciful kynges. Let vs put sacke cloth aboute oure Loynes, & ropes about oure heades, and go out to the kynge of Israel: haplye he wyl saue thy lyfe. And they gwyded sacke clothe about theyr loines, and put ropes about their heades, and went out to the kynge of Israel, & said: thy seruaunt Benhadad saith, I praye the let me lyue. And he said: is he yet a lyue, what he is my brother. And they ftoke the worde for good lucke; & hastily caught it out of his mouth, & said: yea, thy brother Benhadad. Then he sayde: go & brynge him. And Benhadad came out to him, & the other toke him vp into the charet. And Benhadad said: the cpyties which my father toke from thy father, I wil restore agayne. And þe Malte make streates for þe in Damasco, as my father dyd in Samaria. And I wyl make an appoyntmēt wth the, & sende the away. And so he made an appoyntment with him, and sent him awaye.

Then a certen man of the chyldze of the Prophetes, sayde vnto his felowe with the worde of the Lord, synpte me I praye the. And the man woulde not synpte him. And he said, because þe haste not obeyed þe voyce of þe lord: beholde, as sone as thou arte departed from me, a Lyon shal slaye the. And as sone as he was departed fro him, & a Lyon founde him, and slue him. Then he founde another man, and sayde to him: synpte me I praye the. And the mā gaue him a good stripe & wounded him. And þe Prophet went forth, & waited for þe kynge by the waie, and put ashes vpon his eyes, and put him selfe out of knowledge. And when the kynge came by, he cryed vnto him, & said: thy seruaunt wēt out in the middes of the battel. And se, there was one began to flee. And there came a man to me & said: kepe this mā. And yf he be mysted, thy lyfe shal go for hys, or else thou shalt paye a talent of syluer. And as thy seruaunt had here & there to do, he was gone. And þe king of Israel said vnto him: euen so shal thy iudgemēt be, as thou hast despynd it thy selfe.

And he halted, and toke the ashes away from his eyes: and the kyng of Israel knew him, that he was of the Prophetes. And he said vnto the king: thus saith þe lord: because thou haste let go a mā þe ought to haue dyed, thy life shal go for his lyfe: and thy people for hys. And the kynge of Israel wente to hys house, way warde and heupe, and entred into Samaria.

Jezabel. iii. Kynge.

After these thynges were done, it chaunced that Naboth the Jezrahelite had a vyneparde in Jezrahel, harde by þe palace of Ahab kynge of Samaria. And Ahab spake vnto Naboth, sayinge: let me haue thy vyneparde, to make me a garden of yerbes therof, because it lyeth so nye my house: and I wil geue the a better vyneparde for it: or yf it please the, I wil geue the, the worthe of it in siluer. But Naboth sayd to Ahab: the Lorde forbydde that from me, that I shoulde geue the enheritaunce of my fathers vnto the.

BThen wente Ahab vnto his house waywarde and euell apayde, because of the wordes whiche Naboth the Jezrahelyte had spoken to him, saying: I wil not geue to the, the enheritaunce of my fathers. And he layde hym downe vpon his heed, and turned awate his face, and woulde eate no meate. And then Jezabell his wyfe came to hym, & sayde vnto hym: why arte thou so frowarde, that thou eatest no meate? And he sayde vnto her: I spake vnto Naboth þe Jezrahelyte, and sayde vnto hym: geue me thy vyneparde for siluer, or else yf thou wylte, I wyl geue the another vyneparde for it. And he said: I wil not geue the my vyneparde.

CThen sayde Jezabell his wyfe vnto hym: what a goodlye kyngedome were thou able to make in Israel: vp, & eate meate, and let thyne hert at reste, for I wyl geue the, the vyneparde of Naboth the Jezrahelite. And she wrote a letter in Ahabs name, & sealed it wth his seale, and sent it vnto the elders & chiefe men of his citie, that dwelte where Naboth dwelte. And she wrote in the letter, sayinge: proclayme fastynge & let Naboth on hys amonge the people, and let two vnthyriftes befoze him, and let them testyfy agaynst him, sayinge: thou didest curse both God and the kyng. And vpon þe cary him out, & stone him to death.

DAnd the elders and nobles of his citie, whiche dwelte in hys cytie, dyd as Jezabel had sente vnto them, and as it was wyrtten in the letter whiche she had sent vnto them. They proclaymed fastynge, and sette Naboth on hys amonge the people, and there came in two vnthyriftes persones, & sat befoze. And þe two vnthyriftes persones witnesssed agaynst Naboth befoze þe people, sayinge: Naboth did curse God and the kyng. And vpon that they caryed him out of the citie, and stoned hym wth stones to death. And then they sente to Jezabel, sayinge: Naboth is stoned to death. And when Jezabel hearde that Naboth was stoned to death: she sayde to Ahab: vp, and take possession of the vyneparde of Naboth, the Jezrahelite, whiche he denyed to geue the for siluer, for Naboth is not alpyue, but deed. And when Ahab hearde that Naboth was dead. He stode vp to go downe to þe vyneparde of Naboth the Jezrahelyte, to take possession of it.

And the worde of the Lorde came vnto Eliah the Thelbite, saynge: vp, & go downe to mete Ahab kynge of Israel whiche is in Samaria. Beholde, he is in the vyneparde of Naboth: for he is gone downe thither, to take possession of it. And say vnto him: thus sayeth the Lorde, thou hast kylled and therto gotten possession. And saye mozeouer vnto him, thus sayeth the Lorde: in the place where dogges lapped þe bloude of Naboth, shal dogges lappe euē thy bloude also. And Ahab said to Eliah: hast thou founde me thyne enemye at anye tyme? And he said: yea, because thou arte vnterly geuen to worke wickednesse in the syghte of the Lorde. Beholde, I wil byng euell vpon the, & wil make cleane ryddance of thy posterite, & wil destroye vnto Ahab all þe pysseth agaynst the walle, and yf ought be pyssed or forsaken in Israel: I wil make thine house, like the house of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat: & like þe house of Baasa þe sonne of Ahiah, for the angerynge wherwith thou hast angered, & made Israel sinne.

And therto agaynst Jezabel came the word of the Lorde, sayinge: dogges shal eate Jezabel, vnder the walles of Jezrahel. And he that dyeth of Ahab in the towne, him shal dogges eate: & he that dyeth in the felde, him shal þe fowles of the ayre eate. For there was none at all lyke Ahab, that was so vnterly geuen to worke wickednesse in the syght of the Lorde: and that because Jezabel his wyfe pricked him forwarde,

And therfore he did exceedinge abhominablye, in folowynge Idoles, in al thynges lyke as dyd the Ammorites: which the Lorde caste out before the chyldren of Israel.

When Ahab hearde those wordes, he rēt his clothes, and put sackecloth about his flethe, and fasted, and laye in sacke clothe, and went comfortlesse. And the worde of the Lorde came to Eliah the Thelbite, sayinge: seyst thou howe Ahab humbleth him selfe before me: because he so submytteth hym selfe before me, I wyll not bynge that euell in hys dayes: but in his sonnes dayes, I wyll bynge euell vpon his house.

The xxii. Chapter.

Four hundredeth false Prophetes do counsell Ahab and Jeholaphat to warre agaynst Ramoth: onely Michaiah prophesyeth the truthe, for whiche he is longtyned and put in prison.

And they contynued thre yere without warre betwene Siria and Israel. And the thirde yere Jeholaphat kynge of Iuda, came to the kynge of Israel. Then sayde the kynge of Israel vnto his seruantes, know ye not that Ramoth in Gilead is outes, & we syt syl, and take it not oute of the handes of the kynge of Siria? And he said vnto Jeholaphat: wylte thou go w me to batayle, to Ramoth in Gilead? And Jeholaphat sayd vnto the kynge of Israel. I wyl be as thou art, & my people shal be as thyne, and my horses as thyne.

And Jeholaphat sayde vnto þe kynge of Israel: aske counsel I praye the, of the Lorde to daye. And then the kynge of Israel gathered of þe Prophetes together, vpon a foure hundred men, and sayde vnto them: shal I go to Ramoth in Gilead to batayle, or be syl? And they sayde, go: for the Lord shal deliuer it into the handes of the kynge. And Jeholaphat sayde: is there neuer a Prophet of the Lordes here moze, that we might enqurye of him? And the kynge of Israel said to Jeholaphat: there is yet one, by whome we may aske counsel of the Lorde, one Michaiah the sonne of Iemlah. But I hate him, for he neuer prophesyeth good vnto me, but euell.

And Jeholaphat sayde: let not the kynge say so. Then þe king of Israel called vnto one of his chamberlains, & said: let Michaiah þe sonne of Iemlah hither atonce.

And the kynge of Israel & Jeholaphat the kynge of Iuda sat ether in his seate, and their apparell on them, in a voyde place besyde the entrynge in of the gate of Samaria, & al the Prophetes prophesyng before them. And Zedekiah the sonne of Canaanah made hornes of yron, and sayde: thus sayeth the Lorde: with these hornes thou shalt pushe þe Sirrians vntil thou haue made an ende of them. And all the Prophetes prophesied euen so, sayinge: go vp to Ramoth in Gilead, and prosper, for the Lorde shal delpyer it into the handes of the kynge.

And the messenger that was gone to cal Michaiah, sayde vnto him: se, the wordes of the Prophetes speake good vnto the kynge with one voyce: let thy wordes I praye the, be lyke the wordes of one of them, and speake that is good. And Michaiah said: as surely as þe Lord lyueth, what the Lorde putteth in my mouthe, that wyll I speake. And when he was come to the king: the kynge sayd to him: Michaiah, shal we go to Ramoth in Gilead to batayle, or shal we be syl? And he sayd vnto him: go and prospere, the Lorde shal delpyer it into the handes of the kynge. And the kynge sayde vnto hym, howe often shal I adiure the, that thou tell me nothing but truthe, in the name of the Lorde?

Then he sayd: I saw al Israel scattered vpon the hylls, as shepe þe haue no shepardes. And the Lorde said: those haue no master, let them returne, euery man to his house in peace. Then sayde the kynge of Israel to Jeholaphat: byd I not tel the, that he woulde prophelye no good vnto me, but euell? And Michaiah sayd: heare therfore the worde of the Lord. I sawe the Lord syt on his seate, and all the companye of heauen standynge aboute him, on his ryght hande, and on hys lefte. And the Lorde sayde: who shal decreaue Ahab, that he maye go and be slayne at Ramoth in Gilead: and one sayde on this maner, and a nother on that. Then came forth a certayne spirite, and stode before the Lord and sayde: I wyll deceaue him. And the Lorde sayde, wherwith? And he sayde:

I wyll go oute, and be a false spirite in the mouthes of all his prophetes. And the Lorde said, thou shalt deceaue hym, and also preuayle, go forth and do euery so. Nowe therfore beholde, the * Lorde of all these thy prophetes: when in ve-

the cheke, and sayde: howe is the spirite of the Lorde gonne from me, to speake in the? And Micheah said: beholde, thou shalte se in that daye, when thou shalt go from chambze to chambze to hyde the. And the kyng of Israel said: take Micheah, and carpe him backe againe vnto Amon the gouernour of the ctyte, and vnto Joab the kynges sonne, & say: thus sayeth the kyng. But ye this fe-lowe in the prison house, and fede hym with breade of affliction, & with water of trouble vntyll I retorne in peace.

Then Micheah sayde: yf I come safe a-

And he said mozeouer: herke to ye peo-

The firste Chapter.

Jhoziah falleth and is hurte and asketh counsell of Beelzebub whiche waye he maye come by health. The captaynes ouer fyfte with theyr souldiars are burnte with fyre from heauen, by the prayer of Eliah. Jhoziah is rejoyced of Eliah, and dyeth, and Jehoram hys brother succeedeth hym.

Jhoziah þe sonne of Ahab beganne to raygne vpo Israel in Samaria, the xviij. yere of Jehoshaphat king of Iuda, and was king ouer Israel two yere, & dyd euell in the syghte of the Lorde, and walked in the waye of his father, & in the waye of his mother, and in the wate of Jeroboam þe sonne of Nabat, whiche made Israel synne. And he serued Baal, and bowed him selfe to him, & angred the Lorde God of Israel, in all thyng, as dyd his father. And the Moabites rebelled against Israel after the death of Ahab.

And Jhoziah fell thorow a lattise windowe oute of an upper chābre that he had in Samaria, and fel sicke. Then he sent messengers, sayinge vnto them: go and enquire of Beelzebub the god of Akaron, whether I shall recouer of this dyscase. But the Angel of the Lord spake to Eliah the Thelbite: vp and go agaynst the messengers of the kyng of Samaria, and saye vnto them: Is it because there is no God in Israel, that ye go to aske thorow Beelzebub the God of Akaron. Therefore thus sayeth the Lorde: thou shalt not come downe from the bedde on whiche thou arte gone vp, but shalt dye. And Eli-ah departed.

And the messengers turned backe agayne vnto him. And he sayde vnto them: why are ye thus come agayne? And they sayde vnto him: there came a man agaynst vs, and said vnto vs: go, and turne agayne vnto the kyng that sent you, & saye vnto him: Thus sayeth the Lorde. Is it because there is no God in Israel, that thou sendest to enquire thorow Beelzebub the God of Akaron? Therefore thou shalt not come from the bedde on which thou art gone vp, but shalt suerlye dye. And he said to them: what maner a man was þe whiche met you, and tolde you these wordes? And they sayde vnto hym: it was an hearty man and *gyrde with a gyrdle of a skymme aboute hys loynes. And he said vnto the: it is Eliah the Thelbite.

Then the kyng sente vnto hym a captayne ouer fyfte with his fyfte.

And whē þe captaine was come to hym, beholde: he sat on the toppe of an hyll. And the captayne sayde vnto hym: man of God, þe kyng byddeth þe come downe. And Eliah answered and sayde to the captayne ouer the fyfte: yf I be a man of God, fyre come downe from heauen, and consume the & thy fyfte. And there came fyre downe from heauen, and deuoured him and his fyfte. And þe kyng went agayne, and sent to him a nother captayne ouer fyfte, with his fyfte, whiche answered and sayde vnto hym: O man of God, thus sayeth the kyng, make hast, and come downe. And Eliah answered and sayde vnto them: yf I be a man of God, then let fyre come downe from heauen, and consume the and thy fyfte. And there came fyre downe from heauen, & consumed him and hys fyfte.

And the kyng sent agayne þe thyrde captayne ouer fyfte wth his fyfte. And when þe thirde captaine ouer fyfte was come vp to him, he fell on his knees before Eliah, and besoughte him, & sayde vnto him: Oh man of God, let my lyfe, and þe lyfe of these fyfte thy seruantes be precious in thy syght. Behold, there came fyre downe from heauen, & burnt vp the two fore captaynes ouer fyfte with their fyftes. But let my lyfe now be precious in thy sight. Then said the Angell of the LORDE vnto Eliah:

go downe with him, and he not afrayde of him. And he went downe with hym vnto the kyng.

And he sayde vnto the kyng: thus sayeth þe Lorde: for as moche as thou sentest messengers to aske thozow Beelzebub the God of Akaron, as though there had bene no god in Israel, to aske thozowe his worde: therfore thou shalt not come of the bedde on whiche thou art ascended, but shalt surely dye. And so he dyed accordynge to þe worde of the Lord whiche Eliah spake, & Jehoram was made kyng in his stede, the secōde yere of Jehoram sonne of Jehosaphat kyng of Iuda, because he had no sonne. The rest of þe dedes of Ohoziah which he dyd: are wyrtten in the chronicles of the kynges of Israel.

Then the men of Jericho sayde to Eliseus: Beholde, the cytpe standeth pleasantly, as my Lorde seyth, but the water is noughte, and the groude barren. ¶ The .v. Chapter.

¶ Naaman the Syrien is healed of hys leprosy: Gibez is strepen with a leprosy because he took monye and rayment of Naaman.

Naaman captayne of the hoste to the kyng of Siria, was great with hys maister and wel take: for thow him the Lorde saued Siria. And he was an actyue man, & yet a leper. And there had gone a compaigne of Soudiers oute of Siria a runnyng, and had brought oute of the contrey of Israell a lytle mayd, which was with Naamans wife. And the Damsell sayde vnto her lady: I woulde my maister were with a prophet that is in Samaria: he wolde deliuer him of hys leprosy. And she went and tolde her husbände, saying: thus & thus sayeth y mayde y is out of y land of Israell. And y kyng of Siria said: goe thy waye, and I wyll sende a letter vnto the kyng of Israell. And he went

And toke with hym ten talentes of syluer and syxe thousande peces of golde and ten chaunge of raymentes. And he broughte the letter to the kyng of Israell contayninge this tenour. Now when thys letter is come vp to thee: Behold, I haue sent Naaman my seruante to the, that thou shouldest rydde hym of hys leprosy. And when y kyng of Israell had reade the letter, he rente his cloth: & sayd: * am I God, to slei & to make a liue: y he shulde sende to me, for to deliuer a man from hys leprosy. But consider I pray you & se, howe he pyketh quarelles w me. And whē Eliseus y mā of God, had heard how that the kyng of Israell had rent hys clothes, he sent to the kyng, saying: wherefore hast thou rent thy clothes: let him come to me, that he maye knowe that there is a prophet in Israell.

And Naaman came with his hoxses and his charet, & stode at the doore of Eliseus. Then Eliseus sent a messenger, saying: goe & washe the in Jordan seuen times, & thy flesh shal come agayne to the as before, & thou shalt be cleane. And Naaman was wrothe and went awaye, and sayd: Beholde, I thoughte in my selfe, he wolde haue come oute, & stande, & call on the name of the Lorde his God, & put hys hande on the place of the disease, and so take awaye the leprosy. Are not Abanah & Pharpar, riuers of Damasco, better then all the waters yf Israell: Whyght I not rather washe in the & be cleane? And so he turned, & departed in an angre. The same his seruantes & comuned with him, & sayde: father, yf y prophet had byd the done some great thinge oughtest thou yot then to haue done it? Howe muche rather the shuldest thou do it, while he sayeth to the onlye, washe & be cleane. * Then he went downe & washed seuen times in Jordan, as y mā of God bad, and his flesh chaūged, lyke vnto y flesh of a lytle boye, and he was cleane.

Thē he turned agayne to the mā of God: he & al his compaigne w him, and came and stode before him, & saide: Beholde, I knowe that there is no God w all the worlde, but in Israell. And nowe I praye the take a blessinge of thy seruante. But he sayde: * as surelye as the Lorde liueth (before whom I stode) I wyl receaue none. And y other wold haue constrayned hym to receaue: But he wolde not do it. And Naaman sayd: yf thou wylte not: yet I praye thee, may there not be geuen to thy seruante the burthen of two Mules of earthe, for thy seruante wyl henceforth offer nether burnt sacrifice nor offering vnto anye other God, then to the Lorde. But herein the Lorde be mercyfull to thy seruante, for when my maister goeth into the house of Remon, to worshyp there, he leaneth on myne hande, and I muste worshyppe in the house of Remon, let the Lorde I praye the be mercyfull vnto thy seruante in this case. And he sayde to him: goe in peace. And when he was departed fro hym a furlong of grounde, Gibez y seruante of Eliseus the maill of God, sayde: see my maister

And whē Naamā saw hym, come runnyng after hym, he came downe of the charet agaynste him, and sayd: *is al wel. And he sayde yea.

But my maister hath sente me, sayinge: se, there be two yong men come to me out of Ephraim of þ children of the prophetes: geue them I praye the, one talēt of syluer, & a couple of good garments. And Naamā sayde: is a good wyll. Take two talētes of syluer in it, bagges, with two goodly garments, and deliuered the vnto two of his seruantes, to beare it befoze him. And he went in the darcke and toke it of their handes and bestowed it in the house, and let the men goe, & they departed.

Then he went and stode befoze hys maister. And Eliseus sayde to hym: whence cometh Eisezi? And he sayde: thy seruante went no whether. And he sayd: wēt not myne hearte in the, when the mā turned & came of hys charet agaynste the? Is it a tyme to receaue syluer, & to receaue garments, oluetrees, byneparde, oxen, shepe, menseruaunts, and maydeseruaunts? The leprolye therfoze of Naaman cleaue vnto thee, & vnto thy seed for euer. *And he went out fro him a leper, as white as snowe.

¶ The. vi. Chapter.

Eliseus maketh pynt to swymme aboute the water. The Siritens beseege Israell, so that two women agree together to eate their owne children.

When sayde the children of the prophetes vnto Eliseus: see, the place where we dwell in the, is to lytle for vs. Let vs go to Jordan & there take euerie man a beame, and bylde vs a place there, to dwel in. And he sayde: goe ye. And one sayd: begyn I praye thee, & goe wyth thy seruantes. And he sayde: I wyll, and so went with them.

And when they came to Jordan, they cut downe wood. And as one was hewyng of a beame, the axe head fell into þ water. And he cried out, & sayde: Alas maister, for it was lent me. And þ mā of God sayde: where fel it? And he shewed him þ place. And he cut downe a stycke and caste it in thither, & made the axe heade to swymme. And he sayd: take it by to thee. And the other stretched hys hande and caught it.

And the kynge of Siria foughte agaynst Israell, & toke counsaile with hys seruantes, sayinge: In suche a place and in suche a place wyll I pitch. And the man of God sent vnto þ kynge of Israell, saying: Beware thou go not by suche a place, for there are the Siritans gone downe. And the kynge of Israell sent to þ place which the man of God told him, and warned hym of, and sauēd hym selfe there moze then once or twyse.

And the heart of the kynge of Siria was troubled therwith, that he sente for his seruantes & sayd to the: *wil ye not shew me which of vs telleth þ kyng of Israell. And one of hys seruantes sayd: naye my lord kyng: Eliseus the prophete that is in Israell, he telleth the kyng of Israell the wordes þ thou speakest in thy slepyng chambyre. The he sayde: goe and spie where he is, that I may sende and fet hym. And one told the kynge, sayinge: se, he is in Dothā. And he sent thither horse and charetts, and a greate hoste. And they came thither by night, & cōpassed þ town about.

And when the seruante of þ man of God rose by erlye and was gone oute: Beholde, there was an hoste rounde about the towne in horsles & charettes. Then sayde hys lad to hym: Alas maister, what shall we doe? And he sayde: *fear not, there are moo with vs then with the. And Eliseus prayed, & sayde: Lord, open the eyes of the yonge mā, and he sawe. And behold, þ mountayne was full of horsles & charettes of syrs rounde aboute Eliseus. And when the soudiars came downe to hym, Eliseus prayed vnto the Lord, and sayde: Smyte this people (I pray the) *with blindnesse. And he smote them wyth blindnes, accordyng to the desire of Eliseus. Then Eliseus sayde vnto the: thys is not the way, nor this is not the towne: But folow me, and I wyll bring you to the man ye seke. And he ledde them to Samaria.

When they were come to Samaria, a, Eliseus said: Lord, open their eyes, and

And the sayd the kyng of Israell vnto Eliseus when he saw the: * Hal I smite the, Hal I smite the father: and he sayde: smyte them not. But smyte them thou takest wth thyne owne swerde & wth thyne owne bowe. But sette bread and water before them, & let them eate and dryncke, and goe to their maister. And he made great ordinaunce before them. And when they had eaten & droncke, he sent them away, and they went to their maister. And so the soudyars of Siria came no more into þe land of Israell.

After this, Benhadad kyng of Siria gathered all the hoste, & wente and beleged Samaria. And there arose a great darth i Samaria: for they had beleged it, vntil an asses head was worth foure skore cycles of syluer, and the fourth parte of a * Cab of dones donge worth fyue cycles. And as the kyng of Israell walked vpon the walles, there cryed a womā to him, saying: helpe my lord & kyng. And he said: nay, þe Lorde helpe thee. But wherewith shoulde I helpe thee, wth cozne oz wyne? Then sayd the kyng to her, what ayleth thee? And she answered: thys woman here sayd to me, bring thy sonne, and let vs eate hym to day, and we wyl eate wyne to morow. * And so we dyessed my sone, and dyd eate hym. And I sayde to her another day, bringe thy sonne that we maye eate hym. But she hathe hyd her sonne. When the kyng hearde þe wordes of the woman, he rent hys clothes, eue as he was walkyng on the walles. And whē þe people looked vpon hym: se, he was clothed in sack cloth vnder. Thē he sayde: * God do so & so to me, yf þe head of Eliseus the sonne of Saphat tarpe on hym thys daye. And as Eliseus sat in hys house, and the elders with him, the kyng sent one frome hym. But yf the messenger came to him, he sayde to the elders: se pou not howe the sonne of this murthurer hath sent, to take of mine head: be circūspect therfore when the messenger cometh, and shutte the doze, and thruste him backe therwith: for the sounde of his maisters fete followeth hym. ## The. xlii. Chapter.

Eliseus propheseth plentifulnes of byrgton and other thynges to Samaria. The Syrians faste and haue no man folowynge them. The lordes people not beleue the worde of Eliseus is troden to death.

Athen Eliseus sayd: heare the worde of the Lorde: for thus sayeth the Lorde: to morow thys tyme a bushell of fyne flour shalbe solde for a cycle, and two bushelles of Barley for a nother in the gates of Samaria. Thē a great lord (on whose hande þe king leane) answered the mā of God, & sayde: though the Lorde wolde make wyndowes in heauen, yet wolde not thys be. And he said agayne: beholde, thou shalt see it wth thyne eyes, and shalt not eate therof.

And there were foure lepers set withoute the gate of Samaria. And they sayde eche to hys companion, what shal we here vntill we dye? Thoughe we thoughte that we myght come into the cite, yet is þe darthe so great in þe cite, that we shall there dye. And yf we aryue here, we are but dead also. Howe therfore come, & let vs flee to the hoste of the Syrians: If they saue oureselues, we shal lyue: And yf they kyll vs, then are we dead. And so they arose in the darcke to goe to þe hoste of þe Syrians. And when they were come to the syde of the hoste of Siria: se, there was no man there.

For the Lorde made the hoste of the * Syrians heare a noyse of charrettes, and a noyse of horses, and the noyse of a great hoste. In so much þe they sayde one to another: se, the kyng of Israell hathe hyred agaynst vs, the kynges of the Hethites, and the kynges of Egypt, to come vpon vs. And vpon that they arose & fled in the darcke, and left their tentes, their horses, their asses, and the felde they had pitched, euen as it was, & fled for their lyues. And when these lepers came to the edge of þe hoste, they went into the tente, & dyd eate and dryncke and carried thence syluer, gold, and rayment, & went and hydde it: and came agayne, and entred into another, and

and escaped thence also, and wente and hided it.

Then they sayd one to another: it is not wel þ we do, for this daye is a daye to bringe good tidings. And if we hold oure peace, a tarpe tye it be daye light, we shall fynde a mischief. Howe therfore come, let vs goe tell the kynges household. And so they went, and called to the porter of the citie, and tolde the sayinge: we came to the paup'rous of the Syrians: and se, there was no man there, neither voyce of man, but horses and asses tied, & the tentes euen as they were wont to be.

Then the porters called & tolde the king's house within. And þ kyng arose in þ night, & sayde to his seruantes. I wyl shewe you now, howe the Syrians haue serued vs. They knowe þ we are oppressed with hynge, and therefore are gone out of their panylls, to hyde thyselues in the felde, sayinge they wyl come out of the citie, and then we shall catch them alyue, and get into the ci-tie. And one of hys seruantes answered, and sayde: Let men take fine of the horses that remaine, & are left in the citie. Beholde, they are as good as all the multitude that are left in the citie:
and as good as all þ multitude of þ ci-tie are consumed, and let vs send and se. And they toke two charettes of horses, and the kyng sente after the hoste of the Syrians, sayinge: go and se. And they folowed after them, euen vnto Jordan: and se, al the waye was full of clothes and vesselles which the Syrians had caste from them for haste.

And the messengers returned, & tolde the kyng. And then þ people went out & robbed the tentes of the Syrians. And so a bushel of floire was solde for a sy-cle, and two bushelles of barley for a sycke: accordynge to the worde of the Lorde. And the kyng sette the Lorde (on whose hande he leaned) to kepe the gate. And the people troade hym in the gate, that he dyed: accordynge to the sayinge of the man of God, whiche he sayde: when the kyng came downe to him. And it came to passe accordyng to the worde of the man of God had spoken to the kyng, sayinge: two bushel-les of barley for a sicke: and a bushel of barley for another, shall be to morowe thyn tyme in the gates of Samaria.

And the lorde answered the man of God & sayde: though the Lorde made myndowes in heauen, yet wolde thys not be. And the other sayde: Beholde, thou shalt se it with thyn eyes, & shalt not rate therof. And so it chauced vnto hym: for the people troade hym vnder fete in the gate, that he dyed.

The viii. Chapter.

¶ Eliseus propheseth vnto the Damascite the death of Sennacher. After the death of Sennacherib kinge of Assyria. Jehoram the sonne of Jehoshaphat reigneth in Iuda. Edom saileth from Iuda. Shobab succedeth Jehoram.

AS then spake * Eliseus vnto þ woman, (whose sonne he had restored to lyfe agayne) sayinge: hy, & go both thou and thynne house, and sojourne where thou thinkest best, for þ Lord wil cal a darchy whyche shall come on the lande seuen yere. And the woman arose, and did acter the sayinge of the man of God, and went bothe she and her household, and sojourned in the lande of the philistines seuen yere. And at þ seuen yeres ende, whē þ womā was come agayne out of the lande of the philistynes, she wente oute to speake vnto the kyng for her house & for her lāde. And the king was talkynge with Gihezi the seruante of the man of God, sayinge: tel me (I pray the) all the great deedes which Elise-us did. And it chauced as he was telling þ kyng how he restored a dead bo-dye to lyfe agayne þ the woman whose sonne he reupued, cryed to the kyng for her house and land. Then sayd Gi-hezi: My Lorde & kyng, thys is the woman, and thys is her sonne whyche

And the kyng asked the woman, and she tolde hym. And so the kyng sente to her one of hys chābrelaynes, sayinge: restore all that pertayneth to her, with all the frutes of the felde, sence þ daye that she lefte the lande, vnto this tyme.

After that * Eliseus wente to Da-masco, Sennacherib the kyng of Syria

* Take a presente with the, and goe a-

Ohozi: gape the man of God, and aske the sent me to the, sayinge: shall I recouer

 I knowe that thou shalt do euell vnto the children of Israel: their stronge ci ties thou shalt set on fyre, & their pong men thou shalt sleie with the swerde, and shalt dash out the braynes of their suckynge chyldren, and all to teare their women with chylde.

And Hazael sayde: what is thy ser uant whiche am but a dogge, that I shulde doe this great thyng? And E liseus sayde: for the Lorde hath shewed me, I thou shalt be kyng of Siria. And so he departed from Eliseus and came to hys maister, whiche sayde to hym: what sayd Eliseus to the? And he said: he tolde that thou shouldest recouer.
 And on the morowe he toke a rough

 And then Robnah slepte awaye to,

The reste of I deades of Jehoram, the toppe of steppes, and blew a trom-pet and sayde: Jehu is kyng. And so Jehu the sonne of Jehosaphat & sonne of Amisi conspired agaynst Jehoram.

And Jehoram had bene waiting at Ra-moth Gilead, he & all Israel with him, for feare of Hazael kyng of Siria, and was returned to be healed i Jezabel, of the woundes which the Sirians had geuen him, as he fought with Hazael kyng of Siria.

Then sayd Jehu: If it be youte myndes, the let no man escape out of the ci-tie, to goo and tell in Jezabel. And Jehu rode and went to Jezabel: for Je-horam laye there, and Ohoziab kyng of Iuda was come to Jehoram. And the watchman that stode on the towre in Jezabel, spied the company of Jehu as he came, and sayd: I se a companye.
And Jehoram sayde: take an horsman and sende agaynst them, & let him aske whether it be peace. And there went one on horsebacke agaynst him, and sayde: thus sayth the kyng: is it peace? And Jehu answered: what hast thou to do with peace? turne & come after me. And the watchman tolde, saying: my messenger came to the, but he cometh not agayne.

Then he sent out another on horsebacke, whiche came to them, and sayde:
thus sayth the kyng: is it peace? And Jehu answered, what hast thou to do with peace? turne and come after me.
And the watchman tolde, saying: he came to the, but he cometh not agayne, and the dyspyng is lyke the dyspyng of Jehu the sonne of Amisi: for he dysueth as he were mad.

Then sayde Jehoram, make readye.
And they made ready his charret. And Jehoram kyng of Israel, and Ohoziab kyng of Iuda wet out ether in his cha-ret, agaynst Jehu, and met him in the furlonge of Naboth the Jezrahelite.
And when Jehoram sawe Jehu, he sayde: is it peace Jehu? And he sayde, what peace shoulde there be, so long as the whoredomes of thy mother Jezabel and her witchcraftes are so great? And Je-horam turned his hand & fled, & sayd to Ohoziab, there is salthed Ohoziab. And Jehu toke a bowe in his hande, & smote

Jehoram betwene the shoulders, that the arrowe came out at his breast. And he fel downe thre folde in his charet. The sayde Jehu to Badakar a lorde of his: take & cast him in the plat of ground of Naboth, the Jezrahelite. for I remembre as I a thou roade together after Ahab his father, how the Lorde spake these wordes agaynst hym: I have sene pesterdaye the bloude of Naboth, and of his sonnes, sayd the Lorde, and I will quyte hym in this grounde, sayth the

And Jehu folowed after him, & sayde: smyte him also. And they smote him in his charet at hē going up to Sur by Jebelaam, and he fled to Bagedo & there dyed. And his seruantes caried him to Jerusalem, & buryed him in his sepulchre with his fathers, in the citie of David. And in the .xi. yere of Jehorā sonne of Ahab, begāne Ohoziah to raygne ouer Juda. And when Jehu was come to Jezrahel, Jezabel heard of it, & starched her eyes, & tyred her head, and looked out at a wyndow. And as Jehu entered at hē gate, she said: had I amrē peace whiche slewe his masters. And he lyft up his eyes to hē wyndow, and sayde: who is of my side, whor. And there loked out to him two of the lordes that were chamberlaynes. And he sayde: Thowme her downe. And they threw her downe. And he spynkled of her bloude vpon the walles, and on the hoxles, and troade her vnder fote.

B And then when he was come in, & had eatē and droncke, he sayde: goo & byset I praye you, ponder cursed creature, & burye her, for she is a kynges doughter. And when they came to burye her, they founde no moze of her, then the skulle and the two fete: & the two handes. And they came agayne and tolde him. And he sayd: it is the worde of the Lord which he spake by the hand of his seruauit Eliah the Thelbite, sayinge: I in the felde of Jezrahel shall dogges eate the fleshe of Jezabel, and hē carkas of Jezabel shalbe donge vpon the erthe, in the felde of Jezrahel, that men shall not saye, this is Jezabel.

J Jehu conteth the .lxx. sonnes of Ahab to be slayne, after that slayng of his father. He synneth a meane while to kyll all the Princes of Israhel. After his death he layneth in his house.

Ahab had .lxx. sonnes in Samaria. And Jehu wrote letters, & sent to Samaria vnto elders that were lordes of Jezrahel, & to thē that a nouticed by Ahab's chyldren, sayinge: now at the coming of these letters to you, ye haue in you your masters sonnes, & ye haue with you charettes & hoxles, & a strōg citie & harnesse. Therfore chole the best, & him that most pleaseth you of your masters sonnes, & put him on his fathers seate, and fight for your lordes howse. And they were exceedingly afrayde, & sayde: se, two kynges were not able to stande before him, howe shall we then stande. And the gouernour of the kynges howse, & of the citie, & of the elders & the noutices sent to Jehu, sayinge: we are thy seruantes, and will do all that hē shalt byd vs: we will make no man kinge: but do thou what semeth good in thyne eyes.

Then he wrote another letter to thē, sayinge: If ye be myne, & will obeye my voyce, thē take the heades of your masters sonnes, & come to me to Jezrahel, by to morow this tyme. And the kynges sonnes were .lxx. persones, in the great men of the cytie, which noutished thē. And when the letter came to them, they toke the kynges chyldren, and slue thē, in nombre .lxx. persones, and put their heades in cophines, and sent thē to him to Jezrahel. And there came a messenger and tolde hym, sayinge: they haue brought the heades of the kynges sonnes. And he sayde: let them put thē on two heapes in the enterpyng of the gate, tyll it be daye.

And in the mornynge he went out, and stode, & sayd to all the folke, & to the troupe: for se, I conspired agaynst my master, and slue him: But who slue the se: & colpyde now how there is nothing of the Lordes worde fallē to the erthe, whiche he spake agaynst the howse of Ahab: for the Lorde hath done what he spake to his seruauit Eliah. And so Jehu slue all that remainyd of hē howse of Ahab, in Jezrahel, and all that were great great with him, & his cōpanyons & his preastes, vntyll he had left him naught remaiyn. And he arose & departed, and went to Samaria. And as Jehu was come euē to the house where the Sheper-des * bynde their Shepe by the hye waye syde, he met with the brethzen of Jeho-ziah kyng of Iuda, and sayde: what are ye: and they sayde, the brethzē of Jeho-ziah are we, & go to salute the childzen of the kyng and of the quene. And he sayde: take them a lyue. And they toke them a lyue, & flue thē at the well besyde the house where the Shepardes bynde their Shepe, in nombze. xlii. personnes, that he left none of them.

¶ And when he was departed thence, he mette with Jehonadab the sonne of * Rechab coming agaynst hym. And Jehu saluted him, and sayde to hym: is thyne hert ryghte, as myne hert is with thyne. And Jehonadab sayd, yea that it is. If it be, then geue me thyne hande.
And he gaue his hand, & the other toke him vp to him into the charet, & sayde:
go with me, & se the zeale I haue to the Lorde, & made him ryde with him in his charet. And whē he came to Samaria, he slue all that remayned vnto Ahab in Samaria, tyll he had wypte hym out, acordyng to the saying of the Lorde which he spake to Eliab.

After that Iehu gathered all the people together, & sayd to the: * Shab seruued Baal a lytle: But Iehu shall serue him a good. Nowe therfore call vnto me all the Prophetes of Baal, & all his seruauntes, & all his preastes, that none be lackyng. for I haue a great sacrifice to do to Baal: and if any be missed, he shal not lyue. But Iehu dyd it for a soletye, to destroye the seruauntes of Baal. wherfore Iehu sayde: Apoynte a solempne feast for Baal, & they proclaimed it. Then Iehu sent thorowout all Israel. And all the seruauntes of Baal came, that there was not a man left behinde ꝑ came not. And when they were come into the temple of Baal, the temple was full from one ende to another.

Then he sayde to the keeper of the be-strye, brynge forth garmentes for the seruauntes of Baal. And he brought them out garmentes. And Jehu went with Jehonadab sonne of Rechab into the house of Baal: and sayde to the seruantes of Baal: searche and loke, that there be none here with you of the seruantes of the Lorde, but the seruantes of Baal onely. And they went in, to offer sacrifice & burnt offerynges. But Jehu appoynted him foure thozemen without and sayde: If any of the men whiche I shall bring vnto your handes, escape, he that letteth him go, shall dye for hym.

And as soone as he had made an ende of offering of burnt sacrifice, he sayde to the of the garde & to the Lordes : go in and slep them, let none come out. And they smote them with the edge of the swerde. And þe garde & the Lordes cast the out, & wēt vnto the cytie of þe house of Baal, & fet out the Image out of the house of Baal, & burnt it. And they brake the Image of Baal, & brake þe house of Baal, and made a sege of it euer after.
And so Jehu destroyed Baal out of Israel. But from the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, whiche made Israel synne, with the golde calves in Bethel and Dan, Jehu departed not.

Then the Lorde sayde to Jehu, because thou hast lustely done that plea-seth me, and hast done to the house of Ahab all that was in myne hert, therfore shall * thy chyldren in the fourth generacion syt on the seate of Israel.
But Jehu cared not to walcke in the law of the Lorde God of Israell wyth all his hert : for he departed not from the synnes of Jeroboam whiche made Israel synne.

In those dayes the Lorde beganne to cut Israell thozte, for * Hazael que them in all the coostes of Israell, from Jordan Eastwarde : euen all the lande of Gilead, the Gadites, the Rubenites and the Manassites, from Aroer vpon the ryuer of Arnon, wyth Gilead and Basan. The rest of the actes of Jehu, and all he dyd, and all his power, are wrytten in the chronicles of the kynges of Israell. And when Jehu was layde to rest with his fathers, they buryed him in Samaria, and Jehoahaz his sonne raigned in his stead. And that tyme that Jehu raigned vpon Israell in Samaria, was .xxviii. yere.

And the garde stode euery mā with his wepon in his hand rounde aboute the kyng, from the ryght corner of the temple to the left, a long by the aultare of the temple. And he brought oute the sonne of the kyng & put the crowne vpon him, and deliuered him & witnesse, & made him kyng, & anoynted him. And they clapte their hādes, & sayd: God saue the kyng.

* And when Athaliah heard the noyse of the runnyng of the people, she came to the people into the house of the Lorde. And when she sawe the kyng stande by a pillar (as the maner was) and the singes and the trompetters by the kyng, and all the people of the lande reioysyng, and the blowyng of the trompettes, she rent her clothes & cryed, treason, treason. And Jehoiada the preast comaūded the Captaynes of the hundredes that had the rule of the hoste, & sayde to them: haue her out without the rāges, and yf any folow her, let him dye with the swerde: for the preast sayde, she maye not be slayne in the house of the Lorde. Jehoas was *seue yere olde when he was made kyng. And he begane to raygne þe seuenth yere of Jechu, & raygned fourtye yere in Jerusale. His mothers name was Zebiah Serfabe. And he dyd that pleased the lord, as long as Jehoiaada the prest enforced him. But they toke not awaye the hillaulters, for the people sue and offered styll in the hillaulters.

And Jehoas sayde to the prest: all the syluer that is dedicat & brought to the house of the Lord in curraunt money, þis is to saye, þe moneye that euery man * is set at, with all þe moneye þe euery mannes hert geueth him to bringe into the house of the Lord, let the prestes take it to them, euery man of his acquaintance, and let them repaire the broken places of the temple, in all places where ought is found decayed.

¶ Afterthelater the prestes had not medd vnto the .xxiii. yere of Jehoas, þe was decayed in the temple. Then kyng Jehoas called for Jehoiaada the prest, & for the other prestes also, & sayde to them: why repaire ye not the broken places of the temple? Nowe therfore, se that ye receaue no more money of youre acquaintance, but deliuer it to repaire the temple withall. And the prestes cōfessed to receaue no more moneye of the people: But that it shoulde go to the mendinge of the temple.

¶ The Jehoiaada þe prest toke a cofer & boored an hoale in the syd of it, & put it belyde the aultare on the ryght syde, as a man cometh into the house of the lord. And into that dyd þe prestes that kepte the doores, put all the money that was brought into the house of the Lord. And when they sawe that there was muche money in the cofer * the kynges scribe & the hye prest came, & knyt vp the moneye that was found in the house of the Lord, after they had tolde it.

¶ And they gaue the money by sommes into the handes of the worke men þe had the ouer syght of the house of the Lord: & they brought it out to the carpenters & buylders (that wrought vpon þe house of the Lord,) & to masons and hewers of stone, to buye tymbre & fre stone, to repaire the decay in the house of the lord, and all that needed reparyng in the house: how be it there was not made in the house of the Lord, booles of syluer, shedyng knyues, basens troyettes or any other instrumentes of golde or syluer, of the moneye þe was brought for the house of the Lord. For they gaue þe to the workemen, to repaire therewith the house of the lord. Moreover, they rekened not w the men, into whose handes they deliuered þe money to be bestowed on workemen: But they dyd it euē of felicity. How be it trespase money, a sinne money might not be brought into the house of þe lord, for it was the prestes.

¶ The came Hazael king of Siria by, & fought agaynst Beth & toke it, * and appoynted him self to go by to Jerusale. But Jehoas kyng of Juda * toke all the dedicat thynges that Jehosaphat, Jehoia & Ohoiahis fathers kynges of Juda, had dedicat, & that he him selfe had dedicated, & all þe gold that coulde be found in the treasure of the house of the Lord: and of the kynges house, and sent it to Hazael kyng of Siria: and so he departed from Jerusalem.

¶ The remnant of þe actes of Jehoas, & all he dyd, are writte in the chronicles of the kynges of Juda. And * his owne seruantes arose, & wrought treason, & sue Jehoas in the house Melo, in the waye downe to Sela. Jozabar the son of Seimaath: & Jehoabad the sonne of Somer, his seruantes, smote him, that he dyed. And they buryed him with his fathers i the cite of Dauid. And Amaziah his sonne reigned in his steade.

the sonne of Hazael all their dayes.

But Jehoahaz besought the Lord, & the lord heard him. For he had sene the oppressio of Israel, how þ kyng of Siria oppressed thē. And therfore the lord gaue Israel a delpueter, & they wēt-out from vnder the hādes of the Sirians. And þ children of Israel dwelt in their tentes as befoze tyme. Neuerthelesse they departed not from the synne of the house of Jeroboā whiche made Israel synne, but walked therein. And there remayned an idoles groue also in Samaria styll: But there were left of the people to Jehoahaz, but syxtie horsemen, & ten charettes, & ten thousand fote men for the kyng * of Siria had destroyed them, & made thē lyke threshed chaffe. The rest of the actes of Jehoahaz, & all he dyd, and his power, are writtē in the chronicles of þ kynges of Israel. And Jehoahaz rested with his fathers, and they buryed him in Samaria, & Joas his sonne raigned in his steade. In the xxxvii. yere of Jehoas kyng of Juda, begāne Joas the sonne of Jehoahaz to raigne ouer Israel in Samaria, & continued. xvi. yere, & dyd unhappely i the syght of the lord, & departed in nothing from the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, that made Israel synne, but walked therein.

The remnaūt of the actes of Joas & all he dyd, & his power, how he fought with Amaziah king of Juda, are writtē in þ chronicle boke of the kynges of Israel. And when Joas was layde to rest with his fathers, Jeroboā sat vpo his seate. And Joas was buryed in Samaria among the kynges of Israel.

Whē Eliseus was fallen sycke of the sycknesse wherof he dyed, Joas kyng of Israel came to him, & wepte befoze hī, & sayd: * O my father my father, þ charret of Israel, & the horseme of the same. And Eliseus sayde vnto him, brynge boow & arowes. And he brought to him bow & arowes. And he sayde to þ kyng of Israel: put thine hand vpo the bow, and when he had put his hāde vpon the boow, Eliseus put his hādes vpon the kynges handes. Then he sayde, open a wyndowe eastwarde: & he opened. And Eliseus sayd: shote, & he shotte. And he sayd: the arowe of helpe of the Lorde, & the arow of helpe agaynst the Syrians, for thou shalt bete þ Syrians in Aphek, tyll thou haue consumed them.

Thē he sayde: take arowes: & he toke thē. Then he sayde to the kyng of Israel, smyte the groude: & he smote thryse, and ceased. And the mā of God was angrie with him, & sayd: thou shouldest haue smyten fīue or syxe tymes, and thē thou haddest smyten the Syrians tyll thou haddest cōsumed them: where now thou shalt beate them but thryse.

Whē Eliseus was deed and buryed, the soudiares of þ Moabites came in to the lande, the same yere solowynge. And it chaūced as they were buryenge a man, that they spyed the Soudiares, & therfore cast the man into þ sepulchre of Eliseus. And as sone as the man came & touched the bones of Eliseus, * he reuiued, and stode vp on his fete.

And Hazael oppressed Israell all the dayes of Jehoahaz. But the Lorde had mercy on them, and pittied them, and turned to them, because of his appoyntement made with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob: and woulde not destroye them, & ether cast them from him as yet. And when Hazael king of Siria was dead: Benhadad his son raigned in his stead. And then Joas þ sonne of Jehoaz went againe: & toke out of þ hand of Benhadad sonne of Hazael, þ cyties whiche he had taken awaye oute of the handes of Jehoahaz his father, with warre: And thre tymes did Joas beate hī, & brought the cyties of Israell againe.

 wrought wyckednesse in the syght of the Lord: for he turned in nothyng frō

Sixtene yere olde was he when he was made kyng, and he raigned. lii. yere in Ierusalem, his mothers name was Iecholiah, & was of Ierusalem. And he dyd that pleased the Lorde in all thynges as dyd his father Amaziah: saue that they put not & hyllaulters away: for the people offered, & burned fat still in the hyllaulters. And the Lorde smote the kyng, that he was a leper vnto the daye of his death, *and dwelt in an house at Iybertye, and Iotha the kynges sonne gouerned the house, & iudged the people of the lande. The reste of the dedes of Azariah & all he did, are writen in the Chronicles of the kynges of Iuda. And Azariah layd him to slepe with his fathers, & they buried him wth his fathers in the cytie of Dauid, and Iotham his sonne raigned in his steade.

And Selum the sonne of Iabes conspired agaynst him, and smote him before the people, and kyled him, and raygned in his steade.

The rest of the deades of zachariah, are writte in the chronicles of the kynges of Israel. This is the sayinge that the Lorde spake vnto Jehu, sayinge: *thy sonnes shall sit on the seate of Israel in the fourth generacion. And it came so to passe.

The rest of the deades of Selu and the treason, which he conspired are writen in the chronicles of the kynges of Israel. The same tyme Manahem destroyed Thaphlah and all that were therein, & the costes therof fro Thersah (because they opened not to him) he smote & rent all the women with chylde.

And he dyd euell in the syghte of the Lorde, & turned not away al his dayes from the synne of Jeroboam, the sonne of Nabat, which made Israel synne. And Phul kyng of Assiria, came vpon the land. And Manahem gaue Phul a thousand talentes of syluer, to helpe him, to stablishe his kyngdome. And Manahem rayled the money in Israel, vpon all men of substance, for to geue the kyng of Assiria syttie cycles of syluer a pece. And the kyng of Assiria turned backe agayne, & taried not there in the lande.

In the dayes of Phakeh kyng of Israel, came Teglati Phalasar kyng of Assyria, and toke Aton, Abel Beth, Maacah, Janoah, Kades, Hazor, Gilead, Galile, and all the land of Aepthali, and carped them awaye to Assyria.

And Hosea the sonne of Elah conspired treason agaynst Phakeh the sonne of Romeliah, and smote hym, and slue him: and raygned in hys steade, the .xx. yere of Jotha the sonne of Ozia. The rest of the actes of Phakeh, and all he dyd are wytten in the stozies of the kinges of Israel.

The seconde yere of Phakeh sonne of Romeliah kyng of Israel, beganne Jotham the sonne of Oziah kyng of Juda to raigne. fyue and twenty yere olde was he when he began to raygne: and he raygned .xvi. yere in Jerusalem, hys mothers name was Jerusa the doughter of Zadok. And he dyd that was ryghte in the syght of the Lorde: euen in all thyng as dyd hys father Oziah, dyd he. But they put not away the hylaulters: for the people offered and burnt incense styll in the hylaulters, he bilt the highest doze in the house of the Lord. The rest of the dedes of Jotham, and all he dyd, are wytten in the Chronicles of the kynges of Juda. In those dayes the Lorde began to send agaynst Juda, Razin the kyng of Siria, and Phakeh the son of Romeliah. And Jotham rested with his fathers, and was buryed with his fathers in the cytie of Dauid his father, and Ahaz his sonne raigned in his steade.

¶ The xviij. Chapter.

¶ Ahaz kyng of Juda consecrateth hys sonne in fyre: and hath many battels agaynst the kynges of Israel. He causeth an aulter to be made: he vnto it of Damasco. In the steade of Ahaz raygneth Wezechiah his sonne.

Ahaz the .xviij. yere of Phakeh sonne of Romeliah kyng of Israel, Ahaz sonne of Jotham kyng of Juda, beganne to raygne .xx. yere olde was he, when he was made kyng: and raygned .xvi. yere in Jerusalem, & dyd not that was right in the eyes of the Lorde his God, lyke Dauid his father: But went in the way of the kynges of Israel, and therto he offered hys sonne in fyre, after the abominacion of the hethen, whiche the Lorde caste oute before the chyldren of Israel. And he offered and burnt the fat in the hylaulters, and on the hilles, and vnder euery thycke tree. Then Razin kyng of Siria, and Phakeh sonne of Romeliah kyng of Israel, came vp to Jerusalem to fight. And they beleged Ahaz, but could not ouercome him. At the same tyme Razin kyng of Siria brought Ailath agayne to Siria, and ryd the Jewes thence. And the Sirians went to Ailath and dwelt therein vnto this daye.

Then Ahaz sent messengers to Teglati Phalasar kyng of Assyria, saying: I am thy seruaunt and thy sonne, come and deliuer me out of the hande of the kyng of Siria, and oute of the hande of the kyng of Israel which are ryssen agaynst me. And Ahaz toke the syluer and the golde that was founde in the house of the Lord, and in the treasure of the kynges house, and sente it for a rewarde to the kyng of Assyria. And the kyng of Assyria herkened to hym, and wente to Damasco, and toke it, and carped the people awaye to hit, and slue Razin.

And king Ahaz went agaynst Teglati Phalasar kyng of Assyria, to Damasco. And when he saw a certaine aulter that was at Damasco, he sente to Azariah the preeste the paterne of the aulter, and the facyon of all the workmanship thereof. And Azariah the preest made an aulter in all poyntes, lyke to the paterne, whiche kyng Ahaz had sent frome Damasco, and had finished it by the kynges comynge frome Damasco. And when the kyng was come from Damasco, and sawe the aulter, he wente to it, and offered theron. And he burnt his burnt offeringe, and sprinckled the bloud of his peaceoffringes, and powred his dryncke offeringe and sprinckled the bloude of his peaceoffringes vpon the sayde aulter. And the brasen aulter that was before the Lorde, he fet from before the house, from betwene the aulter and the house of the Lord, & put it on the north syde of the sayde aulter.

And the kyng commaunded Azariah l.v. the

But the braſen altar ſhalbe for me, to enquire with. And Uria the prieſte dyd all thynges as kyng Ahaz commaunded hym. * And kyng Ahaz brake the ſydes of the botomes, and toke the lauers from of the, and toke downe the ſea from of the braſen oxen that were vnder it, and put it vpon a pavement of ſtones. And thereto the pulpit for the Sabothe (that they had made in the houſe) and the kynges entrep withoute turned he to the houſe of the Lorde, for feare of the kyng of Aſſiria. The reſte of the dedes of Ahaz, which he dyd: are writen in the Chronicles of the kynges of Juda. And Ahaz layde him to reſte with his fathers, and was buryed with his fathers in þe cite of Dauid: and Hezekia his ſonne raigned in his towne.

The. xviij. Chapter.

Hoſea kyng of Iſrael is taken. And he and all his realme brought to the Aſſirians.

In the. xii. yere of Ahaz kyng of Juda, Hosea ſon of Elah began to raygne in Samaria vpon Iſrael, and continued. ix. yere, & dyd that diſpleaſed the Lord, but not ſo euell as dyd the kynges of Iſrael that were befoze hym. And Salmanaſar kyng of Aſſyria came vpon hym, and Hosea became hys ſeruaunte and gaue hym preſentes. And the kyng of Aſſiria founde treaſon in Hosea, becauſe he had ſente meſſengers to Sua kyng of Egypte, and ſente no preſentes vnto the kyng of Aſſyria, as he was perely wonte to do. Therfoze the kyng of Aſſyria beſeged him and put hym in priſon. * And then the kyng of Aſſiria came thowoweout all the lande, and came to Samaria, & beſeged it thre yere. * And in the nyynth yere of Hosea, the kyng of Aſſyria toke Samaria & carped Iſrael awaye vnto Aſſiria and put them in Baba in Habor on the ryuer of Gozan, and in the cyties of the Medes. For the chyl dren of Iſrael had ſynned againſt the Lorde theyr God, whiche broughte them oute of the lande of Egypte, from vnder the hande of Pharao kyng of Egypte, and feared other Goddes. And they walked in the ordinaunce of the he then, which the Lorde caſt out befoze þe chyl dren of Iſrael, and in the thynges whiche the kynges of Iſrael had made. And the chyl dren of Iſrael wrapt them ſelues in thynges that wer not well towarde the Lorde theyr God. And they bult them hilaulters in al theyr cyties, bothe in the * towres where they kepte watche, and alſo in the ſtronge townes. And they made them Images and groves on euery hye hyll, and vnder euery grene tree. And there they ſacrificed in the hilaulters, as did the hethen, which the Lorde carped awaye at theyr comynge, and wroughte wycked dedes, to anger the Lorde with all. And they ſerued Idolles, whereof the Lorde had ſayde to them: * ye ſhall not do ſo.

And the Lorde teſtified to Iſrael & to Juda, by all the prophetes, and by al the ſeats, ſayinge: * Turne from your wicked wayes, and kepe my commaundementes and mine ordinaunces: accor dyng to al the lawes which I commaunded your fathers, & as I ſent to you by my ſeruautes þe prophetes. For withſtā dig they wold not heare: * but hardened their neckes, like to þe neckes of their fathers, & did not beleue þe lord their god, And they reſufed his ordinaunces and his appointment that he had made with their fathers, and the witneſſes, whiche he had wytnelleſſed to them, and ſolowed baupye, and became bayne, lyke to the hethen that were rounde about them, of whiche the Lorde had charged them, & they ſhoulde not do like them. But they leſte the comaundementes of the Lord theyr God: made them Images of metall, * euen ii. calues: and made groves and bowed them ſelues vnto all the * Hoſte of heauen: & ſerued Baal. * And they ſacrificed theyr ſonnes and theyr daughters in fyre, and vſed witchcraft and enchauntmentes, and were ſolde to worcke wickedneſſe in the ſyghte of the Lorde, for to angre him.

Wherfoze the Lord was exceedinge wyrothe with Iſrael and put them oute of hys syghte, that there was left but the tribde of Iuda only, and therto Iuda kepte not the commaundementes of the Lorde theyr God, but walked in the ordinaunces of Israell, which they had made. Therefore the Lorde caste by all the sede of Israell, and vexed them, and deliuered them into the handes of spoylers, until he cast them out of his sight. And Israell deuyded them selues from the house of Dauid, & made Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat kynge. Whiche Jeroboam drewe Israell awaye from the Lorde, and made them synne a greatesynne. And so the chyldren of Israell walched in all the synne of Jeroboam whiche he had set by, and departed not therfrom, vntyll the Lorde had put Israell awaye oute of his syght, as he had sayde by all hys seruauntes the prophetes. And so he traunslated Israell oute of theyr land to Assyria, euen vnto this daye.

* And the kynge of Assyria broughte men from Babylon, and frome Cutha, a fro Aua, & from Hemath, & from Sepharuaim, & put the in y cyties of Samaria, in steade of the chyldren of Israell. And they possessed Samaria, and dwelte in the cyties thereof. But at the begynnynge of theyr dwellynge, they feared not the Lorde. Wherefore the Lord sent Lyons vpon them, which slue them. Then men tolde the king of Assyria, sayinge: The nacjons whiche thou haste translated, and put in the cyties of Samaria, knowe not the lawe of the God of the lande, and therefore he hath sente Lyons vpon them, whiche slape them because they knowe not the maner of worshypynge of the God of the lande.

Then the kynge of Assyria commaunded, sayinge: carpe thether one of the prestes whiche ye broughte thence, and let him go & dwell there, and teache them the sacron howe to serue the God of the contreye. And then one of the prestes whiche they had caried thence, wente and dwelt in Bethel, and taughte them howe they shoulde feare the Lord. Howe be it every nacio made their owne goddes, and put them in the houses of the hylaulters, whiche the Samaritans had made; every nacyon in theyr cittes, where they dwelt. The men of Babilon made Socoh, Benoth. The me of Cuth made Aetgell. They of Hemath made Assina. The Cuites made Abahaz, & Tharthak. And y Sepharuaites but at their chylzen in fyre vnto Adramelech and Anamelech, the Goddes of the Sepharuaites. And though they feared y Lorde, yet they made their prestes of the lowest of the people, for the hylaulters, whiche sacrificed for them in the houses of the hylaulters. And so they feared the Lorde, and yet serued their owne Gods after the maner of the people from whence they were brought.

Vnto this daye they do after y olde maner: they neyther feare the Lorde, neyther do after theyr owne ordinaunces and customes, and after the lawe & commaundementes which the Lord commaunded the chylzen of Jacob: whose name he called Israell, and made an appoyntment with them, and charged them, sayinge: feare not any other goddes, nor howe your selues to them, nor serue them, nor sacrifice to them: but feare the Lorde whiche broughte you oute of the land of Egypte with greates power and a stretched oute arme: hym feare, and to him bow, and to him do sacrifice. And the ordinaunces, customes, lawe and commaundemente, whiche I wrote for you, se that ye be diligente to do for euermore, and feare not any other Goddes. And the appoyntmente I haue made with you, se ye forget not, and that ye feare none other Goddes: but the Lorde your God ye shal feare, and he shal deliuer you oute of the handes of al your enemyes. Howe be it they heard not, but dyd after the olde maner. And euen so do these nacjons feare the LORD and serued theyr ymages thereto: and so dyd theyr chylzen, and theyr chylzens chylzen to. Euen as dyd theyr fathers, so do they vnto this daye.

parte from me, and what thou puttest on me that wyll I beare. And the kyng of Assyria appoynted vnto Hezekiah kyng of Iuda thre hundred talentes of syluer, and thyrtye talentes of golde. * And Hezekiah gaue him al the syluer that was found in the house of the Lord and also in the treasure of the kynges house. And the sayde season Hezekiah Dente of the dozes of the temple of the Lorde, and the pylers, whiche the sayde Hezekiah with y kyng of Iuda couered ouer, and gaue them to the kyng of Assyria.

And the kyng of Assyria sent Tharshan and Rablaris, & Rablaketh from Lachis to kyng Hezekiah with a great hoste to Ierusalem. And they went by, and came to Ierusalem, & wet & stode by the conduyte of the vppermoste pole, which is in the waye to the fullers feld, and called to the kyng. And there came oute to the, * Eliakim the sonne of Hezekiah stuard of household, and Sobnah the scribe, and Joah the sone of Asaph, the recorder. And then Rablaketh sayd to them. Tell ye Hezekiah I pray you: thus saythe the greate kyng, eue y kyng of Assyria. What confidence is this that thou haste & thou wilt haplye speake a lyghte worde, that thou haste counceill and power to make warre. And Rabshakeh sayde vnto them: hathe my master sent me onlpe to thy master and to the, to speak these wordes, or rather to the meinne that kepe the walles, that they shal eate theyr owne dirte, & drinke theyr owne pyffe with you.

And so Rabshakeh stode, and cryed with a loud voice in Jewes langage, and spake, sayinge: heare the sayinge of the greate kyng, the kyng of Assiria. Thus saythe the kyng: let not Hezekiah begyle you, for he is not able to deliuer you oute of myne hande: nether let Hezekiah make you truste to the Lord, sayinge: the Lorde shall surely ryd vs, and this cytye shal not be deliuered into the handes of the kyng of Assiria. And then eate euery man of his owne hyne and of his owne fygge tree, and dryncke euery man of the water of hys owne welles, tyll I come, and set you to as good a land as youres is: a lande of coyne and wyne, a lande of breade and vnyepardes, a lande of oyle trees, of oyle and of honny. And ye shall lyue and not dye. And herken not vnto Hezekiah, for he wyll begyle you, sayinge: the Lorde shal deliuer vs. For haue the Gods of the nations deliuered any God hys lande, out of the hand of the kyng of Assiria: where are the Gods of Hamath, and of Arphad: where are the Gods of Sepharuaim: of Hena and Iuah: dyd they deliuer Samaria out of myne handes: what God of anye land hath deliuered his lande oute of myne hand, that the Lorde should deliuer Jerusalem out of mine hande.

But the people helde their peace, and answered not him a worde: for the kyng had commaunded, sayinge: answer not him not. Then Eliakim the stuarde of the householde, and Sobnah the scribe, and Joah the sonne of Asaph the recorder, came to Hezekiah with theyr clothes rente, and tolde hym the wordes of Rabshakeh.

The xij. Chapter.

The Angell of the Lorde kylled an hundred thowse and fyue thousand men of the Assirians. Senaquerib is kille of his owne sonnes.

When kyng Hezekiah hearde that, he rent his clothes and put on sacke: and went to the house of the Lorde. Furthermore he sente Eliakim stuarde of householde, and Sobnah the scribe, and the elders of the preeestes clothed in sacke, to Maiah the prophete the sonne of Amoz. And they sayde to hym, thus saith Hezekiah: this daye is a daye of tribulation, rebukinge and raylynge. Euen as when the chyldren are readye to bee borne, and the mothers haue no power to be deliuered. Oh that the Lorde thy God would heare al the wordes of Rabshakeh, whome the kyng of Assiria hys master hathe sent to rale on the lyuing God, and to rebuke hym with wordes whiche the Lorde thy God hath heard. wherfore lyste vp thy prayer for the remenaunt that are lefte. When the seruantes of kyng Hezekiah were come to Maiah: Maiah sayde to them. So shal ye saye to your master: Thus saith the Lorde: bee not a frayde of the wordes thou heardest, with which young men of the kyng of Assiria haue rayled on me. For I wyll send him a blaste that he shal heare tidinges, and so returne to his owne land: * And I wyll ouerthrow hym with the swerde: euen in hys owne lande.

And Rabshakeh wente backe againe, and founde the kyng of Assiria fyghting against Lobnah: for he had heard, how that he was departed fro Lachis. And he hearde tydynes of Sennacherib kyng of the blacke Mores, howe that he was come oute to fyghte agaynst hym. And there vpon he departed and sente messengers vnto Hezekiah, sayinge. Thus saie to Hezekiah kyng of Iuda, let not thy God carpe the oute of the way, in whome thou so trustest, sayinge: Jerusalem shal not be deliuered into the hande of the kyng of Assiria. Beholde, thou haste hearde what the kynges Kynges of Assyria haue done to all the landes, how they haue bitterly destroyed them. And howe then shouldest thou escape, hathe the Gods of the hethen deliuered them whiche myne auncestries haue destroyed: as Gozan, Haran, Rezeph, and the chyldren of Eden whiche were in Chelazat: where is the king of Remath, the kyng of Arphad, the kinge of the cytye of Sepharuaim, and the kinge of Hana and the kinge of Juah.

When Hezekiah had receaued the letter of the hande of the messengers, and had red it: he went into the house of the Lorde, and layde it abrode before the Lorde. And Hezekiah prayed before the Lorde and sayde: O Lorde God of Israel, whiche dwellest betwene the Cherubes, thou arte God alone ouer all the kyngdomes of the erth, and thou hast made bothe heauen and earthe: Lorde, bowe thyn eares and heare: Open Lorde thyn eyes and se: and heare the wordes of Sennacherib which hathe sente this man to rayle on the luyng God. But of a truthe Lorde, the kynges of Assyria haue destroyed nations and theyr landes, & haue set fyre on their Gods. For they were no Goddes, but the worke of the handes of manne: euen woode and stone. And therfore they destroyed the.

D Nowe therefore, O Lorde our God, saue thou vs oute of hys hande, that all the kyngdomes of the erth may know, that thou Lorde arte God alone. And Isaiah the sonne of Amos sent to Hezekiah, saying: thus saith the Lorde God of Israel: that that thou hast prayed to me concernynge Sennacherib kyng of Assyria, I haue heard it. This is the thyng that the Lorde saythe of him: he hathe despised the, O virgine doughter of Syon: he hath shaked hys heade at the, thou doughter of Jerusalem: *whome hast thou railed on, and whom hast thou reuyled: against whom hast thou exalted thy voyce, and haste lyfte vp thyn eyes so hye. Euen against the holye of Israel. By the *hande of thy messengers thou hast railed on the Lord, and sayd: with the multitude of my charrettes I am come vp to the height of the mountaynes, euen alonge by the sides of Libanon, and haue cut of the hie Cedar trees, and the lustie fytte trees ther of: euen to the woode of Carmell that belongeth therto. I haue digged and droncke straunge waters, and I haue dyed by with the fooles of my feet: for I was enclosed.

But haste thou not hearde, howe I haue ordeyned suche a thyng a greate whyle ago, and haue prepared it from the begynnyng: And nowe I bringe it fourthe, and it shalbe to destroye and to bringe stronge cyties in to rude heapes of stones. And the enhabyters of the shalbe of lytle power, and saynt herted, and confounded: *They shalbe like the grasse of the felde, and grene erbes, and as the hey on the toppes of the houses whiche wethereth or it come to any height. I wote wher thou dwellest, and thy commynge oute, and going in know I to, and howe thou setteest vp thy bystelles agaynste me. And because thou setteest vp thy bystelles agaynste me, and the thyng ragynge is come vp to myne eares: therefore I wyll put a ryng in thy nose, and a byt in thy lippes, and wyll bringe the backe againe the same way thou camest.

And this shalbe a sygne vnto thee: (O Hezekiah) eate this yere of the frutes of the seade that fell oute, and the nexte yere, that wareth of it selfe. And the thyrde yere sow ye and reape, plant bynepardes, and eate the frutes therof. For the doughter of Iuda that is escaped and lefte, shall yet agayne take to thyng downe warde, and beare frute by warde. For out of Ierusalem shall go a remnaunte, and a nombre that shall escape out of mount Sion: the zeale of the Lorde of *hostes shal bring this thyng to passe.

Wherefore, thus sayth the Lorde, of the kyng of Assyria: he shall not come to this cytie, nor shote an arrowe into it, nor come before with shyld nor cast anye bancke agaynste it: but shall goo backe agayne the way he came, & shall not come at this cytie sayth the Lorde. For I wyll defende this cite and saue it, for myne owne sake: and for Dauid my seruautes sake.

And the selfe same nyght the aungel of the Lorde went out and smote in the host of the Assyrians an hundred foure thowse and fyue thousand. And when the Hezekiah ſicke and receaueth the ſygne of his helth by the dyall or ſhaz. He receaued the rewardes of Berodach, and is reprehended of Iſaiah becauſe he ſhewed him the treaſure. He dieth and ſhanneth by a ſonne euen in his ſteade.

Wente that tyme Hezekiah was ſycke vnto the death. And the Prophet Iſaiah ſonne of Amoz came to hym, and ſayde to him. Thus ſaythe the Lorde: put thine houſholde in an ordze, for thou ſhalte dye, and not lyue. And Hezekiah turned his face to the walle, and beſoughte the Lorde, ſayinge: O Lorde, remembre yet howe I haue walked befoze the truly and with a perfect hearte, and haue done that whiche is good in thy lyghte, and wepte a greate pace.

And Iſaiah was ſcarce gone oute into the myddle of the cytie, but that the word of the Lorde came to him, ſaying: turne agayne, and tel Hezekiah the captayne of my people. Thus ſayth the Lorde God of Dauid thy father. I haue herd thy prayer, and ſene thy teares. Behold I will heale the, & this daye thre dayes ſhalt thou go by into the houſe of the Lorde. And I will lettege thy dayes yet ſpaine pece, and will deliuer bothe the and this cytie oute of the hande of the kynge of Babilon, and will defende thys ſayd cytie, and ſhall be, and for Dauid thy ſonne. And Iſaiah ſaide: Behold I will heale the, & this daye thre dayes ſhalt thou go by into the houſe of the Lorde. And I will lettege thy dayes yet ſpaine pece, and will deliuer bothe the and this cytie oute of the hande of the kynge of Babilon, and will defende thys ſayd cytie, and ſhall be, and for Dauid thy ſonne.

Then ſayde Hezekiah to Iſaiah: What ſhall I ſaye to the kynge of Babilon, that the Lorde will ſende me, and that I ſhall go by into the houſe of the Lorde the thyrde daye. And Iſaiah ſaid: this ſigne ſhalt thou haue of the Lorde, that the Lorde wyl do that he hath ſpoken: ſhall the ſhadowe go forward ten degrees, or go backe agayne ten degrees. And Hezekiah ſayde: it is a lyghte thyng for the ſhadowe to go downe ten degrees. Therfore I wyl not that: but let the ſhadowe go backward ten degrees. And Iſaiah the prophete called to the Lorde, * and he broughte the ſhadowe ten degrees backwarde, by whiche it had gone downe, in the dyall of ſhaz.

* The ſame ceaſon Berodach Baladan the ſonne of Baladan kinge of Babilon, ſente letters and preſentes vnto Hezekiah, for he heard how that Hezekiah was ſycke. And Hezekiah harkened vnto them, and ſhewed them all that was in the ſpicery houſe, and his ſiluer and golde, and odoures, and preciouſe oymntes, and his armory, & all that was founde in his treaſure: there was nothig in his houſe or in al his tealine, that he ſhewed them not.

Then came Iſaiah the prophete vnto kinge Hezekiah, and ſayde to hym: What ſay theſe men, and from whence come they to the. And Hezekiah ſayde: they be come from a far countree, euen from Babilon. And he ſaid agayne: what haue they ſene in thy houſe. And Hezekiah ſayde: al that is in my houſe haue they ſene: there is nothyng among my treaſure, that I haue not ſhewed them. And Iſaiah ſayde to Hezekiah: heare the worde of the Lorde. Beholde, the daye ſhall come, that al that is in thine houſe, and that thy fathers haue layde by in ſtoze vnto this daye, * ſhall be caried to Babilon, and nothyng ſhall be left, ſaith the Lorde. * And of thy ſonnes, that proceadede oute of the, whiche thou begat, ſhall there be caried away, and ſhall be made chaumbrelaynes in the palace of the kinge of Babilon. And Hezekiah ſaid to Iſaiah: welcome be the word of the Lorde whiche thou haſte ſpoken: ſo that peace and truthe bee kepte in my dayes.

Manasseh was twelue yere old when he beganne to raygne, and raygned ſyſtpe and ſpue yere in Jeruſalem: hys mothers name was Haphzibah. And he did that dyſpleaſed the Lorde, euen after the abhominacions of the Bethē which the * Lorde caſte oute before the chyl- dzen of Iſraell. And he wente and built the hyllaulters againe, whiche Hezeki- ah hys father had deſtroyed. And he re- red by aulters to Baal, and made gro- ues, as dyd Ahab kyng of Iſraell. And he bowed him ſelfe vnto all the * Hoſte of heuen, and ſerued them. And he built aulters in the very houſe of the Lorde, of whiche the Lorde had ſayd (* in Jeru- ſalem I wyl put my name. And he built aulters vnto al the Hoſte of heuen, euen in two courtes of the houſe of the Lord. * And he offered hys ſonne in ſpye, and obſerued diſmall dayes, and vſed witch craſte and mayntened woꝝkers with ſpirtes, and tellers of fortunes; and wrought much wickedneſſe in the ſight of the Lorde to angre him.

And he put an ymage of a groue that he had made, euen in the very temple of whiche the LORDE had ſayde to Dauid and to Salomon his ſonne, * in thys houſe, and in Jeruſalem (whiche I haue choſen oute of all trybes of Iſra- el) wyl I put my name for euer. Neither wyl I make the ſete of Iſraell moue a ny more oute of the land which I gaue theyꝝ fathers: ſo that they wyl be diſ- gent to do al I haue commaunded the accordynge to all the lawe that my ſer- uant Moſes commaunded them. But they hearkened not: ſoꝝ Manasseh had ledde them oute of the waye to do more wickedlye: then dyd the heathen people, whiche he had deſtroyed ſoime before the face of the Lorde.

And he made by his ſervantes the Prophetes, ſayinge: becauſe Ma- nasseh kyng of Juda hath done ſuche abhominacions, a hath wrought wic- kedlye aboue al y the Amozites (whiche were before hym) dyd: and hath made Juda ſinne alſo with his Idoles. Ther- fore thus ſaythe the Lorde God of Iſ- raell. * Beholde, I wyl bringe ſuche e- nell vpon Jeruſalem and Juda, that the eares of all that heare it, ſhall tyn- gle at it. And I wyl ſtretch ouer Jeru- ſalem, the ſquaringe lyne of Samaria, and the plometh of the houſe of Ahab. And I wyl wyꝝe oute Jeruſalem, as a man woulde wyꝝe a dyſhe, and when he hath wyꝝed it, turneth it byſedoune. And though I leue a remnaūt of myne enheritaunce, yet I wyl delpyer them into the handes of them that hate them, and they ſhal bee robbed and ſpoyled of all theyꝝ enemyes: euen becauſe they haue done wickedlye, and haue angred me, ſence the tyme theiꝝ fathers came out of Egypte vnto this daye.

And therto Manasseh medd innoct bloude excedding aboundantlye, in ſo muſhe that he replenſhed Jeruſalem in all corners, beſyde his ſinne, where- with he made Juda ſinne and to do euell in the ſight of the Lorde.

The reſte of the actes of Manasseh, and all he dyd, and his ſinne that he ſin- ned: are wyꝝte in the boke of chronicles of kynges of Juda. And Manasseh laid hym to ſlepe with hys fathers, and was buried in the garden of his owne houſe, euen in the garden of Oza: and Amos hys ſonne raygned in his ſteade.

* Amos was. xxi. yere olde, when he beganne to rayne, and he raygned tway yere in Jeruſalem. Hys mothers name was Beſalemeth the daughter of Haru of Iathbah. And he dyd that dyſpleaſed the Lorde (as his father Ma- nasseh dyd.) And he walked in all the waye that his father walked in, and ſer- ued the Idoles that his father ſerued, and bowed hym ſelfe to them. And he forſoke the Lorde, his God, as his fathers, and did not as the Lorde.

The xxii. Chapter.

After Josiah hearde of the boke of the lawe that was founde in the temple, he sendeth to Eldah & Shaphan for counsell.

Josiah was * viii. yere olde when he beganne to raygne, and he raygned. xxi. yere in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Jedidah the daughter of Adaiah of Bezekath. And he did & seemed righte in the syghte of the Lorde, & walked in all the wayes of David his father, and bowed nether to the right hande, or to the lefte.

* And the. xvi. yere of his raygne kyng Josiah sent Shaphan the sonne of Azaliah the sonne of Meshulam the scribe to the house of the Lord, saying: * go. Helkiah the hye priest, and let him summe the syluer that is broughte into the house of the Lorde, whiche the keepers of the doores haue gathered of the people, and let them deliuer it into the handes of the workmen, that haue the ouersyght of the house of the Lord, whiche shal geue it to them that worke vpon the house of the Lord: (to repaire the decayed places therof,) euen vnto carpenters and masons, and for to bye timbre and fre stone to repayre & house. Howe be it, let no rekenyng be made with them of the money that is deliuered into their handes, but let them do it of their conscience.

* And Helkiah the hye priest sayde to Shaphan the scribe. I haue founde the boke of the lawe in the temple of & lord, and Helkiah gaue the boke to Shaphan, and he reade it. And then Shaphan the scribe went to the kyng, & brought him worde agayne, and sayde: thy seruantes potored out the syluer & was founde in the temple, and haue deliuered it vnto the workmen, that haue the ouersyght of the house of the Lorde. Furthermore Shaphan the scribe shewed the kyng, sayinge: Helkiah the priest hath deliuered me here a boke. And Shaphan red it before the kyng.

And the kyng as sone as he had hearde the wordes of the boke of & law, he rent his clothes, and commaunded Helkiah the priest and Ahikam & sonne of Shaphan, and Achobor the sonne of Michajah, and Shaphan the scribe, and Asahiah a seruante of the kynges, sayinge: * go ye and seke of the Lorde for me, and the people, and for al Juda, concernyng the wordes of this boke that is founde. for it is a great wrath of the LORDE that is kindled vpon vs, that our fathers haue not hearkened vnto the wordes of this boke, to do in all poyntes as it is wyrtten therein.

And Helkiah the hye priest and Ahikam, Achobor, Shaphan, Asahiah wente vnto Eldah the prophetesse wyfe of Selum the sonne of Tekuah the sonne of Haraham keeper of the robes, whiche prophetesse dwelte in Jerusalem in the seconde warde, and communed with her. And she sayde to them: thus sayeth the LORDE God of Israel. Tell the man that sente you to me: thus sayeth the Lorde: beholde I wil byrnye euell vpon this place and on the dwellers therein: euen all the wordes of the boke whiche the kyng of Juda hath red, because they haue forsaken me and haue burnt offeriges vnto other gods, to angre me with all the * workes of their handes. Therefore is my wrath kindled againste this place, and shall not be quenched.

But to the kyng of Juda whiche sente you to enquire of the LORDE, so shall ye saye: thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israel, as touchyng the wordes whiche thou hearest. Because thyn heart did melt and thou mekedest thy selfe before me the Lord, when thou hearest what I spake agaynst this place and the inhabitants of the same, howe that it shoulde be destroyed and made a cursed: and tarest thy clothes and weptest before me: of that also I haue hearde sayeth the Lorde. And therefore se, I wyll receaue the vnto thy fathers and wyll set the vnto thy graue in peace, thyn eyes shall see none of the euell whiche I wyll byrnye vpon this place. And they broughte the kyng worde agayne.

Josiah readeth Deuteronomy before the people. He putteth downe the Idolles, after he had kyllen the priestes therof. He keepeth passover. He was kyllen in Bagebo, & hys sonne Jehoahaz captured in hys stead: after he was take, hys sonne Jehoahaz was made kynge.

Ad then the kynge sent and gathered unto him all the elders of Juda and of Jerusalem. And the kynge went by into the house of the Lorde, and all the men of Juda and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem with hym, & the priestes and the prophetes & al the people bothe smalle and greate. And he red in the eares of them all the wordes of the booke of the couenaunte, whiche was founde in the house of the Lorde. And the kynge stode by a pyller, and made a couenaunte before the Lorde that they shoulde walke after the Lorde, and kepe hys commaundementes and hys wytnesses and hys ordinaunces with all theyr hertes and all theyr soules, and make good the wordes of the sayde appoyntment that were wyrtten in the sayde booke. And the kynge commaunded Helkiah the hie prest and the inferioure priestes and the keepers of the doore, to bring out of the temple of the Lorde, all the vesselles that were made for Baal and for the groue and for all the hoste of heauen. And he brought all the priestes out of the cyties of Juda, and despyled the hylaulters where the priestes dyd burne sacrifice, euen from Gibeon to Bersabe. And he brake downe the hylaulters of the Gates, that were in the enteringe of the gate of Josua the gouernour of the cite, whiche were on the left hand of the gate of the cite. Nevertheless the priestes of the hylaulters myght not come at the aulter of the Lorde in Jerusalem, saue onely they dyd eat of the swete breade amonge theyr brethren.

And he despyled Copheth also, whiche is in the valey of the children of Bennon, because no man shoulde offer his sonne or hys doughter in fyre to Moloch: he put downe the hyles that the kynges of Israel had geuen to the sunne at the enteringe of the house of the Lorde, in the chabze of Athanias the chamberlayne which was of parnatim, and burnt the charrettes of the sunne with fyre. And the aulters that were on the toppe of the parloire of Ahaz, which the kynges of Juda had made, and the aulters whiche Manasse had made in the two courtes of the house of the Lorde, the kynge brake downe, and ranne thence and caste the duste of them in to the broke Cedron.

And the hylaulters that were before Jerusalem on the ryghte hande of the mounte Mithith, whiche Salomon kynge of Israel buylt to Ashtaroth the abhominacion of the zidons & to Chemos the abhominacion of the Moabites, and to Milchom the abhominacion of the children of Ammon, the kynge despyled: and brake the ymages and cut downe the groues and fylled the places with the bones of men.

Moreover the aulter that was at Bethel, the hylaulter made by Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat which made Israel synne: bothe the aulter and also the hyl he brake downe and burnt the hyl and stampe it to powder, & burnt the groue. And as Josiah turned him selfe, he spied the graues that were in the mounte & sente and set bones out of the graues and burnt the bones at the aulter.

written and polluted it accordynge to the worde of the Lorde that the mā of god had proclaimed, which openly had denounced the same thinges.

Then the kynges sayde: what meaneth yonder graue stone that I se. And the men of the cytie tolde him, it is the sepulchre of a man of God, which came from Juda and openly denounced the selfe same thinges that thou hast done to the aulter of Bethel. And he said, let him be: for that no man moue his bones. And so his bones escaped with a bones of a prophete that came oute of Samaria.

And therto all the houses of the hyl aulterers of the cyties of Samaria which the kynges of Israel had made, to anger the Lorde: whal: Josiah put out of the way & did to the in al poyntes as he did in Bethel. And he sacrificed al the priestes of the hyl aulterers that were there euen vpon the aulterers, and burnt menes bones vpon them, and returned to Jerusalem.

And the kynges commaunded all the people, sayinge: kepe the feast of passeouer vnto the lord your God, as it is written in the booke of this couenaunt. For there was no passeouer holden lyke that, from the dayes of the iudges that iudged Israel, and thow oute all the dayes of the kynges of Israel & of Juda. And in the .xxiii. yere of kynges Josiah was this passeouer holden to the Lorde in Jerusalem.

And therto workers with spytes, soothsayers, images of witchcraft, ydoles and al other abhominacions that were spyed in the lande of Juda and in Jerusalem, Josiah put out of the way, to make good the wordes of the lawe, whiche were written in the booke that Helkiah the priest founde in the house of the Lorde: lyke vnto him was there no kyng before him, that turned to the Lorde with all hys herte, with all hys soule and all his might, accordynge to all the lawe of Moses, nether after him arose there any suche.

Not withstandinge the Lord turned not from hys fearce and great wrath wherewith he was angrie agaynst Juda vpon al the prouocations that Adoniasch prouoked hym. But the Lorde sayde: I wil put Juda too, out of my sight, as I haue done Israel, and will cast of this cytie Jerusalem whiche I haue chosen, and the house of whiche I haue sayde, my name shalbe there.

The rest of the deades of Josiah and al he dyd are written in the booke of the storyes of the kynges of Juda.

* In his dayes Pharaos Necoh kyng of Egypt wente agaynste the kynges of Assyria to the ryuer of Euphrates. And kynges Josiah went agaynst him, & was slayne of him at Megiddo when he had sene hym. And his seruauntes caried him dead from Megiddo and broughte him to Jerusalem and buried hym in his owne sepulchre. And the people of the lande toke Jehoahaz the sonne of Josiah and anoynted hym & made him kyng in his fathers towne.

And Jehoahaz was, .xxiii. yere olde when he beganne to raygne & raygned thre monethes in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Hamital the daughter of Jeremiah of Lobnah. And he dyd that displeased the Lorde, in al thinges as his fathers had done. And Pharaos Necoh put him in bondes at Reblah in the lande of Hemath: in the tyme of his raygne in Jerusalem, and put the lade to a tribute of an hundred talentes of syluer and a talent of golde. And Pharaos Necoh made Eliakim the sonne of Josiah, kyng in the towne of Josiah his father, and turned hys name to Jehoakim, and toke Jehoahaz away whiche when he came to Egypte dyed there.

And Jehoakim gaue the syluer and the golde to Pharaos: how be it he taked the lade, to geue the money at the commaundement of Pharaos and as euery man was set at, so he requyred the syluer and the golde of the people of the lade, to geue Pharaos Necoh. Jehoakim was, .xxv. yere olde when he beganne to raygne, & he raygned, .xi. yere in Jerusalem. His mother was named Zebdash the daughter of Shadai of Ramah. Onely at the bydyng of the Lorde happened it so to Iuda, to put them out of his syght, for the synne of Manasseh accordynge to all he dyd: and for the innocent bloude that he shedde and fylled Ierusalem with innocent bloude, which the Lorde woulde not forgeue.

B The rest of the dedes of Jehoachim and all he dyd, are wyrtten in the chronicles of the kynges of Iuda. And Jehoachim layde him to slepe with his fathers, and Jehoachin his sonne raygned in his steade. But the kyng of Egypt came now no more out of his lade: for the kyng of Babylon had taken fro the ryuer of Euphrates, al that pertained to the kyng of Egypte. Jehoachin was. xliiij. yere olde when he beganne to raygne, and raygned in Ierusalem thre monethes. His mothers name was Nechustha the daughter of Elnathan of Ierusalem.
